Librarians Save The World

Candace Havens
FYI Television, Inc.

The new series "The Librarian," airing Sunday at 7 p.m. on TNT, is based on the network's hit movie franchise about the guardians who protect the world's mystical treasures. The organization is housed beneath the Metropolitan Public Library, where the artifacts are stored. For years, it's been Flynn Carsen's (Noah Wyle) job to track down and procure such items as the Ark of the Covenant, the Spear of Destiny and Excalibur.

But the job has proved to be a bit much for one person, so the Library has hired a team of guardians to help protect it from dark magic. Counterterrorism agent Eve Baird (Rebecca Romijn) still isn't sure if she believes all the hocus pocus surrounding the Library, but she's darn good at protecting things. Jacob Stone (Christian Kane) is an oil field worker with an IQ of 190 and an encyclopedic knowledge of art history. Cassandra Cillian (Lindy Booth) has a talent for memory retrieval, and Ezekiel Jones (John Kim) may have sticky fingers, but he's also a whiz at technology. Jenkins (John Larroquette) oversees the new guardians, but he isn't happy about it. And Judson (Bob Newhart) and Charlene (Jane Curtin) are around if needed.

Romijn's reason for taking on the role might surprise some viewers. "I initially was really attracted to it because of the genre," says the actress. "I grew up loving Indiana Jones. And I had not seen the ('Librarian') movies. So, when I watched the movies, I fell even more in love because of the comic tone. If you ask Noah Wyle if it's about an Indiana Jones action adventure, he says it's Indiana Jones if Indiana was played by Don Knotts, which I love. So, I love this very specific tone we're going for."

For folks who haven't seen the movies, there's no reason to worry. There is enough backstory so that new viewers can understand what is happening. The guardians save the world's mystical treasures, and they have grand adventures while doing so.

Romijn's character isn't one who takes fools lightly, and she isn't sure what to think of Flynn. "I don't think Eve takes him too seriously," says Romijn. "She's a counterterrorism expert and comes from this very rigid military background. Everything for her is black and white."

"And Flynn is every color in between black and white. She doesn't understand that. Once he convinces her that magic does exist in the world, I think she becomes very intrigued with him. She's the skeptic of the group, so she sort of gets to be the voice of the audience. That's really fun to play. And she's sort of the straight man. And she demands explanations. She's an investigator, and she approaches these missions and finding these magical artifacts as she would approach any mission in the military. She's just doing her job."

With young children at home, Romijn likes the fact that the action-adventure series is family-friendly. "There are so many fantastic shows on cable now," she says. "They're so smart and they have these amazing characters. They're dark and they're actually the kinds of shows that I love watching. But this has a different tone that doesn't really exist. We have this Sunday timeslot which traditionally was the 'Wonderful World of Disney' time slot. And as a child of the 1980s, I grew up watching that. That was appointment television for me on Sunday nights. So, I like to think we're in the spirit of that type of entertainment. We're a great family show."

As much as Romijn loves working in the genre, there are some downsides. When dealing with magic, there is usually a great deal of actor imagination going into what viewers see on the screen. "You're usually reacting to something that's completely imaginary on green screen," Romijn says. "You're dealing with special effects. So, you have to ask a lot of questions. 'How big is the flame? Is it like a fireball? How close is it to me? Is the sky lit up right in front of my face? How powerful is it?' My least favorite thing about the process is not knowing exactly what Agent Eve Baird (Rebecca Romijn) isn't quite sure what to think of her new job as one of the "The Librarians," airing Sunday at 7 p.m. on TNT.

I'm looking at. Usually it ends up being my favorite thing in the final product, and I get to watch it just like the audience does."

One thing she doesn't mind is doing the action scenes. "I love shooting action, and especially when you're working long hours in hour-long television," Romijn says. "You're memorizing 10 pages of dialogue a day. It's nice to put the script down and just run down the street for a few hours. It breaks up your day."

"I had just come off of another TNT series called 'King & Maxwell' last year where I played a Secret Service agent. And I had to do a lot of martial arts training and weapons training for that. So, luckily I got to roll all of that training into this character. I'm learning fight choreography. It's not new, but it's something that my brain is still getting used to. I'm really good at memorization. Learning fight choreography is kind of like learning a complicated dance. But it's really fun once you nail it."

Finding Fitness on TV

1. Instead of becoming "couch potatoes," countless early television viewers were inspired to get up and get in shape by this pioneering icon of fitness, who performed unbelievable feats of physique up until the age of 70.
2. In later years, this TV and video proponent of fitness was often parodied for his bubbly, excitable and flamboyant personality.
3. Currently, this popular NBC series turns weight loss into a prize-winning competition for its obese participants.
4. Also in the vein of reality shows, this series followed famous actors, musicians,

- models and TV personalities as they struggled to drop their excess pounds.
5. Running continuously on Showtime for four years, this 1981 video featured beautiful girls in spandex sharing an eroticized aerobics workout upon a rotating platform.
  6. After creating the personal fitness training industry, the "Trainer to the Stars" launched this workout series that became the brand name of his huge line of fitness merchandising.
  7. A Cincinnati-based practitioner of yoga taught the physical, mental and spiritual discipline to PBS viewers on this self-named series from 1972 to 1999.

Laugh Along w/ LateNight

David Letterman

Charles Manson is marrying a woman in prison. Manson is 80 and his bride-to-be is 26 years old. He swept her right off her feet. It's probably because he carved a swastika in his forehead. Chicks dig that.

Jimmy Fallon

Washington State just had its first marijuana auction and ended up selling 300 pounds of pot for $600,000. And it was all bought by a customer from out of state - named Giancarlo Stanton.

Seth Meyers

Due to extreme weather in upstate New York, some drivers were stranded in their cars for up to 36 hours. It was intense. Some of them reported hearing that new Taylor Swift song on the radio as many as 100 times.

Jimmy Kimmel

Germany has overtaken the United States as the world's favorite country. Germany is the most popular country in the world. That is one hell of a comeback.

Conan O'Brien

That's right, Charles Manson has applied for a license to marry a 26-year-old girlfriend. Must be tough for single women out there. First Clooney, and then Benedict Cumberbatch, and now Manson. All the good ones are taken.

Moments in Time

On Dec. 18, 1620, the British ship Mayflower docked at modern-day Plymouth, Massachusetts, and its passengers prepared to begin their new settlement, Plymouth Colony. That winter of 1620-1621 was brutal, and the Pilgrims struggled to find food and ward off sickness. By spring, 50 of the original 102 Mayflower passengers were dead.

On Dec. 15, 1791, Virginia becomes the final state to ratify the Bill of Rights, making the first 10 amendments to the Constitution law. The Anti-Federalist critics of the Constitution believed that it gave too much power to the federal government. The Bill of Rights assuaged their concerns.

On Dec. 17, 1944, Public Proclamation No. 21 declared that Japanese-American "evacuees" from the West Coast could return to their homes. In 1942, more than 110,000 Japanese Americans were relocated to remote internment camps built by the U.S. military.

On Dec. 20, 1957, Elvis Presley receives his draft notice for the United States Army. After basic training, he served in 3rd Armored Corps in Friedberg, Germany, where he attained the rank of sergeant.

On Dec. 19, 1968, Warner Brothers releases the movie "Bullitt," starring Steve McQueen, in Sweden, two months after its debut in U.S. theaters. Many critics consider "Bullitt" to be one of the greatest action movies ever made, because of the seven-minute car chase through the streets of San Francisco.

On Dec. 16, 1973, Buffalo Bills running back O.J. Simpson becomes the first player in the National Football League to rush for more than 2,000 yards in a single season. After leading the University of Southern California Trojans to a Rose Bowl victory and winning the Heisman Trophy, Simpson was drafted by Buffalo in 1969.
