From the Editor...

Here it is, the height of the summer season, and oh boy, we're all in full tilt with loving the lakeside.

Whether you're relaxing and taking it all in from your deck or porch, doing a little casting from the pier or shore, or getting out and getting serious with some hard-core water sports, it's all part of the Logan Martin allure so many have come to love.

I'm sure the summertime gatherings are continuing, it's just the thing you do when you have a backdrop like the Logan Martin waters.

For your "down time" and reading pleasure, too, we have assembled some visits to new places, a taste of what's new around the town, and hopefully, some "food for thought" for your entertaining interests.

I just had to gather up some summertime recipes for all those good veggies coming in, and for this go 'round, let's stuff them with all kinds of things that make for good eating.

We'll explore the ins and outs of stuffing peppers and onions, mushrooms, eggplant and zucchini, and even a tomato or two.

I simply couldn't cover all the possibilities with these so you can mix and match and conjure up your own additions, using the recipes I found as a base for cooking adventures!

It's always an adventure for me. I just can't leave well enough alone when it comes to food. There's always something that you can add or delete to call it your own creation, and for me, that's just part of the fun of being in the kitchen.

We have a Greek twist and a lot of others, and hot dishes and cold ones, too.

The paddler had one heck of a trip to a really big whitewater weekend on the Ocoee River in Benton, Tenn., one we felt our boating fans would enjoy, and some expert instruction from some of the best paddlers there are in these parts and you know, it's not too late to hook up with these whitewater fans and get going yourself!

For cool summer eats, you'll hear about the latest from Pell City's Butts to Go, where those delectable ribs and Boston butts are served with great pride and enjoyed by folks all over the lake.

We learn that there's more in the works for this favorite stop, and hope to see you there soon to enjoy it all for yourselves.

And, yes, of course, Butts to Go is stocked with all the sides and extras, from sauce to coleslaw and chips and don't forget the ice!

You'll see the fabulous water inspired new art from glass experts Marie and Lindsey Moses of LMo & Co. fame, where there's always something new being created by hands of all kinds.

Marie has taken her stained glass art to forming spunky colorful fish that just seem made for the lakeside décor you crave.

This charming little jewel of a gallery is right on Talladega's downtown square, where you can spend a nice outing with your pals enjoying an artsy atmosphere.

And LMo & Co. is always adding classes to show you how to create, with gatherings for adults as well as the younger set.

Google them and visit their website...you'll be glad you did!

George and Katherine Petznick open the doors of their Muscadine Circle home in Pell City. Theirs is a warm and friendly visit as are all of our Lakeside "invasions" as I call them.

It takes a lot to open up your home to a bunch of strangers, but, hey, that's just part of the attitude we have around here!

It's just plain nice being in such a friendly spot in the world, where if you don't know someone and you run into them out in these parts, you're likely to become pals before too long.

That's what we call Lakeside Living here, it's a special spot for people who share many special things.

May your July be filled with fun on the water, fun with friends and more memories to take on to the future!

By taking a moment to observe local artist Lindsey Moses in her natural habitat as she seamlessly transitions from task to task, it's easy to see she has the "Midas touch" when it comes to artistry, turning ordinary objects into masterpieces.

"I think any creative person has that creative ability to see things differently — to be able to create something and to see things from a different view," Moses said. "I may look at something — like when I go kayaking, I'm looking at the ground to find driftwood to make my wind chimes. My friends are always bringing me stuff and wanting me to create something unique out of something they've found."

Moses, a Talladega native, uses her talents in a multitude of ways, creating art through a variety of mediums, whether it is glass, paint or even the concrete she uses to make heavy formed concrete-stained bowls.

"From just a child working with my creative parents, I've gotten a good background," Moses said. "My dad and I used to come up with creative things and make them happen, basically. He'd help me draw them up to scale, and he'd build it for me. So I got a little background in teaching myself and him teaching me some design work."

She also picked up some creativity from her mother, Marie Moses, whose most recent creations of stained glass aquatic creatures, "Esmeralda Trout" and "Goldie Fish," have become a hit at the duo's downtown Talladega art gallery, LMo & Co.

"With the painting and things like that, we're self-taught," Marie said. "The weird part about that is Lindsey can paint with a brush, but I can't. I can put it on the glass though. It's really kind of strange. I don't know. It's just something we do. We think of an idea and experiment with it until we get it the way we want it."

Moses graduated from the University of Alabama in 2006 where she majored in advertising and minored in graphic design.

"With graphic design, I had a handful of classes in the Art Department, but not very many," Moses said. "It was just like Drawing 101 or nothing that really saturated me into any one particular genre of art."

Her taste for art really took off following her graduation from college.

"I was able to have my mother's venue to kind of exercise my need and want for creating," Moses said.

Arguably her greatest masterpiece, the gallery itself, took several years of planning after she moved back to Talladega after graduating from college and working with her mother at her glass company.

"From there, we just took it to the next level, and started looking for buildings," Moses said. "We called the city to see what kind of opportunities they had for women owning their own business."

After working closely with the city of Talladega to secure grants paid to the city for restoring the building at 121 North Court Square and putting in their own “sweat equity,” LMo & Co. officially opened April 21, 2011.

The gallery provides an outlet for artists to display work throughout the gallery and to be featured during Artist Spotlight Nights held monthly, except in January and July.

“There are a lot of talented people around this area,” Moses said.

Another feature of the gallery revolves around the recycled glass bottles Moses repurposes for many different uses, from turning used liquor bottles into soap dispensers with sandblasted monogrammed lettering to tumbling the glass for use in mosaics, pendants or jewelry.

“I like making things that don’t shine, shine,” Moses said. “I like taking something that’s very raw and desolate, something that someone else wouldn’t see as a jewel, and just putting time and effort into it, shining it up and putting a creative twist on things, having a beautiful outcome at the end of the work.”

Moses and her mother also teach a variety of glass-themed art classes for adults and painting classes for children.

“That’s one of my favorite things to do is to teach the techniques that I’ve learned throughout the years and pass it down to the young children in the community,” Moses said. “I just love seeing how eager they are to want to paint. They get excited and people always write back to me about how much the kids talked about it and enjoyed coming to class.”

The summer selection of vegetables is at its best and using them for all kinds of stuffed creations is a great way to get more of them on the table.

Those Summer Veggies...

Just stuff'em!

Story and Photos by
LAURA NATION-ATCHISON

Oh yes, yes, yes!

It's high time in the kitchen, and time for gathering up all those great veggies in season, many of them now yours for the taking from local growers, if you know where to find them. And most of us do. We all have our favorite little haunts for finding our veggies. Some of us will visit several vendors just to see the variety and for getting all we can and, well, it's just kind of fun, too.

You run into the nicest people, those who are selling and those who are buying, too, a fun way to spend a little time on a happy summer morning.

I'm always on the search for fresh green beans and Silver Queen Corn, especially, those tomatoes you eat sliced on a plate with a little salt and pepper, and for me, with a dash of fresh garlic and vinegar. And that goes for those extra sweet cucumbers you find this time of year, too.

All that said, you've made your rounds, you have your "stuff," and that's exactly what we're going to do, stuff our vegetables with all kinds of things that make them even tastier and give great options for reloading plates with the summer bounty.

For these recipes and suggestions, you'll need a supply of bell peppers in all colors and on the small side, some eggplant, and look for these in smaller sizes, too. Add in some zucchini, onions, oversized mushrooms or portabellas and you ought to be set on that end.

Unless, of course, there are others you'd prefer to use, and you totally can!

There's a new one for just about all of these, well, new to me, and hopefully for you as well. We always want new options for our food fests...don't we?

So with veggies in hand, knives sharpened and dinner waiting, let's take off for another kitchen adventure that you'll keep handy for some new turns taken on some very great things.

And oh yes, most of these recipes are directed for the oven and or broiler. I see very easy adaptations to grilling them, something we can't get enough during our summer gathering.

We'll start with the jalapeno pimiento cheese filling. Use it in hollowed out baby bell peppers, cherry tomatoes, zucchini halves, or pattypan squash for some lively and distinctive party bites.

What you need:

Jalapeno pimiento cheese (make your own favorite recipe and just add the jalapenos, or use your best prepared pimiento cheese and add the jalapenos).

Baby bell peppers including green, yellow, gold or red

Cherry tomatoes

Zucchini halves

Pattypan squash halves

What you do:

Spoon about a tablespoon of the cheese mixture into the hollowed out veggies. Garnish with chopped black olives, chopped celery, parsley, you name it! Put out some hot sauce and I bet it gets used!

And from the Greek experts, here's Kalliroi's Stuffed Vegetables

What you need:

Three medium eggplants (technically they are fruit!)

One large potato

Five large ripe tomatoes (Chandler Mountain, anyone?)

One medium onion, grated

Three-fourths fresh parsley, finely chopped

Two cups plus one tablespoon of long grain rice, cooked

One teaspoon salt

One-half teaspoon pepper

One cup olive oil

Three tablespoons water

What you do:

Wash all vegetables well and peel the potato

Trim and scoop out the other vegetables, using a large bowl to hold the pulp. Just cut out the "cap," scoop and rinse the bell peppers and tomatoes. Cut the ends from the zucchini, and use a spoon to scoop the pulp out. Slice them into eight slices and set aside. For the eggplants, cut off the stems and a bit of the top, use a spoon to scoop the pulp out.

Make the stuffing:

Using a vegetable grater (or a large grate on a cheese grater), grate all the pulp that was scooped out and place in a large bowl. Wash the rice and add to the bowl. Add grated onion, parsley, salt and pepper and all but two teaspoons of the olive oil.

Stuff the veggies

Using a teaspoon, fill the vegetables to within a half inch of the top. The rice may expand a bit so keep that in mind.

Now, cook!

Place vegetables in a 14 by 11 inch (or equivalent) baking or roasting pan. The tomatoes should be placed on their sides. They should fit snugly into the pan. There should be a little oil left in the veggie bowl used for pulp. Add three tablespoons of water and pour the mixture into the vegetables along with the remainder of the olive oil (two teaspoons). Place vegetables into a cold oven and heat to 480 degrees. When the liquid starts to boil, (about 10 to 15 minutes) bake for one hour. Remove from oven and allow the vegetables to sit for 20 minutes prior to serving. Serve them warm or at room temperature.

My thoughts and additions...you know me!! I always adapt recipes....

For garlic lovers...add a few sprinkles of McCormick's California Style Garlic Powder into the vegetable and rice mixture. (Using this brand is critical for outstanding flavor!)

For cheese lovers...and just who isn't? For the last few minutes of baking...sprinkle vegetables with the grated cheese of your choice! Pepper jack is marvelous! I added feta, but did not bake it...oh yes!

For further additions...Olive lovers? This works well too! Top vegetables with your favorites, sliced or chopped... Sliced or diced water chestnuts or capers? Sautéed mushrooms? (I do mine in garlic powder, Healthy Choice butter and Worcestershire about eight to 10 minutes... learned this concoction at a very cool restaurant I worked in while in college and still love it.) Yes...just remember, those tiny capers go a long way!

And finally, "pretty them up" with chopped chives, green onions, chopped peppers from the tops removed... this list of toppings is virtually endless! Oh yeah...paprika!

I only thought I was finished! I experimented with several rice flavors. Uncle Ben's Wild and other flavors, there are so many out there to choose from...play with it!

Add a nice Greek salad and you're set for a great meal!

Another stuffed veggie recipe...I couldn't resist this one, it adds lots of other flavors, along with sweet Italian sausages or just about any other meat such as ground round or ground turkey...

This one, too, is a little time consuming... but really... are there "other things" we have to do? The good part is that they can be prepared well ahead of time! The vegetables may be served warm or at room temperature, just not dead cold. Select the savory stuffing of your choice for these...rice, bread crumbs or meat.

What you need:

For the rice stuffing:

One-half cup extra virgin olive oil, plus a little more for drizzling.

One yellow onion, chopped

One cup Arborio rice

One-and-a-half cups water

Three cloves garlic, finely chopped

One-fourth cup chopped fresh flat leafed parsley

One-fourth cup fresh chopped basil leaves

One teaspoon salt

One-half teaspoon freshly ground black pepper

For the bread crumb stuffing:

Four slices of coarse "country" bread, crusts removed, soaked in water, and squeezed almost dry

Two eggs, lightly beaten

Three tablespoons fine dried bread crumbs

One-fourth cup grated Parmesan cheese

Three cloves garlic, minced

Two tablespoons fresh chopped flat leaf parsley

Two tablespoons chopped fresh mint (optional)

One teaspoon salt

One-half teaspoon freshly ground black pepper

For the meat stuffing:

Two tablespoons olive oil, if using ground beef or sausage

One pound ground beef, sweet Italian sausages with casings removed or a leftover roasted meat of your choice
 One cup fresh bread crumbs, soaked in beef stock or water, and squeezed dry
 One-fourth cup fresh chopped flat leafed parsley
 Two tablespoons fresh chopped basil, mint or marjoram (optional)
 Two to three cloves garlic, minced
 Two eggs, lightly beaten
 One-and-a-half teaspoons salt
 One-half teaspoon freshly ground black pepper

For the vegetables-choose one

Twelve small or six large tomatoes
 Six small globe eggplants (six to seven ounces each)
 Eight medium zucchini
 Six large yellow onions
 Salt and sugar, if using tomatoes
 Extra virgin olive oil as needed

Now... getting it all together..

Select your stuffing to make.

For the rice, heat one-fourth of the olive oil over medium heat. Add onion and sauté until soft, about 10 minutes. (If you are using eggplant or zucchini, you will sauté the pulp from those vegetables at the same time.) Add the rice and sauté for two minutes longer, coating well with the oil, Add the water and simmer, uncovered, until the water is absorbed, about 10 minutes, Remove from heat and fold in the garlic, parsley, basil and the remaining one-fourth cup olive oil. Season with the salt and pepper and mix again.

For the bread crumb stuffing, in a bowl, combine the soaked bread, eggs, bread crumbs, cheese, garlic, parsley and mint. Mix well, season with the salt and pepper and mix again.

For the meat stuffing, if using ground beef or sausage, heat olive oil over medium high heat. Add the beef or sausage and cook, stirring, to break up any lumps until it loses its red color, about 10 minutes. Remove from heat, and drain off excess fat. If using roasted meat, chop the meat. In a bowl, combine the freshly cooked or roasted meat, bread crumbs, parsley, basil and garlic and mix well. Add the eggs, season with salt and pepper and mix again.

Select a vegetable to stuff. If using small tomatoes, cut a half-inch thick slice off the top of each and reserve the caps. If using larger tomatoes, cut them in half, crosswise. Using a small spoon or grapefruit spoon, a small serrated knife or a melon baller, remove the pulp and juice, leaving a shell about one-half inch thick. If you have made the rice or meat stuffing, chop the pulp and add it to the stuffing. If you made the bread crumb stuffing, reserve the pulp for another use. Sprinkle the cavity of each tomato case with a little salt and sugar. Fill about three-fourths full

Always There Provides the Silver Lining.

At 82-years old, Jack Tipton's life is golden.

"Being able to remain in his home is very important to him," says Jack's daughter Jen Tipton. "Always There In-Home Care makes that possible. He dearly loves his caregiver, Amelia."

For over a year, Always There's Amelia Gibson has nurtured a special relationship with Mr. Tipton that transcends helping maintain his home and preparing his meals. They have become friends. In fact, when the dapper Mr. Tipton takes his two walks per day, he carries his cane in one hand and Amelia on the other. Jen says, "We can't imagine having anyone else care for him."

if using the rice stuffing to allow for expansion. If using one of the other stuffings, you can fill more generously. Replace the caps if using small tomatoes.

With bell peppers, cut a one inch top from each top and reserve caps. Remove and discard seeds and ribs. Bring a large pot of water to a boil, add peppers, and parboil for about four to five minutes. Using tongs, remove the peppers and invert to drain well. Fill each pepper about three-fourths full if using the rice stuffing, use more with other stuffings, and replace caps.

With eggplants, cut each in half lengthwise, and scoop out some of the pulp and sauté it with the onion in the olive oil until tender as directed in the first step of making the stuffing. Then finish the stuffing as directed. If making one of the other stuffings, reserve the pulp for another use. Film the bottom of a large sauté pan and place over medium heat. Working in batches, add the eggplant casings and sauté, turning as needed until softened, about five minutes. Fill each eggplant about three-fourths full if using the rice stuffing, if using one of the other stuffings, fill a little more.

For zucchini, cut each lengthwise and remove seeds and scoop out some of the pulp, leaving a shell about one-fourth to one-third inch thick. If using the rice stuffing, chop pulp and sauté with the onion in olive oil until tender. Bring a large pot of water to a boil, add zucchini cases and parboil for about three minutes. Lift zucchini from water with tongs and let drain well, inverted. Fill each according to the stuffing used, less rice, more of the others.

For onions, boil in water until tender, about 10 minutes. Drain and when cool enough to handle, cut in half crosswise, then scoop out some of the pulp, leaving a shell about one-half inch thick. If using the meat stuffing, chop pulp and fold it into the stuffing. Fill each onion case accordingly.

To bake vegetables, preheat oven to 375 degrees. Oil a baking dish large enough to hold the vegetables in a single layer without crowding. Place vegetables in dish and drizzle with olive oil. If baking tomatoes, add water to a depth of one-half inch to the baking dish. If the eggplant cases seem too firm, do the same with them.

Bake until the vegetables are tender when pierced with a knife tip, about 25 to 45 minutes. The tomatoes may take a longer amount of time as they have not been parboiled or sautéed. Serve warm or at room temperature.

Note: I highly recommend adorning and garnishing these with the ideas mentioned in the previous recipe. Good stuff!!

Butts To Go...and Racks, Too

Their smoking specialties will become your favorite

Story by CHRIS NORWOOD

Summer is many things to the lakeside connoisseur, from the boat to the view to the beverage to the fashionable swimwear.

But around the lake, or anywhere else in the South for that matter, there is that one ever-so-important defining characteristic of the summer season: barbecue.

And perhaps the defining barbecue entrée is the Boston butt, which to the relief of many southerners, is not actually a butt and does not come from Boston.

Owner Wade Reich started setting up shop in the Texaco Station on Martin Street in Pell City in 2008, and moved in the following year.

“We had been in the Chevron Station across the street for a few years before that,” he said. “But they sold in

The butts specialty came from an unfulfilled need in the community, he continued.

“Food World always cooked butts and ribs for the holidays, and when they left, no one picked it up,” he said. “So we thought we would pick it up. And we did.”

Reich said he grew up around the hospitality industry in Gadsden, so he had some background in food before taking the plunge in Pell City.

was working in the kitchen,” he said. “They let me do store runs and sometimes put peas on the plate when the local Kiwanis Club was meeting. So I had been in the food business for a while, just not specifically around barbecue.”

He obviously learned along the way, but he points out that quality remains the secret. “We started to go with Smithfield Hams, but then the Chinese bought all of them and we had to find a last-minute replacement,” he said.

They eventually went with Fieldstone Meats in Oneonta and have stayed with them.

Everything is smoked over a hickory wood fire, “and people can’t get enough. Smoking over hard wood really makes the difference. With a liquid smoke, you just don’t get the same flavor.”

Wings are also popular during the winter weather, especially during football season, and the potato salad has also built a following of its own.

“It tastes more like a baked potato,” he said. “I didn’t grow up on potato salad, but I could eat this stuff all day.”

He’s not alone in his taste for the creation, since they sold more than 400 pounds of it last Fourth of July.

Butts to Go also has plenty of offerings in addition to their butts and ribs, including sides for any need.

Last Memorial Day, they sold 695 butts, 280 racks of spareribs and 375 racks of babyback ribs. Independence Day is even bigger. And of course, they also smoke turkeys and hams for Christmas, Easter and Thanksgiving.

If you're planning a holiday pickup, you should call about a week in advance.

They also cater and have about 20 seats for dining in, which Reich said they will be expanding soon.

Pork prices fluctuate, but the average for a butt is $6.99 per pound. A butt weighs about 8 pounds before cooking and about 5 pounds after, and can feed from 16 to 18 people.

With take out orders, Butts to Go always provides generous packing for their meats, to ensure safe delivery to your destination.

And whenever possible, the proud cooking masters in the house are happy to show you the array of their labors, and you can choose just the rack or "butt" you like. 🐷

POWER TO OUR RIVERS

POWER TO ALABAMA

We believe the rivers of our great state hold more than water. They hold life for our communities, success for our businesses and decades of wonderful memories. Our rivers hold within them the best of Alabama.

It's been 15 years since we started working with you to keep our state's waterways pristine. During that time we've removed more than 13 million pounds of trash together and strengthened Alabama in the process. Now, as we continue to maintain the clean waters we've achieved, our focus turns to stopping litter before it starts.

Our hope is that during the next 15 years, through education and understanding, we can increase the love for our rivers while decreasing litter. This "love over litter" philosophy is how we make sure future generations discover the wonders our rivers hold.

Forty-Five Years and Counting

George and Kathleen Peznick's lakeside lifestyle is a keeper

Story by LAURA NATION-ATCHISON

Photos by BOB CRISP

When Kathleen Peznick talks about her home on Logan Martin Lake, the affection in her voice is tangible.

It's the place she and her husband, George, discovered

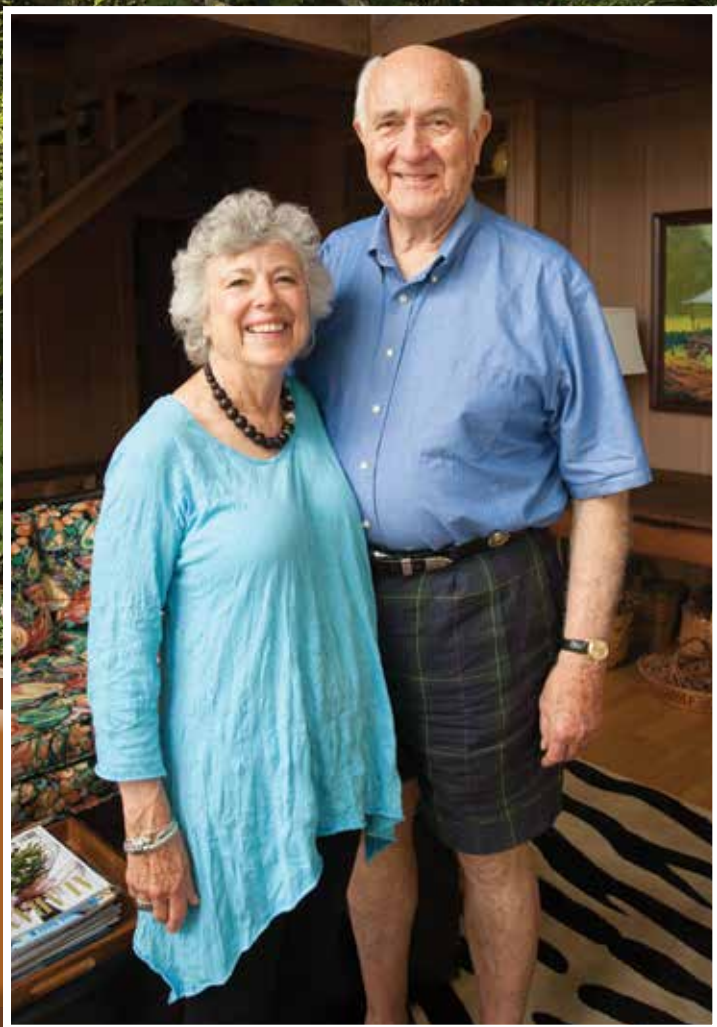

45 years ago in the part of Pell City known as Mays Bend, where in those days, the area was virtually uninhabited.

Mrs. Peznick recalls the treks she and her husband took

George and Katherine Peznick built their Logan Martin home in the Mays Bend area 45 years ago and love it like they did when it was brand new. Theirs was one of the first homes to be built in Mays Bend. Lush landscaping surrounds the home.

around the property the Mays family offered for sale, eventually finding just the right spot for the multi-level contemporary home they would build there.

“We walked all over Mays Bend to choose the place we would build,” she said.

If not the first, the Peznicks’ home was probably the second home built in Mays Bend, Mrs. Peznick said.

And 45 years since, the Peznicks still love their lakefront paradise, its gardens now mature, its original trees tall and full grown now and their house, still meeting their needs and tastes into a new century.

The Peznicks found their house plan in a House Beautiful magazine, and implementing just a few changes here and there, were soon ready to start building.

The home was probably considered cutting edge contemporary for its time, with its three-story glass enclosed walls and angled design, along with its use of setting and landscape to accommodate the structure.

The house is surrounded with multi-level decks and patios, and planted in azaleas and camellias, along with rhododendron and hydrangea.

Seating areas are stacked with fluffy ferns and planters of flowers, and much of the grounds are sheltered from any extreme summer heat by the large shade trees and their ample foliage.

The magnolias were added by the Peznicks, and now tower above the smaller plants and shrubs on the property.

Planting beds in the landscape are bordered with river rock, matching the stacked stone columns used on the house that support the wrap around deck area. Stone pathways guide visitors through the grounds, where trellises and a gazebo add flair and interest as well and offer nice spots to stop along the way and take in the views.

There are inviting Adirondack chairs placed in a circle around a stacked stone fire pit, the Logan Martin waters in sight and room for stargazing overhead.

If she had to choose a favorite spot outdoors among the many offerings, Mrs. Peznick says it would likely be the spot out on a point where the couple placed a swing and a gazebo.

“We love having our friends over and all sit together out on the point and watch the stars and visit, and especially in the spring and fall,” she said.

As far as inside, the couple’s master bedroom is a favorite place, and much for the same reason as the waterfront point is outside.

“I love our bedroom,” Mrs. Peznick said. “Mainly because there are louvered doors that I can see outside from.”

But then, there’s another certain spot in the house she has to mention, and one peek inside is all it take to understand why.

The dramatic living room with its three-story stacked tiers of windows with their three-sided view of the water and gardens is a stunning place for taking in the atmosphere of lakefront a striped director's chair and reading lamp share the seating area.

The master bath has received a facelift since the Peznicks built, but the wood is original to the house.

There are five bedrooms and three baths, several living areas and a spacious kitchen for whipping up those lakeside treats and meals that are always in demand.

The sprawling house has plenty of space, but Mrs. Peznick laughs if you ask about the square footage.

"Honestly, I really don't know," she said.

The interior walls and ceilings of the house are all cedar, with the ceiling fitted with huge beams in a contrasting shade of stain.

The Peznicks bought a load of the wood from a train load, knowing it would be perfect for using in their home.

Mrs. Peznick mentions that through all their 45 years, the walls and woodwork have not needed refinishing, and jokes that it's probably partly due to the couple's three children learning early on that leaving handprints on the walls could likely result in taking a few splinters.

Mrs. Peznick is an admitted "Army brat," and spent her growing up years exposed to living in places all over the world.

"But my roots were in Alabama," she said.

Her husband's family is also from living, and even gives the space a tree house feel with it being placed one level above the ground floor.

There's a mix of contemporary and classic in the room, with a broad zebra striped rug centered on the wood floor, a plush couch bearing bright floral cushions and in a corner, a dark high backed rattan reading chair offering a fat purple cushion.

Another arm chair placed nearby is covered in striped shades of beige and Raft guides don't call the Ocoee River "Ocoee Roller Coaster" for nothing.

Big Water, Big Fun

A visit to Tennessee's Ocoee River's whitewater

Story by DAVID ATCHISON

We were downstream from Goforth Creek, above the Class 4 Table Saw rapid, on the Middle Ocoee River in Tennessee when my kayak instructor laid out the plan.

"We can catch the eddy above Table Saw and scout it first, or you can trust me and follow me down through it," said David Levitt, who was one of my instructors during the two-day Tennessee Valley Canoe Club Paddling School. "It's really not hard. You can do it. When we get past the hole, just keep you boat at 11 o'clock."

I had been through Table Saw rapid before, successfully I might add, about a year ago. I was able to run it successfully with the help and guidance of Joseph "Joe" Gudger, the head instructor with ACE Kayaking School, which specializes in kayak instruction on the Ocoee River. To me, Joe and David are much alike. Actually, they are close friends and both are excellent kayak instructors.

Just about everyone I know has talked about overturning at Table Saw rapid. It's a place where the Ocoee River narrows, forming some of the biggest waves on the middle section of the Ocoee River. The waves come from different directions, making it more likely to capsize your kayak.

Needless to say, the rapid is challenging and the access is limited.

I figured there were fewer chances of mistakes if we ran the rapid straight through, instead of getting out of our boats and trying to ferry back out across strong currents to run the rapid.

Sandra Walker of Chattanooga, one of five students in my class, agreed.

"Stay close," David said as we got closer to the meat of the rapid.

It's not that Table Saw is such a dangerous rapid. It is, however, a rapid that is in close proximity to the Class 4 Diamond Splitter.

If you flip in your kayak, fail to roll back up and are forced to swim, you have to make it into the left eddy between the two rapids.

I have been told and have read that Diamond Splitter is not the rapid you want to swim. It has sent kayakers to the hospital, and there has been at least one death there.

The dangers with Diamond Splitter are foot entrapments and there is a big undercut rock on the left side of the rapid.

As we paddled down Table Saw, I gave David a little space but watched the exact line he took, repeating his every move.

Sandra was right behind me.

When we got around the bottom hole of Table Saw, I knew we were home free.

It is such a great feeling to successfully complete a challenging whitewater rapid. David eddied up high out of the rapid, and Sandra and I found each other in the lower part of the left eddy. We were pumped after running Table Saw, but the excitement was only momentary.

As we sat in the eddy, we watched helplessly as our fellow classmates floated past us, out of their boats.

Both students were able to swim into the eddy just above, and I mean just above, Diamond Splitter.

Instructors headed downstream trying to retrieve the students' kayaks.

The two students hit the shore and started walking along the bank to meet back up with instructors below Diamond Splitter, who hopefully rounded up their boats.

Suddenly a light bulb came on.

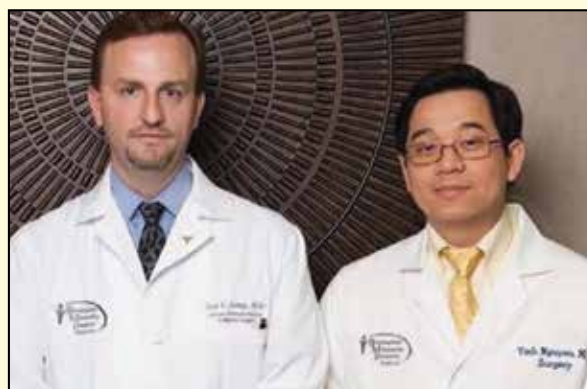

"We're the only ones here," Sandra said.

I looked around. She was right.

"Everyone else is below Diamond Splitter," I said. "I think we need to get down there."

The Ocoee offers plenty of excitement for whitewater paddlers.

Like I said, I ran this section of the Ocoee River before, and I think Sandra had also.

"We need to ferry across to river right and take that shoot down," I said.

I basically talked Sandra into following me, something we were told later we shouldn't have done.

"You should have stayed put," the instructor said. "We didn't forget about you. We would have come back and got you."

Oh, well. Live and learn, I guess.

I began ferrying across the strong current above Diamond Splitter. I started my ferry up high to give us a little more room if something went wrong.

And it did.

I got just about to the middle of the river channel and all of a sudden, I flipped over. The water must have caught the edge of my kayak and unexpectedly flipped me.

So now I am above Diamond Splitter upside down in my kayak, and poor Sandra...

"I was flipping out," she said.

There was nothing she could do.

It was all on me.

I set up, lined my paddle along the side of my kayak and hip snapped my kayak upright. I could breathe again.

The first thing I could see and hear was my friend and co-instructor Rod MacLeod yelling and cheering as I successfully completed a must-make combat roll above Diamond Splitter.

Rod and his wife, Ruthie, were the first persons to show me down the Ocoee.

Rod must have watched the whole ordeal unfold.

"And what an awesome combat roll it was," Sandra would later say. "It scared me to watch."

It took a few seconds to realize exactly where I was when I rolled my kayak upright. When I came up, I really didn't know if I was facing up or down river. It was very disorienting.

I then spotted the big boulder to my right. I recognized that it was Diamond Splitter Rock.

"That's where I need to be," I told myself.

I regained my composure and paddled hard to river-right. I was able to paddle past and upriver from the big rock and down the right drop.

I must say that this one episode made my trip down the Ocoee River one of the most memorable kayak trips ever.

That day, I ran all the rapids successfully and came through with a must-make combat roll.

It was a perfect day on the Ocoee River.

I can't say enough about David. He has to be one of the best paddlers I have ever paddled with, period.

David is a world class whitewater paddler, and I was lucky enough to get a guy of this caliber as an instructor and to help lead me down the mighty Ocoee River.

David is, by one profession, a teacher and it shows on the river.

He teaches at McCallie High School in Chattanooga. He is an eighth-grade history teacher and is the head wrestling coach for the high school. David also heads up the high school outdoor program, which includes kayaking and mountain biking.

David's wife, Kat, who was also instructing at the annual TVCC Paddling School, is one of the top female whitewater paddlers in the country.

I could go on and on about how good David is, but as they say, a picture is worth a thousand words. David successfully dropped over one of the tallest waterfalls in Alabama in a kayak, that being Desoto Falls.

instruction with some of the best instructors in the country.

The $83 also included two nights of camping at OAR, which is near the Ocoee River and a Saturday night dinner. There's no way you can get this kind of quality instruction for that cost anywhere, period.

The event also has a Saturday night auction and a get-to-gather hotdog and hamburger cookout Friday night.

When you complete paddling school, the training does not stop there.

TVCC offers training trips throughout the summer for paddle school participants, allowing students to progress with the paddling skills.

People just starting out in this adventure sport can train on rivers like the Hawassee, which is near the Ocoee River, the Tuckaseegee and Nantahala Rivers in North Carolina, and as their paddling skills improve, take training trips to the Pigeon and Ocoee Rivers with TVCC instructors.

All I can say is the level of instruction is first-rate, the best that money can buy.

If you want to learn more about the TVCC Paddling School go to tvccpaddler.com.

As for me, I plan to make a few more whitewater trips this summer to Tennessee and North Carolina, but I will also head back to Logan Martin Lake for some summer fun. It's great to be on the water this time of year.

And the things I learn out in the whitewater, the safety instruction, too, are definitely skills that transfer to any kind of kayaking you may choose.

So until then, have a safe and wonderful time on the lake. 📌

It's huge.

I would recommend anyone wishing for quality whitewater paddling instructions to consider the annual TVCC paddling school. It's held each year at the Outdoor Adventure Rafting campground in Benton, Tenn.

This year TVCC had 140 students and 80 instructors/support boaters to participate.

On Sunday my class basically had one instructor per student. John Kern was the lead instructor Sunday and Ian Brower continued as a support boater on both days. Ian led me through Hell Hole, the next to the last rapid on the Middle Ocoee run.

Not only does TVCC offer whitewater kayaking and canoeing courses, but the group offers boating courses on smoother lake water at the paddling school.

TVCC offers courses in sea kayaking and instruction in other alternate paddling boats including for sit on top kayaks, recreational kayaks and even "SUP" or stand up paddle boards, which are emerging here at home on Logan Martin Lake, during the two-day paddle school.

TVCC also offers kayak instruction for children at the school.

This is one of the most organized paddling schools I have ever participated in.

Rebecca Hendrix does a wonderful job organizing such a big annual event, which also serves as a major fundraiser for the non-profit paddling group.

I paid $83 to participate, which included an annual membership to TVCC, along with two-days of quality

River Oaks home is a decorator's dream

Story by ELSIE HODNETT

Photos by BRIAN SCHOENHALS

If you are looking for breath-taking views of Logan Martin Lake and main channel year-round deep water, this River Oaks home has it all.

This one-story home at 420 River Oaks Drive in Cropwell was built in 1991. It sits on 1.28-plus acres with 132 feet of water frontage.

The house has four large bedrooms, plus an office, and three exquisitely renovated bathrooms. The main living room has gorgeous new maple flooring.

A stone gas log fireplace soars to the cathedral ceiling in the spacious great room.

From the great room is a large screened porch where you can relax and enjoy the incredible lake views.

The updated kitchen has beautiful maple cabinets and granite countertops with an island and bar/seating area.

The master bedroom suite includes an updated natural stone master bath and a professionally-designed master closet.

Beautiful landscaping leads to a floating boat dock plus a Sea-Doo dock and a swim deck.

A sprinkler system from the lake and an alarm system offer added security. There is also access to the community boat launch and a picnic area.

The listing price is $569,000. To see this or other fine Lakeside homes, contact Pam Hendrix at The Realty Pros, 205-902-2777.

Loving the Business in His Hometown

It's a family fit for Blair Fields

BY ELSIE HODNETT

For Blair Fields, the love of his hometown and the community aspect of real estate make for the perfect fit.

"I chose real estate because of the challenging dynamics, and with each transaction you are learning something new along with reaching a common goal," Fields said. "Not to mention, it's been a part of my life with my mom in her 36th year of real estate."

Fields is co-owner of Fields/Gossett Realty in Pell City, where he was born and raised.

"My real estate career began in 2001 after graduating from the University of Alabama at Birmingham with a degree in finance," he said. "I enjoy the community aspect of real estate and the fact that no matter where you go real estate remains local."

Fields said he bought into the company in 2007 to become a partner in the business. He focuses on development, investments, property management, residential and commercial sales.

"Our company remains focused on our community and area through involvement and donations including a chair to the Pell City Education Foundation for our donation of $10,000," he said.

Blair Fields

Fields is a member of the Pell City Civitan Club, a Pell City Education Foundation board member and a St. Vincent's St. Clair Hospital board member.

His wife, Devin, is an elementary school teacher in the Pell City School System. The couple has two boys and a girl, Baylor, 6; Holten, 3; and Finley, 11 months.

"Our area offers a great quality of life," he said. "It has been enjoyable to see our community prosper and grow bringing new industry and new families to the area. Growing up here, I have fond memories of crappie fishing with my grandparents, enjoying days on the lake whether it be watersports, cruising around or the occasional Logan Martin jug fishing tournament. It's a wonderful place to call home and I look forward to the years to come raising my own family here." ■
