DID YOU KNOW?

In 2015, St. Clair County was ranked No. 16 in the state in health outcomes by countyhealthrankings.org, a project of the nonprofit Robert Wood Johnson Foundation. Although the County dropped in state rankings from 2014 (13) to 2015 (16), the rankings reflect high marks — most well above the state average — in areas of life expectancy and quality of life.

McKinnon's Pharmacy

A 50-year legacy of quality service in downtown Leeds

McKinnon Pharmacy manager Kyle McKinnon, above, took over the family business in 2011 after his father passed away. The store's vibrant staff, including Pharmacist Katherine Withrow and Technician Amanda Bailey, left, have ensured the pharmacy's success in Leeds through years of quality customer service.

In 1962, Ralph McKinnon opened up McKinnon's Pharmacy, an independently owned business focused on providing the community with quality and personal service. The family-owned and operated pharmacy was originally located in downtown Leeds, and it's been there ever since.

Between 1962 and 1977, the pharmacy changed locations three times, but it never left the area. Then, in 1977, McKinnon's moved into its fourth and current location, a 5,000 square foot building on 1st Avenue.

In 2013, Ralph McKinnon passed away, leaving his business to his wife and son. His son Kyle stepped in to help run the family business and has been working diligently to maintain the legacy his father left behind. He remembers his father's dedication to his customers vividly.

"I remember on a Christmas morning the phone was ringing, and it was someone who desperately needed to have a prescription filled. Without hesitation, my dad went out and opened up the store to make sure they were taken care of," McKinnon said.

The memories tied to the pharmacy span from birth to adulthood for the pharmacy manager.

"My dad was a huge Crimson Tide fan, and on Saturdays we would have the games on in the store and we would just spend the day together," recalled McKinnon.

Having that personal tie to the business has helped him keep his focus on serving the local community. The main benefit of using an independent pharmacy is the personal service offered to customers.

Pharmacist Katherine Withrow has more than a decade of experience in the pharmaceutical industry, and it's available for all customers, new and old.

"Katherine is great with being available to talk personally to customers, to make sure they're getting the best prices possible and help sync their medication cycles to make it easier on them," McKinnon said. With customers from all over the region, the staff at McKinnon's works tirelessly to make getting prescriptions filled as simple as possible.

"If there are problems with customers insurance carriers, I will contact the insurance company myself and help solve the problem," Withrow said.

Pharmacy Technician Amanda Bailey said, "We love having our loyal customers come in, and we try to do the hard work for them by calling and reminding them when their prescriptions are about to run out."

Throughout the years, McKinnon's Pharmacy has expanded its inventory to include much more than just pharmaceuticals. They now offer a great selection of high quality vapor products and electronic cigarettes.

In addition to the personal service, convenience is key for the staff at McKinnon's.

"We try to have prescriptions ready in 10 minutes," McKinnon said. This focus on customer satisfaction is what has made the pharmacy a staple in the community for over 50 years.

To cancer, age matters not

Stephanie Smith took on an extremely rare form of breast cancer at 28 years old that required a double mastectomy. She was declared cancer free last year after months of grueling chemotherapy.

Stephanie Smith reached up to feel the lump in her chest. It had grown significantly in the past two days, she thought. She knew it was time to see a doctor.

Stephanie, 28, had noticed the lump earlier that week. She was lying down in her bedroom, attentive to her squirming daughter, Adalyn, and as the two played together the toddler accidentally hit Stephanie in the chest.

While normally the 2-year-old's accidental swat wouldn't faze the young mom, this time was different. It caused a sharp pain. She got up and went to investigate and felt a lump she knew had not always been there. Soon after, her husband, Adam, confirmed her suspicions. The mass was not normal.

Stephanie checked it for the next two days, and she could tell that it was growing. Upon that unsettling realization, Smith saw her OBGYN.

At her appointment, the doctor administered a mammogram and ultrasound. After they ran the tests, Stephanie and Adam waited in the room for what felt like forever, she said, thinking the whole time that something wasn't right. Her doctor confirmed it when he finally came back to the room.

"It's not good," he told the couple.

Stephanie and Adam were sent immediately to St. Vincent's Birmingham to undergo further testing. Once there, Stephanie was diagnosed with sarcoma cancer, a form of cancer that develops in either the bone or soft tissues. She was advised to get a double mastectomy as soon as possible.

"I sat there, numb," she said. "I had a suspicion something was wrong, but I was not prepared for cancer at 28."

The medical staff at St. Vincent's sent a biopsy of her tumor to Vanderbilt University for a second opinion. Vanderbilt categorized the mass as "very serious" and measuring 5 centimeters.

Because of the rarity of Stephanie's particular type of cancer, she was advised to travel to Houston to receive treatment from MD Anderson's cancer center. After arriving in Texas, she learned more about her situation.

Stephanie was told that she had undifferentiated pleomorphic sarcoma — a very rare form of breast cancer. A double mastectomy was inevitable.

After the procedure, she underwent intense and frequent chemotherapy treatment. Because of the type of chemo she needed, each treatment meant a six-day stay in the hospital.

"My family and friends were amazing; I always had someone with me during the day," Stephanie said. "I didn't realize how strong the community bond was before I had this experience."

"Going through something like that makes you realize that nothing is certain."

Her doctor referred to her being diagnosed with cancer as a "lightning strike," completely random and unpredictable. A lack of family history does not always signify safety from being diagnosed with cancer of any kind. Age is also not a determining factor in the conception of cancer.

In February of 2014, Stephanie completed her last round of chemotherapy. After her long and tumultuous battle with cancer, she had finally beaten it.

Since being declared cancer-free, Stephanie continues to work and reside in Pell City. "There is no place I'd rather raise my daughter than here," Smith said, "I have the assurance she will grow up constantly surrounded by copious amounts of love and support."

How Faith found hope against cancer

Shannon and Christy Ginn traveled with their children to China three years ago to welcome their new daughter, Faith to the family. They have surrounded her with love throughout her fight with cancer.

In 2013, Shannon and Christy Ginn traveled with their family to China to meet their family's newest addition. Faith was in an orphanage there and the Ginns were eager to bring her back to Pell City and welcome her into their family officially.

Since then, the now 6-year-old has settled into her life consisting of two loving parents, three older siblings, and a welcoming community.

But on May 15, 2015, Faith became sick. She stayed home from school and spent the day resting. Upon waking from a nap, her parents noticed an alarming change in their daughter and feared she had suffered a stroke. They immediately rushed her to the hospital, where they learned she had a brain tumor that was bleeding.

Faith's short life had not been an easy one. She had suffered a brain injury at birth and because of that, had severe brain damage. The orphanage had not spent time working with her to help her develop motor skills, so she spent her days confined to a bed without much hope.

Little did she know, with her new family would come even more hope than anyone could have foreseen.

The type of tumor Faith has is called a Pilocyctic Astrocytoma. Once they diagnosed her, she stayed in the hospital for nine days recovering.

Following her surgery, Faith is currently undergoing weekly chemotherapy treatments. She has chemo on Wednesdays.

Throughout the months of treatment, the outpouring of support from the Ginns' neighbors and friends has been overwhelming for the couple.

"Every week when we spend the day at the hospital for her chemo, we come home to dinner completely prepared and waiting for us," Shannon said. "It's been amazing the way people have helped us, tangibly and intangibly. When she was going through surgery, people did our yard work, made us meals and constantly let us know we were in their thoughts and prayers."

Shannon's colleagues and students at Jefferson State Community College held a "Hope for Faith" rally to show their support for Faith and our family during her initial hospitalization. Also, one of the departments gifted Faith with approximately 20 hats on her birthday because her hair had started to come out from the chemo.

In addition to the St. Clair

Faith Ginn was adopted by a Pell City family in 2013. Two years later, she was diagnosed with brain cancer. Faith is currently undergoing chemotherapy treatments.

County support, the J.O.Y. Quilters of Jacksonville handcrafted a quilt for Faith. She uses it every week during her chemo treatments.

Faith's classmates have been finding ways to support their friend, as well. Students at Coosa Valley Elementary School are running a lemonade stand and donating all proceeds to Alex's Lemonade Stand, a national organization dedicated to finding a cure for brain cancer.

"Since her diagnosis, the other kids have been so willing to help fundraise for cancer because it is now a personal cause for them," Shannon said.

Shannon and Christy have created a Facebook page for those wanting to keep up with Faith during her treatments. The page is called Hope for Faith.

ST. VINCENT'S CLERGY WELLNESS INITIATIVE CALLS FOR APPLICANTS

St. Vincent's Health System is calling for applicants for its Clergy Wellness Initiative, which helps local faith leaders meet their health goals through a tailored wellness program.

Since the Clergy Wellness Initiative kicked off in 2012, the program has continued to grow across the Birmingham area. Last year, more than 55 clergy members participated in the nine-month program, during which participants receive personal training sessions, membership at St. Vincent's fitness centers and invitations to two monthly "Lunch and Learn" sessions on a wide range of topics. This year, participating clergy will celebrate their hard work at the end the program by walking in the American Heart Association's Birmingham Heart Walk Saturday, June 11.

"The Clergy Wellness program at St. Vincent's has had a greater impact on my health and wellness than I could have ever imagined," said Sarah Shelton, a pastor at Baptist Church of the Covenant and past Clergy Wellness participant.

If you're interested in applying for this program, please contact Tineciaa Harris, at (205) 558-3597 or tineciaa.harris@stvhs.com. To apply, you must be a licensed or ordained clergy member in a senior leadership position of a local ministry. The deadline for applications is May 1, 2016. The program will start in August 2016 and continue through June 2017.

With procedures like TAVR, where we can replace a heart valve without opening the chest, St. Vincent's Birmingham and St. Vincent's East continue to be on the forefront of minimally invasive heart procedures. This leads to quicker recovery times and minimizes overall pain and complications. That's just one way our skill and knowledge make us The Heart Experts.
