Networks Taking Bigger Chances with Summer Shows

Candace Havens
FYI Television, Inc.

It's a new world in network television. There was a time 10 years ago when reality series and reruns were the most television viewers could hope for in the summer. CBS' "Extant" (Wednesday, July 9) with Halle Berry and the new series "Reckless" (Sunday, June 29), ABC's "Mistresses" (Monday 9:01 p.m.) and "Motive" (Wednesday 9 p.m.) and FOX's "24: Live Another Day" (Monday, 8 p.m.) and "Gang Related" (Thursday at 8 p.m.) are only a few of the summer dramas broadcast networks are taking chances on, and it's paying off.

Part of the reason CBS is filling their summer schedule with scripted dramas is the success they found in 2013 with "Under the Dome" (returning Monday, June 30). "The show had an extraordinary appeal," says Nina Tassler, president, CBS Entertainment. "It did phenomenally across all platforms. We feel we learned a lot going forward in terms of the way to tell stories, the kinds of stories we should tell episodically as well as the big summer arc. The most important thing is we feel it's great escapist television. And during this summer, coming up with those big kinds of summer blockbuster stories is really the way to go with the show. So, we feel that the most important thing is continuing to let the show grow, let it evolve. We're adding new characters, because the most important thing is the quality of the storytelling and making every episode an event."

Event television works well for the networks in the summer. It gives an opportunity for creators to tell shorter stories that make an impact. Those creators are following the cable model where they do fewer episodes. That's one of the reasons FOX launched two of their big dramas - "24" and "Gang Related" - in the summer.

"I think in this day and age we can't be in the one size fits-all business," says Kevin Reilly, FOX's chairman of entertainment. "There shouldn't be a set pattern. There shouldn't be a set time when we launch things. The audience doesn't watch midseason and fall season. They don't know about pilot season. They just want to watch a great show at the right time of year that's marketed to them that they can be aware of. There are so many things, thousands of original shows competing for their attention right now. We just can't do it all at once. We started the rollout this year. We [premiered] '24,' one of our flagship shows, in May and [are] playing it into the summer. We're pairing it with 'Gang Related,' which is a great show and is going to really do some business for us. We're just going where they ain't, which is the way cable was built. Rolling things out with focus where we have 13 in the can and we're way ahead of it and we can creatively make it good and we can market it accordingly."

As with most things in business, it comes down to the money. Networks were watching their viewership head to cable in the summer, and they were losing revenue. While there's been talk about going to year-round programming for years, it didn't happen until shows such as "True Blood" (which is in its last season) and "Game of Thrones" showed the networks the light. That and the networks discovered that even if a show didn't do so well domestically, they could sell it for big bucks internationally.

"It's really about creating new economic models," Tassler says. "Certainly, 'Dome' opened the door for us as far as a strong international show, and very strong domestic as well. We're able to take a program like 'Dovekeepers' (a 2015 miniseries from Mark Burnett and Roma Downey that is based on Alice Hoffman's book) and monetize it in a different way. We control the distribution on the show. So, it is building an economic model about a title, around a title, something that has value, and creating a financial structure that allows you to produce that kind of programming.

"And, ultimately, it's good for all of us to have more original programming on the air. But creative drives our business, business doesn't drive the creative. So, in identifying a project like 'Dovekeepers,' looking at something like 'Extant,' looking at 'Under the Dome,' it was about falling in love with a piece of material, getting excited by the creative direction, talking to Roma and Mark, Vince Gilligan, David Shore and sort of hearing their vision. Sitting down with Greg Walker and Mickey Fisher and Mr. Spielberg, getting excited about the potential for those projects and building the business model around it, and, by the way, they're not all modeled the same way."

Kristin Lehman and Louis Ferreira play detectives on the summer series "Motive," airing Wednesday at 9 p.m. on ABC.

The added benefit for the creators debuting their programming in the summer is that they aren't competing with all the other shows launching in the fall or mid-season. "For us," says Alyssa Milano ("Mistresses"), "it does take some of the pressure off. We aren't out there with the rest of them. People who want to watch a compelling drama have more of a chance to find us in the summer. It's definitely a good thing."

THIS WEEK'S BEST BETS

FRIDAY

Crossbones

NBC, 9:01 p.m.

In order to keep the location of the island hideaway secret from William Jagger (Julian Sands), Blackbeard (John Malkovich) and Lowe (Richard Coyle) must work together after Kate (Claire Foy) is captured during a trading voyage. As they work toward Kate's rescue, Lowe learns about Blackbeard's deeply personal ulterior motive for keeping him on Santa Compana.

SATURDAY

48 Hours

CBS, 9 p.m.

Donna Horwitz, the ex-wife of one-time millionaire Lanny Horwitz, is shown to be a prime suspect in the man's shooting death, as is the victim's son, Radley Horwitz, when Peter Van Sant and the team investigate the murder in Jupiter, Florida. Horwitz was shot nine times in the shower of his home while Donna, who was supposedly reconciling with her former spouse, was in the connected bedroom. Radley, a former gun dealer, said he heard the gunshots from elsewhere in the home, but he had no idea who pulled the trigger. What the investigation would uncover was a deeply troubled family struggling with debt, a father with an unusually close relationship with his female business partner, and a patriarch who allegedly was hard on his son and his ex-wife.

SUNDAY

Rising Star

ABC, 8 p.m.

Pop sensation Kesha joins singer-songwriter Josh Groban, country superstar Brad Paisley and hip-hop artist and actor Ludacris as the panel of experts the new summer singing competition. The series completely reinvents the traditional format as, for the first time ever, the audience has the final say in real-time app voting after the aspiring singers perform live. If the voting reaches a certain threshold, the performer moves on.

In addition, the performer can see how the voting is going throughout the performance, so the feedback is immediate and dramatic.

The cast members and executive producers are interviewed in a special one-hour event, featuring highlights from the first season of the series and an exclusive sneak peek at the season two debut on June 30. Based on the bestselling novel by Stephen King, "Under the Dome" tells the story of a small Maine town that is suddenly and inexplicably sealed off from the rest of the world by an enormous transparent dome. The post-apocalyptic conditions intensify while the residents must decide who to rally behind as new faces emerge to battle for the town's trust and allegiance. With survival hanging in the balance, can the residents of Chester's Mill work together to protect their uncertain future?

Tyrant

FX, 9 p.m.

After 20 years of self-selected exile in Los Angeles, Bassam "Barry" Al Fayed (Adam Rayner, right) returns with his American family to his war-torn homeland of Baladi, where he and his older brother, Jamal (Ashraf Barhom), are heirs to the ruthless dictatorship of their father, in the new drama series. As Barry's Western family must endure a dramatic culture clash, he is reluctantly drawn back into the national and familial politics he left behind decades earlier. Filmed in various cities throughout Israel, this fictionalized portrait of an Arab country was purposefully drawn from the mixed elements of a few different nations, so that the series does not appear to depict a particular country, sect or regime. The cast also includes Jennifer Finnigan, Anne Winters and Justin Kirk.

WEDNESDAY

Taxi Brooklyn

NBC, 9:01 p.m.

A tough police detective and a woman hell-bent on finding her father's killer, Caitlyn "Cat" Sullivan (Chyler Leigh) is none too happy when she is demoted to foot patrol for reckless driving, disobeying orders and personality conflicts, but then she meets cab driver Leo Romba (Jacky Ido) and makes an informal arrangement. A highly skilled driver, Leo is a charming French-African from Marseille. Realizing Leo lied on his immigration forms, Cat offers him a deal: in exchange for his driving abilities and taxicab, she will help Leo with his immigration problem. Leo agrees to partner with Cat and quickly becomes her personal driver, consultant and friend as they race through the streets of New York solving cases and trying to uncover the mystery behind her father's murder.

THURSDAY

Eric Dane and Rhona Mitra Headline New Drama

Candace Havens
FYI Television, Inc.

Capt. Tom Chandler (Eric Dane), his Executive Officer Mike Slattery (Adam Baldwin) and the crew of the USS Nathan James set out on what they believe is a training exercise to the Arctic on "The Last Ship," premiering Sunday at 8 p.m. on TNT. They are hosting two civilian villain virologists, Dr. Rachel Scott (Rhona Mitra) and Dr. Quincy Tophet (Sam Spruell), who are studying the birds in the area.

The crew has had radio silence for months and they are ready to go home. When there is an attack by Russians on the doctor, things begin to escalate. The captain tries to contact home and discovers some disturbing news. The world is dying. A virus had ravaged humanity, and Dr. Scott, a paleo-microbiologist, is their last hope.

"I think one of the interesting things about it is you're really in the unique point of view of these people who have been outside of the hot zones and don't really know what's going on, and they're kind of isolated," says executive producer Hank Steinberg. "And I think that's what sort of flips the apocalyptic paradigm on its head with this show as opposed to some of the other shows that have done it, which is they're really isolated. And you're seeing it all through their eyes, you know, with the exception of if there's a brief contact made with home like there is in the pilot.

"And so they're discovering, and each new place, they don't know what they're going to find," Steinberg continues. "So, they go to Guantanamo Bay to try to find food and medical supplies and fuel up, and what's going to be there when they get there? There were 35,000 soldiers there at one point. When they get there, what is it? They send a helicopter over. What do they see? Is it safe to go there? Are there hostile people? Are there sick people? And those are the typical kinds of episodes we have going forward, and, of course, there are also people chasing them, who want to get that vaccine away from them."

The role of the captain is quite different for Dane, who recently played plastic surgeon Mark Sloan on "Grey's Anatomy." The captain has an inner strength and the ability to inspire his crew. He also manages to be humane during an incredibly difficult time. "I find this guy to be extremely honorable, and my only concern is that I can portray this guy with the sincerity that he possesses," Dane says. "And I hope that performance doesn't come out lacking any truth. I think, in some weird way, I would be doing him a disservice, but I think there's been enough distance between Mark Sloan, which was a great time, and this particular project. We're moving onward and upward."

"I can tell you, as a fan of 'Grey's' and of Eric's work," adds Steinberg, "you start watching this, and you see him in that uniform, and you see him in the situations that we've written for him, and it goes away. You completely get him in this character. Frankly, if I'm at home watching as an audience member, I'm saying to myself, 'If it was the end of the world and I was stuck on a ship, I'd want to be with him as the captain for sure.'"

It's a global catastrophe and the stakes are big. But there are people and relationships at the heart of it. Mitra has made a career out of playing strong female characters, but this one is a bit different for her. "It's one of those things that you wonder, and it's interesting that somebody actually has a perspective on that, because I wonder whether that's in my own little incubated mad mind that I keep on sort of playing these what I kind of get dubbed as bad ass chicks sometimes or bad ass whatever.

"But they're not really. They're just strong, and people kind of, I think, write about them and say that's what she is and that's what I am. And it's really nice in this role to actually be in a much stronger, very masculine world and be more cerebral for a change, as much as the task at hand involves being strong and involves having all of those skills. But I feel that I sometimes try to beat down the door of being the more gentle, vulnerable one, and it just wasn't the way I was raised. I think that I was born with a pair of army boots on, and you know, a task is in hand, and I get it done. So, maybe I perceived it as being a hindrance for a while, and apparently it's more helpful to me than it is anything else," she says of her career playing tough roles.

1. Adapted from the 2004 film of the same name, this acclaimed NBC drama showed how high-school football was king in small-town Texas.

2. Much less successful was this short-lived 1993 CBS sitcom based on the 1992 hit film about female pro baseball players during World War II.

3. On this HBO comedy, arrogant, hard-partying baseball pitcher Kenny Powers returns to his hometown after washing out in the big leagues, all the while plotting his comeback without making any attitude adjustments.

4. When this ABC sitcom began in 1989, the titular character headed the coaching staff of fictional Minnesota State University.

5. Premiering on FX in 2009, this sports sitcom didn't follow any athletes, but rather a group of fantasy football fanatics in Chicago.

6. Cancelled just last year, this USA Network drama viewed sports through the eyes of a female psychotherapist, originally hired to treat the players of a pro football team.

7. The "Sport of Kings" was the subject of this ill-fated HBO drama starring Dustin Hoffman, cancelled after one season not because of ratings, but due to animal safety concerns.

THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS

Billy and Chelsea traveled to Australia to meet Stitch's ex-wife Jenna. Victoria admitted to Abby that she still loves Billy. Summer told Austin that she wouldn't let him leave town without her. Father Todd offered to help counsel Stitch about a personal crisis. Lily feared that her father would get his heart broken and use alcohol to cope. Nick found out that Summer and Austin slept together. Mariah was the chief suspect after Noah's wallet was stolen. Leslie introduced Neil to her husband, Barton. Sharon asked Nick to cohabitate. Wait to See: Devon considers his next move. Summer reaches out to her mom. Jack witnesses a close moment between Kelly and Stitch.
