BRIDGE

Neither vulnerable. West deals.

The bidding:
WEST NORTH EAST SOUTH

24 Pass Pass 54 All pass

Opening lead: 10 of \Diamond

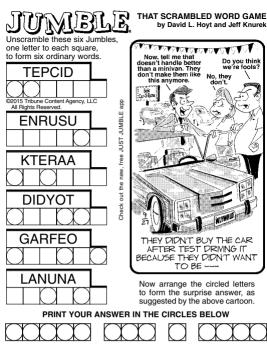

Pre-emptive bids can wreak havoc on your opponents and such bids have an important place in bridge. They can backfire, however, giving declarer a roadmap to success on a deal where he would likely have failed without the knowledge gained from the pre-emptive bid.

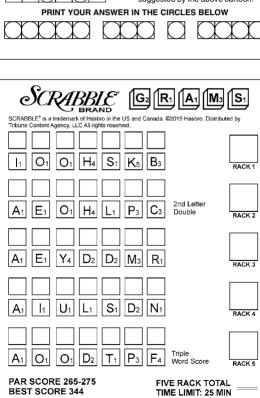

The opening lead of a side suit from a player who has pre-empted is often a singleton. England's leading player, Andy Robson, goes a step further, saying that a pre-emptor who leads his own suit should be played for a singleton trump. Knowing that West had a singleton diamond, however, was not nearly as important as knowing that East had a singleton spade — almost a sure thing from the auction. A weak-two bidder almost always has a six-card suit.

South played low from dummy at trick one and ruffed the opening diamond lead in his hand. He drew trumps in three rounds and carefully cashed the ace of spades. He followed by cashing the king of hearts and leading a heart to dummy's jack. This would have succeeded immediately had West held the queen of hearts - West could have no more than three hearts - but also worked when East won his heart queen. East had no spade remaining, so he was forced to play a red suit to dummy and South was able to discard all four of his losing spades on the three good hearts and the ace of diamonds
