Your Weekly Guide to TV Entertainment for the week of October 4 - 10, 2015

A second term: 'Madam Secretary' soars into its sophomore year on CBS

By Shona Dustan
TV Media

One of last year's best new dramas returns this week with more star power than ever. CBS is the master of procedural drama, so it was no surprise that its foray into the world of politics, "Madam Secretary," did well when it premiered last fall.

The story follows a fledgling secretary of state as she navigates the challenges of her new position. The consistently engaging plot and an impressive cast have served CBS well, and the series was quickly picked up for another year. The sophomore season of "Madam Secretary" premieres Sunday, Oct. 4.

Critics and fans alike knew the series had promise right out of the gate due to some major talent both in front of and behind the camera. Front and center is Téa Leoni ("Tower Heist," 2011), who stars as Elizabeth McCord, a professor of political science and former CIA analyst who is thrust into the role of U.S. secretary of state when her predecessor dies in a plane crash. The series follows McCord as she deals with endless internal drama while working tirelessly to thwart the efforts of those who wish to harm the American people.

Leoni got her start on television with a role in the soapy "Santa Barbara," but quickly transitioned into a strong film career. Six years later, she returned to TV with a starring role in "The Naked Truth," which made her even more of a household name. Last year, almost two decades since her last television stint, she returned to her roots once more as Elizabeth McCord.

A strong and intelligent former CIA operative, McCord is pulled out of a relatively quiet life when the secretary of state is killed in a very suspicious plane crash. When she's asked by the president to step into the role of secretary of state, she finds she cannot refuse, and dives headlong into a life of political intrigue and dangerous terror plots. "I've always really enjoyed [playing] a lively fish out of water and pretty much by about page 2 of the script, I knew that's what this was going to be," Leoni told "The Hollywood Reporter" last year. Leoni plays McCord with equal parts gravitas and vulnerability, embodying the character's complexities seamlessly.

And McCord is a beautifully complex character, any actor's dream. It's exciting to see her fight the good fight at work, then head home, where she's a comfortable, capable homebody, a loving mother to her three children and one half of a very supportive and functional marriage. Frequently, television's powerful female characters lack a work-life balance, but McCord has a solid support system in her family — a refreshing take on the career-driven modern woman.

McCord's husband, Henry, is played by another television veteran, Tim Daly. Daly has spent much of his career on TV — he starred in the doctor drama "Private Practice" for five of its six seasons, and even recently guest-starred as Mindy's (Mindy Kaling) love interest in "The Mindy Project." But it was his starring role in the beloved comedy series "Wings" that catapulted him to fame. Daly's ability to play strong, wise and kind men is impeccable, which is perfect for playing Henry, who is a former marine, professor of theology and a doting father and husband. Henry and Elizabeth McCord have been married for 25 years as the series opens, a fact that's easy to believe, thanks to the great chemistry between Daly and Leoni.

A host of excellent character actors fills out much of the series. Bebe Neuwirth ("Cheers"), Zeljko Ivanek ("Heroes") and Keith Carradine ("Dexter") — playing McCord's chief of staff, the White House chief of staff and the president of the United States, respectively — have been television staples for decades. Theirs are faces everyone will recognize, and they add an air of familiarity and permanency to the show. Geoffrey Arndt ("Super Troopers," 2001), Erich Bergen ("Jersey Boys," 2014) and Patina Miller ("The Hunger Games: Mocking Jay Part 1," 2014) round out the rest of the cast.

But those are just the regulars. It sounds as if "Madam Secretary" is going to be overrun with fabulous guest stars this season.

First, we have Morgan Freeman ("The Shawshank Redemption," 1994). Freeman is an executive producer of the series and, though he hasn't appeared in a scripted television series in 30 years, he has been talking about a guest appearance. "Whether or not I show up actually is going to depend on Barbara [the show's creator] and what kind of ideas she comes up with in that smart head of hers," he said last year.

Well, writer/creator Barbara Hall ("Judging Amy") has followed through, and Freeman will not only appear in the season 2 premiere, he'll direct it, too. Season 2 will start off with a bang when Air Force One goes missing and Elizabeth must make some difficult decisions. Freeman's role in the show is still shrouded in mystery, but we know that he'll be advising McCord in some capacity.

Former real-life secretary of state and first woman to hold the title, Madeleine Albright, is also slated to make an appearance as herself early this season. She'll be trying to help Elizabeth deal with a difficult situation at work.

Finally, Jill Hennessy ("Crossing Jordan") and Eric Stoltz

("Some Kind of Wonderful," 1987) will be joining the cast in recurring roles. Hennessy will play a colleague of Henry's who may cause him some grief at work. Stoltz — who is another executive producer of the show — has signed on to play Elizabeth's brother.

That's a lot of big names. With great writing, a terrific core cast and some glittering guest stars on the horizon, you won't want to miss a minute of "Madam Secretary." Catch the premiere of season 2 Sunday, Oct. 4, on CBS.

Hollywood Q&A

By Adam Thomlison
TV Media

Q: Will there be another season of the miniseries "Sons of Liberty"? It was entertaining and historical!

A: The short answer is that nobody knows. As you say yourself, "Sons of Liberty" was produced as a miniseries, which means there was no commitment to more at the time, but that the option is open. It also means that, if the producers do decide to make another series of some sort, they're not committed to any kind of timeline the way a regular series would be.

"I don't know if there'll be another part," actor Jason O'Mara told TheHDRoom.com, "but it would be interesting to see how it all plays out."

Of course, he means specifically how the producers and writers of the History show would tell it, since of course we already have a rough idea of how the American War of Independence "plays out." And though the series takes some liberties (ha!) with the actual material, it sticks to the major historical points.

O'Mara played George Washington. This was before he became the country's first president, of course, when he was a soldier: first in the colonial British army and later as a general with the American rebels.

If there is another season, it won't be any time soon. The three-episode miniseries aired in January, there's been no word of anything new since, and many of the actors have gone on to other commitments.

O'Mara is one of them. He's slated to play yet another American president, this time Ulysses S. Grant, in another miniseries, "To Appomattox" (if it can ever get its funding together — the producers have turned to the crowd-funding service Kickstarter to get backing).

Ben Barnes, who played Samuel Adams in "Sons of Liberty," is part of the ensemble cast of HBO's upcoming sci-fi/western series "Westworld."

Jimmy Akingbola, who only appeared in one installment of "Sons of Liberty" as former slave Peter Salem, has landed one of the highest-profile roles of anyone on the cast. He's signed on to play comic book villain Baron Reiter, also known as Baron Blitzkrieg, in the hit CW drama "Arrow."

Q: My husband and I were discussing the old cartoon "C.O.P.S.," but we can't remember when it was supposed to be based. Was there any mention about what year it was supposed to take place?

A: The 1988 animated series "C.O.P.S." — not to be confused with the reality TV staple "Cops," which debuted on Fox in 1989 — was subtitled "Fighting Crime in a Future Time." Of course, "a future time" covers a lot of ground. In fact, it is said in the show that the actual year is 2020.

But this is a 2020 as imagined in the year 1988 and for a kids cartoon, so the logic doesn't always work. Some of the characters have guns that shoot something like bullets, others use lasers. Some cars look remarkably futuristic, but the police squad cars look more or less like the boxy sedans that were standard police cars in the '80s. Also, most of the characters are dressed like they're in a Humphrey Bogart movie.

Though the series didn't last very long — it debuted in 1988 and ended in 1989 — it produced an impressive 65 episodes in that time, and those episodes got the full DVD boxed-set treatment, with special features and everything. It helped that the show was based on a line of Hasbro toys, so they had lots of material and backing to work with at the time.

Magic Mike XXL

It's been three years since Mike (Tatum) retired at the height of his career, but the former male stripper is about to get back into the game for one last hurrah. The Kings of Tampa get in touch with him and he agrees to join them for one final blowout show in Myrtle Beach.

Director: Gregory Jacobs. Stars: Channing Tatum, Matt Bomer, Joe Manganiello, Kevin Nash, Adam Rodriguez. 2015. 115 min. Comedy.

Dark Places

She was only eight years old when she witnessed her family's brutal murder, and after testifying against her own brother, Libby (Theron) has lived her life as a haunted woman. Twenty-five years later, a secretive society that investigates old unsolved cases approaches her with suspicions that her brother was actually innocent of the bloody crime. Despite the painful memories, she agrees to help them uncover the truth of what exactly happened in her family's rural Kansas farmhouse on that fateful night more than two decades ago. Director: Gilles Paquet-Brenner. Stars: Charlize Theron, Nicholas Hoult, Corey Stoll, Christina Hendricks. 2015. 113 min. Mystery.

Sharknado 3: Oh Hell No!

Fin (Ziering) and April (Reid) are finally getting their lives back in order after living through two separate shark-spewing weather events. They've remarried, April is pregnant with their child, and the president (Cuban) is giving Fin an award for his heroics. While he's in Washington, D.C., to receive the commendation, though, yet another sharknado strikes. Fin and the president work side by side to defeat the toothy terrors that have been unleashed by the storm, but the twister is just the beginning as a massive weather system pounds the East Coast, unleashing terror up and down the shoreline.

Director: Anthony C. Ferrante. Stars: Ian Ziering, Tara Reid, Mark Cuban, Cassie Scerbo, Frankie Muniz. 2015. 88 min. Horror.
