About the 2012 Book of Lists

The 2012 Book of Lists is compiled by the Quad-City Business Journal staff to provide consumers and businesses with helpful, detailed information in one publication.

Information was collected through telephone interviews and email questionnaires sent to company representatives as well as to company websites. Criteria is noted in each category header. We contacted businesses in each category; however, not all responded. An asterisk denotes a company whose information was taken from the 2011 Book of Lists.

The 2012 Book of Lists is being distributed to 12,500 community and business leaders.

Book of Lists information also will be available online at www.qctimes.com/business.

Visiting the Quad Cities? Spend time with John Deere

John Deere built his plow factory in Moline, Illinois, because the town had everything he needed including steamboats, roads, water power, and hard-working pioneer families for a ready source of labor. The original factory is long gone, but the presence of John Deere and the company he founded are still the fabric of this community. Visit the John Deere Attractions in and around the Quad Cities to experience this global company's past, present and future.

You can start your tour in downtown Moline at the John Deere Pavilion, which recently underwent a complete redesign. The Pavilion has a fresh look and new exhibits that present the global reach of Deere & Company today and how it's helping address the challenges of the future through an educational and interactive experience. Next door The John Deere Store has for sale clothing, toys and other collectibles bearing our famous brand. 309-765-1000

Just a few miles to the southeast you can visit the Deere & Company World Headquarters, an architectural gem overlooking the Rock River Valley. There's a large display area inside where you can view a world-famous mural and climb aboard a variety of John Deere equipment.

To see just how our giant machines are made, schedule a factory tour of John Deere Harvester Works or stop by the factory's Visitor Center in East Moline and experience exhibits showcasing combines and grain harvesting equipment. 800-765-9588

For company history, why not go tonwhere it all began? Take I-88 northeast to the John Deere Historic Site in Grand Detour near Dixon, Illinois. It's where John Deere forged his famous self-scouring steel plow, which helped open the West to development. The site includes Deere's original homestead, an archeological exhibit, and a blacksmith shop with live demonstrations. 815-652-4551

Want more history? A half mile from the John Deere Pavilion in Moline, is the Deere-Wiman House, built by Charles Deere, John's son and the company's second president. Originally named Overlook, it sits on a hill above the original plow factory site. Cross the street and you're at the Butterworth Center, home of Deere & Company's third president, William Butterworth. Go inside to absorb family history and Italian renaissance elegance. 309-743-2701

Finally follow the Mississippi River a few miles east and you'll find Riverside Cemetery perched on a buff overlooking the river valley. Turn left after you enter and wind your way to the crest. There you'll find the resting places of John Deere and many of his descendants including all the men who headed the company for its first 118 years. You can visit any time during daylight hours.

A lawyer CANNOT buy the distinction of being a Leading Lawyer. This distinction was earned by being among those lawyers who were most often recommended by their peers in statewide surveys. Respondents COULD NOT recommend themselves or lawyers at their law firm.
