AGENCY & CASE NO. 10-98439

COURT CASE NO.:

THE ABOVE-NAMED COMPLAINING WITNESS BEING DULY SWORN SAYS THAT THE ABOVE-NAMED DEFENDANT, IN THE CITY OF MADISON, DANE COUNTY, WISCONSIN, on the dates indicated below in the City of Madison, WI, DID:

On April 14, 2010, Madison Police Department Central District Community Policing Team (“CPT”) was conducting an investigation of an on-line business known as Campusdrank.com. Individuals could order alcohol for delivery in the Madison area through the Campusdrank.com website. CPT arranged a “buy” from the website using Madison Police Officer Stephanie Drescher. Officer Drescher ordered the alcohol on the Campusdrank.com website and paid for it with a prepaid Visa card. Campusdrank indicated to Officer Drescher that the alcohol would be delivered between the hours of 5:30 p.m. and 9 p.m. Officer Drescher gave an address on Main Street in Madison for delivery. Officer Drescher noticed that there is no place on the website to enter a date of birth when ordering the alcohol. Officer Drescher ordered a 30-pack of Keystone Light beer and a bottle of Svedka vodka. After making the purchase, Officer Drescher observed that there was no receipt of the purchase associated with the gmail account from which she accessed the Campusdrank website and made the purchase. Around 7:00 p.m. On April 14, 2010, Officer Drescher received a phone call from a subject who stated that he was in the process of completing the transaction and that he was going to University Liquor to pick up the alcohol. CPT Officers determined from the cell phone number that the individual calling Officer Drescher was Matthew Seigel. Seigel arrived at the Main Street address with the alcohol and asked Officer Drescher, who was in plain clothes, for an ID. Drescher stated that she did not have an ID because she had recently moved into the apartment complex. Seigel responded, "It's ok, you look over 21 anyway." Seigel did not confirm that Drescher was the individual who ordered the alcohol, and left without seeing any identification. Seigel did not identify himself to Officer Drescher.

After Seigel walked away from the apartment, CPT Officers made contact with him and identified him. Seigel told Officer Linda Trevarthen that he was delivering alcohol to 427 W. Main Street, which was where Officer Drescher was posted. Seigel went on to say that he had started a company called Campusdrank and that he was delivering alcohol for the company. Seigel stated that his business partner was Daniel Haber and that Haber was actually the one who started the business. Seigel told Officer Trevarthen that when an order is placed through the website, he gets an email on his cell phone and an email simultaneously goes to University Liquor. University Liquor then fills the order and sets it aside for Seigel or Haber to pick up and deliver. Seigel stated that University Liquor gives Campusdrank a discount for all alcohol purchased through Campusdrank. Seigel stated that when the customer orders they pay with credit, paypal or cash on delivery. Customers pay a price for the alcohol that is more than what Seigel and Haber purchase if for from University Liquor.

Seigel stated that he and Haber contacted University Liquor about a contract and that Seigel and Haber have a written contract with University Liquor. Seigel stated that Campusdrank's cut is approximately 15 percent for liquor and he wasn't sure about beer. Seigel stated they had been in business since November 2009. Seigel stated that Campusdrank charge customers a $2 delivery fee.

Seigel stated that he had a lawyer look at the contract that he and Haber had with University Liquor and that Alderman Mike Verveer had looked over the contract and the City ordinance and gave Seigel and Haber a copy of the ordinance. Seigel stated that Verveer indicated everything was good for them to go with the business based on what he thought was a "loophole" in the ordinance regarding delivery.

Seigel provided Officer Trevarthen with a copy of the contract with University Liquor and said that the individuals they were dealing with at University Liquor were Joel and Herbie. Officer Brian Chaney made contact with the owners of University Avenue liquor, Herbert Taylor and Joel Kouba. Kouba told Officer Chaney that he would provide an email of each of the order invoices University Liquor filled for Campusdrank but then decided it would be easier if he gave Officer Chaney access to the Gmail email account to which the orders were delivered from the Campusdrank website. The order emails indicated an order number, name of person ordering, delivery address, and what specifically was ordered.

CPT Officers reviewed the order information and were able to determine that a large number of the deliveries were made to underage individuals. Matthew Seigel does not have a liquor license of any kind and is under the legal drinking age with a date of birth of 8/1990.
