Shift N.C. is calling for young artists to participate in the 2015 Young Artists Competition. The deadline for entries is Thursday, Sept. 10. (Contributed photo)

Health program puts out call for entries

Sexual health isn't just part of health, it's part of the world around us. Shift N.C., a program that focuses on improving adolescent and young adult sexual health, is asking young people to get expressive and show them how sexual health affects their world.

Shift N.C. is looking for artists 21 years old or younger to participate in the 2015 Young Artists Competition.

The competition gives younger citizens a chance to show adults in the state how they see teen pregnancy, HIV and AIDS, STDs, relationships, sexuality, development and access to care as a part of the world around them.

The deadline for entries is Thursday, Sept. 10. This contest is open to young people ages 21 and under who live in North Carolina.

One winner will be selected for each of the six topic areas. The grand prize winner will receive a $250 Visa cash gift card. One winner from each category will win a $50 Visa cash gift card. Winners will also have their work displayed in Shift N.C.'s office and training facilities.

Entries must be submitted to efinley@shiftnc.org or mailed to Young Artists Competition, c/o Elizabeth Finley, 3170 University Drive, Suite 310, Durham, N.C. 27707.

Civil War comes to life during Living History Weekend

The sights and sounds of the Civil War will come to life during Tryon Palace's Civil War Living History Weekend to be held at the New Bern Academy Museum Saturday-Sunday, Aug. 15-16.

Used as part of the Foster General Hospital during the Union occupation of New Bern from 1862-65, the academy will be home to re-enactors, artillery and infantry demonstrations and lectures throughout Civil War Living History Weekend.

There will be lectures on several Civil War topics like the Battle of New Bern, blockade runners, surgery during the war, women in the Civil War and Fort Anderson.

Speakers include Civil War historians, re-enactors, and professors like Grover Godwin, Dr. Chris Fonvielle, Lori Sanderlin, Tryon Palace assistant director LeRae Umfleet and more.

In addition to the special activities at the academy, Tryon Palace will hold Civil War-themed tours in the historic's Dixon and Stanly houses and the Civil War-era Hay House will be open on Eden Street.

Saturday evening the artillery and infantry will move to the South Lawn of Tryon Palace for live, night firings at 9 p.m.

Civil War artillery and infantry can be seen as a part of Tryon Palace's Civil War Living History Weekend, which will be held on Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 15 and 16. (Contributed photo)

Sunday's activities will begin with a period church service and continue with more artillery and infantry drills on the academy lawn.

In addition to the free outdoor activities, the New Bern Academy Museum will also be free and open to the public throughout the two days, which includes the exhibit Face to Face: Civil War Sketches and Stories. The New Bern Academy is at 508 New St.

For more information about this or future events, call 252-639-3500 or visit www.tryonpalace.org.

Savory starters on the grill

When most people think of the rich, smoky flavor of barbecue on the grill, they're thinking of a slab of meaty ribs or a plump, juicy chicken basted with their favorite sauce. This summer, wow your friends and family by extending your barbecue prowess to other menu items, such as appetizers.

As any barbecue aficionado will tell you, the secret is in the sauce. A smoky, sweet blend like you find in Kansas City's number one selling sauce, KC Masterpiece Barbecue Sauce, is the perfect combination of rich tomato sauce, molasses and spices to guarantee a delicious meal for the whole family to enjoy.

Created by barbecue enthusiast and physician Dr. Rich Davis, it pleases palates with an authentic barbecue taste that brings just the right flavor for broiling, baking, grilling, and using as an ingredient in recipes ranging from sides to apps.

Another way to enhance grilled foods and make the most of grilling season is by using wood chips or planks, along with charcoal, to build on the grill's natural smoky flavor and infuse other rich tastes, such as hickory or apple. Scatter dry chips directly on the coals and wait for them to begin smoking before placing food on the grill.

Keep the lid closed while cooking to create a stronger smoky flavor.

This appetizer, created by barbecue sauce expert and cookbook author, Ardie Davis, combines the best of barbecue sauce and seasoned wood flavors for an easy and unique starter – perfect for summer entertaining.

Smoking the goat cheese adds depth that perfectly complements the sweetness of the barbecue sauce and apricot preserves.

Find more mouthwatering barbecue recipes and preparation tips at www.kcmasterpiece.com.

Cedar planked goat cheese with apricot preserves

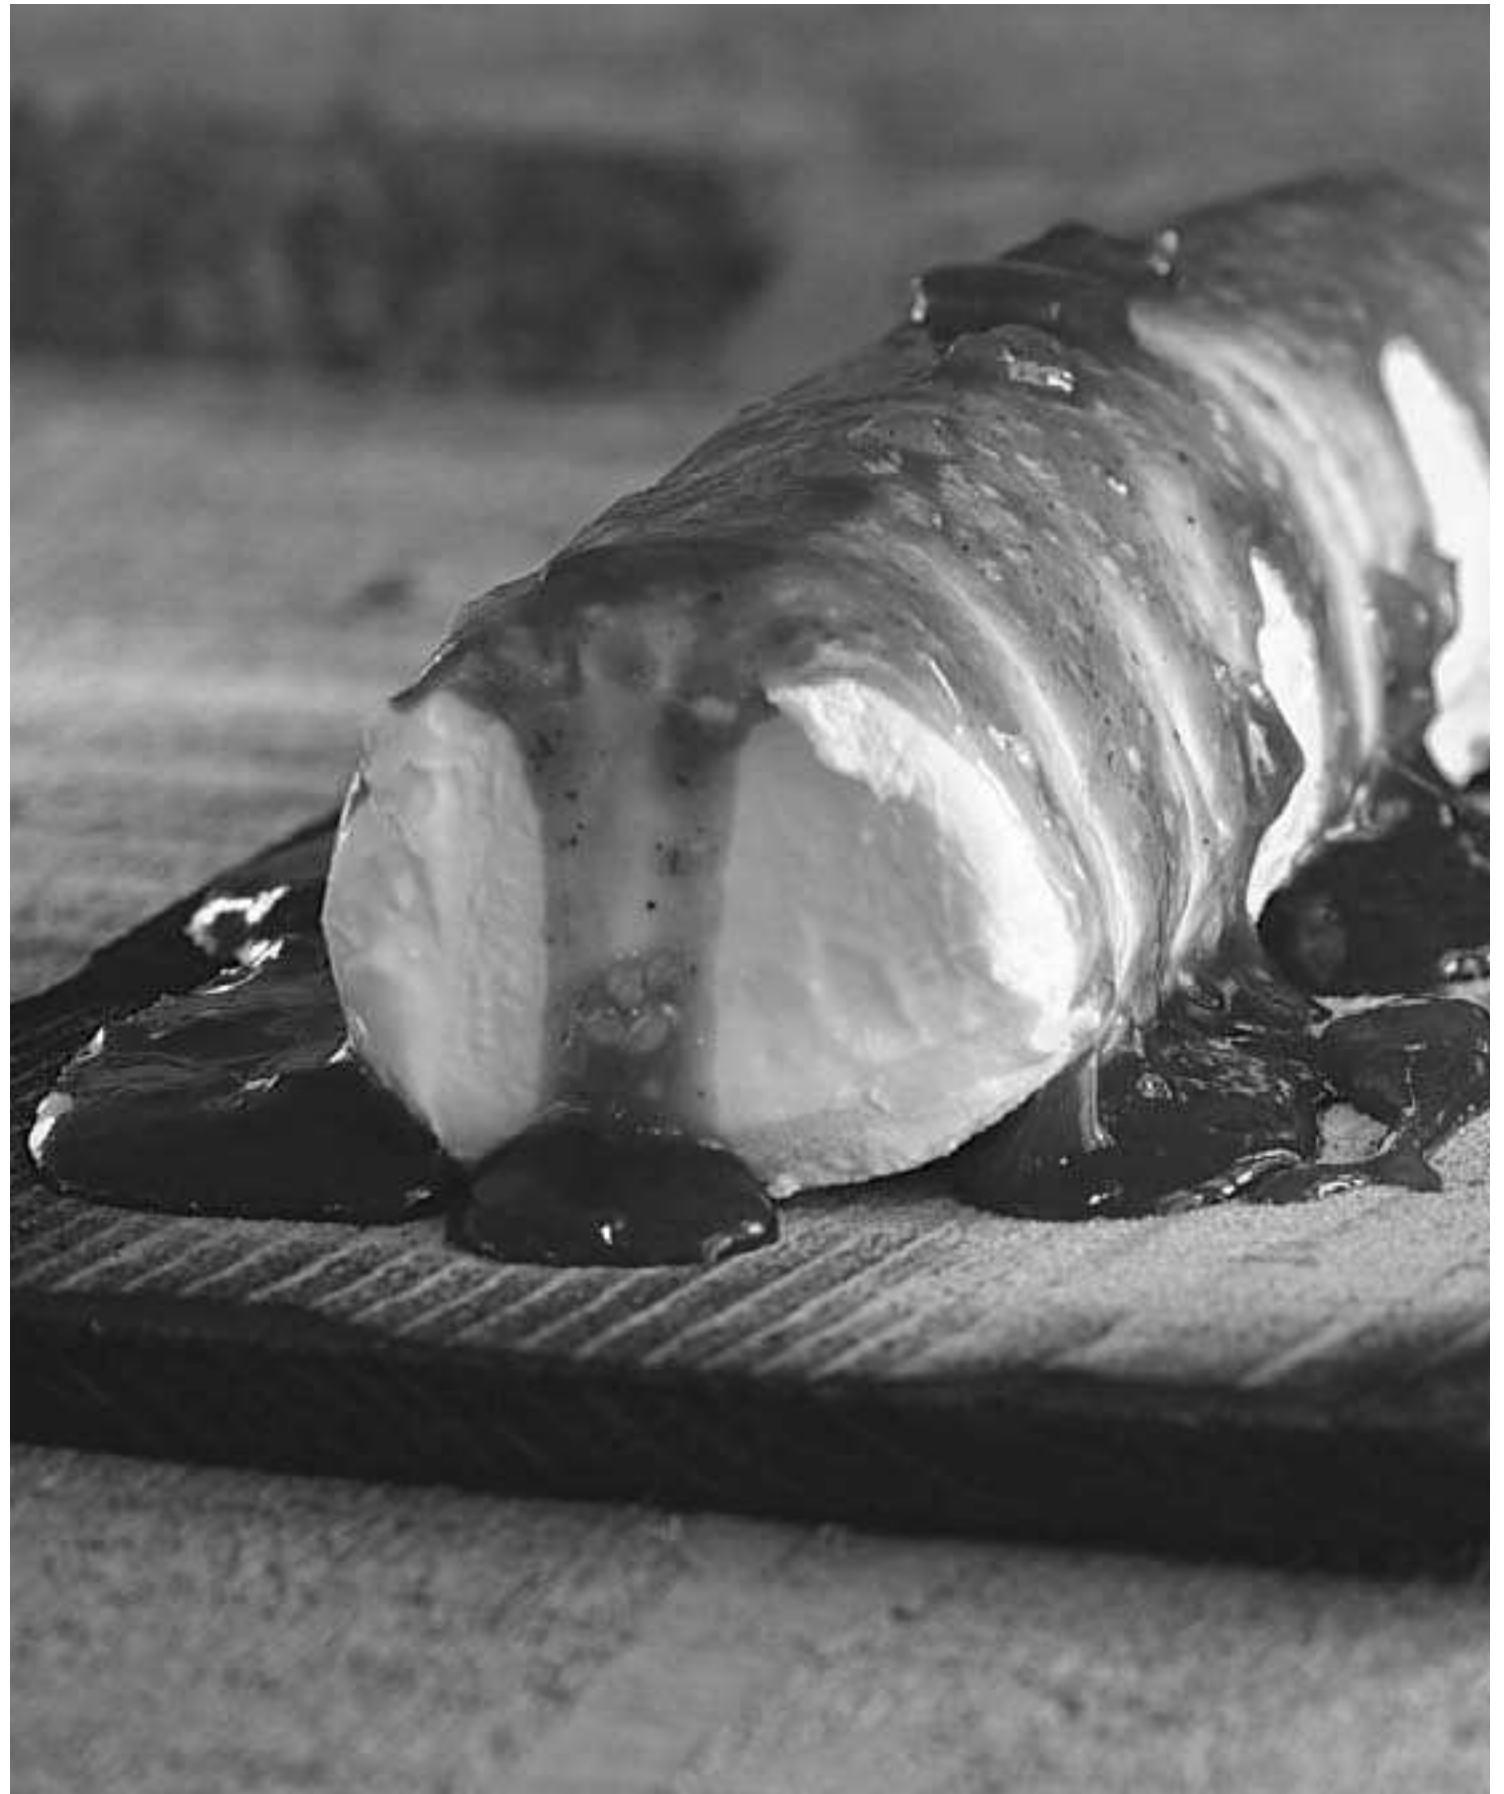

Makes: 8 appetizer servings

Prep time: 10 minutes

Cook time: 20 minutes

1 oak or cedar plank, soaked in water for at least an hour

½ cup apple or pecan wood chips, soaked in water and drained

1 10.5-ounce goat cheese log
¼ cup KC Masterpiece Kansas City Classic barbecue sauce

¼ cup apricot preserves
1 baguette cut into ½ -inch thick slices or crackers

Set up two-zone fire for indirect grilling with charcoal by situating charcoal on only one side of grill, leaving other side void. Heat grill to 225 to 250°F.

Sprinkle wood chips on heated charcoal. Place soaked plank on void side of grill and place goat cheese on top of plank. Cover grill.

While cheese is smoking (about 20 minutes), combine barbecue sauce and apricot preserves. Mix well.

Using insulated gloves, remove cedar plank with cheese from grill. Place cheese on serving platter and top with apricot barbecue sauce. Serve with baguette slices or crackers. Refrigerate or discard after 2 hours.

Review: Disappointing 'Pixels' falls apart before it begins

BY SANDY COHEN
ASSOCIATED PRESS

The most believable element in "Pixels" is that alien video-game creatures could attack our planet.

The core concept is clever — space aliens misunderstand a recording of old video-games as a declaration of war, and send digital monsters based on those games to Earth as their army. But its execution in the hands of director-producer Chris Columbus and star-producer Adam Sandler is a mess.

This disappointing comedy falls apart before it begins because no one would behave the way its characters do, and their ridiculous choices drive the action.

Part of the problem is that it's unclear who the filmmakers think their audience is. This is a big-budget spectacle about 1980s nostalgia aimed at kids who have no emotional connection to the decade. "Pixels" is also insanely sexist, culminating with the winning male characters each rewarded with a woman. Seriously, they get human women as prizes. They literally call one a trophy.

Only the film's opening moments ring true. It's 1982, and Sam Brenner and Will Cooper are a couple of pre-teen boys excited about the new arcade in their neighborhood. They're so good at video games that they compete in the world championships, and Sam almost wins. A cocky, mullet-wearing kid who nicknamed himself "The Fire Blaster" takes first.

Flash forward to present day, and Sam and Will are still best friends. Only now, Sam (Mr. Sandler) installs home-theater systems, and Will (Kevin James) is president of the United States. He launches a kids' reading program to boost his sagging approval ratings, but he can't pronounce the multi-syllabic words in a children's book.

The first introduction to these guys as grown-ups is the two of them discussing which Hollywood actresses are hottest.

Will snaps into action when a U.S. territory is mysteriously attacked from the sky. Forget the elite military and special services — Will calls up Sam, the one-time video game championship runner up, hoping he might spot some arcade-inspired pattern in the airborne attack. Whaddaya know; it looks just like Galaga.

Sam is a loser who feels his best days are 30 years behind him, at the arcade. He's the kind of guy who shows up to the White House wearing shorts and hits on the pretty homeowner whose theater system he's installing. When she rejects him but ends up driving behind him on the street, he declares to no one: "She went from zero to psycho in 3.4 seconds." Because women are crazy, get it?

That homeowner turns out to be Lt. Col. Violet Van Patten

(Michelle Monaghan), a defense leader forced to work with Sam and his team of childhood friends against the alien threat.

Sam's friends are the only source of levity, even if they're as unbelievable as Paul Blart as president. Josh Gad plays Ludlow Lamonsoff, a former video-game prodigy turned reclusive conspiracy theorist. He stows away in Sam's van for some unexplained reason and ends up part of the military operation. Peter Dinklage is "The Fire Blaster." He's still wearing a mullet, but now he's in jail for criminal hacking. The president frees him, because as the 1982 video-game world champ, the Fire Blaster needs to help protect the world from the alien invasion.

Mr. Dinklage is a bit uneven — he goes in and out of his tough-guy accent — but he gets the most laughs. Mr. Gad is always endearing, and his performance of a Tears for Fears song saves this film from a dismal half-star rating. Jane Krakowski is terribly underused as the First Lady. An Emmy-nominated comedy actress, she's given few lines here — none funny — and is left with nothing to do but gaze adorably at the goofy president.

The few bright spots in "Pixels" come from the music, celebrity cameos and special effects. The soundtrack of Cheap Trick, Queen and Spandau Ballet match well with the '80s game imagery. Viewers who were alive during the '80s will also appreciate cameos by the likes of Tammy Faye Baker and Max Headroom. And the special effects dazzle. The alien video-game creatures pixelate everything they touch. Too bad they couldn't get their digital hands on this script.

"Pixels," a Columbia Pictures release, is rated PG-13 by the Motion Picture Association of America for "some language and suggestive comments." Running time: 106 minutes. One star out of four.

Art walk, silent auction set for Purple Heart Weekend

The first Military Appreciation Art Walk is scheduled from 4-7 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 8, at the Havelock Tourist & Event Center, 201 Tourist Center Drive, in Havelock.

The self-guided art walk will feature numerous styles of artwork and pieces to view, ranging from photography to jewelry to spray paint designs.

This event is in cooperation with Havelock, the Havelock Tourist & Event Center and the Purple Heart Association.

This event is free and open to the public. Light refreshments and a cash bar will be available.

In addition to viewing the art, a silent auction will take place. A portion of the proceeds will go to the local chapter of the Purple Heart Association.

Participants can enjoy the ambiance of a world-class aviation exhibit, while appreciating artwork meant to honor service members past and present.

Artists are still needed to participate in the art walk. For more information about this event or to participate, contact Sara Neilson at 444-4348 or sneilson@havelocknc.us.

The first Military Appreciation Art Walk will be from 4 to 7 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 8, at the Havelock Tourist and Event Center, home to a 1960s-era RF-4B Phantom II airplane replica. (Contributed photo)

Reservations open for evening programs

Cape Lookout National Seashore is now taking reservations for its next Evening at the Cape Lookout Lighthouse.

Cape Lookout Superintendent Pat Kenney announced recently the Cape Lookout lighthouse programs are taking place on Friday, July 31, and Saturday, Aug. 1. The National Park Service said in a press release this is “an excellent time to come experience a different side of your favorite beach.”

“Watch the sunset and the moon and stars come out over our unlit beaches,” the service said. “Hear stories of the light keepers and experience the lighthouse and island as the keepers did, in the dark of night with only the light of the moon to see by.”

Reservations are required for an Evening at Cape Lookout Lighthouse and may be made between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 3 p.m.; interested visitors may call 725-9373 to make reservations.

The cost of the program is $23 (price includes ferry fee) and is non-refundable (weather dependent). There will be one

Husband, wife featured for August at Mattie King Davis Art Gallery

7 • this week 7/30/15 - 8/5/15

The Mattie King Davis Art Gallery will feature dynamic husband and wife artists, Richard and Meg Forward for August and September.

These longtime local favorites will have an opening reception in their honor from 5-7 p.m. Friday, July 31, at the gallery on the grounds of the Beaufort Historic Site.

The Forwards work in different mediums and are a talented couple with long ties to the area.

The Duke University Marine Lab brought them to Beaufort in 1971, Mr. Forward as a marine biologist and professor, Mrs. Forward as an illustrator providing pen-and-ink drawings, graphs and maps to the researchers there.

Artistically their paths diverged with Mrs. Forward working in acrylics, jewelry and sculpting birds from gourds while Mr. Forward began turning toward wood creations.

An ardent supporter of and volunteer for the Mattie King Davis Art Gallery, Mrs. Forward's work has shown in the gallery since its inception, and her colorful acrylics have become favorites there.

She also has a unique line of jewelry called "Peeple" for the people-like birds featured in her designs and sculpting birds from N.C. gourds.

One of Mrs. Forward's biggest fans is her husband, who turns wood in his Beaufort workshop.

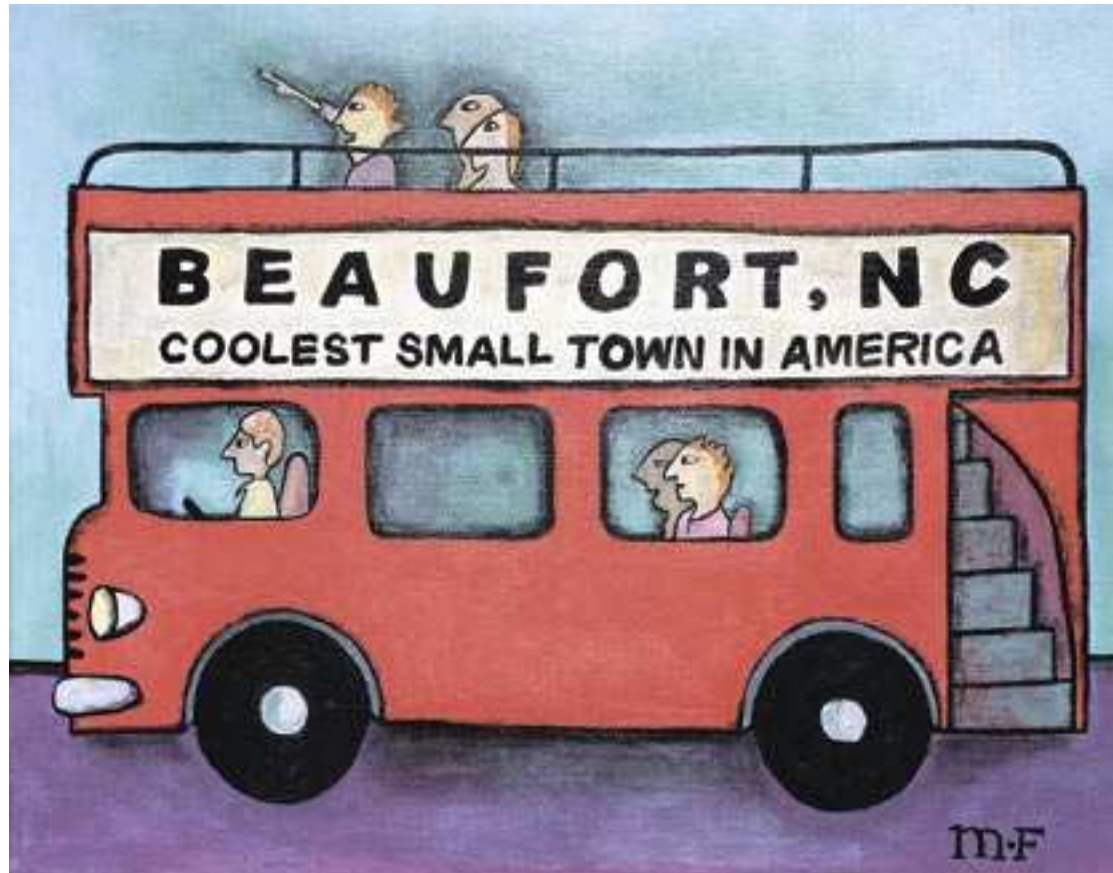

He began using a lathe to create bowls, plates and boxes in 1999 under the guidance of wood worker John Chandler. His works are often made of local salvaged wood and are examples of artistry using natural resources.

The Carteret County Arts and Crafts Coalition counts them both as members while Mrs. Forward is on the Arts Council of Carteret County and Mr. Forward is a member of the American Association of Wood Turners.

Both have exhibited their work in the Mattie King Davis Art Gallery, the oldest gallery in Carteret County, for years.

Gallery proceeds benefit the ongoing educational and restoration projects at the Beaufort Historic Site.

For more information about Mr. and Mrs. Forward, contact the Beaufort Historical Association at 728-5225 or stop by the gallery at 130 Turner St. in Beaufort or visit www.beauforthistoricsite.org.

Paintings by Meg Forward, like this one, will be featured at the Mattie King Davis Art Gallery from August to September. There will be an opening art gallery on Friday, July 31. (Contributed photo)

Work of Robert Irwin on

Robert Irwin, 71, of Beaufort, does his best to sample all life has to offer. On top of trying many different careers – from businessman to photographer – Mr. Irwin also works with many different types of art.

Mr. Irwin’s work was featured in a gallery on July 25, and will be on display until Saturday, Aug. 15, at Carteret Contemporary Art in Morehead City. All artwork will be available for sale.

Mr. Irwin spent most of his childhood moving around the South until his parents settled in Atlanta in the 50s. He attended the University of Georgia in the early 1960s when Lamar Dodd, a member of the Ashcan School, was in his zenith.

He worked as a museum designer, then earned a master’s degree in product design from N.C. State University School of Design, and founded Images Inc., a high-end custom furniture company.

At Images Inc., he was able to be creative and use his design skills, but ultimately painting became his driving ambition.

Mr. Irwin settled in Beaufort because of his love for sailing, as well as being near the water and boats. Many of his paintings are focused on the boats that he loves.

He started painting in the 50s, and the art show will be a collection of his paintings throughout the years. Mr. Irwin says that many of his favorite paintings will be featured at the show.

He has worked in many different art medias including sculpture, painting, furniture, photography and more. He considered art as a smorgasbord of things that needed to be tried.

When asked what his favorite type of art, Mr. Irwin said it was hard to choose, but he really enjoyed working with stainless steel.

“I was a welder for 25 years,” Mr. Irwin said. “I enjoy 3-D. It’s always been at the heart of my design sense.”

As well as being a versatile artist, Mr. Irwin is also an author. In 2004, he wrote a book titled, 40 Years.

The book is a 40-year path of Mr. Irwin’s self-discovery. The artwork featured in the book gives readers an insight to Mr. Irwin’s mind.

According to a book review on amazon.com, the relationship that Mr. Irwin has with his teachers is evident throughout the book.

“Perhaps the most touching aspect of this book, besides

Brought to you by

John Tunnell: 'The Memory Man' featured in new book

BY MEGAN SOULT

NEWS-TIMES

What started as a small project turned into a 250-page book for local author Kenneth Humphrey.

On July 25, Mr. Humphrey signed copies of his book, John Tunnell: 'The Memory Man' 1945 to Today... a brief walk through the history of Morehead City and Down East Plus The Sport Fishing and Commercial Fisheries of Yesterday and Today at the Sanitary Fish Market and Restaurant.

The book features topics like the untold history of Morehead City, the commercial fisheries and a man who is a part of the city's history: John Tunnell.

Mr. Tunnell, 85, has worked at the Sanitary Fish Market and Restaurant for 70 years. He started working on July 15, 1945.

He seems to have a story for every occasion, a keen sense of detail and never forgets a face, serving as an unofficial ambassador for Crystal Coast visitors.

For years Mr. Humphrey begged Mr. Tunnell to tell his story, but he was not interested, then one night, Mr. Tunnell started talking, and the book was created.

"On June 15, I told him I could not stand another story," Mr. Humphrey said jokingly. "I wanted to do a booklet about 60 pages and it turned into a story of 250 pages and 400 photographs."

Mr. Humphrey said the purpose of writing the book was to tell the stories that nobody knows. He gave an example of Tyrone Power, the famous movie star known for his swashbuckler roles and romantic leads, who served in the Marine Corps from 1942 to 1946, and for a time was stationed at Marine Corps Air Station Cherry Point.

"Tyrone Power, owned a house down the street, and no one knew it, except him (Mr. Tunnell)," Mr. Humphrey said. "When we told the story, nobody believed it. So they would come and ask John. It's that kind of book."

According to Mr. Humphrey, many people from all over the state travel to the area just to see Mr. Tunnell and purchase the book.

Mr. Humphrey said a banker bought four copies of the book, and a woman who lives in New Bern, and had no connection to the area, bought a copy of the book because it featured Mr. Tunnell.

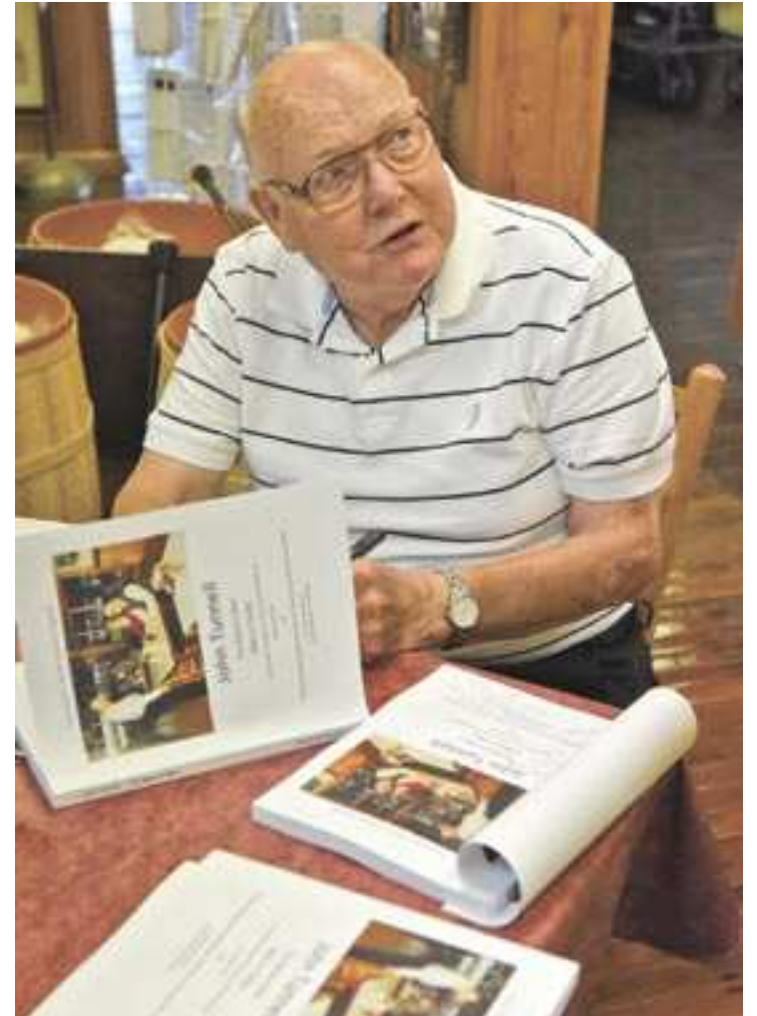

"The power people of North Carolina have made their way here, not to eat, but just to see John Tunnell," Mr. Humphrey said.

Mr. Tunnell has really enjoyed being featured in the book.

"I think it's very nice, really," Mr. Tunnell said. "I think it's really truthful. I didn't want to do it at first, but one day he got on me, and I really have enjoyed it. It's been a good journey."

Mr. Humphrey is also thinking of writing more books. He plans to write a Christmas book that captures the spirit of Christmas in the Down East.

John Tunnell: 'The Memory Man' 1945 to Today... a brief walk through the history of Morehead City and Down East Plus The Sport Fishing and Commercial Fisheries of Yesterday and Today is $35 and can be purchased at the Sanitary Fish Market and Restaurant or from Mr. Humphrey by calling 726-8276 or emailing khumphrey8@ec.rr.com.

Locks of Love

Kathy Moorehead, of Morehead City, poses with her recently cut locks. On July 10, she donated 10 inches of hair to the Locks of Love program, a nonprofit organization that provides hairpieces to financially disadvantaged children in the U.S. and Canada under the age of 21 suffering from long-term medical hair loss from any diagnosis. Ms. Moorehead said she has donated hair to the program once before, and thought the timing was perfect with the hospital's new cancer center opening. "I hoped it would inspire other people to donate their hair," she said. Ms. Moorhead got her haircut at Kutt Upz Salon in Morehead City, and said she would donate her hair again. (Contributed photo)

Historical Society hunts for ghosts

The New Bern Historical Society is on a ghost hunt. They are seeking both veteran and new ghost actors to portray characters in this year's Ghostwalk, Un-Modern Family.

Ghostwalk brings to life historic characters from New Bern's past right in the very locations they may have been seen.

Lynne Harakal, executive director of the historical society, is looking for volunteers ages 18 and up to play the phantom roles.

"We'd like actors who are interested in this fun and exciting event, and who can give the time for the event's three days," Ms. Harakal said.

Auditions will be held at 7 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 13, at the Attmore-Oliver House.

The Ghostwalk itself will take place the evenings of Thursday through Saturday, Oct. 22 through Oct. 24.

To participate in one of New Bern's premier events as one of the ghostly specters from the past, call the New Bern Historical Society office at 252-638-8558 or email them at adminoffice@newbernhistorical.org.

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

League announces nominees for Woman of the Year

The League of Women Voters of Carteret County and the Carteret County News-Times recently paired together to call for nominations for the 2015 Woman of the Year.

Names were submitted to the newspaper, and from those names the League of Women voters chose four nominees. They are Lela Faye Rich, of Morehead City; Andra Pond, of Beaufort; Elaine Crittenton, of Mill Creek, and the late Jeannette Dukes Davenport, of Morehead City.

Now the public is asked to vote on a finalist by filling out a form found online at www.thenews-times.com or in each edition of the Carteret News-Times.

Send the forms to The League of Women Voters, P.O. Box 2181, Beaufort, N.C. 28516. Voting ends 5 p.m. Friday, Aug. 14.

Lela Faye Rich

Ms. Rich is a graduate of both Wake Forest in 1961, and Duke University in 1962. In her professional career she was an educator and a community and public service volunteer as well as serving on many boards that focused on needs in her community.

While living in Burlington, she worked on the board of Centro La Comunidad from its founding in 1997 until 2008. She helped the organization provide support to Latino families living in Alamance County. Its mission is to “work together with the community, individuals and families to support their needs and in situations that affect their lives.”

She continues to follow that path here in Carteret County. One of her major accomplishments that’s had a significant impact on the community is her efforts to create and continue to support the volunteer organization “Get Covered Carteret (GCC).”

This year her leadership, commitment and dedication to helping others resulted in more than 4,000 individuals in the county obtaining affordable health insurance. She made sure to reach local citizens who needed help.

Her strategy to use a broad outreach program throughout the county included at multiple venues, such as the Broad Street Clinic, the County Health Department, Carteret General Hospital, Carteret Community College, the County Public Library in Beaufort and Down East, County Chamber of Commerce Small Business Round Tables, to name a few.

She continues to inspire and motivate everyone to make a difference by giving of her time and talents to lead the 20-member “Get Covered Carteret.”

She has remained a constant strong leader during the last three years of “Get Covered Carteret” activity. Ms. Faye has a long-demonstrated history of helping others throughout her career supporting a variety of organizations.

She cares about people and does whatever it takes to help them. Ms. Faye continues to make a striking impact on the county’s population through her broad spectrum of involvement in civic, political and humanitarian efforts.

Andra Pond

Ms. Pond has been a deacon and Sunday school teacher at First Baptist Church in Beaufort for 60 years.

She has a master’s degree in psychiatric social work. During the 1950 through the 1970s, she worked with the County Department of Social Services and Neuse Mental Health as a social worker. She worked closely with local law enforcement and headed up the county adoption program.

Ms. Pond was a charter member of the Beaufort Democratic Women, which later became the Carteret County Democratic Women.

She has shown leadership throughout her career and as part of the Carteret County Democratic Party. She has held every office within the party except chairman. She has been president of Democratic Women twice. She has headed up Senior Democrats and campaigned vigorously for local, state and national candidates.

Ms. Pond is a supreme fundraiser and has shared her political and life knowledge with others.

Elaine Crittenton

Ms. Crittenton has been the director of Infection Prevention, Employee Health and Wellness at Carteret General Hospital for the past 14 years. In addition to serving as a County Commissioner for the past 3½ years, she has been employed by Carteret General Hospital for 20 years, spending the first six years as a nurse in the operating room.

Prior to working at Carteret

General Hospital, she ran a high-tech home care agency where she was responsible for all aspects of operation for the $3.5 million per year business. Early in her career she was a trauma and critical care nurse.

Ms. Crittenton is especially noted for the implementation of an active surveillance program at Carteret General Hospital for MRSA (Methicillin-resistant Staphylococcus aureus— viral infection) and VRE (vancomycin-resistant enterococci – antibiotic resistant bacteria) that has virtually eliminated hospital transmission of these organisms. This is a benefit to anyone who has or will be a patient at Carteret General Hospital.

In addition to the above accomplishments, Ms. Crittenton has served on the board for the Association for Professionals in Infection Control and Epidemiology. She is a member of Eastern Regional Advisory Committee, a group comprised of 29 counties in Northeastern North Carolina, which provides trauma and disaster support to the region. She is also a board member and hospital representative on the Local Emergency Planning Committee of Carteret County.

Since 2001 she has been a member of Carteret Emergency Planning and Response, and she is the founder of an original group known as the Bioterrorism Committee.

Ms. Crittenton is available to anyone who calls on her, both professionally and personally. Regardless of her busy schedule, she has always taken the time to explain health terms and conditions to anyone at any time.

On her own time, Ms. Crittenton has conducted seminars for groups to keep them informed on the manner in which the Affordable Care Act affects each of them.

Jeannette Dukes Davenport

Ms. Davenport and her husband moved to Morehead City in 1959. She was the wife of a World War II naval aviator and flight instructor and therefore was a supporter of navy officer’s wives projects, Veterans Day and Memorial Day programs. She also participated in the Morehead City and Down East Christmas parades.

During her time in Morehead City, Ms. Davenport had multiple accomplishments. She started and named the Sea and Sound Garden Club, participated in numerous civics projects and flower and garden shows.

As a part of the program, Teacher’s Sorority, she taught special education classes from 1967 to 1975.

She started a couples club and was a choir member at First United Methodist Church in Morehead City for 40 years. She was also a youth leader and United Methodist Women member and leader.

She was an active member of the Morehead City Country Club and supported women’s golf activities. She was also the co-committee chairman of the Coterie Dance club.

She enjoyed tours of Snug Harbor and she continued to

Weaving demonstration in plans at Beaufort Historic Site

As part of the Beaufort Historical Association's Living History series, Nancy Vaughan will conduct a weaving demonstration from 1-3 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 1.

The demonstration takes place in the Beaufort Site's Welcome Center at 130 Turner St.

While the process is completed through automation today, weaving was a manpowered process for thousands of years.

Ancient Egyptians are generally credited with inventing the art form and the machine on which it is performed – the loom.

Weaving cloth is a long process.

Historically, weavers worked with cotton, flax or wool and were required to spin material into thread before it could be woven.

Weaving has been practiced by many different civilizations in nearly every stage of development, from the Egyptians to the American colonists.

Over time, the loom was refined and became an increasingly more sophisticated machine. By the colonial period, it was still in operation and weaving took on a new level of importance when the American colonies began pulling away from Great Britain.

Under British rule, colonists could import cloth from England; however, this luxury stopped when the war started and Americans were left to weave their own cloth. These American weavers were generally men, and they worked on looms similar to the barn-frame looms used by the Warped Weavers at the Beaufort Historic Site.

The Warped Weavers meet at the Beaufort Historic Site in the Mattie King Davis Art Gallery or the Leffers Cottage from 9 a.m. to noon every Monday and Wednesday.

They create rag rugs, placemats, towels, napkins, blankets and more that are donated to the Old Beaufort Shop to aid in the preservation and education efforts of the Beaufort Historic Site. Newcomers are always welcome.

For information on this and other Living History Programs, stop by the Beaufort Historic Site Welcome Center at 130 Turner St., call 728-5225 or 800-575-7483, or visit www.beauforthistoricsite.org.

entertain others in her wheelchair from 2012 to 2015.

Ms. Davenport taught Head Start when the new program began in Carteret County in 1963. She continued to lead these for several more years. Her special education students excelled despite their disabilities. Her impact on the lives to her special students and their families and the Carteret County School System is remarkable to this day.

She died Jan. 26 of this year at the age of 92 at Snug Harbor on Nelson Bay in Sea Level.

The Woman of the Year Award will be presented at a luncheon Thursday, Aug. 27, at the Channel Marker in Atlantic Beach.
