Grylls Challenges Celebs on Wild Adventures

Candace Havens
FYI Television, Inc.

Actors Channing Tatum, Zac Efron, Ben Stiller and Tom Arnold, "Today" anchor Tamron Hall and NFL Hall of Famer Deion Sanders have something in common. In addition to being celebrities, they've all survived crazy adventures with survivalist Bear Grylls on "Running Wild with Bear Grylls," airing Monday at 7 p.m. on NBC. In each episode, Grylls takes a celebrity out of their comfort zone and into the wilderness.

"I feel really lucky we got such incredible stars to join us," Grylls says. "It was encouraging. I reached out to people I was keen to get on the show, and they were keen to do it. Total credit to all six of our guests. They all gave it a 120 percent. Nobody said, 'Hold back.' I asked them to come on their own. No entourage, and to just trust me. They did that. The show's a real credit to them. I'm proud of them. And they were excited and proud they completed it."

There might have been some celebrities who were more courageous to try scarier things, but Grylls refuses to pick a favorite. "I'm giving you a politically correct answer, but the truth is I genuinely have so much respect for these guys," he laughs. "It's scary when you take yourself so far out of your comfort zone, and then go and do something you've never done before. This was totally new terrain for them physically, emotionally and mentally."

"Ben was so fun to film with because everything is so hilarious. Channing and Zac were great because they were so enthusiastic. They had no fear and they loved the adrenaline. Tamron had never done anything like this. She started off so frightened, but by the end she was exhausted but exhilarated. Deion is a legend in his own right. He's tough. But he's someone who admits he's never really stepped outside of a city. So, that was always going to be an adventure for him. Tom was nervous, but he was really happy that he completed the challenge. Tamron was shaking with fear but ended up having a lot of fun. Genuinely they were all amazing, and it was just a relief to me that nobody died."

That doesn't mean there weren't a few mishaps during the show. When he worked with Tatum, he was so concerned about making sure the actor's gear was set that he forgot to check his own. But he quickly fixed the problem without Tatum ever finding out.

"It's a nightmare," he says of worrying about the safety of his celebrity guests. "When I'm on my own, I only have to worry about keeping myself alive. It's definitely challenging when you've taken someone who has done nothing like this before. When you're on your own, a lot of the safety measures happen subconsciously. But when you have Ben Stiller on the end of the rope, I start double-checking, and then triple-check. It's harder work. I like that. I've done years of this stuff on my own. It's quite fun taking some of these guys and seeing people come alive when they're facing difficult terrain. It's great helping them overcome their fear of heights, or snakes or whatever it is. You get to know people in a way you wouldn't if you just sat in a restaurant."

"The wild is very revealing," Grylls continues. "You get to see a side of these stars that is such a privilege to see because they're uncovered. There's no looking smart in makeup and nice clothing. You get to know the real people - their struggles, their doubts, their highs and their lows."

There aren't many places Grylls hasn't been to, but there is one place he doesn't want to see again. "The Black Swamps of Sumatra," he says, "where the tsunami hit in 2001. It decimated part of the island. Just full of this stinking, black, rotting swamp with all these crocodiles feeding on the 65,000 human corpses of the people who lost their lives there. It's a disease-ridden, crocodile-filled place. I won't be hurrying back to that one."

There is another locale that Grylls never tires of, and it might surprise some viewers. "Home," he says. "I do love it. I love the adventures. It's where I come alive and where I perform at my best. I love the wildernesses around the world that we've gone to. It's been such a privilege. But also, going away a lot has taught me the value of home. It's a great driving force for me when I'm out in the jungle or wherever, it's the shining light in front of me making me work hard so I can get back in one piece.

I have a lovely family, three young boys, and the lesson of going away is that it's good to come back home. Right now I'm watching the boys, stark naked in the rain, playing in the sea. I'm hanging out under a broken tree trying to stay out of the rain. But they love it. It's in their DNA for sure."

THIS WEEK'S BEST BETS

FRIDAY Bones

FOX, 8 p.m.

When the Jeffersonian team discovers the body of a renowned but disliked chess master amidst pig slop, Sweets (John Francis Daley) surprises the team with his chess skills and goes undercover in the world of professional chess to find the killer. Meanwhile, Cam (Tamara Taylor) is being recognized in the "Outstanding Woman of Science" issue of a noted science publication, but she is hesitant to participate since she does not want to offend Brennan (Emily Deschanel), who is usually the one to be honored. And much to Brennan's annoyance, Dr. Douglas Filmore (guest star Scott Lowell), the always sunny Canadian forensic podiatrist, fills in as a lab intern.

SATURDAY NASCAR Nationwide Series: Zippo 200 at the Glen

ABC, 1:15 p.m.

Daley

Brad Keselowski led 46 of 82 laps and took the checkered flag at last year's Nationwide Series race from Watkins Glen, New York. Keselowski had finished second at the 2.45-mile road course in 2012 after leading 44 laps. Last year's victory at Watkins Glen International was the fourth straight win in the Nationwide Series for Keselowski, who finished last season with seven victories in 16 starts on NASCAR's second-tier circuit.

Sam Hornish Jr., Keselowski's teammate at Team Penske, finished second in the race, 1.418 seconds behind Keselowski, who averaged 92.368 mph.

SUNDAY Air Jaws: Fin of Fury

Discovery, 7 p.m.

The 27th annual Shark Week begins with shark filmmaker Jeff Kurr and his team embarking on a worldwide mission to track down the missing "mega-shark" Colossus. Using incredible new cameras, high-tech underwater gadgetry and the Seal Sled, the daring Kurr strives to get up close and personal with the giant predator, all in the hopes of obtaining a deeper understanding (and stunning images) of the frightening creature.

MONDAY Under the Dome

CBS, 9 p.m.

When Barbie (Mike Vogel) descends into the unknown abyss in the mysterious tunnel to look for Sam (Eddie Cahill), he discovers a world that is familiar but filled with unanswered questions. Brett Cullen ("Devious Maids") guest-stars on the episode as Don Barbara, Barbie's father.

TUESDAY Food Fighters

NBC, 7 p.m.

An IT manager and husband from Denver tries to win $100,000 going up against culinary experts, who specialize in everything from Italian cuisine to seafood, before he faces off against acclaimed celebrity chef Duff Goldman. Hosted by Adam Richman, this competition series has the best amateur cooks in America putting their treasured family recipes to the test against five professional chefs for a high stakes culinary game.

TUESDAY Brandi and Jarrod: Married to the Job

A&E, 9:02 p.m.

The new series provides

viewers with a glimpse of their favorite "Storage Wars" couple - Brandi Passante and Jarrod Schulz - outside of the storage auction game. When the bidding stops, Brandi and Jarrod come home to Orange County, California, where their busy lives revolve around raising two children and managing their second hand store. After 15 years together, Brandi and Jarrod finally decide to tie the knot, and they approach wedding planning in a way that only they could: with a little love, a lot of bickering and constant detours along the way.

WEDNESDAY Motive

ABC, 9 p.m.

When Detectives Flynn (Kristin Lehman) and Vega (Louis Ferreira) look into the death of a real-estate agent, they have trouble finding the motivation behind the killing, and then the family of their only suspect becomes involved. Later, Flynn tells prosecutor Samantha Turner (Laura Mennell) that she won't testify against Sgt. Cross (Warren Christie).

THURSDAY The Big Bang Theory

CBS, 7 p.m.

After the insults fly, Bernadette (Melissa Rauch) tries to broker the peace between Wolowitz (Simon Helberg) and Sheldon (Jim Parsons), who is then invited to go to NASA with Wolowitz as a gesture of good will. Meanwhile, Penny (Kaley Cuoco-Sweeting) is offered an embarrassing movie role, and Raj (Kunal Nayyar) asks Amy (Mayim Bialik) to write to a woman on his behalf.

Sean Bean Thrives in Multifaceted Role on TNT's 'Legends'

Dan Rice
FYI Television, Inc.

In the secretive worlds of espionage and undercover police work, a "legend" is a fictitious identity used on deep-cover operations, a fake persona meant to be abandoned once the mission is completed. But that isn't so easy for Martin Odum (Sean Bean, "Game of Thrones"), a brilliant agent in the FBI's Deep Cover Operations (DCO) division who so completely becomes that fabricated person that he finds it more and more difficult to step back into his real identity. And when a mysterious stranger suggests that Martin isn't the man he believes himself to be, he begins to question whether "Martin Odum" is just another one of his "Legends," a new spy mystery series premiering Wednesday at 8 p.m. on TNT.

From executive producer Howard Gordon ("Homeland," "24") and showrunner David Wilcox ("Fringe"), the suspenseful drama is based on the award-winning book by master spy-fi author Robert Littell, whose CIA novel

"The Company" was adapted for TNT's acclaimed 2007 miniseries of the same name. "Legends" also stars Ali Larter ("Heroes") as Crystal McGuire, a fellow agent whose personal history with Martin makes her uneasy about his return to DCO; Steve Harris ("The Practice") as DCO Task Force Director Nelson Gates; Amber Valletta ("Revenge") as Sonya Odum, Martin's fed-up ex-wife; Morris Chestnut ("Nurse Jackie") as the quick-witted FBI/DCO operative Tony Rice; and Tina Majorino ("True Blood") as Maggie Harris, a new but crucial DCO member who monitors and backs up Martin by rapidly creating bogus online records for his cover identities.

As Martin continues his work of infiltrating criminal organizations, assuming such diverse identities as a simple-minded domestic terrorist, a Serbian extremist, a corrupt Chicago police officer, a British Special Forces colonel and a notorious computer hacker, he struggles in between missions to return to his real self, all while trying to solve the puzzle of just who that real self is.

"Martin Odum is a man of mystery who has a past that is sort of a Russian doll of who he really is," sums up Wilcox. "And as an undercover operative, as someone who embraces various legends to go deep cover into these criminal organizations, [he] is somebody you don't necessarily know what you're getting in terms of his identity. And that's really what this show is about. It's about a guy whose identity is kind of the driving question. And he's on this journey to figure that out."

An International Emmy-winning British actor, Bean has demonstrated his range through such contrasting characters as Boromir in "The Lord of the Rings" trilogy, the Greek hero Odysseus in "Troy," an Irish republican terrorist in "Patriot Games," a rifleman of the Napoleonic Wars in 16 "Sharpe" telefilms and a ruthless double-agent in the James Bond film "GoldenEye." One of the main attractions of "Legends" for him is in playing multiple roles on a single production, something he had never done before. He is also fascinated by the intense nature of method acting routinely performed by undercover operatives, in which the believability of their characters is a matter of life and death.

"I just thought it was interesting to follow these characters that went undercover," Bean explains, "and to kind of see what consequences there were psychologically by doing that, having to totally believe that you were someone else, imagine yourself in another character and still try to lead a normal life with a wife and child. And I think that deals with a very serious psychological dilemma that these guys or girls face when they go undercover."

Bean's co-stars are just as impressed with his success at playing a character performing as other characters while suggesting that yet another identity exists beneath the surface. "One of the things that's really fascinating about this show

Premiering Wednesday at 8 p.m., the TNT spy drama "Legends" stars Sean Bean as a deep-cover FBI agent who begins to question whether his own identity is real or not.

is you watch Martin Odum really transform himself into these different legends that he's created over the years," Larter says, "and for me as an actor to watch Sean morph into these different people is incredible to watch, and I don't think you've seen someone of this quality take on a role like this."

Bean admits that while he will immerse himself in a role similarly to the manner of Martin (who sometimes slips back into a legend when off-duty and changes accents or signs the wrong name), he isn't one to carry that over into real life. "But then, it is sometimes hard to switch off," the actor allows. "The more intense the production is, the more you're involved, and then there is a residue that you take home with you, and that can be tricky sometimes because you have to shake it off to live with your family."

TRIVIA CHAIN

Sketching out Comedy

1. This late-night series has been a mix of sketch comedy and musical performances for 39 straight years, with many cast members moving on to success in feature films.

2. This classic series was known for its rapid-fire gags and sketches, along with such "hip" one-liner gimmicks as the "Joke Wall" and the "Cocktail Party."

3. British television found its biggest international success with this comic collective, whose signature bits include "The Dead Parrot Sketch" and "Nudge Nudge."

4. This Canadian sketch comedy series was set in a fictional TV station, its cast featuring such future stars as John Candy and Martin Short.

5. Classic American television boasts a wealth of variety shows with sketch comedy, and none were funnier than this hour headlined by a redhead who tugged her ear at the end of each show.

6. Airing in the early 1990s, this sketch show was written by two brothers, who shared the spotlight on camera with three other siblings and "The Fly Girls."

7. For this sketch comedy series, FOX not only borrowed the name and mascot of a venerable humor magazine, but it animated one of the magazine's most popular comic strips.
