Aspiring Models Learn It's All About the Shot

Dan Rice

FYI Television, Inc.

Such a fresh and hot concept when it first debuted over a decade ago, "America's Next Top Model" has become an institution, and one that continues to inspire runway dreams for many a young girl. Make that many a young boy as well, now that guys are admitted to the popular competition for the second season in a row. Premiering Monday at 8 p.m. on The CW (and then moving to 8 p.m. Friday on Oct. 3), Cycle 21 assembles seven wannabe catwalkers of each gender and puts them under the same roof and fierce scrutiny as they are mentored, motivated and measured against one another with the images captured on film.

Hosted by executive producer Tyra Banks, who also completes the judges panel with fashion PR expert Kelly Cutrone (and the viewing public), Cycle 21 features the addition of renowned photographer Yu Tsai as creative consultant, and the return of beloved runway coach J. Alexander, aka "Miss J."

"His name says it all. I've missed 'Miss J.' and am elated he's back," gushes Banks. "I know 'Top Model' fans will rejoice!"

Coming from across the continent, each aspiring model has their own tale of courage and determination behind their brave bids at a career in fashion, but none is more evident than that of Toronto's Chantelle Brown-Young, who at the age of 4 was diagnosed with vitiligo – the same skin depigmentation condition Michael Jackson had. As is often the case, Chantelle's patches of white skin are remarkably symmetrical and, after all, symmetry is a cornerstone of perceived beauty. All the more exotic with striking features and form, Chantelle shares her strength as a "vitiligo spokesperson" through motivational talks given both online and in person.

"[Being] 'America's Next Top Model' has been a lifetime dream," Chantelle said in her video pitch to the show. "And I know that the people who are thinking that they can't do what they want to do because of the little things that they have, the little flaws, you know, you can definitely do it and I'm here to prove it. What makes me unique, compared to the other contestants, is that I have something that is very profound about the way that I look. A lot of people have a story and a background, but mine is painted on my body."

"I like when people are challenged to redefine beauty," says Cutrone. "I think it's really important, because I personally don't want to live in a world where the concept is what people have homogenized." At the same time, Cutrone also stresses that on the show and in the industry, models must be willing to allow the reinterpretation of their beauty within the creative process.

"Tyra is a really, really big supporter of autonomy; I mean, she's even created words like 'flawsome,' which is to take what society would consider to be your flaws and celebrate them," Cutrone explains. "If you look at some of the edgier brands like Jean-Paul Gaultier, they would call upon a model like Chantelle to be herself. There are going to be other times when her skin condition might not be working for certain brands, and they might ask her like, 'Wow, we really love your features, but we want you to have a monochromatic skin tone.' That would be normal in the industry. That's the thing that would give her longevity in the industry."

"So, we treated her like a model, and for the most part, if the brief wasn't specific, we allowed her to be the way she is, which is really interesting," Cutrone continues. "The symmetry in her condition, I mean, to see it in person, it's a really beautiful thing because it's perfect. But at the same time, Shaun Ross, you know, who's albino, is a really good friend of mine, and there's going to be people who see Shaun Ross and don't want him to have white hair and white eyelashes. They're going to say they want him in dark hair and wearing mascara. If you're going to be a model, you're not a producer. You either say OK or 'I'm not down for that. I won't cover it up.' There's no right or wrong, it's about your brand and how you want it to be."

"Omahyra, who's from the Dominican Republic [and] is covered in tattoos, super sexy, super androgynous, I mean, sometimes she did girly-girl shoots, which meant she got hair extensions and the tattoos were covered up. Is that how she would present herself as a human being? No. Is that how she went and made $100,000? Yes.

"The challenge with Chantelle is to really prepare her for the modeling world, which is, like, it's great to have courage, it's great to have a story, but you also have to be a good model. You know, because at the end of the day, the industry is about, 'Did you get the shot?' That's the industry."

As for the television show, for Cutrone it's all about the individuals working behind the cameras. "I'm really impressed with the producers and Tyra and the network," she praises. "I mean, 21 Cycles is a lot, you know, and what people don't see is that there are 140 people making that show. And everybody's always on time, there's no drama and there's no meanness. And Tyra's doing everything without cue cards; she's doing everything off the cuff. And when the people are eliminated, there's a lot of care and love for those kids, there's a lot of follow-up with them. It's a nice place to work, and there aren't a lot of glitches."

THIS WEEK'S BEST BETS

FRIDAY Blue Bloods

CBS, 9 p.m.

Erin (Bridget Moynahan) decides to try out speed dating and meets someone (guest-star Holt McCallany, "Golden Boy"), but she winds up going up against him in court. Elsewhere, Danny (Donnie Wahlberg) and Baez (Marisa Ramirez) investigate the death of a woman whose body was found dumped after she was killed by a lethal dose of lidocaine given to her for some secret plastic surgery. Meanwhile, Frank (Tom Selleck) privately assigns Jamie (Will Estes) a cold case.

SATURDAY Great White Matrix

Discovery, 8 p.m.

Former Navy diver and shark attack survivor Paul de Gelder joins with renowned wild-life cinematographer Andy Casagrande to head deep into the shark-infested waters of Australia, airing as part of the network's 27th annual Shark Week. The mission is to investigate a series of bizarre shark attacks in an area swarming with great white sharks. De Gelder and Casagrande try to determine just what is bringing these great whites so close to shore and what exactly is responsible for the surge in attacks in this area.

SUNDAY NFL Preseason Football

FOX, 7 p.m.

Andy Reid embarks on his second season as the head coach of the Kansas City Chiefs, who visit the Carolina Panthers in their second preseason game, from Bank of America Stadium in Charlotte, North Carolina. In his first year at the helm, Reid guided the Chiefs to 11 victories, which was nine more wins than they had managed in 2012. The season ended on a bitter note, when Indianapolis rallied from a 28-point third-quarter deficit to stun Kansas City, 45-44, in the Wild Card Round of the AFC playoffs. The Chiefs are still seeking their first playoff victory since beating the Houston Oilers in 1994. Kansas City has won three of its five regular season meetings with the Panthers.

MONDAY Captivated: The Trials of Pamela Smart

HBO, 8 p.m.

The film takes a new look at a story everyone thought they knew: the trial of 21-year-old

New Hampshire teacher Pamela Smart, who was accused of plotting the 1990 murder of her husband, for which she enlisted the help of her 15-year-old lover and three of his young friends. As the first fully televised, gavel-to-gavel, court case, the trial gave birth to reality TV and inspired the 1995 comedy-drama film "To Die For" starring Nicole Kidman. Directed by Jeremiah Zagar (HBO's "In a Dream"), the documentary explores how the media's coverage of the story may have influenced the trial and sentencing. In addition to interviews with prosecuting and defending attorneys, and journalists covering the case at the time, the film includes insights from Smart's friends and acquaintances, including childhood friends and former inmates who served time with her, as well as the first post-release interview with one of the boys convicted in the case and an intimate new interview with Smart herself.

TUESDAY Food Fighters

NBC, 7 p.m.

A homemaker and married

Lorena Garcia

mother of two goes up against culinary experts specializing in everything from American comfort food to Latin Asian fusion dishes to international cuisine, all before facing off against world class chef Lorena Garcia. Adam Richman hosts this series that takes culinary sparring to an exciting new level when America's best amateur cooks put their signature dishes to the test against five professional chefs one by one, hoping to out-cook each of them according to a dinner party made up of the public for a bigger and bigger chunk of the possible $100,000 prize.

WEDNESDAY

The Middle

ABC, 7 p.m.

Frankie (Patricia Heaton) is stunned when she is handcuffed, arrested and taken to the police station, but when she discovers that her arrest was over an unreturned library book, she sets her sights on the only person she suspects to be the real guilty party - Brick (Atticus Shaffer). Meanwhile, Sue (Eden Sher) doesn't know how to express her feelings of disdain to Reverend TimTom (Paul Hipp) over his new partner and girlfriend, Reverend Tammy (Casey Wilson, "Happy Endings").

THURSDAY

You're the Worst

FX, 9:30 p.m.

Jimmy (Chris Geere) accidentally sleeps with an A-List celebrity - and doesn't have her on a celebrity free pass list. As the only recourse for him to save his blossoming relationship with Gretchen (Aya Cash), Jimmy must embark on a sexual arms race with her to even out their score.

Love Is Sometimes Painful

Candace Havens
FYI Television, Inc.

Jimmy Shive-Overly (Chris Geere) is narcissistic, self-destructive and has a penchant for always saying the wrong thing. Enter the stubborn, but people-pleasing Gretchen Cutler (Aya Cash), who believes she isn't cut out for anything more than a one-night stand. These two couldn't be more different, except for the fact that they believe all relationships are doomed on "You're the Worst," airing Thursday at 9:30 p.m. on FX.

Or, at least they did. They are terrible to one another, and at the same time they can't seem to stay apart. "For me, the show is really just a typical romantic comedy about flawed people," says executive producer Stephen Falk. "And they're pretty flawed, but I think we all are. Sort of the worst in all of us deserves love."

The show is familiar territory for Falk. He set it in his neighborhood in Los Angeles with the sort of people he knows. Even the entertainment and publishing businesses they work in are things he knows intimately.

"I know someone tangentially who is a publicist for the Cash Money Millionaires, and she's like a white girl from Indiana, and she's found herself babysitter to all these rappers, and I just thought it was funny and so I stole that, as we do," Falk says. "And my last show was about the music industry. I thought it would be a great opportunity for me to get some good music in there. And indeed in episode nine, I got to write some raps for the guys, which was kind of embarrassing because I'm super white, but our actors are amazing, and they did them. So, yeah, there's a lot of music in it, and I wanted a book author because I think, again, what's happening with the publishing industry is at least interesting to me, but also I wanted a guy to be able to use a lot of big fancy words and kind of sound like a prat doing so, and he (Geere) does."

The show is super-sexy for basic cable, but Falk and the actors feel it's more realistic than gratuitous. "It's not fun to shoot," Falk says of the sex. "I know everyone says that. It's kind of cliché, but I find it really kind of icky, and I felt very protective about these two," he points to the actors. "And there will be more and featuring other cast members as well as we go on. I didn't set out to shock. I didn't set out to titillate. I really just set out in showing the beginning of a relationship where love is maybe not the goal. I think it's what people do. People have sex, and we all do really weird creepy stuff behind closed doors, and I just kind of wanted to show that in the continuing quest to honestly portray human relationships, and particularly the beginning of one, where they're just for now having fun."

"I actually find that it's pretty common in all the dramas," says Cash of the sexy stuff. "I think what makes it different is that it's a comedy because I watch 'The Bridge,' and there's incredibly graphic sex in that and 'The Americans.' So, I think what's shocking about this to people is that we're not used to seeing sort of realistic sex portrayed in a comedy. I've never done sex scenes before. I was terrified for all the normal reasons, and it was much less scary in the doing than in the thought of it. These people were so supportive and lovely, and we had many conversations about exactly what we would be showing and doing, and ultimately I believe that it's really important to the show because I think that sex is a part of relationships and to have me like sitting in a bra on top of him is probably not the most realistic way to go about showing that. So, I was in full support of it, but it's terrifying."

For Geere, playing someone so opposite himself has been freeing. "This was great fun for me as a very polite, British person who keeps everything to himself the whole time.

It was great to play a role where I could be that voice of unreason," Geere says. "And, you know, Stephen's dialogue was so witty and sharp, and it just enabled me to really have fun with it and to pronounce specific words in my very British, trying to be charming way, and, yeah, I loved it."

TRIVIA CHAIN

They Came from 'Saturday Night Live'

1. This original "Saturday Night Live" cast member excelled as the inaugural anchor of "Weekend Update," but he infamously bombed as a talk show host.

2. Also in that original cast were two friends who created a sensation when they donned black suits and shades for a sketch that evolved into this epic musical film of 1980.

3. In 1987, another "SNL" skit launched two popular characters whose public-access TV show in Aurora, Illinois, shared its name with the two feature films to follow.

4. This Emmy-winning "SNL" performer became an Oscar nominee and a Pro-Am champion golfer.

5. This long-running "SNL" player starred in a film adaptation of his skit about a radio talk show host who was delusional about his seductive powers.

6. One of the later "Weekend Update" anchors, she created this Emmy-winning sitcom about her experiences as head writer for "SNL," which is named for the address of the NBC studios.

7. One of the original writers (and an occasional performer) for "SNL," he went on to become a best-selling author, an Air America Radio host and the incumbent U.S. Senator from Minnesota.

Oil on Alabama beaches worst since spill
BY JAY REEVES AND RAY HENRY
ANNISTON, Ala. — A massive spill of oil from the Gulf of Mexico on Saturday left a grimy trail of pollution on Alabama's Gulf Coast. The spill, which began on the night of May 26, has washed ashore in waves, leaving a trail of oil on the beach. The spill is the worst since the 1969 Santa Barbara oil spill. The spill is the worst since the 1969 Santa Barbara oil spill. The spill is the worst since the 1969 Santa Barbara oil spill.

CITY OF NO

Does council's infighting hobble Anniston's progress?
BY LAURA CAMPER
ANNISTON, Ala. — A meeting of the Anniston City Council last week was anything but a model of civility. The council members spent much of the meeting arguing and bickering, leaving the audience in confusion. SOAP OPERA REVIEW

THE BOLD AND THE BEAUTIFUL

Hope was faced with a difficult decision. Deacon hoped that Brooke would give him another chance romantically. Bill was tipped off about Wyatt's elaborate plan. Liam received an unexpected phone call that completely rocked his world. Oliver seduced Aly with a romantic gesture and a subtle reminder of their enchanting medieval evening. Word spread quickly throughout Forrester Creations regarding the incidents that took place in Paris and Monte Carlo. Bill threw caution to the wind and asked Brooke to marry him. Deacon hoped to gain the upper hand in a scheme. Quinn was interrogated about her role in Wyatt gaining possession of the diamond. Brooke became increasingly worried about her daughter's well-being after she hadn't been heard from since the photo shoot. Quinn made an important phone call to facilitate her plan. Wait to See: Quinn and Deacon join forces. Ridge's secret falls into the wrong hands. Bill wins points with his charm.

Peter Bergman stars as "Jack" on "The Young and the Restless."

DAYS OF OUR LIVES

A jealous Theresa warned Eve to stay away from Brady. Hope was shocked to learn that Aiden had a date with Jennifer. Kristen stunned all her enemies with her return to Salem. A livid Sami confronted Nicole for her part in Eric not being able to return to the priesthood. Kristen turned to Stefano for help. Marlena counseled Brady on his next move regarding Kristen. Sonny felt guilty about the secret that he was keeping from Will. Clyde started to make big plans for his future in Salem. Sami had an explosive confrontation with Will after reading his article. EJ warned Kate that Stefano might be gunning for her and Sami. Clyde made a deal with Ben. Hope uncovers Aiden's fib. Sami is forced to change her tactics. Nicole gets a chance to confront Kristen.

GENERAL HOSPITAL

Levi's true colors were revealed and lives were in jeopardy before his wedding to Maxie began. Sam told Patrick that she wanted to work with him to find out who put Rafe up to the crash. Olivia let Sonny know whether they had a future together. Lucas extended a dinner invitation to both Brad and Felix. Britt barged in on Nikolas and Elizabeth's cozy lunch together. Olivia made a formal apology to Carly. Sonny gave Milo some romantic tips. Franco and Nina found themselves in a compromising position. Nikolas allowed Britt to stay at his house after she got kicked out of her apartment. Carly learned about Franco's whereabouts. Nina discovered that Ava was pregnant. Wait to See: Nina is determined to have another baby with Silas. Julian tries to conceal the identity of his boss from Jordan. Sabrina returns from Puerto Rico.

THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS

Neil decided to buy a house for Hilary. Meanwhile, Hilary and Devon were declaring their feelings for one another. Sharon confronted Ian by asking about Mariah's mother. Nikki continued to struggle with her sobriety. Christine walked in just in time to see Paul comforting Nikki. Chelsea invited Billy to her son's birthday party. Abby interrupted an awkward moment between Stitch and Victoria. Kelly urged Jack not to leave town to see Phyllis. Meanwhile, Victor privately met with Phyllis' doctor. Nick did some research into Mariah's past. Jill and Colin returned from their trip to find a letter from Katherine. Esther had some urgent news to give Kevin about Chloe. Wait to See: Sharon and Mariah have an explosive argument. Devon and Hilary rethink their strategy. Summer introduces Austin to Phyllis.
