Noah Wyle as seen in "The Librarians"

While the rest of the team sets out to recover the Eye of Ra and solve the mystery of the Bermuda Triangle, Flynn (Noah Wyle, "ER") learns a great deal about himself in a new episode of "The Librarians," airing Sunday, Dec. 25, on TNT. The series follows a group of Librarians tasked with retrieving powerful artifacts, solving mysteries and battling supernatural threats to mankind. Rebecca Romijn ("X-Men," 2000) and Christian Kane ("Leverage") also star.

Stacks of thrills

Season 3 of 'The Librarians' in full swing on TNT

By Kyla Brewer
TV Media

Action, adventure, intrigue — these may not be the first words that come to mind when we think of librarians, but one TV show offers viewers a twist on the stereotypically mundane profession.

A group of unlikely heroes battles an ancient god to prevent pure evil from being unleashed on the world in a new episode of the third season of "The Librarians," airing Sunday, Dec. 25, on TNT. Based on David N. Titcher's ("Houdini and Doyle") "The Librarian," which was released in 2004 and spawned two sequels, the fantasy drama follows a group of Librarians dedicated to protecting the unwitting public from the hidden magical realm and its threats.

Now in season 3, the show stars Rebecca Romijn ("X-Men," 2000), Christian Kane ("Leverage"), Lindy Booth ("The Famous Jett Jackson") and John Harlan Kim ("The Neighbours") as the latest team of Librarians tasked with keeping the world safe. John Larroquette ("Night Court") portrays Jenkins, their reluctant caretaker.

The big news this season is the return of Noah Wyle, who starred as the lead Librarian, Flynn Carsen, in the original movie franchise. Wyle filmed the first movie while on a hiatus from his role as Dr. John Carter in NBC's mega hit "ER," and was starring in TNT's "Falling Skies" when "The Librarians" series was conceived. In a November interview with "Entertainment Tonight," he talked about how refreshing it has been to play Carsen again.

"I've always looked at Flynn and the Librarians franchise as medicinal doses every time I get a little too oversaturated doing drama," said Wyle, adding that working on "The Librarians" was "like a summer vacation job."

Wyle has guest starred in occasional episodes of the first two seasons, of course, but he's even more involved in season 3 of the hit drama. He's been an executive producer for the show since the beginning and, in March, it was announced that Wyle would appear in seven of this season's 10 episodes. He's also slated to direct two episodes, and even write one.

In fact, Sunday's episode marks his writing debut.

Noah Wyle and Rebecca Romijn star in "The Librarians"

Entitled "And the Trial of the Triangle," the episode follows the team's efforts to unravel the mystery behind the Bermuda Triangle as they try to find the Eye of Ra and stop the spread of pure evil. The installment is particularly challenging for Wyle's character, as Carsen must pass a series of tests that not only help him find the Eye, but also teach him a lot about himself. The actor told "ET" that the experience was "way better than [he] expected."

Carsen's partner is Eve Baird (Romijn), a former anti-terror agent for NATO who took on the role of Guardian in the series debut, which aired in December 2014 to more than five million viewers. Baird uses her military training to protect Carsen and the other Librarians on their many harrowing adventures. However, now that she and Carsen are romantically involved, she struggles to keep her feelings for him from getting in the way of her duty to protect the others.

The other members of the team each possess unique skills that help them on their many quests. Kane is Oklahoma-born cowboy Jacob Stone, the perfect combination of brains and brawn, thanks to his knowledge of art, architecture and history.

New Year, new shows

Some exciting new series are slated to premiere in 2017

Wentworth Miller and Dominic Purcell reunite for "Prison Break: Sequel"

By Cassie Dresch
TV Media

The New Year is just around the corner, and with it comes all of the excitement and anticipation of what the future holds. While life is unpredictable and can be difficult to plan, the television networks have given us some things to mark on our 2017 calendars — from the premieres of thrilling new series to the debuts of much-anticipated revivals and everything in between.

If revivals are your thing, Fox has a couple of great ones on the docket. The much-lauded series "24" won a ton of Emmys and a couple of Golden Globes over its eight-year (plus one mini-series) run, and fans of the show have always itched for more Jack Bauer. Well, Kiefer

Sutherland is a little busy right now with a new show over on ABC, "Designated Survivor," but that hasn't stopped Fox from bringing this series back from the dead. "24: Legacy," a spinoff of the original, is slated to premiere Sunday, Feb. 5 (before moving to its regular Monday time-slot), starring Corey Hawkins ("Straight Outta Compton," 2015).

Fox is also literally bringing someone back from the dead. Eight years after the acclaimed series "Prison Break" was locked up for good, Wentworth Miller ("DC's Legends of Tomorrow") and Dominic Purcell ("John Doe") are again breaking free. "But Miller's character, Michael Scofield, died in the series finale!" you say. Ah, perhaps. It seems, though, especially according to a Fox news release, that there are clues that indicate Michael is alive, so Sara (Sarah Wayne Callies, "The Walking Dead") and Lincoln (Purcell) attempt to stage the biggest escape ever in "Prison Break: Sequel," which premieres sometime this spring.

If you're looking for something new to watch this year, I have a few suggestions. "The Young Pope" premiered across the Atlantic in October, but it gets its North American release Sunday, Jan. 15, on HBO. Starring Jude Law ("Sherlock Holmes," 2009) and Diane Keaton ("The First Wives Club," 1996), the series has already garnered much praise from critics. Another new show to look out for also comes early in the year — and from another Brit. Tom Hardy ("Inception," 2010) has been everywhere lately, and he stars in the new drama

"Taboo," which he co-created and co-wrote with his father, Chips, and premieres Tuesday, Jan. 10, on FX.

There are also plenty of new shows coming out that originate on this side of the pond. ABC's "Downward Dog" doesn't have a premiere date yet, but it's slated to pop up midseason. It stars Emmy-nominated actress Allison Tolman ("Fargo"), and is told from the point of view of her dog, Martin (Samm Hodges, "Illusions," 2012). "Chicago Justice" also is lacking a concrete premiere date, but the "Chicago P.D." spinoff and newest addition to the Chicago franchise on NBC already has Philip Winchester ("Crusoe") and Carl Weathers ("Rocky," 1976) set to star.

As acclaimed author Stephen King once wrote, "Sooner or later, everything old is new again," and that couldn't be more true for TV in 2017. One great example is CBS's reboot of an iconic sci-fi series. "Star Trek: Discovery" is set to hit airwaves in May, and after its premiere on the eye network, the series moves to CBS's online streaming service, CBS All Access. The new "Star Trek" series is set 10 years prior to the start of the original, William Shatner-starring series, and then-showrunner Bryan Fuller (he stepped down from the role in October) said at the Television Critics Association press tour in the summer that the first season revolves around "an incident and an event in Star Trek history that's been talked about but never been explored."

As sad as fans may be, it would be remiss of me if I didn't acknowledge some of the series signing off for good. After 12 seasons, Dr. Temperance Brennan (Emily Deschanel, "The Perfect Family," 2011), Seeley Booth (David Boreanaz, "Buffy the Vampire Slayer") and the rest of the "Bones" team are calling it quits. The final season premieres Tuesday, Jan. 3, on Fox. "Orphan Black," which has reaped a ton of critical acclaim, will also be saying goodbye, with its fifth and final season premiering later in 2017. Lena Dunham's "Girls," "The Vampire Diaries," "Duck Dynasty," "Episodes" (starring William LeBlanc of "Friends" fame) and "Grimm" will all air their final episodes in the next 365 days.

It's almost time to flip our calendars, and that means there's plenty to look forward to in the coming year. There is a host of new shows set to premiere, some old favorites — and even a character! — ready to come back from the dead and some series to which we must say our good-byes. Don't miss out when series such as "Prison Break: Sequel," "The Young Pope," "Chicago Justice" and many more premiere over the course of 2017.

Snoopy and Woodstock in "Happy New Year, Charlie Brown"

The First 48

A&E 4:00 PM

Detectives deal with real-life crime drama in a rebroadcast of this popular long-running series. Cameras follow law enforcement officials as they search for leads in the critical first 48 hours after a crime occurs.

Happy New Year, Charlie Brown

(WHTM) 8:00 PM

Marcie and Peppermint Patty decide to ring in the New Year by throwing a big bash for all of their friends, but Charlie Brown just wants to curl up with a big book. This special features a bonus cartoon entitled "She's a Good Skate, Charlie Brown."

Whose Line Is It Anyway?

(WLYH) 9:30 PM

Actress Cheryl Hines joins the cast along with Brad Sherwood and Jeff Davis in this rebroadcast. Performers must think on their feet as they improvise scenes suggested by the audience. Aisha Tyler hosts the popular sketch comedy series.

Eating out doesn't have to break the bank

Ali Khan hosts "Cheap Eats"

By Andrew Warren
TV Media

It isn't cheap being a glutton. When you're someone who wants food — all of the food — you'd best have deep pockets. Unless, that is, you follow the advice of Ali Khan.

The host of Cooking Channel's "Cheap Eats," currently in its second season, airing Thursday nights, knows a thing or two about getting big dishes for a shockingly low price. In each episode of the mouthwatering program, he touches down in a new city where, with only $35 in his pocket, he has to find the best places to grab breakfast, lunch and dinner.

He isn't just popping into the nearest fast food joint and ordering the cheapest things off of the backlit menus — oh, no. Khan is on the lookout for good food, too. He may be gluttonous, but he's not one to substitute quality and flavor.

In this week's episode, airing Thursday, Dec. 29, Khan heads to Jackson Hole, Wyoming, where his first goal is to find a joint that serves a great breakfast at an even better price. Following his taste buds leads him to an incredible croque madame, a classic French ham-and-cheese sandwich topped with a fried egg.

With some of his precious funds spent, he looks for a great deal for lunch, and he discovers a place serving up fried chicken banh mi sandwiches.

As though to show off just how far he can stretch on a snack — a berry cheesecake doughnut — before he starts hunting for a joint that serves dinner.

For Khan, good food is truly in his blood. As a child of South Asian immigrants, he learned early on in life that foods that might seem exotic and strange in one culture are just everyday meals in another. He's willing to give almost anything a taste, and it's rare that he finds something that he doesn't enjoy.

These days, he's eating on quite a budget, and he's taking folks at home along for the trip. A new episode of "Cheap Eats" airs Thursday, Dec. 29, on Cooking Channel.

The Dressmaker

More than two decades after she was falsely accused of murdering a schoolboy and was driven out of town, Tilly (Winslet) returns to the town of Dungatar to care for her ailing and mentally ill mother (Davis). After one of Tilly's homemade dresses makes a dramatic splash at a local football game, she's approached by many of the town's women, and asked to make them their own extravagant and stylish dresses. Once again feeling accepted by the people of Dungatar, Tilly begins to dig into the long-buried events surrounding the boy's death in the hope of clearing her name once and for all.

Director: Jocelyn Moorhouse. Stars: Kate Winslet, Judy Davis, Liam Hemsworth, Hugo Weaving, Julia Blake. 2015. 119 min. Drama.

When the Bough Breaks

John (Chestnut) and Laura Taylor (Hall) are a young and happily married couple who discover that, despite desperately wanting to be parents, Laura cannot conceive. After exhausting the many fertility treatment options, they hire Anna (Sinclair) to be the surrogate mother of their child. Unbeknownst to them, Anna is planning to scam the couple by demanding even more money, but her own plans are thrown into jeopardy when she finds herself drawn to John in unhealthy ways. As Anna's obsession with the father-to-be grows, John and Laura find themselves caught in a psychological game with their baby and their marriage hanging in the balance.

Snowden

After being discharged from the military due to an injury, Edward Snowden (Gordon-Levitt) is hired by the CIA, and, eventually, the NSA. Although he is good at the work, he becomes increasingly disillusioned by the ethics of the tasks that he's asked to perform. When he comes to realize that the surveillance being performed by the NSA may be illegal, Snowden decides to go public with what he knows, setting in motion a series of events that change his life forever.

Director: Oliver Stone. Stars: Joseph Gordon-Levitt, Zachary Quinto, Melissa Leo, Shailene Woodley, Tom Wilkinson. 2016. 134 min. Biography.

Dennis Haysbert from "Incorporated"

MacGyver

(WHP) 9:00 PM

When a bomb is set near the United Nations, MacGyver (Lucas Till) has only a wrench and rope at his disposal to diffuse it in this rebroadcast. It turns out his nemesis The Ghost is behind the bomb, and MacGyver must find him before he strikes again.

Black-ish

(WHTM) 9:30 PM

In this rebroadcast, Dre (Anthony Anderson) takes the whole family on vacation. While at Walt Disney World Resort in Florida, he springs for the kind of first-class treatment he was never able to experience when he visited the park as a kid.

Incorporated

SYFY 10:00 PM

In a dystopian future where multinational corporations have taken over in the absence of government, Ben Larson (Sean Teale) goes undercover at a biotech company. Dennis Haysbert, Julia Ormond and Allison Miller also star in the new drama.

Fred Hurt from "Gold Rush"

Into the Badlands

AMC 5:00 PM
AMC presents six back-to-back episodes of this martial arts drama. Daniel Wu stars as Sunny, a highly respected warrior in a ruthless and dangerous world. In this rebroadcast, Sunny rescues a mysterious young man (Aramis Knight) with a dark secret.

Bones

(WPMT) 8:00 PM
In this special crossover episode with the hit "Sleepy Hollow," the Jeffersonian team meets newly minted FBI Agent Abbie Mills (Nicole Beharie) and Ichabod Crane (Tom Mison) — they've come to claim a headless body already under investigation.

Gold Rush

disc 9:00 PM
Modern-day gold miners face the challenges of searching for treasure in some of the world's roughest terrain. This season, Todd Hoffman takes a big risk when he moves his operation to Oregon, while Parker Schnabel makes his biggest investment yet.

stars on screen

Such an honor: One of the most prestigious awards in the performing arts is sticking with an old idiom: "If it ain't broke, don't fix it." Comedian and late-night TV host Stephen Colbert returns to host this year's Kennedy Center Honors gala, a role that he also filled for 2014 and 2015's ceremonies. The ceremony airs Tuesday, Dec. 27, on CBS.

As is tradition, the gala was held earlier in December at Washington, D.C.'s, Kennedy Center Opera House at the end of a weekend-long series of events, including a reception at the White House with the president and Michelle Obama.

This year's honorees come from all walks of life, and all represent different facets of the performing arts. Actor Al Pacino ("The Godfather," 1972) is honored, along with pianist Martha Argerich.

The musical arts are well represented among this year's honorees. Along with Argerich, who is often regarded as one of the greatest pianists in the world, six-time Grammy-winning rock band the Eagles, gospel singer Mavis Staples and singer/guitarist James Taylor are also being recognized on stage by their peers.

Unlike an awards show, the Kennedy Center Honors isn't about competition or watching the honorees give acceptance speeches. Instead, the five honorees remain comfortably seated while a who's who of the entertainment world pays their respects. It's a star-studded recognition of their contributions to the arts, told with tributes and performances.

With Colbert returning for his third stint as host, the annual televised gala is in good hands. The Kennedy Center Honors airs Tuesday, Dec. 27, on CBS.

HBO's hunting Holly: Holly Hunter is returning to television. The Academy Award-winning actress has signed on to a new, as-yet-unnamed HBO drama that's been ordered straight to series.

The star of 1993's "The Piano" headlines the drama that focuses on a progressive, multiracial family that is thrown into disarray when one of its children begins seeing things that aren't there. Is there mental illness involved, or is there something more supernatural at work?

Hunter stars as Audrey, the matriarch of the family and a psychologist working in the corporate world where she struggles to find the balance between her own idealism and the need to make more money. With her children mostly grown up and her husband dealing with depression, Audrey's know-it-all attitude won't keep her from feeling like she's lost control of her life.

The show comes from the mind of Alan Ball, the creator of "Six Feet Under" and "True Blood," two other HBO shows that grew into huge hits for the premium cable channel. Hunter won a best actress Academy Award for her starring role in "The Pianist," but it isn't just her big screen work that's won the acclaimed actress coveted awards.

"The Pianist" also earned her a Golden Globe, and she took home Emmys for her roles in NBC's 1989 TV movie "Roe vs. Wade" and in 1993's HBO original "The Positively True Adventures of the Alleged Texas Cheerleader-Murdering Mom."

With Ball's record of success at HBO and Hunter's award-winning star power, it's obvious why the unnamed drama is skipping the pilot stage and going straight to series. More casting announcements are expected in the new year.

Choosing Corden: A host has been found for the 59th Annual Grammy Awards, and his name may come as a bit of a surprise. After emceeing the awards ceremony for the past five years, rapper and star of "NCIS: Los Angeles" LL Cool J won't be returning for the Sunday, Feb. 12, ceremony to be broadcast live on CBS. Instead, a late-night host with a knack for all things musical is taking the stage this time around.

"The Late Late Show" host James Corden has been selected by the Recording Academy to host this year's Grammys, a move that shouldn't be surprising to even casual watchers of his late-night talk show.

The Tony Award-winning actor and comedian is as adept at music as he is at comedy. A frequent and popular segment on "The Late Late Show" is carpool karaoke, in which Corden and a musical guest drive around Los Angeles (more often than not) while belting out some of the artist's biggest hits. He's also prone to singing and dancing with the guests on his show.

"I am truly honored to be hosting the Grammys next year. It's the biggest, most prestigious award show in music, and I feel incredibly lucky to be part of such an incredible night," Corden said in a statement.

The 59th Annual Grammy Awards will broadcast live Sunday, Feb. 12, on CBS.

hollywood q&a

By Adam Thomlison
TV Media

Q: My husband and I recently discovered "Shetland" and have enjoyed every episode. However, the most recent one, in season 3, I believe, about the disappearance of a young man on a ferry, ended abruptly, leaving several unanswered questions! There were only two episodes, but it felt like there should have been a third.

A: I have some good news for you: You have more "Shetland" to see. I often have to tell people that their favorite show has left them hanging from a cliff forever, but in this case there is resolution available.

Season 3 of the show actually has six episodes, with the final one providing answers in the case of the ferry disappearance. I can't say why you only saw two of them, since I don't know where you were watching the show — there are various options, which is part of the problem.

"Shetland" is a British series that airs first on BBC over there — the third season ended back in March. PBS has been airing the show over here, but the network's various affiliates have been airing the episodes in different orders, since they're all technically repeats now anyway.

Things are also complicated by the fact that season 3 is the first one to feature a story that spans more than two episodes. Season 2 was also six episodes long, but it was actually made up of three mini-stories that spanned two episodes apiece. And the first season was only two episodes long in total (the Brits don't follow the same episode-count rules that we do). So you can be forgiven for wondering if the ferry-disappearance story was only two episodes long, since all the other ones were.

This is all a long way of saying there are four more episodes in season 3's story, and you will get some resolution to the mystery. But not so much that the show won't be back — the BBC has already renewed it for a fourth season, which will begin filming early in 2017.

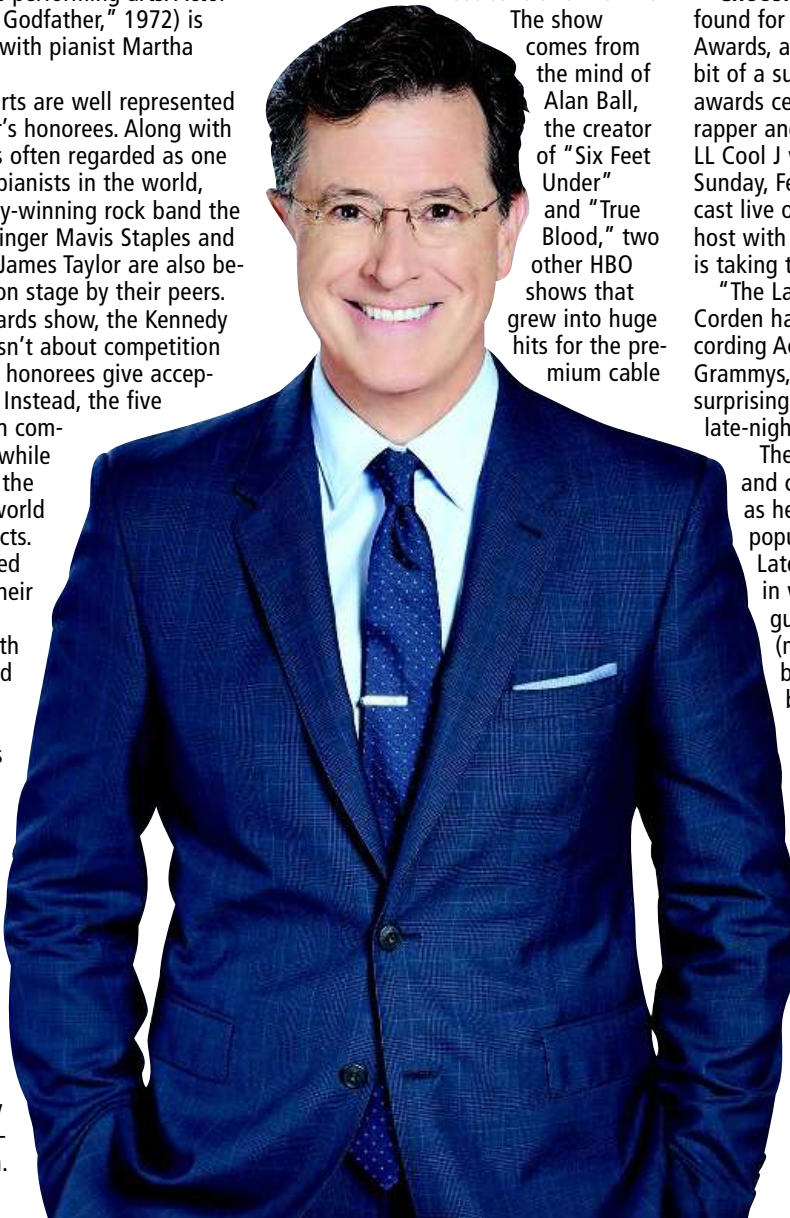

Q: In the recent "NCIS: Los Angeles" episode where Callen interrogates his dad, who played the woman in the hospital?

A: I appreciate how you phrased that, because giving away much about the identity of "the woman in the hospital" would spoil much of the plot of the episode (and potentially the whole season, since she seems plugged into Callen's past). However, I can talk about the identity of the person playing her: That's former supermodel Joan Severance.

Severance transitioned from an early-'80s modeling career to a very '80s acting career, appearing in such films as the Richard Pryor comedy "See No Evil, Hear No Evil" and the Hulk Hogan action pic "No Holds Barred," both in 1989, and the 1990 Mel Gibson action-comedy "Bird on a Wire."

Interestingly, "See No Evil" brought her back together with her former TV partner Kevin Spacey (both in supporting roles), with whom she previously worked on the crime drama "Wiseguy." Severance's other TV credits include "Love Boat: The Next Wave" in the late '90s, and, more recently, the MyNetworkTV prime-time soap "Wicked Wicked Games."

Teens make big waves in 'Project Runway: Junior'

By Jacqueline Spendlove
TV Media

Fledgling fashion: At this time of year, when a good chunk of the continent is blanketed in snow, many of us couldn't care less what we're wearing, as long as it's warm. For the young designers of "Project Runway: Junior," however, all of their clothing creations have to look good — the fact that they're just teenagers doesn't mean the competition is any easier for them than it is for their adult counterparts.

At any rate, snow's not an excuse in sunny L.A. where the competition takes place. The designers learn that they're in for their first unconventional materials challenge when they meet hosts Tim Gunn and Hannah Jeter at a rooftop pool in a new episode airing Thursday, Dec. 29, on Lifetime.

As "Project Runway" fans will know, the unconventional materials challenge is always a fun episode. As the name implies, contestants are tasked with creating a garment from non-traditional materials, which, in the original series (which spawned "Project Runway: Junior"), have included everything from apartment furnishings to edible food items to recycled electronics. In the first season of "Junior" last year, the youngsters created designs from items found at a carwash: sponges, license plates, fuzzy dice and the like.

It seems the "Junior" edition of the competition series, which features designers aged 13 to 17, is as well received as its predecessor, which just wrapped its 15th season, and has been renewed for three more. "Project Runway: Junior," for its part, has secured a third season. The series follows the same format as the original, with a different team of judges: fashion designer and critic Kelly Osbourne ("Fashion Police"), "Project Runway" season 4 winner Christian Siriano and Cosmopolitan and Seventeen executive fashion editor Aya Kanai.

Merry fishmas: It seems that as far as the crew at Acrylic Tank Manufacturing is concerned, there's no need to close up shop for the holidays. Brett, Wayde and the rest of the ATM family present a festive new episode of "Tanked," airing Christmas Day, on Animal Planet.

ATM is a real family-run business. The Las Vegas-based company is owned by brothers-in-law Wayde King and Brett Raymer, and the two have virtually no limits when it comes to installing some of the most jaw-dropping fish tanks and aquariums that money can buy. Their client list includes everything from average Joes to casinos and luxury hotels to the Hollywood A-listers, and their 200-plus projects a year can boast anything from 50 to a million — yes, a million — gallons in size. At the end of the day, the lucky tankees are left with a stunning display of some of the world's most exotic, colorful and dangerous fish.

Eleven seasons in, business is still booming, and Brett and Wayde cater to celebrity clients aplenty. This season we've seen rapper Akon, "Real Housewife" Erika Girardi, country superstar Jason Aldean, NBA star Hassan Whiteside and more add ATM aquariums to their home decor.

Get 'Real': It wouldn't be the holidays without a certain amount of drama, bickering and ... peroxide? If things are a little too calm and civil in your own home, you can always turn to the tube for a little controlled chaos. As anyone who's ever seen an episode of "The Real Housewives of Wherever" knows, these women have chaos to spare. A new episode of "The Real Housewives of Beverly Hills" airs Tuesday, Dec. 27, on Bravo.

Season 7 debuted earlier this month, and the returning housewives were pleased (or not) to welcome a new one into their fold following the departure of Yolanda Hadid and Kathryn Edwards — the former left to focus her energies on her battle with Lyme disease, while Edwards wanted to spend more time with her husband.

Dorit Kemsley, a close friend of original cast member Lisa Vanderpump ("Vanderpump Rules"), is this season's newcomer — a fashion designer for her own company, Dorit, who also runs a management company with her husband. Season 7 also boasts guest appearances from former housewives Camille Grammer and Kim Richards, and welcomes newbie Eden Sassoon (daughter of beauty mogul Vidal Sassoon) in a recurring capacity. Fresh blood always opens the door for more squabbling, which, let's be honest, is a good deal of what we're here to see.

For her part, Sassoon certainly wasn't getting much love from the rest of the cast during filming. Much shade was thrown at the newcomer in the leadup to the new season, particularly from the direction of Lisa Rinna and Kyle Richards. As the show thrives on friction, it's possible that we can expect Sassoon as a main cast member in future seasons, bumping the total cast back up to seven.
