Vhile Sunny (Daniel Wu, "Gen-X Cops," 1999) fights tooth-and-nail to get back to the Badlands and find his family, M.K. (Aramis Knight, "Ender's Game," 2013) struggles o control his powers in the second season of "Into the Badlands," which kicks off Sunday, March 19, on AMC. The acclaimed martial arts drama is set in a ruthless postpocalyptic feudal society where seven barons reign supreme.

There are dramas for people who love murder mysteries, cop shows and even comic books, but a unique drama offers viewers something totally new, with elaborate fight scenes and stunning visuals.

Chinese-American action star Daniel Wu ("Gen-X Cops," 1999) brings his talents to the small screen as Sunny, a fiercely skilled warrior in AMC's martial arts drama "Into the Badlands," which returns for a second season Sunday, March 19. The show is set in a postapocalyptic world where guns have been banned and seven ruthless barons rule what was once the American midwest, thanks to loyal warriors, or clippers, like Sunny.

One of the most dangerous clippers in the Badlands, Sunny has worked his way up through the ranks to become regent (head clipper) to the area's most powerful Baron, Quinn (Marton Csokas, "The Lord of the Rings: The Fellowship of the Ring," 2001). In the first season,

Daniel Wu stars in "Into the Badlands"

Sunny encountered a teenager, M.K. (Aramis Knight, "Ender's Game," 2013), who harbored a dark power, prompting Sunny to take M.K. under his wing as his newest trainee, or "colt," as they're called in the Badlands.

"Into the Badlands" was a hit right out of the gate when the series premiere in November 2015 pulled in more than 6.4 million viewers overall. The show went on to average more than five million viewers per episode, earning it the distinction of being the fourth-highestrated freshman season of any cable series ever. Not surprisingly, it didn't take long for AMC to order a second season.

"With its deep dive into authentic martial arts, the visually stunning 'Into the Badlands' proved to be unlike anything else on television," said AMC executive Charlie Collier when the 10-episode season 2 deal was announced last March. He went on to praise creators Alfred Gough ("Smallville") and Miles Millar ("Shanghai Noon," 2000) for delivering an "artfully crafted series."

Acclaimed for its elaborate combat scenes and swordplay in season 1, "Into the Badlands" is expected to be even more action-packed in season 2 as Sunny — now separated from M.K. — struggles to get back to the Badlands and his family. Meanwhile, M.K. struggles to get a handle on his powers. Mysterious new allies aid the clipper and colt, but these so-called friends may have ulterior motives. At the same time, dangerous baron Minerva (Emily Beecham, "The Village"), also known as The Widow, continues her quest for more power. All the while, a new threat rises feature story Heavy drama Fox strikes a chord with new series 'Shots Fired'

By Cassie Dresch TV Media

■ ox is launching a new

To-episode event series, and it's going to strike a chord. Plucked straight from the headlines, "Shots Fired" will sadly feel familiar to viewers as co-creators Reggie Rock Bythewood ("Notorious," 2009) and Gina Prince-Bythewood ("Beyond the Lights," 2014) tackle the ramifications of racially charged police brutality. The new drama premieres Wednesday, March 22, on Fox.

It's an uncomfortable topic for some people, but it's one that definitely needs discussing, and sometimes the best way to raise awareness and generate conversation is through the artistic lens of television. You only have to look at shows such as "The Flip Wilson Show" and "Roots," both having aired in the '70s, which helped break through the color barrier. Or you could look at the show "Ellen," starring Ellen DeGeneres. Character and actress almost concurrently came out as gay, starting the narrative shift of gay acceptance on TV.

For "Shots Fired," which originally premiered at the Sundance Film Festival in January, it's very clear that it is still a TV show with some common police procedural tropes, but it's also trying to advance the story about the criminal justice system.

"We shot the most current show you'll ever see. It's exactly current with the world," one of the show's stars, Richard Dreyfuss ("Jaws," 1975), said at the Television Critics Association winter press tour. "That's why, as you watch this show, you're going to be reminded very clearly of the current headlines in life."

The series stars Stephan James ("Race," 2016) and Sanaa Lathan ("Blade," 1998) as special prosecutor Preston Terry and seasoned investigator Ashe Akino, respectively, and follows the pair as they probe the death of an unarmed white college student, shot by black police officer Joshua Beck (Tristan Mack Wilds, "90210") in a small North Carolina town. During this investigation, they find out there's been another shooting by a white police officer on a young black man, and, after speaking with the boy's mother, Shameeka (De-Wanda Wise, "Underground"), they start pursuing that case as well.

While at first it may seem strange that "Shots Fired" leads off with a black-onwhite violence angle, Prince-Bythewood, who said the series would be like "an autopsy of a town like Ferguson" (in reference to the 2015 shooting death of Michael Brown in the Missouri town), told the TCA winter press tour reporters that it was very much done intentionally.

"You see this in the news all the time. It's very easy for people to watch the news and see a piece about a shooting,

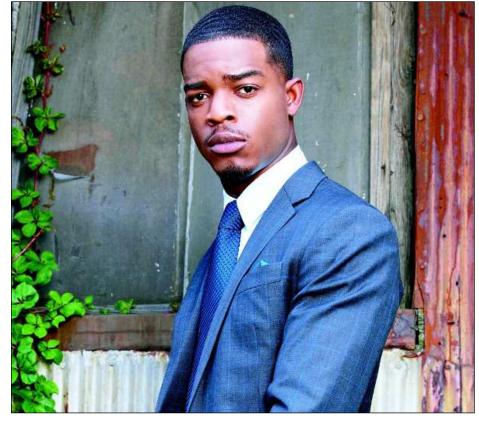

8	5	2	3	7	9	6	1	4
7	1	6	8	4	5	9	3	2
4	3	9	6	2	1	8	7	5
5	9	8	2	3	7	4	6	1
1	2	4	5	8	6	7	9	3
3	6	7	1	9	4	2	5	8

and if you don't identify with who's on screen, you turn it off," she said. "So we felt the best way to address this issue for us was to get people who don't normally go through this issue to understand ... to give them a way in and a way to understand. So in flipping the narrative, it allows folks who don't normally identify with these characters to empathize with them. Through empathy, you can change."

Along with James, Lathan, Wise and Dreyfuss (who plays privatized prison owner Arlen Cox), the cast of "Shots Fired" is a good one. Oscar winner Helen Hunt ("Twister," 1996) stars as North Carolina governor Patricia Eamons, who's knee-deep in a tough re-election campaign made tougher by the shootings. Stephen Moyer ("True Blood"), Aisha Hinds ("Mr. Brooks," 2007), Will Patton ("Remember the Titans," 2000), Jill Hennessy ("Crossing Jordan"), Conor Leslie ("The Man in the High Castle") and Clare-Hope Ashitev ("Suspects") round out the main cast.

The nature of the story and the real-life tragedies from which it's drawn were a compelling factor for many of the actors and actresses to join the series, with Lathan saying at the TCA press tour that

Stephan James stars in "Shots Fired"

"given the subject matter, how timely it is right now it was no question [to join]," and calling the show "heavy."

Hunt, who returns to a starring role on TV for the first time since "Mad About You" ended in 1999, said she found the role to be exciting. "I want to work on things that are alive in me, and the country was fire and is on fire, and these two people were writing about that, and that was exciting to me," she said.

At the end of the day, it still is a television show, and judging by the early reviews out of the Sundance Film Festival and the trailers that have been released, Bythewood and Prince-Bythewood look to have a very solid spring entry in the television landscape. Even though it's billed as a limited event series, there's a distinct possibility that a second season could be ordered if the first 10 episodes prove successful enough. ("We do have ideas of how it could continue," Prince-Bythewood said.) Catch the series premiere of "Shots Fired" when it airs

CUNDAY EVENING MADCH

Jonny Lee Miller stars in "Elementary"

The Walking Dead

амс 9:00 РМ

The Saviors catch the residents of The Hilltop by surprise when they drop in unexpectedly in this new episode. Unfortunately, this time, they plan to take more than just supplies. Jeffrey Dean Morgan and Andrew Lincoln star.

Elementary

(WHP) 10:00 PM

Sherlock (Jonny Lee Miller) and Dr. Watson (Lucy Liu) take on another case in this new episode. Inspired by the iconic detective created by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, this new updated version of the mystery series takes place in modern-day New York.

Crashing нво 10:30 PM

Pete (Pete Holmes) begs Jess (Lauren Lapkus) to help him when his parents come to New York for his mother's birthday in this new episode. She agrees, but an uncomfortable dinner reveals the truth about their relationship.

Michael Fassbender stars in "Assassin's Creed"

Assassin's Creed

Action and intrigue play together in this adaptation of the hit video game franchise. Callum Lynch (Fassbender) has spent his life on the run ever since he witnessed his father murder his mother. When a mysterious organization rescues him from his own legal troubles, Callum learns that he's the descendent of a legendary assassin, and that the organization has technology that can allow him to relive his ancestor's memories. With a villainous group closing in on an object that they could use to enslave all of humanity, Callum will have to embrace his ancestry to find it before they do. Director: Justin Kurzel. Stars: Michael Fassbender, Marion Cotillard, Jeremy Irons, Michael Kenneth Williams, Charlotte Rampling, Brendan Gleeson. 2016. 115 min. Action.

Sing

With his theatre facing financial difficulties, koala Buster (Mc-Conaughey) comes up with the idea to hold a singing competition to attract local interest in this animated feature. When a printing mixup results in a prize of $100,000 — rather than just $1,000 — being advertised, it suddenly seems like every animal in the city has decided to try out for the contest. When the musical hopefuls also bring their own personal problems to the stage, and with a promised prize of far more than Buster can afford, it begins to look increasingly unlikely that the competition will be the golden ticket.

Director: Garth Jennings. Stars: Matthew McConaughey, Reese Witherspoon, Seth MacFarlane, Scarlett Johansson, John C. Reilly, Taron Egerton. 2016. 108 min. Comedy.

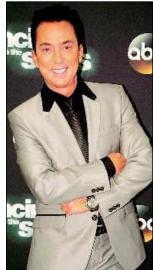

Miss Sloane

Elizabeth Sloane (Chastain) is a Washington lobbyist, and she prides herself on being one of the best of her trade. When the NRA looks to hire her for her unique set of skills, she instead turns the other way, and agrees to work for an organization led by a rich philanthropist (Strong) that's antithetical to everything the NRA stands for. Sloane's obsession with always being the best, however, guickly catches up to her. Director: John Madden. Stars: Jessica Chastain, Mark Strong, Gugu Mbatha-Raw, John Lithgow, Michael Stuhlbarg, Jake Lacy, Alison Pill, Sam Waterston. 2016. 132 min. Drama.

Bruno Tonioli from "Dancing With the Stars"

Dancing With the Stars

(WHTM) 8:00 PM

Celebrities, athletes and other public figures team up with professional dancers in the hopes of impressing the judges and taking home the coveted Mirrorball trophy in this season premiere. Tom Bergeron hosts the popular ballroom dance competition.

2 Broke Girls

(WHP) 9:30 PM

When Caroline (Beth Behrs) accidentally injures one of Bobby's (Christopher Gorham) bowling buddies, she begins to worry that she's his bad luck charm in this new episode. Meanwhile, Max (Kat Dennings) tries to earn a spot on Bobby's team.

Taken

(WGAL) 10:00 PM

Riley (Jennifer Marsala) insists on uncovering the truth behind a fatal drug given to war vets in this new episode. As a result, her asset's child is abducted, and Bryan (Clive Standen) defies orders to rescue the girl.

Confession time: I love cheese more than is probably reasonable. How could I not? There are so many varieties, each with its own unique aroma, with textures ranging from creamy to crumbly and tastes that run the gamut from nutty to sharp to smooth and to mild.

Well, it looks like Food Network's five perennially sunny Saturday morning personalities can agree with me about this one, with the Saturday, March 25, episode of "The Kitchen" focusing entirely on the good stuff: cheese. The weekly talk program's hosts are almost too cheerful sometimes, but that's exactly what makes it such great weekend television.

As part of their celebration of all things cheese, "The Kitchen's" hosts share some of their favorite cheesy recipes. Jeff Mauro's ("Sandwich King") ultimate cheese enchiladas are something to make family Mexican night anything but dull, while Sunny Anderson ("Cooking for Real") shows off her secrets for making perfect cheesy cornbread muffins with jalapeño glaze. Even actor/chef David Burtka ("How I Met

Michael Weatherly stars in "Bull"

The Mick (WPMT) 8:30 PM

When Mickey (Kaitlin Olson) thinks Chip (Thomas Barbusca) is being taken advantage of by a girl he met online, she tries to teach him how to be more assertive in this new episode. Meanwhile, Sabrina (Sofia Black-D'Elia) plans an intervention.

Bull

(WHP) 9:00 PM

Michael Weatherly stars as Dr. Jason Bull in this highly rated new drama. Bull uses psychology, intuition and high-tech data to help firms win cases as he and his team try to figure out how to stack the odds in his clients' favor.

People Icons

(WHTM) 10:00 PM In this new episode, loved ones talk about some of the country's favorite actors, performers and comedians who left us all too soon. The program includes interviews with Patrick Swayze's widow, Lisa Niemi, and Robin Williams's widow, Susan Williams.

MARCH 18 17

David Giuntoli stars in "Grimm"

Liv and Maddie: Cali Style DISN 5:30 PM

Karen (Kali Rocha) is eager to have the family reunite in Wisconsin now that the Rooney house has finally been rebuilt in this new episode. Exciting opportunities arise for each of the Rooney children, though, and their summer plans are thrown into chaos.

The Powerpuff Girls

тоон 6:45 PM

When each of the girls is forced to fight solo, they come to appreciate each other's style in this new episode. This popular cartoon series chronicles the adventures of three super-powered girls who battle evil.

Grimm

(WGAL) 8:00 PM

A dark force with its sights set on Diana (Hannah R. Loyd) arrives in Portland, fulfiling the prophecy in this new episode. Nick (David Giuntoli) and Capt. Renard (Sasha Roiz) must work together in order to protect her.

Marlon Brando stars in "The Godfather"

The Godfather AMC 3:00 PM

Marlon Brando stars as Vito Corleone, an Italian Mafia don who wages war against his enemies in 1940s New York. Francis Ford Coppola's iconic film is followed by its two acclaimed sequels starring Al Pacino as Vito's son, Michael.

Outside the Lines

This new program crisscrosses the United States to bring viewers unique stories about football culture. Also, find out why football continues to play a fundamental role in many communities, despite the dangers of the sport.

Campfire Kiss HALL 7:00 PM

When single mom Dana (Danica McKellar) takes her teenage son camping, she soon finds herself falling for another camper (Paul Greene) in this original movie. As their camping adventure comes to an end, it looks as if they may go their separate ways.

stars on screen 'Days of Our Lives' still ready for more after 51 seasons

By Andrew Warren TV Media

Live another 'Day': The sand in the hourglass hasn't run out yet: NBC's venerable daytime soap is sticking around for at least one more year. "Days of Our Lives," the iconic backbone of the peacock network's afternoon programming and currently in the midst of its 51st season, has been renewed for an astounding 52nd.

"It's a great day in Salem!" executive producer Ken Corday said in a statement announcing the renewal. "We're pleased to announce that after more than 51 years in the hearts and homes of our amazing fans, 'Days of Our Lives' will continue to be part of the NBC family."

The decades-old soap opera is set in the fictional town of Salem, and revolves around the day-to-day lives of three large families: the Bradys, Hortons and DiMeras. As in any good soap, the levels of romance, betrayal and intrigue experienced by the people of Salem are enough to put any real-world town to shame, but they do make for sinfully good television.

The current season saw the show's landmark 13,000th episode air in January — the same month that a new head writer was announced. Ron Carlivati, formerly the head writer of ABC soaps "One Life to Live" and "General Hospital," has taken over the reins of "Days of Our Lives."

Since its 1965 premiere as a halfhour drama, "Days of Our Lives" has earned 276 Emmy nominations, winning 46 of them. Its extensive and varied cast currently includes James Lastovic ("A Talking Pony," 2013), Stephen Nichols ("The Young and the Restless"), Mary Beth Evans ("The Bay"), Kristian Alfonso ("Falcon Crest"), Josh Taylor ("The Hogan Family") and Brandon Beemer ("The Bold and the Beautiful").

For six decades, audiences have peeked into the lives of Salem's residents, and now they're guaranteed at least one more year.

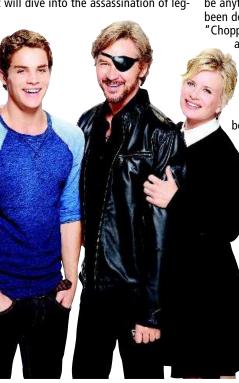

A criminal delay: After only a single season, the people behind

"American Crime Story" are already hard at work on the third and fourth, but that doesn't mean that the second one should be expected any time soon. Last year's "The People v. O.J. Simpson: American Crime Story" garnered heaps of awards and loads of critical acclaim, so it's no surprise that the minds behind the true crime anthology are planning far into the future. With development of the second season, "Katrina," already well underway, the cast lists of the third and fourth are quickly filling up.

"Glee" alumnus Darren Criss and "The Bourne Ultimatum's" (2007) Edgar Ramírez have recently been cast in "Versace," the third season that's expected to air not long after "Katrina's" finale. Both are currently planned for a 2018 release.

The long delay between the first season and the second isn't time wasted. Matthew Broderick ("Ferris Bueller's Day Off," 1986) and Annette Bening ("American Beauty," 1999) recently joined the cast of "Katrina," which explores the events surrounding the aftermath of 2005's devastating hurricane that overwhelmed New Orleans.

As for Criss and Ramírez's "Versace," it will dive into the assassination of legendary fashion designer Gianni Versace in 1997, with Ramírez playing Versace and Criss playing his killer, Andrew Cunanan. The following fourth season, already early in development, will focus on the sex scandal that rocked the later years of the Bill Clinton presidency.

Each season of "American Crime Story" is a self-contained retelling about a real-life crime from the nation's history. Watch for the next story, "Katrina," early next year.

A new face in the kitchen: "MasterChef" is getting ... well, a new master chef. Chef Aarón Sánchez has joined the judging panel of Fox's popular cooking competition series ahead of its upcoming eighth season, after serving as a guest judge last year.

He's taking over as the show's third judge following Chef Graham Elliot's departure after six seasons; last season, only Chefs Gordon Ramsay and Christina Tosi were in charge of deciding who was eliminated each episode, with the help of a guest judge filling in the empty third spot.

For the world-renowned Sánchez, judging and critiquing dishes won't be anything out of the ordinary. He's been doing that job in Food Network's "Chopped" since its very first season > aired in 2009. His own show, "Taco Trip," was nominated for an Emmy, and he's even won a coveted James Beard Award for his work in television.

The Latin chef isn't just about being on the tube, though. He's the chef/owner of Johnny Sánchez, which has locations in both Baltimore and New Orleans, and he's published two successful cookbooks.

It's no small task to find a chef who's got the qualifications to stand up next to the likes of Ramsay and Tosi week after week, but Sánchez fits the bill. "MasterChef" returns to Fox this summer.

hollywood q&a

By Adam Thomlison TV Media

Q: I haven't seen "Pure Genius" in about a month. Did that wrap up without me knowing it? A: That depends: Did you last see it on Jan. 26? That was the airdate of what CBS called the show's "season finale," but which most of the entertainment press called its series finale.

The series is (perhaps was) about a medical genius who teams up with a tech genius to treat "only the most rare and insurmountable medical mysteries," according to its official description. It debuted this past fall, and its ratings were something close to terrible — it was the 20th-most-watched scripted show on CBS's schedule for the season.

That's the main reason why the press is delivering its eulogy already, even though the network hasn't made an official announcement.

The other reason is that "Pure Genius" creator Jason Katims has already moved on to a new show. Katims is a big deal in the TV biz — he previously did "Parenthood" and "Friday Night Lights," among other shows — and so it's not surprising that he landed on his feet. His new show, "Drama High," is based on the true story of an inspirational drama teacher at a working-class high school.

"Pure Genius's" two stars have done well for themselves, too. Augustus Prew (who played the tech genius, James Bell) has a role in the revival of Fox's hit series "Prison Break," due out soon. Dermot Mulroney, the medical genius, recently landed a role in the bigscreen romantic drama "The Mountain Between Us." which stars Idris Elba and Kate Winslet. The film only recently started production, so it may be a while before it's released.

Q: Who was the first actor ever to portray Batman?

A: That's an interesting one, basically because it wasn't Adam West.

West's parody version of the Batman character, in the incredibly campy mid-'60s TV series, is the oldest one most people remember.

However, the first filmed version of the caped crusader appeared all the way back in 1943, played by the otherwise-unknown actor Lewis Wilson.

Wilson played Batman (and his alter-ego, wealthy playboy Bruce Wayne) in a 15-chapter theatrical serial (that is, a series of connected short films that played in cinemas, a style of filmmaking that fell out of favor not long after).

It's interesting to note that, at the time, the character wasn't the iconic hero he is today. Batman had only debuted in the comics pages in 1939, and then only in the anthology series "Detective Comics." He didn't get a comic book series of his own until 1940.

Even so, he was big enough by 1943 to get a serial film series, and it was the biggest thing that would ever happen to Wilson's acting career. According to IMDB, Wilson has just 15 acting credits to his name, eight of which were uncredited film parts. He did star in all 26 episodes of the TV mystery show "Craig Kennedy, Criminologist" in 1952, but sadly not as Craig Kennedy.

Wilson wasn't the only actor to don the pointyeared cowl before West. Another serial film version was released in 1949, with Robert Lowery in the role. Lowery is otherwise remembered for a key supporting role in the 1963 John Wayne film "McLintock," and little else.

real talk Competitors create original characters in cosplay competition series

By Jacqueline Spendlove TV Media

The cosplay's the thing: If you've ever been to Comic-Con (or even if you haven't), you probably know how seriously cosplay enthusiasts take their costumes. Some of the characters embodied at these conventions look like they could have been pulled straight from a movie set. Syfy is giving viewers an idea of what goes into creating these intricate and detailed cosplay outfits with "Cosplay Melee," premiering Tuesday, March 21.

Some may recall another similarly themed Syfy series, "Heroes of Cosplay," which aired in 2013 and drew major criticism for its gross misrepresentation of the cosplay community and its manufactured drama. It seems the network listened to the outraged cosplayers, who felt the series did them a great disservice; "Cosplay Melee" steps away from the "unscripted drama" format of "Heroes," and instead celebrates the craft of cosplay via competition.

The series is hosted by selfproclaimed "super-fangirl" Yvette Nicole Brown, of "Community" fame, and takes a page out of the book of "Face Off," another Syfy competition series now in its 11th season. While "Face Off" is centered on creating film-worthy prosthetic makeup looks, "Cosplay Melee" takes things further. In each episode, four hardcore cosplayers compete against one another, not just to create and put together elaborate, full-body costumes, but to design original characters inspired by science fiction and pop culture, complete with origin stories. They then have to don their creations to fully embody the character — acting the part and all — and whoever most impressively completes the transformation walks away with a $10,000 prize. Not a bad payout for a day of dress-up.

In the first round, the cosplayers have eight hours to create an accessory of some kind — a weapon, a piece of armor or an appendage, for example. Those who make it through to the next round have two days to bring together the full costume that goes with it, and nail down the character they'll be taking on.

Providing guidance and critique throughout the process is the rest of the judging panel, which, aside from Brown, consists of first-rate cosplayer LeeAnna Vamp ("Pool Party Massacre," 2016) and Christian Beckman, a blockbuster costume designer who lists "The Last Airbender" (2010) and "TRON: Legacy" (2010) among his credits. At the end of each episode, the panel lines up in front of the runway to lay judgment on the final products.

Twinoff: Exactly how many spinoff shows can "The Bachelor" lay claim to at this point? Have we hit a round halfdozen yet? Not quite, but if all the "Pads" and "Paradises" and "After Paradises" aren't enough to satisfy your post "Bachelor"/"Bachelorette" fix, there's a new installment of the latest spinoff coming your way: this one is specifically centered on those sunny blondes best known as The Twins (they do have their very own names, but I'll get to that). "The Twins: Happily Ever After?" premieres Monday, March 20, on Freeform.

Emily and Haley Ferguson, the first twins to appear in 'The Bachelor," first showed their identical faces (and hairstyles) in season 20 of the show, featuring Ben Higgins. Ben, as it happens, was the focus of the last "Happily Ever After?" season, which follows him and fiancée Lauren Bushnell as they start their new life together as a couple (I can't quite bring myself to say anything akin to "real life" since, you know, they still have cameras following them everywhere).

Emily and Haley were fan favorites during Ben's season, and also made regular appearances in "Happily Ever After." They cropped up again in the third season of "Bachelor in Paradise," but, sadly, still failed to find love.

"Happily Ever After?" follows the 25-year-old twins as they venture out from under their mom's roof and take life's next big step into independence (independence together, but independence nonetheless). They'll try to figure out life as full-fledged adults in their hometown of Las Vegas, Nevada, and try to nail down new careers.

The sisters, for all their feather-headedness (or perhaps, in part, because of it) have actually been a breath of fresh air in both "The Bachelor" and "Bachelor in Paradise." They're much less catty than many of the women the franchise tends to draw, and aren't interested in backstabbing or clawing anyone's eyes out for the sake of a rose. They also regularly dropped some of the best gems the shows delivered — even if they weren't always deliberately being funny (no, Miss Ferguson, Antarctica is not one of the 50 states). In short, they're generally well-liked by audiences and "Bachelor" participants alike, so it's not terribly surprising to see that they've landed an installment that's all twins, all the time.
