History of surfing in state to be presented at N.C. Maritime Museum

BY MATT SARNELLI
CONTRIBUTOR

The N.C. Maritime Museum will host a program on the history of surfing in North Carolina. The free event takes place at 7 p.m. Friday, June 26.

Join curator of education John Hairr and associate curator Benjamin Wunderly as they take a look at this sport and share their research on the state's role in the history of surfing.

There will be several presentations and video footage that will help tell the story of wave riding, board shaping and why North Carolina's coast is an East Coast surfing destination.

The presentation will focus on the early history of surfing in Onslow Bay and Alexander Hume Ford, a South Carolinian and a major contributor to the spread of the sport from Hawaii. Also, research efforts and findings of the Surfing N.C. Timeline project will be discussed.

At first glance, the North Carolina coast, its waters, and its weather may not seem as conducive to surfing as those of Hawaii or California, but in fact, the Outer Banks is one of the best-kept secret spots for surfing on the East Coast. Since the 50s and 60s, multitudes of surfers have made pilgrimages to places like Rodanthe, Avon and Buxton to take advantage of the notorious swells. Cape Hatteras juts out far into the Atlantic Ocean where the Labrador Current meets the Gulf Stream, making it a magnet for anyone who wants to catch a great wave.

Other notorious spots include Onslow County, where Marines from Camp Lejeune and their families have gone surfing while on leave, and Wrightsville Beach, where local Burke Bridgers and his friends were experimenting with surfing techniques in 1909. Surfing was taking place around Morehead City and Beaufort in 1911. In the 30s, Thomas Fearing of Manteo was surfing with his handmade Hawaiian-style board, which was big enough to hold two people.

North Carolina surfing may have been brought over directly from Polynesia. Hawaiian Willie Kaiama and his team of performers gave surfing demonstrations at Roanoke Island and Virginia Dare Shores in 1928 as part of the events marking the celebration of Virginia Dare Day.

"As of now, we cannot say unequivocally that surfing along the East Coast of the United States started in North Carolina, any more than other locales in the region can make the same claim" said Mr. Hairr.

"We do know that surfing along the North Carolina coast was being practiced at least as far back as the first decade of the 20th century, which makes it coeval with the point in time when surfing, which had nearly died out, was undergoing a revival in Hawaii. There are also some intriguing hints that surfing in North Carolina predates the famous surfing exhibitions of George Freeth in California in 1907, which many acknowledge as the birth of the sport along the West Coast of the United States," he said.

Today, surfing and the beach go hand in hand, but there was a time not too long ago where it was seen as an exotic novelty or a passing fad. Over time it has evolved into a worldwide pastime, a typical beach activity done in every country that borders an ocean.

The N.C. Maritime Museum is at 315 Front St. in Beaufort. For more information, call 728-7317 or visit www.ncmaritime-museums.com.

Admission is free. Donations are appreciated. The museum is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturdays and 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Sundays.

• 4 Tropical, summer picnic treat idea given

this week

6/25/15 - 7/1/15

Summer picnics are the perfect opportunity for a getaway in your own backyard, filled with a bounty of food, laughter and fun. There's no better way to cap off one of these memorable "staycation" meals than with a fruity, island-inspired dessert.

Create this summer's tropical picnic to remember with these tips:

- Transform your backyard into a beachside cabana. From grass table skirts to brightly colored beach balls to flaming tiki torches, the options are nearly endless for establishing an island ambiance.

- Set the mood with music. Steel drums and lively rhythms are the perfect backdrop to a festive beach-style party.

- Greet guests with leis and umbrella-capped beverages. These simple touches go a long way to enhance the festive spirit.

- Whether guests include kids, or simply the young at heart, add some interactive beach-inspired activities, such as a volleyball net or sandbox for building sand castles.

- Serve up your own island-inspired recipes, such as a pineapple coconut cake. Made with Dole canned pineapple, this recipe will help you capture that tempting tropical taste for your next picnic. Dole canned pineapple is naturally fat free and cholesterol free, very low in sodium and rich in Vitamin C. Plus, it comes in many forms, including slices, chunks, tidbits and crushed.

Canned fruit is also well suited for other desserts such as fruit salads, baked muffins and breads or even as a dessert topping.

It's also a perfect ingredient for mixing into cottage cheese or blending into fruit smoothies.

For more delicious dessert ideas featuring canned fruit, including this tropical twist on an iced layer cake, visit www.dole.com.

Pineapple coconut cake

Prep time: 10 minutes

Bake time: 35 minutes

Servings: 12-16

1 can (20 ounces) Dole crushed pineapple, divided
1 box (2-layer) yellow cake mix

1 tablespoon coconut extract

1 package (4 serving size) instant vanilla pudding

1 cup cold low-fat milk
1 tub (8 ounces) frozen whipped topping, thawed
2 cups sweetened flake coconut

Heat oven to 350°F. Spray two 9-inch cake pans with cooking spray.

Drain pineapple; reserve juice. Divide crushed pineapple in half; set aside.

Prepare cake mix according to package directions, replacing water with reserved juice and adding coconut extract; beat two minutes.

Fold half of crushed pineapple into cake batter.

Pour cake batter into prepared cake pans.

Bake 30 to 35 minutes or until toothpick inserted in center comes out clean.

Cool in pan 10 minutes. Transfer from pan to wire rack; cool completely.

Stir together instant vanilla pudding and cold milk until smooth, about two minutes; fold in whipped topping. Combine remaining pineapple with mixture.

Place one cake layer on plate; spread pineapple frosting over top.

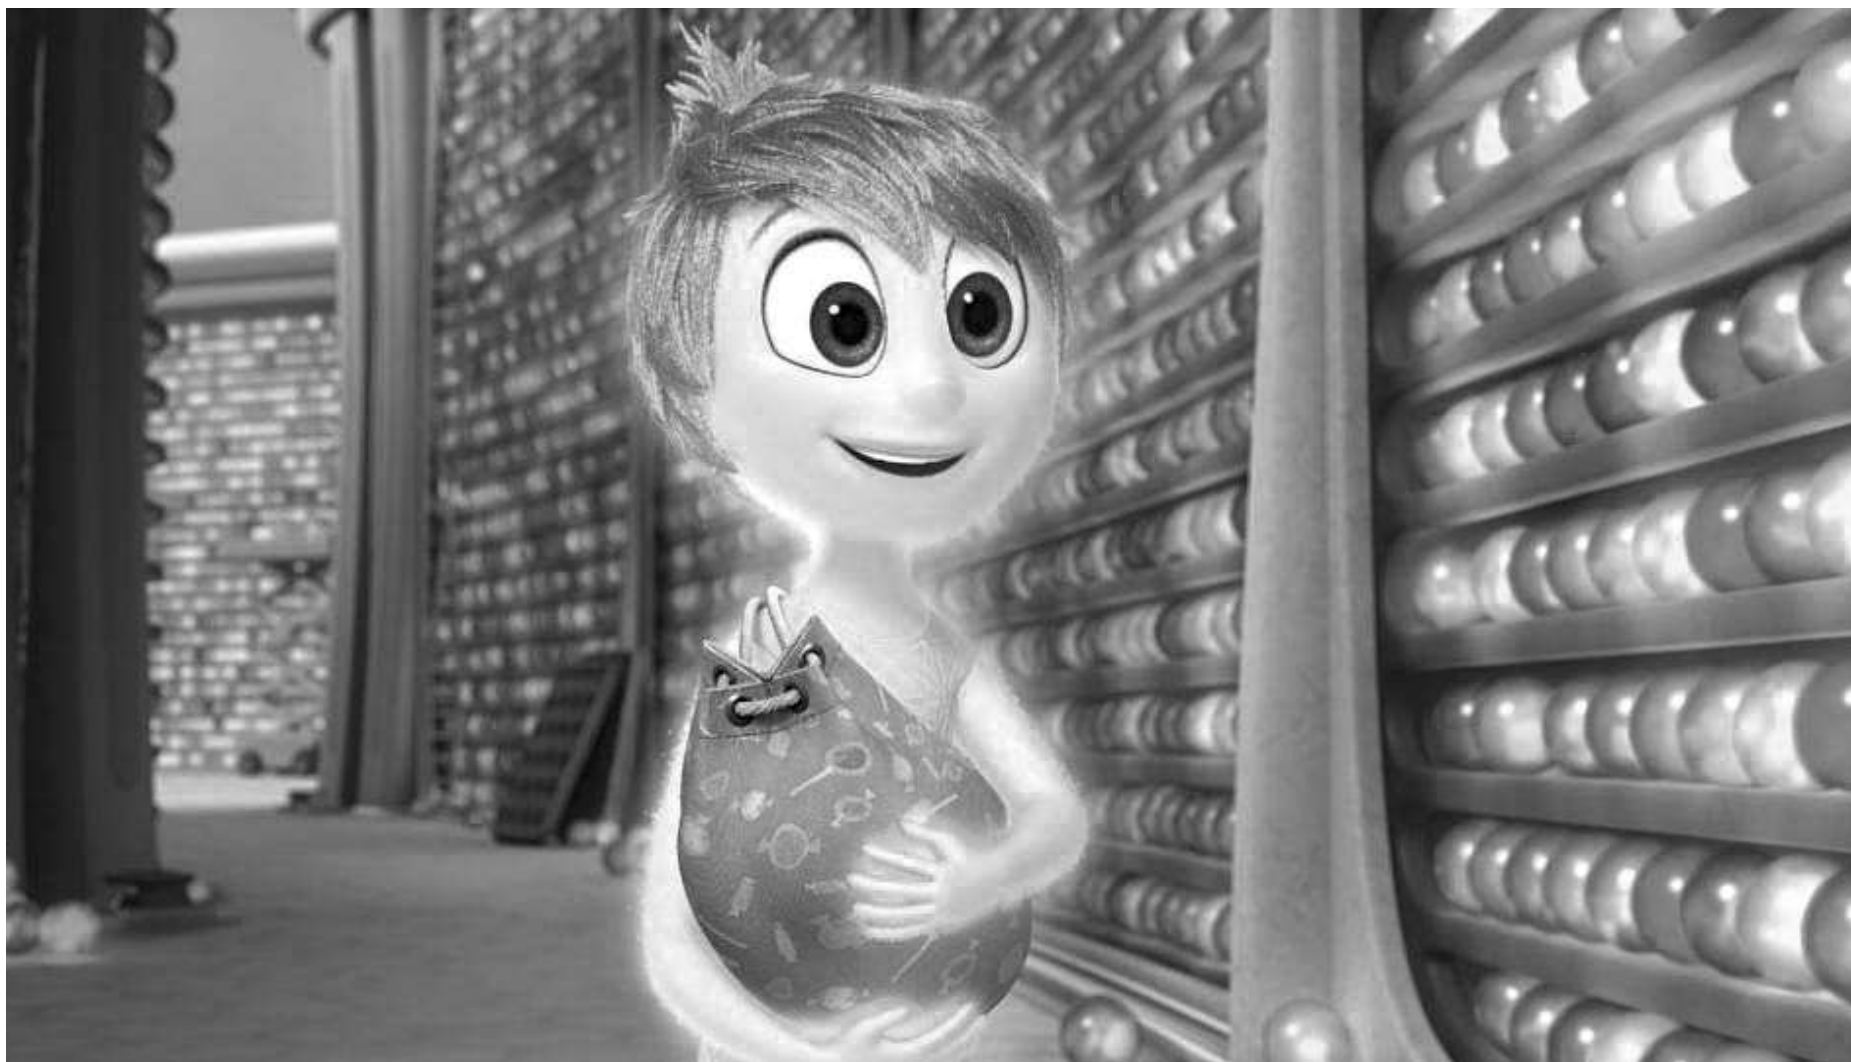

Place second cake layer over top.

Frost top and sides of cake with remaining pudding frosting. Garnish with coconut.

Refrigerate for one hour before serving.

Review: In Pixar's 'Inside Out,' the cacophony of childhood

BY JAKE COYLE

ASSOCIATED PRESS

"Inside Out," the latest Pixar punch to the heart, navigates the labyrinth of a young girl's mind in an antic, candy-colored romp through childhood memory to arrive, finally, gloriously, at epiphany.

By now it's a familiar Pixar trajectory from wackadoodle to waterworks: We know it's coming and we know there's nothing we can do about it. The wave of tender nostalgia is going to crash down and wash us — happy, misty-eyed saps — out to sea, maybe with Nemo and Dora swimming alongside.

Those moments, sentimental and sublime, come in unlikely places: the sudden understanding of a forgotten toy, the astonished realization of a bitter food critic, the flashback of a grouchy old man. The epiphanies are almost invariably about giving into the natural course of life and time:

An acceptance, a letting go.

Part of the magic is that even when out in space or in a rat-run restaurant, Pixar films stay earthbound. What's most striking about "Inside Out" isn't its inside-the-brain gee-whizz design, but that it's probably Pixar's most directly human story yet: An 11-year-old girl, growing up.

It's an event observed and subtly manipulated by a gaggle of voices in the head of young Riley: Joy (Amy Poehler), an effervescent, pixie-haired burst of positivity; Sadness (Phyllis Smith), a blue-tinged, bespectacled mope; Anger (Lewis Black), a red block of fury; Fear (Bill Hader), a perpetually nervous squiggle; and Disgust (Mindy Kaling), a snobbish socialite.

From inside the "headquarters" of her head, the quintet have all watched Riley (Kaitlyn Dias) compile personality-forming memories, each of which rolls into headquarters like a glowing pinball, to be filed away accordingly in places like long-term memories or the more central "core memories."

Things begin going haywire when Riley and her parents (Diane Lane, Kyle MacLachlan) move from Minnesota — the scene of her idyllic, hockey-playing youth — to a rundown San Francisco town house. Sadness begins creeping into her core memories, jeopardizing Joy's previously unchallenged sunny supremacy.

In trying to prevent this scourge of unhappiness, Joy and Sadness get sucked into the recesses of Riley's mind where they must find a way back through a maze of realms like Imagination Land and Dream Productions, a nightly movie studio of dreams.

The interior architecture is bright and clever — there's literally a train of thought — but the psychology puns drag. Much of the mindscape adventures will surely sail over the heads of many younger viewers, while others will eventually tire of its "Inception"-like trip into the brain. (An exception is Bing Bong, an abandoned imaginary friend played by Richard Kind, who cries candy and seems created to prove how Pixar can make literally anything break your heart.)

Better is the tenderly depicted daily life of Riley as she struggles to adjust to a new school and city. "Inside Out," directed by Pete Docter and co-directed by Ronnie Del Carmen, steadily builds in emotional power, aided massively by Michael Giacchino's beautifully soft and sweet score (he also scored "Up" and "Ratatouille").

"Inside Out" may be about a young girl but it's really from a parent's perspective — even the inside voices are guardians of Riley, adjusting as she matures out of childhood. As he did with "Up," Docter has married a rainbow-colored palate with a gentle fable, mixing real and fantasy sometimes awkwardly but always with warm-heartedness.

What's most refreshing about "Inside Out" is its inversion of the standard prescriptions of big-budget animation: It's ultimately about the importance of embracing sadness. This, you may have noticed, isn't exactly the conventional moral one generally finds at the multiplex.

But it's a fitting lesson to be imparted by Pixar, a master juggler of emotion that has so often moved us with radiant bursts of feeling. Who better to remind us of the value of a good cry?

"Inside Out," a Walt Disney Pictures release, is rated PG by the Motion Picture Association of America for "mild thematic elements and some action." Running time: 95 minutes. Three and a half stars out four.

• 6 Horse Sense and Survival trips to begin

this week

6/25/15 - 7/1/15

Cape Lookout National Seashore will offer the first Horse Sense and Survival trip this year to Shackleford Banks.

It's set for 8:45 a.m. Saturday, June 27. This tour will leave from the Beaufort Visitor Information Center on Front Street.

Cape Lookout National Seashore Wildlife Biologist Sue Stuska will lead the tours. Her intimate knowledge of the horses makes for a glimpse into the relationships, behavior and survival of these wild animals.

Participants will gain an appreciation of all that can be gleaned while watching from a distance and will understand how to determine an appropriate position and distance for watching that doesn't affect the horses' natural behaviors.

"This is a great opportunity for visitors to see and learn about the wild horses," said Superintendent Patrick Kenney. "The Shackleford horses are an important part of what makes Cape Lookout National Seashore a special place."

In future tours, participants will join Dr. Stuska for a ferry ride from Beaufort or the park services' Harkers Island facility and a moderate-level walking trip to find horses and settle down to watch them. Participants will know where the tours leave when they register for the trip.

Participants should come prepared for a day in the sun and for walking through dunes and brush in deep sand.

Trips from Harkers Island are likely to include slogging through ankle-deep mud and deeper salt water. Shoes that protect participants' feet and stay on in the mud are required, as are water, lunch and snacks, bug repellent, sunscreen, sun hat, binoculars and camera with a telephoto lens in a daypack or shoulder bag.

The National Park Service will offer trips throughout the year. Other trips will be:

- Saturday, July 11.
- Saturday, Sept. 12.
- Saturday, Oct. 10.
- Sunday, Oct. 25.
- Thursday, Nov. 19.
- Sunday, Nov. 22.

Participants at a past Horse Sense and Survival trip observe a horse from a safe distance. The first trip is scheduled for 8:45 a.m. Saturday, June 27. (Contributed photo)

Spaces on the tours are limited and reservations are required. The only charge is the ferry fee, which is $15 for adults and $8 for children 11 and under.

For more information, including meeting places, times and ferry costs, see <http://go.nps.g/pxqou7>.

For reservations and to ask individual questions, call the park at 728-2250 ext. 3001.

Jonkonnu performance group to hold workshops

Tryon Palace's Jonkonnu performance group will hold free workshops for those interested in joining the troupe in the Waystation Auditorium on Tuesdays from 1 to 3 p.m. through Aug. 11.

A celebratory fusion of music and dancing, the 19th century African-American tradition of Jonkonnu is now offered as one of Tryon Palace's special programs. Performances are held during the Candlelight Celebration in December and other special events throughout the year.

The workshops will include men, women and children learning the history behind Jonkonnu, and how to dance and drum to traditional Jonkonnu songs.

Thanks to generous grants from the Tryon Palace Foundation and Bate Foundation, each workshop is free and open to the public.

Historic Beaufort Celebrates 55th annual Old Homes Tour

The Beaufort Historical Association's 55th annual Old Homes and Gardens Tour and Antique Show and Sale is just this weekend in the old port town.

The Old Homes Tour opens Thursday, June 25, with a free concert at Purvis Chapel AME Zion Church. Then it's on to homes and gardens from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday, June 26, and Saturday, June 27, while the Antiques Show and Sale is from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday, June 26, and Saturday, June 27, and from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday, June 28, at the Crystal Coast Civic Center, Morehead City.

Tickets for the Old Homes and Gardens Tour are $18 in advance and $20 at the door. The Antiques Show and Sale tickets are $8 and good for all three days. Combination tickets for both the Old Homes and Gardens Tour and Antique Show and Sale are available for $24 in advance and $25 the days of the events.

Beaufort's historic district, boasting more than 200 homes in the National Registered Historic District that are over a century old, and several private residences that are more than 200 years old, has brought the town attention as a tourist destination.

Every year this town invites visitors and locals alike to breathe in the salty air, stroll down the tree-lined streets and discover an array of historic homes and buildings. This longtime tradition is a way to see how the town has preserved its past while celebrating its present.

The town welcomed the event from the beginning, though some may have been skeptical. In a club scrapbook from the time it's noted, "Pay money to go inside my neighbor's house? It's nothing to see. Why it's at least 150 years old - who wants to see that?"

Plenty of people did. A success from the beginning, the tour has now morphed into an entire weekend event and a major attraction being named one of the Southeast Tourism Society's Top 20 Events for June 2015.

The church for the opening concert is at 215 Craven St. The historically black church is on the National Register of Historic Places and is believed to be the oldest in the county that's still in continual use.

This event will honor this year's honorary chairmen, Marianna Hollinshed and Jackie Hubbard, as well as the hundreds of volunteers who help make the weekend so successful. The concert is open to the public with a reception following in the parish hall.

The restored buildings on the Beaufort Historic Site will be open both days with docents in period dress.

This year the Old Homes and Gardens Tour will feature 12 private homes from the historic to the newly constructed, 10 lush gardens, artist's studios, as well as plein-air artists painting canvases around town.

Visitors on the ticketed tour will be treated to a wide variety of décor from Victorian antiques to Scandinavian modern in homes ranging in age from 246 years old to new construction.

Featured homes on tour this year are: Warner House, circa 1769, home of Gordon and Beverly Smith; Capt. John Hill House, circa 1839, home of Frederick and Kelly Frobose; W.F. Bell House, circa 1860, home of Judy Adams; Leecraft House, circa 1850, home of Bill and Laura Mosier and David and Lynn Mosier; Dill House, Since the weekend has grown to encompass all sorts of events, participants should check out the Antique Car Show on Saturday, June 27, and narrated tours of the Beaufort Historic District aboard a vintage English double-decker bus.

The Antique Car Show is a free event that showcases classic cars. The show is held at BB&T on Front Street and is sponsored by the Morehead City Antique Car Club.

The double-decker bus tours are offered from 10 to 11:30 a.m. and 1 to 3 p.m. Friday, June 26, and Saturday, June 27. Tickets for the tours are $10 for adults and $5 for children.

Since 1960, this annual weekend has been the largest fundraiser for the Beaufort Historical Association, and has also been a time of community involvement and pride where Beaufort residents open the doors of their homes to help and support the Beaufort Historical Association’s preservation efforts and educational programs.

For more information on these events or to purchase tickets, contact the Beaufort Historical Association at 728-5225, stop by the association’s visitor center at 130 Turner St. or visit www.beauforthistoricsite.org.

Antique Show and Sale to coincide with tour

The 55th annual Antique Show and Sale, which coincides with the Old Homes and Gardens Tour, is just ahead.

It's set for 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday, June 26, and Saturday, June 27, and from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday, June 28, at the Crystal Coast Civic Center, Morehead City.

Fifty-five years ago the Beaufort Historical Association decided to sponsor a station wagon antique show to coincide with the Old Homes Tour sponsored by the Beaufort Woman's Club.

From its beginnings in the back of a few station wagons, this event has grown to encompass more than 40 dealers with antique and estate jewelry, furniture, crystal, silver, dolls and fine art.

The variety of items and services available will appeal to buyers: furniture from French

Country to mid-century, a silver dealer offering a matching service to complete a set with pieces missing, maps, linens and even a home inventory specialist who helps document participants' home's treasures.

Jewelry has always been popular, and this year will feature fine estate pieces, vintage wrist and pocket watches as well as costume jewelry. There will also be a jewelry repair specialist on location.

"Antiquing continues to grow in popularity," said Robyn Austin, show coordinator. "Longtime collectors as well as those new to antiquing can find great buys and have fun looking at the huge variety of items in the show."

The Gourmet Tea Room will be open during the show again this year, providing a great

Talkin' Tuesdays begin at Core Sound Waterfowl Museum

A new summer program, Talkin' Tuesdays, has started at the Core Sound Waterfowl Museum and Heritage Center on Harkers Island.

The programs are held from 10:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. every Tuesday throughout the summer and ending Sept. 8.

The programs vary each week but will include summer science activities, art activities, hiking the pond, playing with fish, exploring the sound-side, carving demonstrations and quilt demonstrations, as well as cover topics like bees, birds, fish, bugs, lighthouses and boat building.

Bird Olympics will be one featured activity for many of the weeks. It includes a chance for children to flap their arms like wings and see how fast they can "fly."

The Baffled Beachcomber program will offer participants and opportunity to comb the beach for shells and other finds.

Teresa Everett, science educator at the museum, is excited about Talkin' Tuesday's.

"I am excited about this new opportunity to share my love of nature and all things 'Down East' with the public," Ms. Everett said.

"We are so grateful for our community partners and volunteers who are so willing to come out and give of their time, but more importantly to share their interests and passions with the rest of us. We hope that this program will really take off and everyone will see what a special place the Core Sound Museum and Heritage Center is," she added.

As a part of Talkin'

Tuesday's, admission to the museum is free, and the program is available for all ages.

For more information about Talkin' Tuesday's, call the museum at 728-1500.

Below is the schedule of activities for Talkin' Tuesdays. Each week will feature a carver and quilters, but participants are reminded that the schedule may change and to check for updates on the museum's Facebook page.

- June 30: Brother Gaskill-carver, quilters, Russ Lewis, "The Buzz about Bees," duck head painting and Baffled Beachcomber.

- July 7: carver Monty Willis, quilters, Woz: "Macro Invertebrates in Pond," duck head painting and Bird Olympics.

- July 14: carver Brother Gaskill, quilters, Russ Lewis: "The Buzz about Bees," duck head painting and Bird Olympics.

- July 21: carver Monty Willis, quilters, Woz: "Nature Trail Talk," duck head painting and Baffled Beachcomber.

Seafood Festival seeks volunteers

The N.C. Seafood Festival is seeking Carteret County non-profit groups to volunteer their time to work aspects of the festival, on Friday, Oct. 2, through Saturday, Oct 4, in exchange for the organization receiving commission from the Festival's profits.

All nonprofits will be placed into a lottery, from which groups will be chosen to work the N.C. Seafood Festival's product booth, soda booths and rides ticket booths.

A percentage of the combined profit from the product, soda and rides ticket booths will be divided equally among the working nonprofit groups.

To volunteer, groups must be a 501c3 nonprofit organization in Carteret County. Interested groups should contact the N.C. Seafood Festival before Thursday, July 2, when the lottery will be conducted.

For consideration in the lottery, contact the N.C. Seafood Festival office at 726-6273 or carol@ncseafoodfestival.org to receive an information packet.

The N.C. Seafood Festival is a nonprofit organization in Carteret County whose vision is to promote the positive social and economic impact of the seafood industry.

To learn more about the N.C. Seafood Festival and stay updated on the 2015 festival, visit www.ncseafoodfestival.org.

Storytelling event set to start in July

Children will delight at the tales told at the 12th annual Storytelling Festival.

It's set for 10 a.m. at the Crystal Coast Civic Center in Morehead City and 2 p.m. the Bethlehem United Methodist Church in Bogue on Wednesdays, July 8, 15, 22 and July 29.

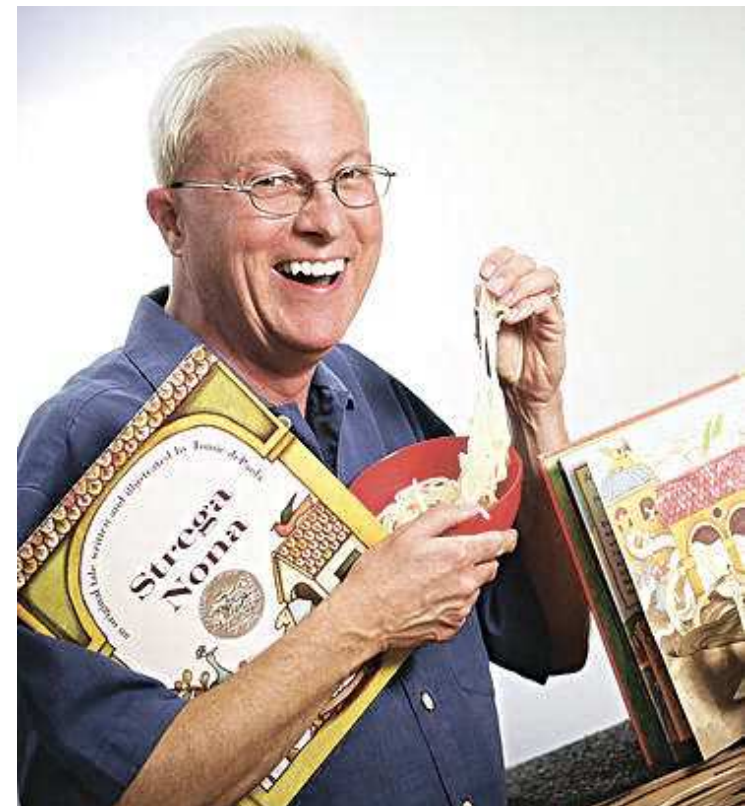

Entirely funded by the Friends of the Bogue Banks Public Library, the Friends of the Carteret County Public Library and the Friends of the Western Carteret Public Library, and sponsored by the Beaufort Inn, the events are free and open to the public, aimed at school-age children.

"We are immensely grateful to the three Friends organizations for their generous support," said Brita Flynn, coordinator for the festival and children's librarian at Bogue Banks Public Library.

This year brings yet another new lineup with Mark Daniel from Mocksville starting the festival off on July 8.

Mr. Daniel has twice performed at the White House for the Easter Egg Roll. He is a renowned Reading Ambassador and magical storyteller.

On July 15, Susana and Timmy Abell from Asheville will capti-

Scarce & Ketner to perform at Fort Macon

11 • this week 6/25/15 - 7/1/15

The Friends of Fort Macon announce Scarce & Ketner will take the stage from 7 to 8 p.m. Friday at Fort Macon's historic parade ground as part of the free summer concert series.

Dicky Scarce and Jack Ketner have been performing their special brand of Carolina Pirate Rock, also called Seagrass, from Boston, Mass., to Key West, Fla., for over a decade and have built a following of fans in Eastern Carolina, according to the Friends.

Their music incorporates a mix of island, beach and popular tunes and originals.

Really too diverse to be categorized, they combine great voices, a variety of instruments and the personality and ease of performers who know how to please a crowd.

Surrounded by the fort's interior walls, even the biggest crowds have a sense of intimacy with the performers.

The fort's gates open early for anyone wishing to enjoy the surroundings.

Picnic baskets are permitted, but alcohol and pets are not permitted.

All of the concerts in the summer concert series are free. The Friends of Fort Macon, Parker Honda and Parker Buick-GMC of Morehead City sponsor the summer concert series.

Fort Macon State Park is at the end of East Fort Macon Road, Atlantic Beach. Information about the many activities at the fort can be obtained at 726-3775. For information about the concert call 354-5259.

Scarce & Ketner are the next performers for the free summer concert series at Fort Macon at the east end of Bogue Banks. They perform from 7-8 p.m. Friday. (Contributed photo)

N.C. Coastal Federation calls for help with salt marsh cleanups

The N.C. Coastal Federation invites volunteers to help clean up coastal marshes each Tuesday from late June through late July. The cleanup locations are:

- Cape Lookout National Seashore, Shackleford Banks: June 30 and July 14.
- Town Creek, Beaufort: July 7
- Sugarloaf Island, Morehead City: July 21

Cleanups will take place from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. each day.

Litter along the coast is not only unsightly, but is dangerous to wildlife that can mistake it for food, or become entangled in trash items. It can also be hazardous to human health and safety, and can harm the coastal resources and economy.

The N.C. Coastal Federation and its partners are committed to cleaning up the coastal marshes, but they need help.

"Growing up in a large, polluted coastal city, I know how lucky we are to have such pristine coastal environments here in eastern North Carolina. By doing these cleanups, we can keep it that way," said Lexia Weaver, Coastal Scientist at the federation.

In addition to picking up trash, volunteers will help collect data for N.C. Big Sweep and International Coastal Cleanup on the types and quantities of debris collected. This information will help to identify and manage the sources of debris and focus educational efforts.

Groups will meet at 9:45 on the morning of each event. For more information, including meeting locations and to register, please visit the Events page at www.nccoast.org.

Participants should wear closed-toe shoes and weather appropriate clothing that may get wet and dirty. They should also bring work gloves and a towel. Trash collection supplies, peanut butter sandwich fixings, snacks, water, sunscreen and bug spray will be provided.

Volunteers are welcome to bring any other food items they may require.

Hillsborough, N.J. Audience members will see and hear what happens when science and storytelling accidentally mix. Science experiments and storytelling come together for an unprecedented theatrical experience.

It is well documented that school-age children and young adults experience reading loss when the school doors close for summer.

Many children struggle with access to educational opportunities during the summer months. The Storytelling Festival provides a unique possibility for Carteret County youths to see, hear, share and interpret experiences told and performed by professional tellers.

They convey a foundation for learning and teaching, creating personal connections and promoting innovative problem solving.

Everyone agrees that children who read during the summer gain reading skills and avoiding summer learning loss. The festival and its performers encourage reading in all its forms, always and foremost.

"Storytelling is a rare and extraordinary art form and we are so very pleased to be able to present the children of our county with this entertaining and rewarding opportunity to promote the love of reading," Ms. Flynn said.

Children spending a significant time with books will take that first step toward reading achievement. To prevent the summer slide, the libraries encourage children to take part in the Summer Reading Programs at the different libraries in the county.

This year's theme is "Every Hero Has a Story" and the libraries have a multitude of fun and educational activities planned.

SUDOKU

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Beaufort Ole Towne Rotary awards 14 scholarships

Beaufort Ole Towne Rotary Club recently awarded 14 college scholarships to seniors of the Class of 2015 from across the county.

Each award is valued at $1,000 and the presentations were made during special academic achievement ceremonies in May at each high school.

Club members raised money for the scholarships at the annual Beaufort Ole Towne Rotary Club Golf Tournament. With the award of these 14 scholarships, the club has awarded more than $179,000 in college scholarships to high school students over 13 years.

This year's tournament took place May 14 at Star Hill Golf Club in Cape Carteret.

"This year's tournament was an outstanding event," Tom Steepy, Rotary Golf Tournament volunteer director said. "With the funds raised Beaufort Ole Towne Rotary Club is pleased to continue to recognize and reward our county's student scholars. Club members congratulate the students selected and wish them well in their college careers and their future educational development."

The following students received scholarships:

- Ashley Ann Adams: Miss Adams attended West Carteret High School. She plans to attend UNC-Greensboro and pursue a degree in nursing.
- Ricky Joseph Barr: Mr. Barr graduated from West Carteret High School. He plans to pursue a degree in business.
- Amy Bellanca: Miss Bellanca attended Croatan High School and will pursue a degree in nursing from the UNC-Chapel Hill.
- Alexandria Hampton Cayton: Miss Cayton graduated from East Carteret High School. She plans to attend Campbell University to major in physical therapy.

Local 4-H members attend conference in Raleigh

Sabrina Carraway of Beaufort represented Carteret County at a recent 4-H conference in Raleigh.

She was part of a delegation of 4-H members who attended 4-H Citizenship N.C. Focus from June 15-17. It's a conference that teaches the importance of being an active and engaged citizen.

More than 125 youth and adults representing over 60 4-H programs across the state gathered to exchange ideas, gain knowledge and learn through hands-on experiences about the importance of being an active and engaged citizen.

Through various conference sessions and facilitated discussions, delegates learned and shared information related to local, state and national government, as well as learned how they could make an impact in the area of citizenship.

The highlight of the conference was the legislative breakfast where delegates met and had photographs taken with elected officials from their district. Following the breakfast, delegates traveled to the N.C. State Legislative Building to meet with elected officials and staff.

4-H Citizenship N.C. Focus is sponsored by North Carolina's Electric Cooperatives - Touchstone Energy. N.C. 4-H is Cooperative Extension's
