Sinfully handsome: 'Lucifer' with Tom Ellis returns from hiatus 🗠

By Kyla Brewer TV Media

The devil is in the details, or so the saying goes. When the details include red-hot stars and millions of viewers, the devil has a hit on his hands. Prime time heats up once again as Tom Ellis ("Rush") returns as the devil himself, Lucifer Morningstar, who's given up his post in hell to run a posh nightclub in L.A. in the midseason premiere of "Lucifer," airing Monday, May 1, on Fox.

Inspired by a character from Neil Gaiman's comic book series "The Sandman" and its spinoff "Lucifer," the fantasy drama follows Lucifer as he works with LAPD detective Chloe Decker (Lauren German, "Chicago Fire"), who intrigues Lucifer because she's inexplicably impervious to his powers and somehow renders him vulnerable to physical harm.

The new episode serves as the continuation of the second season, which was given a full-season pickup, fittingly, on Halloween. Fox executive David Madden had high praise for the series when the renewal was announced. "Lucifer' continues to deliver, with great blasts of dark humor and ambitious storytelling," he said. "The show has turned out to be a true wicked pleasure."

The series has been on hiatus since January, and it's clear the first half of season 2 struck a chord with viewers and critics. As of press time, the second season has earned a 100 percent approval rating on popular review aggregator site Rotten Tomatoes, and its success so far prompted an early 22-episode season 3 order from Fox in February. Shortly after that announcement, it was revealed that season 2 would consist of 18 episodes, and four stand-alone episodes would be shifted to season 3.

In early April, some of the cast and executive producers appeared at WonderCon in Anaheim, where they explained the move. "We were worried that we were going to have to sort of pad our arc that we had so carefully, lovingly constructed, but they actually said instead, let's do four stand-alone episodes that can go anywhere," explained executive producer Ildy Modrovich.

Scarlett Estevez as seen in "Lucifer"

A super-sized season 3 is good news for fans, who seem particularly smitten with leading man Ellis. The actor was nominated for a 2016 Teen Choice Award for Breakout Star for his role in the Fox series, but "Lucifer" is hardly his first substantial role. Ellis cut his teeth as Dr. Oliver Cousins in the iconic BBC One soap opera "EastEnders" and as Gary Preston in the British comedy "Miranda" before endearing himself to American audiences in USA Network's "Rush" in 2014.

Co-star German began her Hollywood career in such romances as "Down to You" (2000) and "A Walk to Remember" (2002), but also has scream queen cred thanks to roles in "The Texas Chainsaw Massacre" (2003) and "Hostel: Part II" (2007). As for her television work, she starred as DHS agent Lori Weston in the second season of CBS's "Hawaii Five-0," and appeared as paramedic Leslie Shay in the first two seasons of NBC's "Chicago Fire."

The rest of the cast includes a mix of beautiful Hollywood upand-comers and established TV actors. Lucifer's bestie is a demon named Mazikeen, or Maze for short, played by Lesley-Ann Brandt ("Spartacus: Blood and Sand"). Fox alum D.B. Woodside ("24") portrays Lucifer's brother, Amenadiel, a dark-winged angel sent to Earth to try to convince his sibling to return to hell, and Lucifer's inner circle also includes his Earthly therapist Dr. Linda Martin, portrayed by Rachael Harris ("Diary of a Wimpy Kid," 2010). Near the beginning of season 2, Tricia Helfer ("Battlestar Galactica") joined the cast as Lucifer's mother, who escaped from her prison in hell and took over the body of a recently murdered lawyer. Chloe's allies include her estrapered hysbard Det Dap Erpi tranged husband Det. Dan Espinoza (Kevin Alejandro, "Arrow"), who was demoted for his involvement in police corruption. Child actress Scarlett Estevez ("Daddy's Home," 2015) plays Chloe and Dan's daughter, Trixie, who befriends Lucifer. Aimee Garcia ("Dexter") joined the season 2 cast as Chloe's LAPD colleague Ella Lopez.

In other season 2 casting news, Michael Imperioli ("The Sopranos") signed on as Uriel, Lucifer and Amendiel's other brother. While it appeared Lucifer had finished off Uriel in the first part of the season, Imperioli's appearance in the midseason finale has fans wondering if they'll see more of him.

New cast members aren't the only things changing for "Lucifer." After filming the first two seasons in Vancouver, B.C., the show will move to Los Angeles. While the move is undoubtedly a loss for the Vancouver entertainment industry, it makes sense for the show, which is, of course, set in L.A. The move was prompted by new state tax credits that make filming stateside more appealing.

It appears millions of TV viewers find "Lucifer" intriguing. According to Fox, the show averages eight million multi-platform viewers, so it looks as if the show may be around for a while yet. Find out what happens in the midseason premiere of "Lucifer," airing Monday, May 1, on Fox.

Kevin Can Wait

8:00 p.m.

Kevin (Kevin James) goes undercover when he agrees to come out of retirement to assist with an investigation in this new episode. James's former "The King of Queens" co-star, Leah Remini, guest stars as Officer Vanessa Cellucci, who poses as Kevin's wife.

Southern Charm

BRAVO 9:00 p.m.

Determined to find her life's purpose, Cameran turns to the supernatural for clues in this new episode. At the same time, Thomas takes a leap of faith and asks Landon out on a date. Also, Naomie is pushed to her boiling point.

MONDAY PRIME TIME

Kevin James stars in "Kevin Can Wait"

Lucifer

25 9:00 p.m.

Lucifer (Tom Ellis) cuts off all contact with his family and the police department following Chloe's (Lauren German) near-death experience in this new episode. He resurfaces, though, in time to help investigate the murder of an aspiring musician.

Scorpion

④ 10:00 p.m.

The team must extinguish a tunnel fire, but the job isn't as simple as it seems in this new episode. Also, their brilliant teammates help Toby (Eddie Kaye Thomas) and Happy (Jadyn Wong) race to the altar to finally say "I do."

Pint-sized cooks show off their BBQ skills in 'Kids BBQ Championship'

Eddie Jackson and Damaris Phillips as seen in "Kids BBQ Championship"

By Andrew Warren TV Media

hether it's propanefired, slow-burning charcoal or even good old-fashioned wood, a grill is a wonderful tool to cook with. Hot. Smoky. And while purists will be quick to point out the big difference between grilling and barbecuing, for the average backyard cooking enthusiast, the terms are used pretty interchangeably.

With the mercury rising in the early days of May, Food Network has the grills fired up, the smokers well stoked and a whole host of grill masters ready to compete in an outdoor culinary battle. It's been said that barbecue is an art, and if that's the case, then these competitors must be prodigies.

Why's that? Well, because these masters of the grill haven't had all that much time to perfect their craft. Season 2 of "Kids BBQ Championship" premieres Monday, May 1, on Food Network, with a bevy of pint-sized chefs ready to face off in culinary battle over open flames.

"Southern at Heart" host Damaris Phillips joins last season's "Kids BBQ Championship" host Eddie Jackson — both of whom happen to be "Food Network Star" winners — to host this year's competition. In their outdoor ranch-inspired kitchen, they welcome four young grill masters each episode for two rounds of fiery cooking competition.

For the kids, there's glory and recognition to be had; after all, winning a cooking competition like this at such a young age can really kickstart a culinary career. Of course, the $10,000 prize that the winner of each episode gets to take home is a pretty good reason to compete, too.

Whether it's cooking a hearty chuckwagon meal or barbecuing some succulent baby back ribs, the kids' skills are on full display throughout the competition, with New York barbecue maverick Shannon Ambrosio, selfstyled "hardcore carnivore" Jess Pryles, "BBQ Crawl" host Diva Q and "Man Fire Food" host Roger Mooking taking turns as judges throughout the competition.

It can be pork, beef, chicken or something more exotic ---there's a place for all meats when cooking outdoors. Even veggies have their place, and for the kiddy competitors, they all come together to make a winning dish — hopefully. "Kids BBQ Championship" premieres Monday, May 1, on Food Net-

Hollywood Q&A in the Amazon alternate-historical

drama "The Man in the High Castle," is from Twickenham, a rather

Ian McShane, best known as the foul-mouthed saloon owner

Al Swearengen in "Deadwood"

or previously as the titular antiques dealer in A&E's turn-of-the-'90s mystery show "Lovejoy," is from the very workingupscale city on the outskirts of class city of Manchester. That said, his family was part of a particular kind of working class his dad was a professional soccer player for Manchester United.

Q: I know Charlie Sheen and Martin Sheen worked together a fair bit, but what about Martin Sheen and Emilio Estevez?

A: Given that brat-packer Emilio Estevez opted to go with a different last name when he began pursuing an acting career, not everyone knows that he's also the son of American film great Martin Sheen (and thus the brother of the perhaps less-great Charlie Sheen).

And though they were never quite as high profile as 1987's "Wall Street" (the biggest Martinand-Charlie collaboration). Martin and Emilio have worked together on quite a few projects. All of them have taken advantage of their familial relationship somehow.

They've taken on the natural roles of father and son in a number of films, most recently (and heartwarmingly) in the 2010 indie drama "The Way."

Q: Are Rufus Sewell and Ian McShane related? They're both British, and there is a strong resemblance.

A: The two actors do share similar curly-hairedness and sunken, penetrating eyes, which might be why they've both gravitated toward more villainous, or at least complicated, roles (the eyes might, at least — I don't know if curly hair is supposed to be particularly villainous). However, the relation ends there.

Though both are English, they hail from very different parts of the country. Rufus Sewell, best known these days for his recent turn as Lord Melbourne in the PBS historical drama "Victoria" or as John Smith

[#] Late laughs

The Tonight Show With Jimmy Fallon

I heard that the White House is saving all of President Trump's tweets, so they can be stored in the National Archives. That way, future generations can read Kennedy's journals, Lincoln's diaries and Trump's insults about Arnold Schwarzenegger.

Oreos just launched a new limited edition flavor called "Cookies & Creme." Or as it's also known, Oreos.

April

I read that President Trump's approval rating dropped and is now at just 35 percent. Or as Trump calls it, "20 under par."

The Late Show With Stephen Colbert

There's drama brewing in Washington because the Senate is about to vote on [Supreme Court] nominee Neil Gorsuch. But Democrats aren't going to let Gorsuch get confirmed without a fight. Sure, it's a fight they're going to lose — but those are the kinds of fights Democrats love.

It's been a busy few weeks for the president. Every day he gets to work, rolls up his sleeves and gives a new job to Jared Kushner.

This weekend, Jared Kushner's to-do list got even longer when he made a surprise visit to Iraq. He wanted to go somewhere with less sectarian violence than the White House.

A judge just ruled Trump can be sued for inciting violence against protesters at a campaign rally. Although, I'm really more upset that he incited voting.

We have a deeply divided nation. But today it seems like everyone has come together to join the protest against the new protest ad from Pepsi.

The Late Late Show With James Corden

North Carolina beat Gonzaga to win the whole thing in a game that was just back and forth the whole night, which means March Madness is officially over. And CBS now returns to your regularly scheduled Trump Madness already in progress.

Here's the thing, Gonzaga: In many ways, you are actually the lucky ones. You don't have to get your picture taken with the president. It's a lose-win.

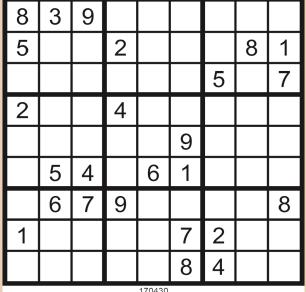

This week, the National Archives reached out to the White House and requested that all of the president's tweets be saved and preserved for history. Future generations: I'm so, so sorry.

The National Archives will showcase all the great pillars of American democracy the Declaration of Independence, the U.S. Constitution and the "I have never seen a thin person drinking Diet Coke" tweet. On the bright side, one day we will have a movie where Nicolas Cage tries to steal that tweet.

The National Archives and Records Administration in Washington, D.C. — this is where they store the Constitution, the Declaration of Independence, the Gettysburg Address — they have asked the White House to save all of President Trump's tweets. You know, it's important to have all the president's tweets, so that future historians will be able to go back and see what was on Fox News that day.

The president has been very busy this week. Yesterday, he signed a bill that will allow Internet service providers to collect and share your personal information and search history without asking your permission. We still can't see his tax returns. but they can see what we do online.

Late Night With Seth Meyers

Bed Bath & Beyond recently announced that it will continue to sell Ivanka Trump products. So be sure to pick up her new line of "How Do You Sleep At Night?" pillows.

Virginia police are investigating vandalism at Trump National Golf Club over the weekend. They found graffiti that said, "Help! I don't want to be president anymore!"
