

If the series is as popular with North American audiences as it's been with the Brits, "Victoria" is sure to prove a most satisfactory replacement for the dearly departed "Downton Abbey." The first season follows a young Queen Victoria (Jenna Coleman, "Doctor Who") in her earliest years on the throne and her courtship and marriage to Prince Albert (Tom Hughes, "The Game"). The new "Masterpiece" series premieres Sunday, Jan. 15, on PBS.

Donning the crown

'Victoria' premieres in old 'Downton Abbey' time-slot

By Jacqueline Spendlove TV Media

ince "Downton Abbey" ended its run last year, a notable hole was left in the hearts of fans of the hit "Masterpiece" series. Happily, there's a new period piece stepping in to fill the void. "Victoria" is a historical drama based on the titular Queen Victoria, whose long reign, passionate marriage and large brood of children provide no shortage of material worthy of prime time. The series premiered in the U.K. last summer. and makes its North American debut Sunday, Jan. 15, on PBS.

If you have an image in your head of Queen Victoria, it's probably similar to mine: an austere and formidable middle-aged woman, clad in black and lace, looking quite important if not exactly a barrel of laughs. To be sure, she was one of the most powerful women in the world during her famously long reign and went into a period of heavy mourning after the death of her beloved husband, Prince Albert of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha, from which she never fully emerged (hence all the black).

Victoria held the crown for 63 years, making her the longest reigning British monarch until her great-great-granddaughter, the current Queen Elizabeth II, overtook her in September 2015. Her rule was a time of much cultural, political and industrial change in the United Kingdom, and saw a great expansion of the British Empire.

She was, however, just 18 years old when she inherited the throne in 1837, tiny and sheltered at just 4-foot-11. She's portrayed in "Victoria" by Jenna Coleman ("Doctor Who"), and the first season examines these earliest years of her reign, from her accession to the throne and her important relationship with Prime Minister and mentor Lord Melbourne (Rufus Sewell, "The Pillars of the Earth") to her early marriage to Albert (Tom Hughes, "The Game") and the birth of their first child.

The series also features Daniela Holtz ("The Forest for the

Jenna Coleman and Daniela Holtz in a scene from "Victoria"

Trees," 2003) as Baroness Lehzen, Victoria's governess who was instrumental in her upbringing; Paul Rhys ("Borgia") as the adversarial John Conroy; and Catherine Flemming ("Simones Labyrinth," 2003) as Victoria's mother, the Duchess of Kent, with whom she had a less-than-ideal relationship.

The freshman series completed its U.K. run back in the fall, and, aside from the odd critique of historical liberties taken, has garnered favorable reviews. It drew an average of 7.6 million viewers, regularly beating fellow period piece and time-slot competitor "Poldark," airing on BBC1. The show has secured a second season renewal along with a Christmas special, which will air later this year. Stateside, it's set to air in the time-slot that "Downton Abbey" held for six years, and it has equally high hopes this side of the pond.

Depicting real people and events always presents a particular set of challenges, with the added pressure of getting all the details right while still delivering a story people are actually interested in tuning in to. Coleman dove head first into her research of the role, uncovering a good deal about the queen that she never knew before; the queen we see on screen may come as a surprise to many viewers as well.

"The role has been quite a revelation actually, and I'm quite surprised at how little I knew," the actress revealed in an interview with The Independent. "A lot of people instinctively say, 'You can't play Victoria. ... She's stern and old and wore black for the rest of her life.' And actually, I don't think people are quite aware of how vivid she is and what a lust for life she has."

The series sees a young and green queen take the throne and step up to the challenge of proving herself worthy of it, age and gender aside. Lacking political experience, she relies heavily on the advice of Lord Melbourne, and their friendship plays an important role in her early reign. Her infatuation with her mentor younger and more handsome than the real, middle-aged Lord Melbourne, who was likely more of a father figure to the queen makes for good TV, but the real love story is between Victoria and her new husband. The marriage between Queen Victoria and Prince Albert is notable for being a love match, as opposed to one made purely for political purposes, as was usually the case with monarchs of the past. In the series, Victoria struggles to prove not only that she is fit to rule the British Empire, but that her husband is right for it — and for her — as well.

While the queen is inarguably the main focus of the series, certain storylines go beyond her and her fellow nobles. "It's a household. It's a piece about Victoria and her inner and outer life, but also about Victoriana, I suppose," Coleman explained in the same interview. "For example, we have a chef, and you see the invention of hot chocolate, you see photography coming in, you see railways starting to appear, you see all the things that shaped the world as it is now."

If the series is as popular with North American audiences as it's been with the Brits, "Victoria" is sure to prove a most satisfactory replacement for the dearly departed "Downton Abbey." The new "Masterpiece" series premieres Sunday, Jan. 15, on PBS.

Giada De Laurentiis shares her best hosting tips on Food Network

By Andrew Warren

he house has been cleaned (at least the rooms that the guests are going to see), the decorations are up and the lovely hors d'oeuvres are heating up in the oven. Hosting a party, whether it's just for a few friends or it's a huge multi-family affair, is a lot of work, but that feeling when you pull it off and everyone spends months talking about it, it's priceless.

Food Network regular Giada De Laurentiis also loves hosting get-togethers, and in her show "Giada Entertains," which airs Sunday evenings, she throws her own fun-filled festivities, while also sharing some of her best tips, recipes and advice to help make any at-home event an extra-special one.

In this week's episode, airing Sunday, Jan. 17, she hosts a cocktail party for some of her friends. Of course, Giada being Giada, this is no ordinary, run-ofthe-mill get-together with a few fancy mixers. No, this is a classic talent show with her quests bringing out their hidden talents for everyone to see, whether that's juggling, playing the guiger foods, and she has just the right recipes — ones that she's happy to share with everyone watching at home.

If such delicacies as candied prosciutto and roasted carrot hummus don't get her guests' mouths watering, then the crab crostinis with lemon and herbs should hopefully do the trick: they're all made from scratch by Giada herself, and she's more than happy to share her recipes with everyone watching at home. In next week's episode, she deals with a situation that we've all experienced: guests popping by unexpectedly. Surprise! Giada doesn't let the chance for an unexpected party pass her by, and she shares her secrets not only for whipping up some quick but succulent treats, but also how to decorate a living room using only what happens to be on hand.

Entertaining is wonderful, but it can also be pretty stressful. With Giada De Laurentiis's tips. tricks and tasty recipes, fun-filled entertaining is a whole lot easier.

The Girl on the Train

Rachel (Blunt) is a recently divorced alcoholic who left her husband, Tom (Theroux), after catching him with another woman. She keeps an eye on her ex-husband and the mother of his child, Anna (Ferguson), when she passes his house on the train each morning, but she also becomes increasingly fascinated with his next-door neighbors, Megan (Bennett) and Scott (Evans), who seem to have the perfect, loving marriage that Rachel never had. Soon enough, Rachel begins stalking Megan, obsessing over the life that seems so perfect.

Director: Tate Taylor. Stars: Emily Blunt, Haley Bennett, Rebecca Fer-

Come and Find Me

David (Paul) and Claire (Wallis) are deeply in love with each other — or so David thinks. When Claire goes missing without leaving any trace, David begins obsessively trying to find out where she went, eventually uncovering clues that suggest the life that she had been living with him had been a sham. He finds out that she had a whole other life that she kept hidden. The truth shocks him as he digs deeper.

Director: Zack Whedon. Stars: Annabelle Wallis, Aaron Paul, Garret Dillahunt, Zachary Knighton. 2016. 112 min. Drama.

The Big Bang Theory

4 8:00 p.m.

Penny (Kaley Cuoco) may not be a nerdy scientist like Leonard (Johnny Galecki) and Sheldon (Jim Parsons), but that doesn't mean she can't teach them a thing or two about the real world. Simon Helberg and Kunal Nayyar also star in this comedy.

Top Chef

BRAVO 9:00 p.m.

The moment of truth arrives as the chefs face the highly anticipated Restaurant Wars challenge in this new episode. The eight remaining competitors are divided into two teams to design a restaurant, create a menu and impress the judges and patrons.

Amanda Righetti as seen in "Colony"

Flip or Flop

нст 9:00 р.т.

In this new episode, things look up for Tarek and Christina when they get a tip about a mid-century house in La Habra, California, that's at the top of a hill. However, with a tight margin, they'll need to get in and out quickly to make a good profit.

Colony

usa 10:00 p.m.

Former FBI agent Will Bowman (Josh Holloway) and his wife, Katie (Sarah Wayne Callies), fight for opposing forces following an alien invasion in this new episode. Amanda Righetti and Peter Jacobson also star in this scifi drama.

Q: Will "North Woods Law," about the fish and game wardens of Maine, be returning for more new shows in 2017? We sure hope it will, as we've gotten to know some of the officers and enjoy them and the series immensely. There show being filmed about the New Hampshire fish and game department. Do you know if this is true?

A: Sadly, the 15 minutes of fame are over for the moose. bears, game wardens and other mythical beasts who reside in Maine's wilderness — "North Woods Law" has been canceled. There's been talk of a Hampshire, but nothing official so far.

Actually, Maine got guite a bit more than 15 minutes — "North Woods Law" aired for four years on Animal Planet, a respectable run for any show, but particularly one as niche as this. A low-budget show about a fairly small law enforcement division in a fairly small and remote state doesn't have the broad appeal that most networks shoot for. The game wardens are the true mythical creatures profiled on the show — Animal Planet frequently describes them as "elite," and the state's Inland Fisheries and Wildlife department touts the team's rigorous training and state-of-the-art technology as being "recognized all over the country." Animal Planet took great pains to showdrama" of life as a game warden in Maine.

As for the New Hampshire version, there was a lot of talk about it back in the spring, when Engel Entertainment, the production company behind the original "North Woods Law," said it was working on a version in the state. "I can't say that it's definite because the broadcaster post-menopausal Some women who have certain types of early-stage breast cancer take "aromatase inhibitors" (AIs), which prohibit the production of estrogen and, thereby, help protect patients with estrogen receptor-positive breast cancer against the risk of the disease returning. However, one of the adverse consequences of this therapy is the risk of bone loss, which can lead to fractures and osteoporosis. With this in mind, the National Comprehensive Cancer Network recommends that a baseline bone-density screening and consider taking bisphosphonates (which slow the breakdown of bone tissue) if they are at risk of osteoporosis. Patients should also inquire about scheduling bone-density follow-up assessments.

Researchers have discovered that bisphosphonates can prevent or slow down the development of myeloma and secondary bone cancers in some people. Cancer cells appear to be attracted to an environment where bones are broken down Researchers hope that stopping this process could slow the growth of cancer and help people live longer. TRANSMISSION CLINIC

It's being reported that the CIA believes Russia influenced our presidential election in favor of Donald Trump. You see? Feel better now popular vote? No? OK. At this point, telling us why Trump won is like the fire department showing up to tell us why our house is currently on fire. Just put it out. We'll talk about it later.

It was revealed that Donald Trump will keep his job as executive producer on the "Celebrity Apprentice" while he is president. It's an absurd, unethical and potentially illegal conflict of interest — only on NBC!

Former mayor Rudy Giuliani has removed himself from consideration for a position in Trump's cabinet, which is a smooth political way of saying Trump didn't pick him. I mean, that's like "Dirty Grandpa" taking itself out of Oscar contention. Or Paula Deen saying she won't accept an NAACP Image Award.

Trump has justified his use of Twitter, saying he'd tweet less if the press did their job better. Or if his Ambien did its job better.
