Quiet Community Rocked by Murder on Remake of Hit British Series

Dan Rice
FYI Television, Inc.

Fans of the British crime drama "Broadchurch" are in for a treat. The hit whodunit mystery, which aired last year on BBC America, is set to return with a second series in 2015, but first David Tennant reprises his starring role in the re-imagined plot course of an American remake called "Gracepoint," a 10-episode event premiering Thursday at 8 p.m. on FOX. The story of a seaside town in Northern California that is beset by a tragic murder, "Gracepoint" co-stars Emmy winner Anna Gunn ("Breaking Bad"), ALMA Award winner Michael Peña and three-time Oscar nominee Nick Nolte.

The new series begins the same way "Broadchurch" did: a young boy is found murdered on a beach, and the resultant homicide investigation divides the community while igniting a media frenzy. Detective Emmett Carver (Tennant) is the lead officer on the case, having just arrived in Gracepoint to fill a top position on the city's police force – one that had been promised to Detective Ellie Miller (Gunn), who now works under his command. Ellie's son (Jack Irvine) was the best friend of the victim (Nikolas Filipovic), who is survived by his grieving parents (Peña, Virginia Kull) and rebellious older sister (Madalyn Horcher). Ellie's nephew (Kevin Zegers) is the local newspaper reporter following the sensational case, and his ambition is fueled by a San Francisco Globe reporter (Jessica Lucas) who shares a history with Carver.

Beyond changing his name from Alec Hardy, Emmett Carver is a divergent character – to a degree – as Tennant reports. "Obviously, they both look quite like me, and they're similar heights," he jokes, "but, yeah, they feel different because of the circumstances of everyone around me. You're playing opposite this extraordinary kind of Rolls-Royce of a cast. I'm also very fortunate to play with a Rolls-Royce of a cast back home, but it's a very different one on that and creates a different set of circumstances to be within. It's such an unusual situation. It's quite hard to be entirely objective about it myself because it's the same character and yet it's not. It's same but different, and it's probably easier for objective observers to point out how they differ.

"But they feel very different to me, the relationship between Carver and Ellie Miller. It's very different from the relationship between Hardy and Ellie Miller because they are very different actresses playing those parts, even though they have similar starting points. And I think that's true right through working with all these extraordinary people as well. The spine of the story is the same, and the spine of the two characters is the same, but there's very different flesh on the bones."

Another character to be somewhat retooled is that of the victim's father, Mark Solano. The relocation of the setting to California allows for the class distinctions of "Broadchurch" to be amplified as racial divides. "To cast Michael in a part that, yes, he is a Hispanic man, but this part is not, at base, a Hispanic man – it doesn't have to be – was interesting to us," executive producer Dan Futterman discloses. "Did that change any of the tenor of the relationships? Maybe it did. Maybe it didn't, and maybe Michael can talk about that a little bit."

"Well, this one I didn't have to do a lot of research actually," Peña says of the role, "because, you know, they think he's a suspect in a crime that he maybe didn't commit. I grew up as a Mexican American, and I have a lot of experience with that, so this part was easy. No, I actually was really excited. First, the script is just amazing, and I do a lot of movies, but you really chase the writing. And this was one of those kind of things that I couldn't wait to read the second one, and then I asked for the third and fourth. I mean, they were just amazing scripts, and this is a great role. And it wasn't written as a Mexican or a Latino or whatever.

David Tennant brings his "Broadchurch" role to American viewers on the 10-episode mystery event "Gracepoint," premiering Thursday at 8 p.m. on FOX.

We changed the last name, though, after. But, you know, good parts and good projects don't come by very often. So, I was fortunate to be in it."

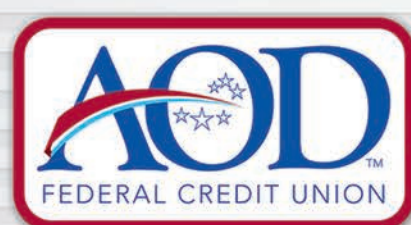

Given that "Broadchurch" worked so well, the writers of "Gracepoint" chose to follow the beginning of the source series, but they insist the new plotline will soon depart from the old. "We did consider different starting places, different ideas for the first episode," explains executive producer

Carolyn Bernstein, "and I think we kept coming back to it's the first episode of 'Broadchurch,' not shot for shot, but the way that the story was told was so well done that why would we contort ourselves to figure out a different way to tell the story when that was the smartest, most compelling way to launch this particular story. But we promise that, as the series progresses, it really diverges in a lot of interesting ways from the original, and you'll meet new characters along the way, new red herrings, new suspects."

"There's a DNA here that is exactly the same," Futterman adds, "but it's set in a different place and it's going to start to change very, very rapidly. I think by the third and fourth episodes you see very, very great detours, and it also reverts to form as well, because the genetics of the show are powerful, and they're successfully powerful. But we deviated as much as we wanted to and as much as we could while still trying to tell this beautiful story that has a beginning and now a different ending."

As for that ending, will it definitely reveal the identity of the killer?

"Yes, 100 percent yes," Bernstein assures us. "Don't you worry."

Leoni Returns to Television for Challenging New Role

Candace Havens
FYI Television, Inc.

When actor and producer Morgan Freeman and executive producer Lori McCreary were first talking about getting into scripted television, they mulled over many ideas. They started thinking about what happens at American embassies overseas, and how the Secretary of State manages to keep track of everything going on in the world of international politics. And then they began to wonder what the life of a Secretary of State looks like, especially one who might be a woman with a family. When Freeman came up with the title "Madam Secretary," airing Sunday at 7:01 p.m. on CBS, they knew they had a show.

Showrunner and executive producer Barbara Hall ("Homeland") was brought in, and she had some pretty specific ideas about the type of character who should be the Secretary of State. "I said to them, 'There are two things that have to be present for me to understand this character in order to bring it to life, and one is that she can't be a lifetime politician,'" Hall recounts. "That sort of works OK in the real world, but trying to tell this person's story, people don't really know what that is. They don't understand the life of a lifetime politician. I wanted to bring her in from a real world situation, so I made her a CIA analyst. We're bringing her in from a place where she had actual hands on experience with working with problems of foreign relations.

"And then the other thing just really important to me is that I wanted her to have a recognizable and active home life, a successful marriage and children who are still at home, because one of the things that's a challenge in trying to show strong women in positions of leadership, or women in a man's world, is trying to show them going back and forth between those worlds," Hall continues. "If all you have to do is get up in the morning and go be Secretary of State and be strong and, you know, muscle everybody and negotiate and be diplomatic and fight all those battles and then come home and go to sleep and get up and do it again, that doesn't seem like much of a challenge. The challenge is that you have to come home and negotiate the politics of your home as well. And so once we decided that those two elements could be present and that is the 'Madam Secretary' we wanted to bring to life, we got busy creating the show."

Their next problem was to find an actress who could handle the role of Secretary Elizabeth McCord and still be accessible. That was no easy task. While Téa Leoni had acted in a few films, she had taken several years off from television to raise her children and wasn't really looking to do a new project. "Actually, it's really that my kids at 15 and 12 are ready," Leoni says. "In fact, I turned to my 12 year old son and said, 'This is going to be a little tricky. I'm not going to be sort of around as much to take you to school and all that kind of thing. Are you cool with it?' He said, 'Yeah. I was getting kind of sick of you,'" she laughs.

After years away to raise her children, Téa Leoni returns to television in the role of "Madam Secretary," airing Sunday at 7:01 p.m. on CBS.

"I've always really enjoyed a fish out of water," adds Leoni, "a lively fish out of water, and pretty much by about page two of the script, I knew that's what this was going to be. And Barbara's writing is just, well, spectacular. I called Nina (Tassler, CBS Entertainment president) after my first read through the script and said I was in."

Tim Daly plays Henry McCord, a college professor and Elizabeth's husband. In a weird sort of way, Daly has been doing research for his role for years. "Madeleine Albright is my White House Correspondents' Dinner girlfriend," says Daly. "We meet there every year, and she's become very close. And I have to say she gives the best restaurant recommendations worldwide of anyone I've ever known."

Bebe Neuwirth, Patina Miller, Geoffrey Arend, Zeljko Ivanek and Keith Carradine also star on the drama series.

SOAP OPERA REVIEW

THE BOLD AND THE BEAUTIFUL

Maya planned to use Ridge and Caroline's close working relationship to her advantage. Wyatt made an emotional plea to Hope as to why she should remain in their marriage despite the sketchy circumstances that led to it. Ivy regretted allowing herself to fall for Liam while knowing that he was still in love with Hope. Wyatt apologized to his brother for every negative thing that transpired between them lately. Maya tried to cast doubt in Rick's mind about his wife's faithfulness. Bill believed he had the information he needed in order to get back into Brooke's good graces. Meanwhile, Deacon wasted no time in reminding Brooke of their own past love affair. Katie witnessed firsthand the chemistry that was building between Ridge and Caroline. Wait to See: Quinn finally pays for her wrongdoings. Katie gets a big scare. Hope is ready to reveal her secret to Wyatt.

Kimberly Matula stars as "Hope" on "The Bold and the Beautiful."

DAYS OF OUR LIVES

Nicole begged Eric to testify against Kristen. Eve's plot against JJ could very well backfire on her. Daniel made a sincere plea to a surprised Kristen. Hope gently broke the news to Caroline that she was filing for divorce from Bo. EJ gave Sami a new ring just before they privately exchange wedding vows. Chad revealed his agenda. Kate and Clyde went out to dinner together, where a proposition was soon made. Theresa went to extreme measures to make sure that her secret was safe. Caroline was livid when she realized that Hope was interested in moving on with Aiden so soon. EJ was stunned when his mother, Susan, made a surprise appearance in Salem. Chad confided his secret to Kate. Clyde set up a mysterious meeting. Rafe was unhappy when he found Chad flirting with Jordan. Wait to See: JJ tries to defend himself against Eve. Susan has an important message for EJ. Aiden and Hope's first date doesn't go as planned.

just as Michael walked in. Julian confronted Sonny about Ava's whereabouts. Later, Julian and Olivia were both disappointed to find out that Alexis and Ned were out on a date together. Nathan asked Maxie an important question. "Fluke" sent an emissary to demand answers from Julian about Ava. In the interim, Sam and Patrick shared their suspicions about Luke with Alexis. Morgan tried to convince Ava not to leave town. Michael and Kiki shared a romantic evening together, but Kiki felt guilty for lying to him. Shawn and Jordan's relationship was put to the test. Wait to See: Michael's life is in jeopardy. Tracy arranges a meeting with Luke. Elizabeth continues to watch over her mysterious patient.

THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS

Mariah heard Sharon talking in her sleep about something she was hiding. Summer decided to visit her mother after hearing about Nick and Sharon's engagement. Lauren felt guilty helping Jack redecorate his mansion to suit Kelly's tastes. Phyllis began hitchhiking back to Genoa City. Summer was jealous of Mariah and Austin resolving their differences. Nikki continued her losing battle with sobriety. Christine found Dylan snooping around Paul's desk. Nick wasn't looking forward to hearing his father's reaction to the news of his engagement to Sharon. Michael grew worried when Kevin wouldn't explain why he was leaving town. Chelsea and Billy went on their first official date together. Wait to See: Avery gets a surprise visitor. Fen returns home to visit family. Nick and Sharon's wedding day arrives.

GENERAL HOSPITAL

Robin had an opportunity to reach out to her loved ones. Ava's plan suddenly hit a bump in the road. Franco was busy concocting his latest scheme. Shawn delivered Sonny some bad news about Ava. Kiki revealed her secret to Morgan,
