There are sure to be some highs and lows for everyone involved, so don't miss the star-studded ceremony when it airs Sunday, Jan. 10, on NBC.

Ricky Gervais returns as host for the 73rd Annual Golden Globes

By Cassie Dresch

TV Media

Ith the New Year in full swing, it's time to kick the major awards season into high gear as well, and it starts at the Beverly Hilton Hotel in California. A familiar face is back to host, and the best and brightest of television and film are gathered for the 73rd Annual Golden Globe Awards, airing Sunday, Jan. 10, on NBC.

British comedian Ricky Gervais ("The Office") returns to the show he's hosted thrice before, in 2010, 2011 and 2012. His brand of comedy has always been a little on the edge, and after insulting practically everyone in the room in 2011, it looked like he'd be blacklisted from the event for forever. But he was back by popular demand in 2012 before handing over the reins to Amy Poehler ("Parks and Recreation") and Tina Fey ("30 Rock"), who hosted the last three Golden Globe Awards to acclaim.

If there was any bad blood between Gervais and the Hollywood Foreign Press Association—the organization that runs the show—it's gone now, and the funnyman is gearing up for his fourth turn as Golden Globes host. Fair warning, though: Gervais (still) won't be tame this goaround.

"I've got to go out there and pretend that I've got swagger," he said in an interview with The Hollywood Reporter in December. "And I've got to be an outsider, and I've got to stick it to the man. I've got to be court jester. I've got to have a go at NBC and the Hollywood Foreign Press and all the billionaires."

He does this, he says, because the audience he's trying to reach and make laugh isn't the bedecked celebs in the room, it's the regular folks at home in their living rooms.

"There's nothing in it for them, they're not winning awards," he said to THR. "So I think that that I've got to try to make it more of a spectator sport."

Whatever he does do to it, it's bound to be entertaining, especially considering he was nominated for Emmys for his hosting duties at both the 68th and 69th editions of the Golden Globes. He also has Golden Globes of his own for the U.K. sitcom "The Office" (which has two) and its U.S. counterpart of the same name (which has one).

Patrick Wilson and Keir O'Donnell in a scene from "Fargo"

There are a lot of statues to hand out to the best of both film AND television from the past year. Generating the most buzz, as is usually the case, are the film nominations. The Golden Globes are typically seen as the precursor to the Oscars, with many of the Best Motion Picture, Actor and Actress nominees and winners seeing similar results at the Academy Awards.

One of the big names to look out for in that sense is Leonardo DiCaprio. "The Revenant" star is up for Best Actor in a Motion Picture - Drama (the movie itself is up for Best Motion Picture - Drama, Best Director and Best Score), and if he wins, it could pave the way for the oft-snubbed actor to (finally) take a home a much-deserved Oscar.

On the TV side, "Fargo," from FX, is again getting a lot of love, notching nominations for Best TV Movie or Miniseries, Best Actress in a TV Movie or Limited Series (Kirsten Dunst) and Best Actor in a TV Movie or Limited Series (Patrick Wilson). Fox's "Empire" is also continuing its string of praises, getting a nod for Best Drama Series and Best Actress in a Drama Series (Taraji P. Henson). FX could be a big winner too, with "American Horror Story: Hotel" nabbing a Best TV Movie or

Miniseries nod and Lady Gaga impressively grabbing a Best Actress in a TV Movie or Miniseries

Of course, it wouldn't be an awards show without any surprises, and this year is no different. The biggest surprise is probably on the small-screen side where, for the first time ever, broadcast television saw a grand total of zero nominations for Best Comedy Series. Cable TV and streaming services cleaned house in that category, with Netflix's "Orange Is the New Black," Hulu's "Casual," Amazon's "Mozart in the Jungle" and "Transparent," and HBO's "Veep" and "Silicon Valley" getting the nom-

Cable TV and streaming services are well-represented in the other TV categories, too. HBO's critical darling "Game of Thrones" is nominated for Best Drama Series, as is Netflix's "Narcos." Jeffrey Tambor and Judith Light from "Transparent" are up for Best Actor in a Comedy Series and Best Supporting Actress in a Comedy Series, respectively. Aziz Ansari's Netflix series "Master of None" is also up for Best Actor in a Comedy Series, as is the ageless British wonder Patrick Stewart for Starz's "Blunt Talk."

What better place to dive into awards season than in Beverly Hills, California? With host Gervais back for the fourth time and a smorgasbord of the best television and film 2015 had to offer, there's sure to be some highs and lows when the 73rd Annual Golden Globe Awards airs Sunday, Jan. 10, on NBC.

Hollywood Q&A

By Adam Thomlison TV Media

Q: Is Elliott Gould still working?

A: As hard as ever, but he's all over the place, so you may have missed him. Indeed, it's possible that you've just been looking for the big-screen great in the wrong places — that is, on the big screen. He's taken a TV turn lately.

TV turn lately.

Those with fancy cable can see Gould in Showtime's "Ray Donovan."

Those without it may have seen him in Fox's short-lived sitcom "Mulaney." Those without televisions at all may have heard him, at least, doing a voice in "Oscar's Hotel for Fantastical Creatures," a miniseries produced by The Jim Henson Company for the online channel Vimeo.

TV viewers might be seeing a lot more of him soon in the CBS series "Doubt," if it's picked up. It's currently at the pilot stage, due to air some time this year.

As for what he's doing now, "Doubt" isn't the only new project Gould has signed up for.

He's agreed to narrate "To Begin the World Over Again," a made-for-TV biography of the great American political philosopher Thomas Paine. He also has a role in an independent Brazilian film (because apparently that's the sort of thing you can do when you get to his career stage) called "Romancing Brazil," due out next year, as well as a role in the fantasy-drama "The History of Love," being released this year as well.

Those last two projects are proof that, though he has seemed to favor TV lately, he never gave up on the big screen entirely. His recent film projects include supporting roles in such films as the indie rom-com "Ruby Sparks" (2012) and the title role in the 2012 dramedy "Fred Won't Move

Ring in 2016 with a new season of 'Hell's Kitchen'

By Kyla Brewer TV Media

fith a string of successful restaurants across the globe, a number of bestselling books and several hit television series, it's clear that people just can't get enough of chef Gordon Ramsay. He brings his fiery personality back to prime time in the season premiere of "Hell's Kitchen," airing Friday, Jan. 15, on Fox. Based on the hit U.K. program, the culinary series is entering its 15th season on Fox, which also boasts Ramsay's amateur cooking competitions "MasterChef" and "MasterChef Junior," as well as his hotel revamp show "Hotel Hell."

Obviously, Fox just can't get enough of Ramsay either. "We've always been huge fans of Gordon," explained Fox executives Dana Walden and Gary Newman after the season 15 pickup was announced. "With his massive global brand and his unbelievably loyal fans, Gordon has become one of the biggest names in the culinary world and one of the biggest talents in television."

In "Hell's Kitchen," the celebrity superchef mentors 18 aspiring chefs who are out to prove that they have what it takes to run a restaurant. Divided into teams, the contestants face grueling challenges designed to test their mettle in the kitchen. The winners of the challenges often enjoy lavish rewards, such as once-in-a-lifetime dining experiences, while members of the losing team must complete strenuous "punishments.'

Perhaps the real test, however, is how the teams perform in the kitchen during an actual dinner service in the Hell's Kitchen restaurant, Following the challenge portion of the competition, the chefs work in a specially designed kitchen — one for the red team and another for the blue team to prepare food for diners in the restaurant. As they struggle to get the food out quickly, they must meet Ramsay's exacting standards as he monitors everything from the front of the kitchen, or "the pass,"

Each week, some of the hopefuls are eliminated, leaving room for the best of the best to battle it out for the ultimate culinary prize: a head chef position at a prestigious restaurant, not to mention bragging rights as the winner of "Hell's Kitchen."

For ravenous fans who just can't get enough of the red-hot series, Fox has already put in an order for season 16. For now, watch how season 15 pans out when the fun begins Friday, Jan. 15, on Fox.

Watney, however, survives the catastrophe and finds himself alone millions of miles from home with no way to let NASA know he's alive. Using only his wit, ingenuity and limited supplies, Watney must figure out how to contact both the team of NASA scientists on Earth, who are desperately looking for him, and his crew, who are planning a bold, near-impossible rescue mission. When Dennis and Jimmy meet, the pair quickly hit it off, forming an unlikely friendship. Based on the true story of Stock's experience with Dean and Life magazine, this film explores a time of flux in the worlds of art and culture. With Dean at the forefront. Hotel Transylvania 2

A lot has changed at Hotel Transylvania, which has left behind its monsters-only policy and now welcomes humans to stay as guests. It's also home to Dennis, Mavis (Gomez) and Johnny's (Samberg) baby boy and Dracula's (Sandler) grandson. Though a proud and loving "vampa," Drac is a little concerned that his halfhuman, half-monster grandson's vampire side doesn't seem to be coming through. When Mavis and Johnny go to visit Johnny's parents in California, Drac and his monster pals set to work putting Dennis through a rigorous monster boot camp to bring out the vampire in him.

Director: Genndy Tartakovsky. Stars: Adam Sandler, Selena Gomez, Andy Samberg, Steve Buscemi, Kevin James. 2015. 89 min. Animated.

Out" (a now-rare leading role for the one-time leading man).

Q: Several of the presidential front-runners are appearing in TV shows like "Saturday Night Live" and "The View." Is this a new trend, or have I never noticed?

A: I would argue it is a new trend, but not a new phenome-

The phenomenon actually dates back to a young senator and presidential hopeful named John F. Kennedy, who appeared in "The Tonight Show" back in 1960 when it was hosted by Jack Paar.

That was a pretty serious affair, though, and didn't look much different than an appearance on a political show

Most cite Bill Clinton's appearance in "The Arsenio Hall Show" in 1992 as the first time a presidential candidate really had fun with it. However, in doing so they ignore a much earlier peared in the hippy-themed "Rowan & Martin's Laugh-In." Granted, he only appeared on

Hollywood Q&A

These were all memorable, but isolated, moments. In terms of the current landscape, Voque magazine's Patricia Garcia argued earlier this year that there is a trend toward candidates appearing on talk shows, and the sitting president is the man who started it.

"The truth is, nobody does talk shows better than POTUS.'

States, for those of you not in the loop.) "After Obama gave late-night TV his presidential stamp of approval, politicians now make a point of visiting talk shows when campaigning.

That's why it does seem almost as if the TV is filling up with potential presidents. Despite this, Donald Trump's deciLive" in the fall seemed like a bold move. However, even that had a precedent — Republican candidate Steve Forbes hosted the legendary sketch show in 1996.
