Tension Builds 'Under the Dome'

Dan Rice
FYI Television, Inc.

Completely clear and permeable to air and water yet apparently indestructible, the giant dome that inexplicably sealed off the small town of Chester's Mill from the rest of the world went through some shocking changes last summer as the inaugural season of CBS' "Under the Dome" came to a close, but the mysterious barrier takes on new properties while introducing new threats on the premiere of season two, airing Monday at 9 p.m. Deviating further from the source novel by bestselling author Stephen King, the series picks up two weeks after the community became enclosed, finding the post-apocalyptic conditions intensified within as new faces emerge in the struggle for power.

"Season two is the season of ecological disaster under the Dome," showrunner Neal Baer explains. "The Dome has become magnetized, so just when you thought you were safe in your kitchen you're not, because knives are flying and chasing characters, refrigerators come loose from the wall and are pulled toward the Dome with a magnetic force that's fierce."

Baer, who points out that viewers can catch up on season one on Amazon Instant Video, also acknowledges that the series doesn't strictly follow the plot of the book by King, who serves as an executive producer. "The book was one week, and in season two we're in the second week under the Dome, so there are things that happen in the book that happen throughout the season, but we're not following anything chronologically at this point with the book. That's why Stephen King wrote the first episode [of season two], because he wanted to establish his voice for the series in directing it forward."

This will be the first episode King wrote for the series, and Baer reports that the prolific scribe has so far been pleased with the adaptation. "He's thrilled that it's the most successful series based on his work ever," Baer relates. "It's his most successful series to date. This was the most popular new drama in 21 years in the summer last year.

"He's absolutely lovely, a real, true gentleman and supporter and collaborator -

I can't speak highly enough about Stephen King," Baer gushes. "He's an absolutely extraordinary person, just kindhearted, funny, great sense of humor, very supportive of the writers and us in Los Angeles. You couldn't ask for a better partner."

Last year's season finale cliffhanger left the fate of Army veteran Dale "Barbie" Barbara (Mike Vogel) and his secret mission in the hands of corrupt local politician, used-car salesman and drug runner "Big Jim" Rennie (Dean Norris) and his newly deputized son, the psychopathic "Junior" Rennie (Alexander Koch). The isolation provided by the Dome has consolidated Big Jim's power play in Chester's Mill, but its enigmatic walls may very well be closing in on Junior and his atrocious crimes against women. Viewers who also read King's book will note that the nature of those crimes have been toned down for the series, but Baer insists that point of story editing is not a consequence of stricter standards for the show airing on a broadcast network rather than premium cable like Showtime, to which "Under the Dome" was first pitched. "It would have remained on CBS," he concludes. "They do a show called 'Criminal Minds' and I did 'SVU' on NBC, so it really has nothing to do with that; we just didn't want to go in that direction with Junior. We just felt it was a way to continue the character for the longer run.

"On the first episode of this season, we do have quite an alarming crime against one of our characters, so we don't hold back. So, it's the same show you would have seen on Showtime. The only thing I could say that would be different is there might be slightly more nudity on the Showtime show, and maybe more drug use, although we did have a lot of drug use. You know, I would say that shows like 'Criminal Minds' and 'SVU' are as psychologically dark and edgy as anything on cable."

Despite Chester's Mill being a closed community now, the series will introduce a few new characters this season, as Baer reveals. "Eddie (Cahill, 'CSI: NY') plays Sam Verdreaux, who is Big Jim's brother-in-law, his deceased wife's brother and Junior's uncle. He's a recluse after [his sister] committed suicide. He took to a cabin to drink for nine years, and the Dome coming down has forced him to come out of his shell. Karla

Big Jim (Dean Norris) and the others face a new threat from the Dome on the second season premiere of "Under the Dome," airing Monday at 9 p.m. on CBS.

Crome plays Rebecca Pine, the high school science teacher, who brings a really wonderful point of view of science to explain these occurrences under the Dome versus taking it on faith that it may be something we just don't have the capacity or ability to understand as human beings. Grace Victoria Cox plays Melanie Cross, a new character who is found inexplicably drowning in the lake by Julia (Rachelle Lefevre) in the first episode, and she will become a pivotal character for a number of our characters in connections that will be shocking. And our final new character is Sherry Stringfield, playing a mystery woman whose presence will be revealed."

As to any further revelations about the nature and purpose of the Dome itself, viewers will have to wait and see - as will readers of King's original tale. Expanded to accommodate multiple seasons, the series' narrative is taking new directions, all related to how much time is left to tell the tale. At any rate, Baer assures Stephen King fans that they won't be left dissatisfied. "They already have an ending for the book," says Baer, "and now we'll give them a different ending for the show in the long, long, faraway future."

THIS WEEK'S BEST BETS

FRIDAY

Funniest Wins

TBS, 9 p.m.

With a face that registers hilarity even in scenes of terror, Marlon Wayans ("A Haunted House," "Scary Movie") is an ideal host and guide for 10 comedic competitors as they learn the ins and outs of a particular comedy style, and then put that knowledge to the test. With guest mentors, outrageous challenges and the simple goal of making people laugh or go home, the show's format sends one comic packing at the end of each round. At the conclusion of the season, the winner will receive a $100,000 cash prize, and the chance to star in an online series for Wayans' WhatTheFunny.com.

SATURDAY

USA Track & Field Outdoor Championships

NBC, 3 p.m.

Brianna Rollins set the American record in the 100-meter hurdles last year. Rollins defeated Queen Harrison, Nia Ali, Kellie Wells and Lolo Jones last year, posting a record time of 12.26 seconds. The event was held at Drake Stadium in Des Moines, Iowa, in 2013, but this year the USATF will hold the meet at Hornet Stadium on the campus of Cal State University, which hosted the 2004 Olympic Trials. This is the fifth time that Sacramento has hosted the event since 2003, which is a testament to the fan support and ideal weather conditions in the region.

SUNDAY

Unforgettable

CBS, 9 p.m.

Carrie Wells (Poppy Montgomery), an NYPD detective with a flawless memory, must uncover the pieces of a championship boxer's past to figure out who was able to beat him to death without any indication that he defended himself or fought back in any way. Dylan Walsh, Jane Curtin, Dallas Roberts, Tawny Cypress and James Hiroyuki Liao also star on the procedural crime drama.

Rollins

MONDAY

Wanderlust

FX, 9 p.m.

A Manhattan couple (Jennifer Aniston and Paul Rudd) is in for some eye-opening revelations when sudden unemployment upsets their urban existence, and they decide to try the alternative lifestyle of a rural hippie commune where free love rules. Co-starring in this comedy for our times are Malin Akerman, Alan Alda, Kathryn Hahn, Kerri Kenney, Linda Lavin, Ken Marino and Justin Theroux.

TUESDAY

Brooklyn Nine-Nine

FOX, 7:30 p.m.

One of Rosa's (Stephanie Beatriz) perps, Doug Judy (guest star Craig Robinson, "The Office"), captures the interest of Jake (Andy Samberg) by having information about the "Pontiac Bandit," a car thief whom Jake has been tracking for years. Meanwhile, the station tries to accommodate a scooter-bound Charles' (Joe Lo Truglio) every need when he returns to work, but he proves to be too much to handle. And Capt. Holt (Andre Braugher) struggles to find a home for two puppies.

WEDNESDAY

Jaws

AMC, 6:45 p.m.

Amity Island's Chief Brody (Roy Scheider) recognizes the need for a bigger boat when fishing for a gigantic great white shark in the iconic summer blockbuster of 1975, director Steven Spielberg's "Jaws." And just when you thought it was safe to go back in the water, the network follows up with all the sequels: "Jaws 2" at 9:45 p.m., "Jaws 3" at 12:15 a.m. and "Jaws: The Revenge" at 2:30 a.m.

Roy Scheider

THURSDAY

Pawnography

HISTORY, 9 p.m.

Rick Harrison joins his fellow

"Pawn Stars" – son Corey Harrison and Austin "Chumlee" Russell – as the team to beat. Hosted by comedian Christopher Titus, the half-hour game show features contestants competing against each other and the "Pawn Stars" in three fast-paced rounds of trivia style questions – to win money and coveted items from the World Famous Gold & Silver Pawnshop. Filmed in front of a live audience in Las Vegas, each episode will feature Rick, Corey and Chumlee vigorously defending their treasured items from confident and brainy contestants. The cherished items up for grabs are from Rick's personal collection and he doesn't want to give them up – this is the only game show that doesn't want the contestants to win! Will a lucky contestant be able to stump the man who knows everything, or will Rick prevail and walk away with his money in his pocket and his prized possessions intact?

Perrotta Novel Comes To Life on HBO

Candace Havens
FYI Television, Inc.

Tom Perrotta's bestselling 2011 novel "The Leftovers," which he adapted as an HBO series premiering Sunday at 9 p.m., is a different take on the Rapture. The "leftovers" are those left behind after two percent of the world's population suddenly disappears. Set in the fictional town of Mapleton, the drama focuses on the remaining residents who are still shaken after the global event known as "The Sudden Departure." That's when 140 million people disappeared without a trace.

The inspiration for the book and the series came from what happened after 9/11. "It was definitely on my mind, but in a funny way, because I was thinking about the days right after 9/11 in a sense we all had thought that nothing would ever be the same," Perrotta explains. "And then maybe five or six years later, some sense of that change had been a lot more limited than we had imagined. In many ways, our lives were unchanged by this cataclysm. And I started to just think about telling a story that explored that idea of a huge collective trauma and the various ways that a community deals with it."

Perrotta teamed with "Lost" producer Damon Lindelof to bring his book to the small screen. For Perrotta, working on the show is an opportunity for him to have a second chance with what he created. "I'm excited to find out what happens next," he says. "When I finish a book, I'm finished with the book, and what's been really interesting about being in the writers' room is having this opportunity along with Damon and the other writers to re imagine this, not only what comes next, but what's in the book."

Lindelof had read a review from Stephen King about Perrotta's book and thought it looked interesting. "I immediately became fascinated by the idea of an end-of-the-world story where you couldn't really tell whether or not the end of the world had happened," Lindelof says. "Even when I finished his novel, I felt like I could spend more time in that world, even though I felt like all the characters had arrived at a very satisfying nexus. When I picked it up, I knew that it was going to end, but I did feel as though there are so many stories to tell in a world like this one."

At the heart of the story is Mapleton police chief Kevin Garvey (Justin Theroux), who tries to keep some sort of normalcy for his children, Jill (Margaret Qualley) and Tom (Chris Zylka). At the same time, he's working to help the town recover while dealing with his own demons.

Theroux also writes and produces feature films like "Tropic Thunder," but he's perfectly happy letting Lindelof take charge of this project. "I write comedies with fart jokes and crude humor," Theroux laughs. "I actually really love relaxing into letting someone else sort of steer the ship because they're obviously two totally different disciplines. When I read the script, I enjoyed just the tone of the writing. There was no joke to get to. It was just a really well told story. So, if it was a comedy, I might want to have more of a hand in it or might try to put a thumbprint on it. But this is so far beyond the kind of thing that I do that I'm happy to sort of relax into it."

The other series regulars include Amy Brenneman, who plays Laurie, a mother with a successful career who felt all she could do was surrender after the event. Christopher Eccleston plays Reverend Matt Jamison, who believes he knows what the Departure was and wasn't. Liv Tyler plays Meg, who now isn't so sure she should get married. And Ann Dowd plays Patti, one of the leaders of Guilty Remnant, an emerging cult that serves as an escape for the traumatized folks left behind.

Viewers who haven't the read the book will still be able to understand the show. "I think that the assumption has to be that the people haven't read the book," Lindelof says. "Even if it was a massive phenomenon like 'The Hunger Games' where you're selling tens of millions of copies and it's a pop culture phenomenon, it's still, you know, six or seven years later the movie is coming out. And you also, as a storyteller, don't want to make people feel like they're left out, like other people who have read the book have an interior knowledge of this show and the degree of difficulty in watching it is much higher.

"So, there was certainly an effort on our part in the storytelling to bring the audience in, and I think that, while there will be people who read the book or people who start watching the show and they just don't want to wait maybe until the following week's episode and they'll just go and buy the book, there are clearly deviations between the book and the series that we have to do because we're building a television series that could potentially go beyond the first season and extend well beyond the book. And then there are just beautiful things in the book that absolutely have to happen in the series, and as storytellers, we just have to figure out when the appropriate time to do those things is and, hopefully, the readers of the book will go, 'Oh, yeah, yeah. I remember that.' But we want to make the show as accessible to as many people as humanly possible."

TRIVIA CHAIN

TV Time Travel

1. Appearing on the "The Rocky and Bullwinkle Show," this brilliant cartoon dog invents the time traveling WABAC machine to both educate and exercise his adopted human son.

2. On this classic sci-fi series, a top-secret government project sends Tony and Doug hurtling through time to invariably land at some perilous event, such as the sinking of the Titanic or the siege of the Alamo.

3. A time travel experiment leaves this physicist jumping about in the past, temporarily taking the places of other people to "put right what once went wrong."

4. Played by a succession of actors, this longtime TV character was an alien Time Lord whose conveyance to the past and future was a British police box.

5. This hit animated series began with a pizza delivery boy being cryogenically frozen for 1,000 years, after which time travel served as a frequent plot device.

6. In contrast, a phone booth took two hard-rocking slackers to the distant past and future on this short-lived series, adapted from a popular 1989 film of the same name.

7. Similarly, this animated series based on a popular film franchise followed an eccentric scientist and his young friend as they time travel in a modified DeLorean automobile.

Oil on Alabama beaches worst since spill

BY JAY REEVES AND RAY HENRY

Oil on Alabama beaches is the worst since the 2010 Gulf of Mexico oil spill, according to a study by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. The study found that the amount of oil on Alabama beaches is the highest since the 2010 spill, with the most oil found on the Gulf of Mexico coast.

CITY OF NO

Does council's infighting hobble Anniston's progress?

BY LAURA CAMPER

Infighting in the Anniston City Council is hobbling the city's progress, according to a study by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. The study found that the amount of oil on Alabama beaches is the highest since the 2010 spill, with the most oil found on the Gulf of Mexico coast.

SOAP OPERA REVIEW

THE BOLD AND THE BEAUTIFUL

Hope wondered if Quinn had caused Liam's accident. Head over heels for Oliver after their magical night together, Aly penned him a love note. Oliver justified his feelings for Aly when Rick and Caroline confronted him about the voice recording. Wyatt assured Hope that Quinn might be manipulative, but she wasn't dangerous. A shaken Liam recounted to Hope his terrifying encounter with Quinn the evening before. Deacon got on Quinn's bad side when he verbally hit her where it hurt with a comment about her son. Bill and Deacon came face to face for the first time in years. Wait to See: Ridge returns to work a changed man. Maya threatens to expose Oliver. Two adversaries share a close bond after a brush with death.

Casey Moss stars as "JJ" on "Days of Our Lives."

DAYS OF OUR LIVES

Chaos erupted at Sami and EJ's wedding. Clyde contacted Kate about his future plans. Nicole tried her best to clear Eric's name. Hope questioned Aiden about his deceased wife. Roman used Giselle to make Marlena jealous. EJ was certain that Stefano was to blame for his latest troubles. Marlena and Roman rushed to Sami's side to support their daughter. JJ's graduation day was marred by Eve's lawsuit against Jennifer. Later, Jennifer informed JJ that Eve and Theresa were sisters. Salem's citizens celebrated the Fourth of July with a scorching hot barbecue by the lake. Eve worked her charms on Daniel. Theresa shared a warm moment with Caroline. Paige confronted JJ about keeping something from her. Wait to See: Kate gives Sami a big surprise. Nicole offers to help EJ. Clyde tracks down Jordan.

ery about Nina. Meanwhile, Nina continued to mislead Silas. Patrick shared a difficult reality with Emma. Britt enlisted Spencer to help her win back Nikolas. Maxie and Nathan shared a tender moment. Sonny was caught off-guard when Ava invited her mother to live with them. Rafe conned Silas into giving him money. Wait to See: Tracy blackmails Alice. Felix and Brad fight about Lucas. Maxie questions her feelings for Nathan.

THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS

Christine asked Nikki to promise not to tell Paul that Dylan is his son. Ian blackmailed Leslie into representing him. Summer professed her love to Austin. Nick warned Mariah not to get too close to his family. Later, Mariah asked Ian if he was manipulating her along with everyone else in town. A drunken Devon crashed his father's celebration with Hilary. Kelly confronted Billy about flying to Australia to visit Jenna. Kevin thought he found something incriminating on Stitch. With his life on the line, Colin confessed to Jill that he owed a large sum of money. Kelly was forced to come clean with Jack about her true relationship with Stitch. Wait to See: Victoria gets closer to finding out the paternity of her unborn child. Tempers flare between Lily and Hilary. Paul and Dylan explore their blood ties.

GENERAL HOSPITAL

Ned wondered whether Tracy and Luke were in cahoots. Nathan and Maxie accidentally found themselves in a compromising position. Alice got sidelined while telling Michael the truth about Tracy. Patrick, Silas and Sam rushed to confront the driver of the car. TJ let Molly in on Rafe's transgressions, while Rafe made a discov-
