Father's Day gift ideas: Feed dad's interest

Dad can be hard to shop for sometimes. Of course, he can never have too many ties, coffee mugs or tools. But doesn't the man who taught you how to ride a bike, to play catch and to always try your best deserve something more personal and unique?

Sure, he will be happy with whatever he gets, but why not help him enjoy more time with the interests he has outside of being a great father?

Here are some Father's Day gift ideas for every kind of dad – from the grill master to the car enthusiast and the clean freak to the hygiene centric and every kind of dad in between.

Let him stand out with a million-dollar shine

Dad can now achieve the million-dollar appearance of Barrett-Jackson car auctions in his garage.

Their Premium Auto Care line includes washes, waxes and detailers formulated with synthetic hydrophobic polymers and genuine carnauba wax for lasting brilliance and easy application.

Learn more about how to bring a long-lasting and brilliant, deep shine to dad's car at Barrett-JacksonAutoCare.com.

Barrett-Jackson Premium Auto Care products, which range in price from $5.49 to $17.99, are available at retailers nationwide, including Walmart, Pepboys, Menards and select Home Depots, and through online retailers including Amazon.com.

For the ultimate gift, go a step further and wash his car for him.

For the dad who loves to drive

What do you get a dad who loves his car and truly loves to drive? How about something that connects him to his car, like a shoe that enhances his driving experience?

While comfortable and stylish enough for everyday wear, the Piloti Spyder S1 driving shoe features patented Roll Control heel technology, superior red suede and mesh panels for maximum comfort and flexibility, as well as the perfect combination of support, size, grip and feel.

Check out the Spyder S1 ($150), as well as Piloti's complete line of luxury, casual and performance driving shoes at Piloti.com.

A gift dad can sink his teeth into

Make Father's Day complete with a dinner he'll remember for years.

The Omaha Steaks Father's Day T-Bone Gift package is a meal dad will be willing and eager to fire up the grill for.

The package is headlined by two 18-ounce T-Bones and includes four Brisket Burgers and four Gourmet Jumbo Franks along with Omaha Steaks Seasoning. Regularly $194.95, the family can enjoy the meal for $69.99. For more information, visit omahasteaks.com.

A spotless man cave, workshop and car

It's the ultimate gift for dad and his man cave. The Dirt Devil FlipOut is a premium cordless hand vacuum, perfectly designed to keep his man cave, workshop or set of wheels spotless. The 16-volt, fade-free lithium battery means faster charging, longer runtime and continuous power.

It's compact and lightweight, and has versatile tools for quick and easy cleaning.

The FlipOut is $49.99. For more information, visit DirtDevil.com.

Power that smile

Be the power behind dad's smile this Father's Day with the Oral-B 7000 SmartSeries Electric Toothbrush with Bluetooth connectivity.

The brush connects to the Oral-B App, which provides real-time guidance while brushing and records brushing activity that can be shared with dental professionals.

With six different cleaning modes, it removes 300 percent more plaque compared to a manual brush. Upgrade dad's oral care routine and visit oralb.com for additional details.

Review: The hocus pocus of 'Now You See Me 2' wears thin

BY JAKE COYLE

ASSOCIATED PRESS

The magician heist movie "Now You See Me 2" disappears with not a poof, but in a hyper-kinetic blur of hectic plot mechanics, ceaselessly nattering characters and so many ploys of misdirection that the film's own direction got lost up someone's sleeve long ago. Now you see it, now you don't. Did you care that you saw it? Why did you see it, anyway? Is that why you look like you need a nap?

Yet the cast is one reason to catch Jon M. Chu's sequel to the surprise 2013 hit. It's an odd assortment but a talented one that includes Woody Harrelson, Mark Ruffalo, Morgan Freeman and Michael Caine. They don't get the chance to sink their teeth into anything much but in the summertime, you usually need to buy a ticket to a superhero movie for such an ensemble.

And there's something almost quaint about the two "Now You See Me" films. They are diverting and harmless and the fate of the world, pleasantly, does not hang in the balance. They're perfect for fans of "Ocean's Eleven" that are looking for weaker filmmaking, a little less star power and a whole lot more playing cards.

In "Now You See Me 2," the Four Horsemen, having gone into hiding following their Las Vegas exploits of the first film, return. They're a group of magicians led — curiously, given the alternatives — by Jesse Eisenberg's slight-of-hand artist. The others are Mr. Harrelson's hypnotist, Dave Franco's street magician and a new addition played by Lizzy Caplan (replacing Isla Fisher) whose sarcastic flare steals the movie.

The Horsemen are like a fantasy dreamed by David Copperfield, a co-producer whose show inspired the films. When not trying to one-up each other's tricks, the Horsemen perform feats of illusion that unmask real corruption. In the world of "Now You See Me," they are extravagantly (and bizarrely) famous, cheered by mobs on the streets and pursued in vain by the feds (Mr. Ruffalo plays the lead agent).

In "Now You See Me 2," their flashy return is spoiled by a wealthy tech whiz in hiding (Daniel Radcliffe), who constructs an elaborate revenge against the magicians that transports them around the globe to Macau, presumably for the purpose of drawing in Chinese moviegoers.

The movie, scripted by Ed Solomon, is such a constant barrage of absurdly implausible tricks, followed by explanations of how they were done, that "Now You See Me 2" feels like the work of a feverish, manic magician who can't stop pulling rabbits out of hats. Mr. Chu, a veteran of multiple Justin Bieber documentaries and several "Step Up" films, cracks up the pace and never holds a shot much longer than a second. And when everything is a manipulation — one illusion after another — nothing comes as a surprise.

It feels like a lost opportunity because both "Now You See Me" films have a pleasant enough preposterousness. It's hard to dislike a movie that adds a curly-haired evil twin brother for Mr. Harrelson.

But magic always feels a little redundant in the movies. By itself, cinema is a grand magic act that never gives away its tricks (well, except for director commentaries on DVDs). Maybe that's why "Now You See Me 2" can't slow down. It knows it's always being upstaged by the hocus pocus of its own medium.

"Now You See Me 2," a Summit Entertainment release, is rated PG-13 by the Motion Picture Association of America for "violence and some language." Running time: 126 minutes. Two stars out of four.

A smokin' celebration

ANCHO CHILE RUBBED SMOKED BEEF BRISKET

Prep time: 1 hour

Cook time: 11-13 hours

Rest time: 1-2 hours

Total time: 13-16 hours

1 Whole Omaha Steaks Brisket for smoking

2 cups white vinegar

2/3 cup yellow mustard

¾ cup Omaha Steaks Ancho Chile Rub

4 cups Ancho Chile Smoking Spritzer, divided

8 cups apple or cherry wood chips, soaked in water

Remove brisket from bag and rinse with white vinegar then rinse with water.

Dry completely using paper towels.

Slather brisket generously with yellow mustard.

Rub generously with ancho chile rub and inject with 1 cup Ancho Chile Smoking Spritzer.

Prepare smoker using 1 chimney of pure lump charcoal fully lit and one chimney of pure lump charcoal unlit. Make sure water pan is full and adjust vents until smoker maintains a temperature between 225 and 250 degrees.

Place brisket on smoker fat side up and brush smoking spritzer over top.

Every hour, check smoker temp, squirt with smoking spritzer and add handful of wood chips.

After three hours, flip brisket fat side down and squirt with spritzer.

After six hours, flip brisket fat side up. Wrap heavy duty foil around the last 3-4 inches of brisket tip to prevent it from drying out. Restock water pan and add lump charcoal as needed. Adjust vents until temperature is between 225 and 250 degrees.

Beginning at eight hours, check internal temperature every hour and apply spritzer and wood chips as needed.

Between 11-13 hours, when internal temperature is between 195 and 200 degrees, if fork slides easily into brisket, it is done.

Let brisket rest for one to two hours before slicing and serving.

ANCHO CHILE RUBBED SMOKED PORK BUTT

Prep time: 1 hour

Cook time: 8-10 hours

Rest time: 1 hour

Total time: 10-12 hours

1 Omaha Steaks Whole Pork Butt

2 cups white vinegar

½ cup yellow mustard

½ cup Omaha Steaks Ancho Chile Rub

4 cups Ancho Chile Smoking Spritzer, divided

8 cups apple or cherry wood chips, soaked in water

Score top fat so it will melt into pork while smoking and allow more rub to get into meat. Rub pork with white vinegar then rinse with water. Pat dry with clean paper towels.

Rub pork butt with yellow mustard. Rub pork butt with ancho chile rub. Inject pork with 10-12 ounces of Ancho Chile Smoking Spritzer.

Set up smoker with 1 chimney using unlit lump charcoal and 2 chimneys using lit lump charcoal.

Adjust vents in smoker until temperature settles between 225 and 250 degrees.

Place pork butt fat side up and add a lot of wood chips.

Every half hour, add more wood chips and spritz pork with smoking spritzer.

After two hours, insert remote thermometer probes. Be careful not to let thermometer touch bone to prevent false readings.

After five hours, place pork in foil pan and liberally coat with spritzer. Wrap pan tightly with foil.

Continue cooking without adding wood chips or opening smoker until thermometer hits 190 degrees (for sliced meat) or 200 degrees (for pulled meat), about 8-10 hours total.

Let rest one hour before serving.

ANCHO CHILE SMOKING SPRITZER

Makes: 4 cups

2 cups apple juice

1 cup cranberry juice

1 cup canola oil

2 tablespoons red hot pepper sauce

½ cup Omaha Steaks Ancho Chile Rub

Combine all ingredients and mix well.

The first step is deciding how to prepare the meat. Consider stepping up the game by smoking meat. Smoking is a popular choice because it infuses flavor throughout the meat, while extended cook times at low temperatures make it extra tender. Another advantage is the chance to create a wide range of unique flavors using wet and dry rubs, as well as seasoned wood chips and planks.

Choose a cut:

Virtually any meat can be smoked, but the most popular cuts of meat to smoke are brisket, ribs, pork shoulder or turkey, all of which are typically large in size. Guarantee a great experience with Omaha Steaks Brisket for smoking or Whole Pork Butt, which were created with the competitive barbecue and smoking circuit in mind.

Ready your rub:

Rubs are often used to add flavors and surface texture to a cut of meat. For best results, brush meat with cooking oil or another liquid ingredient (such as yellow mustard) before adding the rub. Spread the rub on a clean plate and place the meat on it. Coat both sides with the rub by gently pressing the meat on the plate.

Set up the smoker:

Some pit masters consider their equipment as vital an ingredient as the meat or flavorings they choose. Preparation varies from one recipe to the next, but one constant is the importance of maintaining a steady temperature. As one prepares their charcoal, they should be conscious of where they will place any wood chips or other flavor enhancers for maximum impact.

Slow and steady:

Sensational flavor takes time to build, so plan to dedicate several hours to the task. Often, smoked foods require foil wrapping for at least a portion of the cook to retain moisture. Plan to check in at regular intervals to restock wood chips, flip or rotate meat and apply a fresh coat of seasoning or spices.

Double anniversary celebration at Cape Lookout June 18

On Saturday, June 18, Cape Lookout National Seashore will be observing two landmark occasions: the 100th anniversary of the National Park Service and the 50th anniversary of Cape Lookout itself.

The National Park Service is holding an anniversary celebration Saturday at Cape Lookout, with the public invited to attend.

According to the official National Park Service release, the theme for the event will be "Cape Lookout National Seashore is a diamond in the rough of the National Park Service."

Cape Lookout superintendent Pat Kenney said this is a big year for both the seashore and the National Park Service.

"Cape Lookout National

Seashore is an amazing place that's been protected for us and future generations as part of the larger national park system," he said. "When I'm out on the beach in the park, I'm always amazed at the pure beauty of the area, but I also think about how fortunate we are to have this place and thankful for the leadership shown by the people that worked to have it protected for us to experience today."

According to the release, Cape Lookout was made part of the national park system on March 10, 1966, when President Lyndon B. Johnson authorized the 56-mile long natural barrier island ecosystem as part of the park system. Prior to that, on Aug. 25, 1916, President Woodrow Wilson signed a congressional act creating the National Park Service.

"In commemoration of these two major anniversaries, the National Park Service welcomes you to Harkers Island Visitor Center on June 18 to join park staff, volunteers and local dignitaries for festivities and a ceremony honoring both the 50th anniversary of Cape Lookout as a national seashore and the National Park Service's 100th anniversary of existence," the National Park Service said.

In support of the celebration, Island Express Ferry Service, the National Park Service's contracted ferry service provider for Cape Lookout, will offer 50 percent off round-trip ferry rides to South Core and Shackleford Banks all day Saturday, departing from Beaufort and Harkers Island.

"We're proud to support Cape Lookout National Seashore by providing transportation for folks so they can experience the beaches and resources of the Southern Outer Banks, particularly the wild horses of Shackleford Banks and the Cape Lookout lighthouse," said Capt. George Aswad, owner and operator of Island Express.

Leading up to, and during, the celebration, from 7:15-10 p.m. from Thursday, June 16, through Saturday, June 18, visitors may take part in an "Evening at the Cape." Visitors taking part in this event will join a park ranger for an opportunity to witness the sunset into night from the top of the Cape Lookout Lighthouse.

Visitors will also hear stories featuring the lighthouse keepers who were dedicated to keeping the light illuminated, and the night dwellers that make up the Outer Banks ecosystem.

On the day of the celebration, the first 400 visitors to check in for the day's activities at the Harkers Island Visitor Center information desk will be able to take part in the "Diamond in the Rough - Badge Bonanza." Participants in this event will receive a "I Found My Park" badge, after which they will get to explore the park attractions for a chance to win a special National Park Service Centennial gift, redeemable at the information desk.

From 9 a.m. to 11 p.m., children can take part in the "Diamonds in the Rough - Treasure Dig." This event is a hands-on activity that the National Park Service said gets children "sifting through the sand in search of sparkly gems and shells."

Also occurring from 9 a.m. to 11 p.m., local musician Connie Mason will be performing traditional Down East music, while Rodney Kemp and Joel Hancock, known as the Fish House Liars, will share tales from North Carolina's Down East community.

From 11 a.m. to noon, the official Cape Lookout National Seashore 50th Anniversary and National Park Service Centennial ceremony will take place. The program will feature dignitary expressions, reveal the winners of the "Diamond in the Rough Fourth Grade Art Contest," and the singing of the "Children's Nature Anthem" by the Carteret County Youth Choir.

From 1-3:30 p.m., visitors may join Dr. Susan Stuska, National Park Service biologist, on a "Horse Sense" tour of Shackleford Banks. The tour will depart from Harkers Island to the east end of Shackleford Banks for a glimpse of the elusive, wild horses of

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

BHA chooses Old Homes Tour honorary chairman

Mamre Wilson has been selected as the honorary chairman of this year's Beaufort Old Homes & Gardens Tour and Antique Show & Sale.

The show opens Thursday, June 23, with the Purvis Chapel Choir Concert and the tour is from Friday through Saturday, June 24-25, with the antique show from Friday-Sunday, June 24-26.

Every year the Old Homes Tour committee selects someone who has made a difference for the Beaufort Historical Association, as well as for the community, and Ms. Wilson is an important part to Beaufort's community.

Ms. Wilson moved to Beaufort in 1972 and worked at Duke University Marine Laboratory for 16 years, retiring in 1988.

Following her years at the Marine Laboratory, Ms. Wilson worked at the Beaufort Historical Association's office and St. Paul's Episcopal Church.

Over the past 40-plus years in Beaufort, Ms. Wilson has been involved in extensive research on many of the old houses and, in particular, the lots on which they are found.

This includes a history of the families involved, as well as determination of the earliest date of the structure, and painting the plaques for many.

Mamre Wilson, the chairman for the 2016 Beaufort Old Homes and Gardens Tour, stands with books she has written about historic Beaufort inside the Apothecary Shop at the Beaufort Historic Site grounds. (Dylan Ray photo)

"My interest in this type of research began when I purchased my own house on Moore Street," Ms. Wilson said. "At the time I was working for Dr. John Costlow at Duke Marine Lab and he gave me some suggestions on how to start. I spent many hours, when possible, at the Register of Deeds office tracing the deeds from the present-day back as far as possible. During this time, the early deed books through 1904 were microfilmed, copies of those became available at the Carteret County Library, making access easier in the evenings and weekends."

In 1999, at the Beaufort Historic site, permission was given for the restoration of the 1796 courthouse, which resides on the grounds. Ms. Wilson joined the committee that made the plans of how to progress with the restoration.

During the two-year restoration period, Ms. Wilson served as recorder, visiting the site and interviewing Jim Howland, who helped create the courthouse's interior, as to what had been done each day.

The record is 85 pages, with notes as to the weather of the day, the accomplishments, if any, and sketches by Ms. Wilson of some of the interesting pieces hand made to be used in the project.

In addition, in 1999, Ms. Wilson published her first book titled A Researcher's Journal, Beaufort, North Carolina & The Civil War and she did the research for the book Beaufort's Old Burying Ground North Carolina. This was a joint effort with Diane Hardy and Marilyn Collins and was published by Arcadia Press in their series Images of America.

In the fall, she was interviewed by Home & Garden TV, citing the history of Beaufort, its architectural and historical significance, for a portion of the North Carolina program in the series "Historic America" hosted by Bob Vila.

In 2000, Arcadia Press invited Ms. Wilson to write the history of Beaufort. The book began with the discovery of the coast of the new world in the 1500s and ended with some history of the town in the 1900s, thus covering 400 years of history.

This book titled Beaufort was completed in the spring of 2002, and published by Arcadia as part of their Making of America Series. It was in the local stores in the summer of that same year.

In 2004, Ms. Wilson's efforts to preserve the history of Beaufort were acknowledged by the N.C. Society of Historians. She was proclaimed as the McDaniel Lewis Historian of the Year for the state.

Elizabeth Bray Sherrill, president of the NCSH, said in presenting the award that Ms. Wilson was honored for her "exceptional and extensive contributions toward the collection, preservation and perpetuation of North Carolina's rich history."

In addition, both Beaufort's Old Burying Ground North Carolina and Beaufort were received the Willie Parker Peace History Book Award.

In 2005, Ms. Wilson served as a co-chairman on the St. Paul's heritage committee. She organized events that presented former rectors, as well as members of the parish sharing their memories of their times in the church.

"Mamre not only helps the Beaufort Historical Association through her books, her research and even her artwork, but she is indispensable to St. Paul's Episcopal Church," the Rev. John Carlito said. "If I want to know anything about the history of St. Paul's all I have to do is ask Mamre, and she'll have the answers. She is such a positive person, with a very youthful personality as evidenced by the youth groups who love having her accompany them on their trips."

In June 2007, the newest book about Beaufort, The Story of North Carolina's Historic Beaufort was published by The History Press of Charleston, S.C.

"It has been an honor to bring the history of this historic town up to date, including the surrounding area marine laboratories, the airport and a brief history of Michael Smith, the astronaut who was the pilot of the 'Challenger' which exploded shortly after take-off in January 1986," Ms. Wilson said.

Also included are the churches of Beaufort, the library and a walking tour of some of the earliest houses and their builders.

During the past years, Ms. Wilson served on the Beaufort Historic Preservation Commission.

To honor Ms. Wilson's many contributions and to begin the Homes Tour Weekend festivities, a Purvis Chapel Choir performance will be given at 7 p.m. Thursday, June 23, at the Purvis Chapel.

The AME Zion Church, at 217 Craven St., is Beaufort's oldest continuous-use church. Built in 1820 by the Methodist Episcopal Church and listed on the National Register of Historic Places, Purvis Chapel was later deeded to the AME Zion congregation that

Exhibit reveals NC surfing legacy

A new secret has been uncovered from the depths at the N.C. Maritime Museum in Beaufort. And no, it's not the infamous Queen Ann's Revenge.

It is a new exhibit that lets visitors take the drop into North Carolina's rich surfing past and ride the wave through its historical journey to becoming a cultural and economic staple of the coastal community.

The exhibit is open now, just in time for the summer surfing season.

It features photos, videos and artifacts that document surfing history in Eastern North Carolina. Visitors can observe the evolution of surfboards from plain, wooden slabs to the sleek, colorful boards that ride today's waves.

They can watch video of North Carolina's greats shredding just off the beach, see pictures of historic surfing landmarks and look at various surfing getups from days past.

North Carolina's coast has nurtured a nautical secret – a surfing tradition over a century old.

There exist records of surfing on North Carolina's coast dating back to the first decade of the 20th century, the same time as a surfing revival in Hawaii.

Back then, surfboards were plain, long swaths of wood, often used for practical transportation and, on occasion, recreation. With influence from Hawaiian surfers and the growing popularity of surf culture in television and film, many of North Carolina's coastal towns grew into burgeoning surfing communities that are alive today.

The treacherous tides and sneaky sandbars of North Carolina's coast have drawn wave junkies and fans to places like Rodanthe, Cape Hatteras, Atlantic Beach, Wrightsville Beach and more for decades.

After nearly a century of sport, it is clear that surfing in the Crystal Coast is more than just a passing fad.

The craft is here to stay, with North Carolina ranking as one of the most popular states for surfing.

Surfing, surf shops and the tourism that they created have encouraged economic growth on both local and state levels for decades with no signs of stopping.

The Bears scheduled to perform

The Bears, New Bern's favorite oldies band, are set to perform Saturday, June 18, at Brutopia.

The music will start at 6 p.m. and will finish around 9 p.m. Brutopia is at 1201 Highway 70 East.

The Bears' "way back machine" takes listeners on a roller coaster ride through the best songs of the last 60 years, featuring classic rock, surf music, British invasion and more, served up with humor, hot licks and a great sense of fun.

Steve Latimer is "Baby Bear," the band's youngest member. Mr. Latimer sings and plays guitar.

Janet Montero is "Mama Bear." She sings and plays bass. Pat Engeman, "Yogi Bear,"

The Bears will perform from 6-9 p.m. Saturday at Brutopia in New Bern. (Contributed photo)

The Beaufort Old Homes Tour and Antiques Show Weekend is one of the oldest continuing tour of homes in the state. The Beaufort tour consists of a walking tour of 13 private homes, nine gardens, the restored buildings of the Beaufort Historic Site and artists' studios.

Held in conjunction with the tour is the Antique Show & Sale featuring over 40 vendors of vintage collectibles and antique treasures at the Crystal Coast Civic Center and many other events.

For more information and to buy tickets, visit the website at www.beauforthistoricsite.org, stop by the historic site at 130 Turner St. or call 252-728-5225.

Tickets for the Old Homes & Gardens Tour are $18 in advance and $20 the days of the event.

Combination tickets for the Old Homes Tour and Antique Show are available for $24 in advance and $25 the days of the event.

All proceeds benefit the ongoing preservation, restoration and educational programs of the Beaufort Historic Site.

EI woman to participate in Alzheimer's event

Susan Smith, of Emerald Isle, will join people across the globe to honor those facing Alzheimer's disease by participating in The Longest Day through the third annual Emerald Isle Sea Turtle Crawl on Saturday, June 18.

The Longest Day is a sunrise-to-sunset event to honor the strength, heart and endurance of those living with Alzheimer's disease and their caregivers. It is held annually on the summer solstice.

Teams will complete a day filled with activities to raise funds and awareness for the efforts of the Alzheimer's Association.

During the nearly 16 hours of daylight on The Longest Day, Ms. Smith and her teammates will walk the beach in Emerald Isle as they raise funds to help advance the care, support and research efforts of the Alzheimer's Association.

"I personally walk and raise funds so that the next generation of my family, my daughter, will never experience this devastating disease," said Ms. Smith.

Beginning at sunrise, the Emerald Isle Sea Turtle Crawl team will start walking the beach all day and will gather at The Point for a sunset ceremony.

Family and friends will walk the beach in a relay in honor of the people living with and lost to Alzheimer's disease.

"Susan's hard work with the Emerald Isle Sea Turtle Crawl is truly remarkable," said Jennifer Briand, manager of special events. "Her goal is to raise $10,000 this year, and her team is well on their way to achieve it."

Alzheimer's disease is a growing epidemic and the nation's sixth-leading cause of death. More than 5 million Americans are living with Alzheimer's, including 160,000 in North Carolina. To learn more or make a donation, visit <http://act.alz.org/goto/TEAMESTC>.

For more on Alzheimer's disease, visit the Alzheimer's Association at alz.org.
