City Council approves site plan, development agreement for apartment complex

By DUANE NOLLEN
The Oskaloosa Herald

OSKALOOSA — The Oskaloosa City Council unanimously approved the site plan and development agreement for a 48-unit apartment complex on High Avenue West at its meeting Monday night.

The Reserves at Ironwood will be located at 1302 and 1320 High Ave. W. on a 4.09 acre plot in a Multiple Family Residential (R3) district.

The housing complex will include three two-story apartment buildings each 9,900-square-foot along with a 1,725-square-foot, one-story community clubhouse for a total of 31,425 square feet. The complex also will have 109 stand parking spaces and seven handicap-accessible parking spaces, according to Oskaloosa city documents.

The Planning and Zoning Commission approved the site plan on Sept. 8 with some stipulations — The Water Department needs bring in an 8-inch water main; additional right of way needs to be dedicated to the city along South L Street for a proposed sidewalk; quarterly inspections and clean out of a detention basin; site impervious area shall be 70 percent or less; add ADA ramps; the landscape plan should include the right for the city to require additional barrier to block vehicular lighting; the water section of the cover sheet should read “Oskaloosa” and not “Washington”; and the east wall of Building B must be at least 13 feet from the adjacent property line.

Oskaloosa City Manager Michael Schrock Jr. said the developers worked very closely with city staff on the planning for the project.

“We’re pleased to see this,” Schrock said.

City Councilman Tom Walling asked about the income guidelines for the occupants.

Development partner Brett Johnson of Overland Property Group said that incomes could range from the $38,000 for a family of three down to someone who makes $15 per hour. Rent for a one-bedroom apartment could range from $425 to $675 per month.

“We’re not Section 8,” he said.

“We’re ready to close now,” Johnson said.

Council member Doug Yates asked when people would see activity at the site.

Johnson said that abatement would take two to three weeks from the time of closing. Demolition would take another two to three weeks, he added.

OPINION

Little comfort in Obama’s poll-tested resolve to destroy ‘ISIL’

By TAYLOR ARMERDING
CNHI News Service

I want to believe. I want to believe that President Obama wants to win a war even more than he wants to get a bounce in the polls to help Democrats hold at least one house of Congress in this fall’s mid-term elections.

I want to believe that he is truly resolved not just to degrade, but to destroy the terrorists who call themselves the Islamic State and who he calls ISIL – the Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant.

Obama did project serious resolve when he spoke to the nation recently, calling ISIL a terrorist organization with “no vision other than the slaughter of all who stand in its way.”

That’s an overdue and welcome change from his scornful dismissal of the group last January as a “JV team” after it had taken over Fallujah.

But once the aura of the presidential delivery and tone is removed, and the speech is reduced simply to the words spoken, it does not inspire confidence that by this time next year, ISIL will be crushed and some form of stability will return to the Middle East.

And that is largely because this was clearly a poll-tested event, designed more to prop up the president’s sagging popularity than to confront and defeat a terrorist threat and a fascist ideology.

The president’s opening made that obvious. Instead of focusing immediately on the threat at hand, he had to spend a few minutes bragging about the killing of Osama bin-Laden and ending the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan.

After which, he said, “America is safer.”

Really? If we’re safer, why the need for major military action, especially in Iraq, which he declared was “sovereign, stable and self-reliant” when he pulled out American troops?

Why spend more blood and treasure there, when that money could surely be used at home on the usual list of entitled groups – the middle class, the “children” and the “most vulnerable among us”?

The president also couldn’t resist trying to convince us how robust the economy is under his stewardship. “Our businesses are in the longest uninterrupted stretch of job creation in our history,” he said.

Whaaaat? Is job creation going to defeat ISIL?

And when it came to the professed purpose of his speech, Obama once again told Americans what he believes they want to hear. After the gruesome beheadings of two American journalists and declarations from top military commanders and Defense Secretary Chuck Hagel on what an extreme threat ISIL poses, polls show that a majority of Americans, while weary of war, favor military action against ISIL.

So that’s what the president served up: We are not going to war. This will not be another Iraq or Afghanistan. This will not even be an armed conflict. It will simply be a “counter-terrorism campaign.” The only military actions will be from manned airstrikes or the more antiseptic drones.

There will be no ground troops. America will simply send a few hundred, non-combat forces to provide support and intelligence to local armies and militia.

Little pain, big gain.

But there are multiple holes in the president’s assurances that all will be well.

He claimed that this “campaign” would include a “broad coalition.” How broad? He didn’t say, probably because as analysts on both sides of the political divide have noted, so far that includes only nine nations, which compares poorly with the 37-nation coalition assembled by the George W. Bush administration in 2003.

The president continued to turn rhetorical backflips to avoid offending Muslims. He claimed that ISIL has nothing to do with Islam, which prompted a blizzard of comments on why he then uses the acronym ISIL, since the first letter stands for “Islamic.”

He announced that the United States will now provide additional arms and training to Syrian rebels, never explaining why he had changed his recent view that it was a “fantasy” to think that more support for those rebels would make a difference since they were simply “former doctors, farmers, pharmacists and so forth.”

What happened? Have they suddenly morphed into the kind of highly trained, bloodthirsty warriors that they will be confronting?

The president, while claiming America is safer, never addressed the reality that hundreds of disaffected Americans have joined ISIL and are highly motivated to return to the United States and slaughter as many of their fellow citizens as possible in a blaze of suicidal glory.

So what if their passports are revoked? Is the president unaware of how porous American borders are thanks to his “compassionate” stance toward illegal immigration?

He said his strategy of “support” for local forces without committing American combat troops has worked successfully in Yemen and Somalia for years.

Not according to most neutral observers, who point out that al-Qaida in the Arabian Peninsula (Yemen) and al-Shabaab (Somalia) remain credible terrorist threats.

Even the president’s declaration that “if you threaten America, you will find no safe haven” was undermined by his claim that this has been “a core principle of my presidency.” If it is, he has kept it well hidden.

Countries don’t always get to decide if they are at war or not. The one facing us now is not one we sought or chose. But ISIL leaders know they are at war with us. It doesn’t show much resolve - or intent to win - to say we are not at war with them.

ARTIFACT

Dou know what this is?

By DUANE NOLLEN
The Oskaloosa Herald

OSKALOOSA — This past week's artifact from the Nelson Pioneer Farm is a stereo amplifier.

Some people made a guess as to the identity of the artifact.

Dorothy Vos wrote via email "This is strictly a guess, but could that be the PA system that Milo Steele from Washington, Iowa donated to the museum when they first started using a sound system (early 80's) for what was at that time called The Nelson Pioneer Farm Crafts Festival."

Dan Kalbach also wrote via email: "This appears to be a 60's-vintage tube-type stereo audio amplifier viewed from the rear of the chassis."

Nelson Pioneer Farm Curator Kelly Halbert did some research on the artifact. She wrote: "Stereo Amplifier

The artifact is the back view of a 1963 48 Watt Stereo Amplifier. It was built from a kit supplied by H.H. Scott, Inc. of Massachusetts along with several other components of a complete stereo system. The tubes and transformers were of the latest design for the time, but were replaced within a decade as technology advanced.

This Scott Stereo Amplifier has tape monitoring facilities, ear-phone jacks and a switch to shut off the stereo speakers. Most stereos had two speakers, but this amplifier allowed the owner to connect a third speaker to the system. Sales points from the advertising brochure promote massive output transformers and non-magnetic electrolytic aluminum chassis that reduces hum.

Hermon Scott was instrumental in providing components for stereos, radio equipment and audio instruments. In 1946 he developed a noise suppressor that effectively opened the high fidelity sound industry. The first FM-AM tuner was invented in 1955 and ready for the listening public when the FCC approved stereo transmissions of FM stations in April 1961."

The Oskaloosa Herald and the Nelson Pioneer Farm are teaming up to test your knowledge of historical artifacts.

The Nelson Pioneer Farm has about 15,000 artifacts in its collection spanning in age from the 1840s to the present.

The Herald will take a picture of an artifact and publish it in the Herald section of the Oskaloosa Shopper, The Oskaloosa Herald and the Herald's Web site, www.oskaloosa.com. People can make a guess on what they think the object could be.

People can either email their guess to oskynews@oskyherald.com or mail their guess to The Oskaloosa Herald, P.O. Box 530, Oskaloosa, IA 52577. You can vote from Wednesday through Saturday.

The identity of the artifact and the vote breakdown will be announced in each Wednesday's Herald Shopper along with the week's new artifact.

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-Average; 2-So-so; 1-Difficult

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★ Others might decide on a new beginning, which could result in a discussion about what is going on around you. Your questions will prove to be instrumental and are likely to expose what is really happening. Tonight: Try not to explain to others what is going on.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★★ Pace yourself, and know what is important and what needs to occur. You might need to make a decision about a health-related matter, and this time it just might stick. Feel free to examine what someone really means. Be nice. Tonight: Kick back and relax.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★★ You might want to mingle and share with others, but a loved one could be demanding your attention. Don't try to bypass this person, as it likely will only cause an argument. A project seems to be infused with new energy. Tonight: Pain the town red.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★ You could be concerned about a loved one and what he or she has to offer in a particular situation. You will notice how others' perceptions are very different from those of the person in question. You could see a problem evolving far too quickly for your taste. Tonight: Be close to home.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★★ You could want a change of pace. It is up to you to create it, though, as others are likely to be demanding. Consider how much you are valued before deciding not to answer your phone. Make a point to create more time for your concerns. Tonight: Take a midweek trip.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★ Be sensitive to others, and know that you have extra leeway to respond. You might want to avoid a situation that surrounds a business arrangement involving property. The timing might be off to resolve the issue immediately. Tonight: Time to treat a pal to some munchies.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★ You seem to have the energy to handle whatever comes down the path, except perhaps an irate individual. Be careful when dealing with this person, as you could say something you will regret later. On the other hand, do not sit on your anger. Tonight: Only where you can relax.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★ You might want to open up a conversation. You know that you don't always have all the right answers. A brainstorming session could point to quite a few different paths. Don't try to be logical with someone who is a bit zany; just be polite. Tonight: Get some shopping done.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★★ You might be coming off as being a lot more assertive than you realize. Remain confident that you will fight for what you want. Try to allow others to come over to your way of thinking by giving them enough time and space. Tonight: All smiles.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★ Try to read between the lines when dealing with a parent or someone you care about. Understand that you might need to bypass this person's interference in your life yet still make a point to honor this person and his or her goals. Tonight: In the limelight.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★★ You could be getting mixed signals from a loved one at a distance. You also could be misreading a situation and projecting some personal issues into the mix. Try to have a conversation so you can ask more questions. Tonight: Let your hair down.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ You could have a lot going on in your life regarding a partner or a financial matter. You might be pondering what is important and what would be best in the long run. There could be many twists and turns in the road ahead. Tonight: An intense talk with a favorite person.

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Divorced dad's girlfriend wants nothing to do with his kids

DEAR ABBY: I am a 42-year-old divorced father of two. I have had a girlfriend, "Dawn," for about a year. She has met my kids, but she's still uncomfortable with the "situation." She has concerns about me having been married before, such as having experienced many of the firsts she has yet to enjoy.

Dawn doesn't like being in my house because I had it when I was married, and she says my kids remind her of my past. She says she doesn't want to share me with anyone, including them.

When we're alone, we are absolutely phenomenal as a couple. We love and care about each other deeply. This is causing a tremendous amount of stress on us, and neither of us knows how to handle it or what to do. Please help. — TWO'S COMPANY IN ILLINOIS

DEAR TWO'S COMPANY: Forgive me for being blunt, but you need to break it off with this woman before you waste any more of her time or yours. You may be crazy about Dawn, but your first responsibility must be to your children, and she has made it clear how she feels about them.

You may be phenomenal as a couple, but there are more people involved than just the two of you. She needs to find someone who has no encum-brances, and you need to find a lady who has a greater capacity for love than Dawn appears to be capable of.

DEAR ABBY: I often eat out with friends when we travel and when we're here at home. Some of them bring their own canned drinks or powdered drink mix to add to water served by the restaurant. I have an uneasy feeling about this. I don't think it is right to take my own drink into an eating establishment.

I have never said anything negative about it, but I haven't joined in the practice. Is my discomfort MY problem? What do you think about this? — TESTY SOUTHERN BELLE

DEAR BELLE: What I think about it is less important than what the restaurant does, and not knowing the reason your friends behave this way, I am hesitant to judge them. I'm not sure what kind of canned or powdered drink your friends are bringing, but if they are on some kind of restricted diet, then it's what they need to do for a while. If the restaurant objected, the manager would either tell your friends not to do anymore or institute a charge to make up for the lost income.

DEAR ABBY: I have been with "Russell" for four months. We live together and eventually would like to be married. Russ is very honest. He told me he had impregnated a woman prior to me and she was eight months pregnant. I asked him to contact her on my behalf so I can meet her, since we plan on having a future together.

When I called the woman to suggest we meet somewhere, she cursed me out for contacting her and for telling her she can't communicate with Russ unless I'm involved. When Russ told her the same thing, she ordered him not to contact her again.

Russ has tried calling her since then because he wants to be involved in his child's life, but she never called him back. What do you think we should do? — LOOKING TOWARD THE FUTURE

DEAR LOOKING: What Russell should do — and you, as well — is talk with an attorney to establish exactly what his rights and responsibilities will be to his child, once paternity has been established.

National Farm Safety & Health Week September 21-27, 2014

Runovers are preventable

A farm tractor is an essential piece of equipment that no farmer could do without. It serves many functions - pulling the trailers, balers, plows and shredders needed to prepare the land and harvest the crops. But because of its size and weight, it is also potentially dangerous, and should be handled with care.

In fact, about 44% of child fatalities on a farm are caused by runovers. Small children, especially, may not be visible from the cabin of the tractor. Before moving a tractor, walk around the vehicle to make sure youngsters are not playing nearby, or have another person as a guide when working in areas where there are likely to be children.

Even better, create a fenced-in play area for children so they are less likely to venture close to operating machinery. Before dismounting from a tractor, turn off the ignition. This will ensure that a child who leaves the play area can't accidentally put it in gear. Runovers can also be caused if the vibration from an idling tractor engages the transmission.

It's not only children at risk. The noise of the machine may make it difficult to hear nearby co-workers. About one in four farm-related deaths, and one in eight hospitalizations, are due to runovers.

One solution is to adopt the habit of using hand signals on the farm. This will put an extra set of eyes to work for the driver. Besides preventing injuries, it may also reduce the likelihood of accidental damage to equipment. Use the industry standard hand signals to ensure that, no matter where you work, you can be easily understood!
