Connick Still Loving the Gig

Candace Havens FYI Television, Inc.

Between his music and his acting career, Harry Connick Jr. is a busy guy. He still spends a great deal of time on the road touring, and he didn't necessarily need to return as a judge to "American Idol XIV," airing Wednesday at 7 p.m. on FOX. He likes working with fellow judges Jennifer Lopez and Keith Urban and host Ryan Seacrest, but for Connick, it is about the music.

"I wanted to come back and do 'Idol' after my first year," Connick says, "primarily because of how much fun I had. It's a great chance to sit and listen to amazing young performers and do a little bit to help sort of mold their decisions and careers. It's a great opportunity, and I am having a really good time."

Of the three judges, Connick is a bit tougher, but he always gives constructive criticism. "I think being a fair judge kind of comes down to just that, being fair," he says. "I think you have to be spontaneous. I think it's important to be honest and focus very intently on the person that's in front of you, and if you really clear your mind and listen and feel, almost invariably you will come up with something to say that will be of help to them."

The audience doesn't always appreciate his opinion, but he takes it all in stride. The booing has become a regular part of his life. "When I go into a Starbucks and order a latte, people start booing me," Connick says. "I think things like that happen a lot more."

One of the more positive moves the producers made this season will help contestants with their careers, and Connick approves. "There have been a lot of changes on 'Idol' from year to year, and I think there are some substantial ones this year," says Connick. "One of the bigger changes was the addition of Scott Borchetta, who is a really talented music industry professional who knows a lot about what it takes to go from point A to point B. A lot of people have this amazing opportunity on 'American Idol' to launch their careers, but many times they don't know what to do. What kind of records do you make? Who do you call to get a manager or agent? There are all of these kinds of questions and he is really good at that. I mean, he did it with Taylor Swift. The whole 'Idol' team is excited to have him."

There are other mentors Connick would like to see on the show. "I think about Kim Burrell, who is a great gospel singer, and Kelli O'Hara, who is a great Broadway singer," he says. "You think about Prince, Stevie Wonder and people like that. There are a ton of people who would be awesome."

The show has always been youth-centric, but this year the judges are looking for performers who might be professionally and emotionally ready for the platform the show provides.

"We have seen some amazing talent this year – it is always interesting," Connick says. "As much experience as I have in show business, you still have first impressions. Sometimes people will come into the room and your first impression is 'Wow, I wonder if they're going to be any good,' or 'Boy, this person just looks like they can sing,' and sometimes it's exactly the opposite. I love being surprised by that and I think the viewers will be surprised, too. Sometimes they're going to hear voices coming out of people and it is just going to blow them away. "After we do the auditions in the six cities, we go to Hol-

we narrow down the lywood Week, and contestants to 48 or so," he continues. "Hollywood Week is where they get up and do all kinds of performances. We have 10 of them on stage, and each will step forward to sing one at a time. Then there is a group round where they have to get together in groups of three or four and pick a song, arrange a song, choreograph it and perform it in a very short amount to time. Eventually we whittle that group down to 24, and that is the group that we will see live in late February. It's important that they are ready for what is about to happen."

There was one final reason that Connick decided to return to the reality competition.

Harry Connick Jr. has trouble at coffee shops since joining "American Idol XIV," airing Wednesday at 7 p.m. on FOX.

"I think it comes across on camera that we have a really good time," he says of Lopez, Urban and Seacrest. "A lot of times when we take a lunch break or something, we all sit around and talk about our families and what we did over the weekend or vacation. It's a nice environment and maybe people don't really know that because Jen, Keith, Ryan and I all have busy lives, but when we are on set a lot of times we have a chance to kind of relax and talk to each other. It is pretty cool and a great group of people."

'Sirens' Returns for a Second Season

Candace Havens FYI Television, Inc.

At the end of the first season of "Sirens," returning Tuesday at 9 p.m. on USA, EMT Johnny Farrell (Michael Mosley) and his girlfriend, Chicago police officer Theresa Kelly (Jessica McNamee), decided to get married. It was a spur of the moment event that did not go the way anyone expected. Thanks to her father (John Scurti) arresting the minister for illegal cockfighting in the middle of the proceedings, they never finished the ceremony.

Executive producers Denis Leary ("Rescue Me," "The Job") and Bob Fisher ("Wedding Crashers," "We're the Millers") are known for creating shows and movies with twisted humor. They took a big chance taking the half-hour show to a network that was known for only doing one-hour series, and most of those dramas. "Sirens" is a crude workplace comedy where the characters don't spend that much time working. Their emergency calls most often are setups for the comedy or whatever the theme of the show is.

"We do save the occasional life," says Mosley. "We also have the family stuff. Johnny is getting to know his father (Lenny Clarke) more this season.

Theresa and Johnny are living together now, and they are in a good place. It isn't perfect, but they are figuring it out. While Johnny is in a pretty good spot, he's trying to help his friends with their relationships, which is kind of a switch. He was pretty clueless – he still is – but it's an interesting switch."

"They are in a better place," McNamee adds about the relationship. "But I think my character still needs to get her stuff together. She's good at her job, but the personal life is tougher for her. But she's making an effort with Johnny. I think she's more aware that she might be kind of tough to be in a relationship with, and she's trying to be more aware of that as things go along."

Johnny's EMT friends Hank (Kevin Daniels) and Brian (Kevin Bigley) are also going through some changes. Brian has been in a relationship with no sex, something that he is rethinking, and Hank has found someone who might make him think about settling down.

"When we last left Hank, he was trying to change his ways and give up on some of the one-night stands he was so used to," Daniels says. "This season finds him in a relationship. So, now we get to watch him go through the ups and downs of that. He'll have to deal with his fears and insecurities. In a lot of ways, the roles of Johnny and Hank have switched, with Hank now needing a little guidance and advice from his best friend, Johnny."

With a cast full of funny people, the production can become a competition for laughs. "We spend about 10 to 12 hours a day together," Daniels says. "And frankly, all day we're just looking for ways to crack each other up. But the real test is cracking up our amazing crew. When the camera operator is shaking from laughter because he can't keep it together, you've done something right. It's always somebody different each day. For the most part, we're all shining beacons of professionalism. Then somebody will find a new take on a line reading and send everyone into hysterics. It's mainly Josh (Segarra, who plays Billy) and Bigley who make it their goal in life to make somebody break."

The cast isn't above having a little fun with the bosses when the opportunity comes about. "Bob (Fisher, showrunner) brought his family to the set," Daniels says. "And we were doing a scene about butts and all their shapes and sizes. I believe there was even a song. You've never seen a grown man carry a 6-year-old off of a set so fast. After the entire cast and crew breaks into laughter, Mosley calls out, 'Sorry Joe, but your dad wrote it.' It was a classic 'Sirens' moment."

"The show is shot in Chicago," says McNamee, who is Australian, "and it has become a second home for me. I've learned so much about sports, meat and cold weather. Because we are on location, we've all become a little closer, I think, than most casts. We experience a lot together."

The camaraderie of the characters isn't faked. Even when they aren't in Chicago, the actors hang out. "These guys just won't leave me alone," Daniels jokes. "We've spent about three years from pilot

The flu season is especially bad this season. Ground zero for most disease is that electronic stylus attached to the credit card swiper at stores. I'm not a germ freak, but why would we all touch that thing? They are filled with bacteria. They should store them in that blue liquid they have at the barber shop.

According to a new study, people with certain names tend to work in the same profession. Many women named Susan are hairdressers. Women named Janet tend to be scientists. Guys named Bobby are race-car drivers, Eleanor for librarians and, apparently, Jimmy for talk-show hosts.
