BEST Beaches BETS

Choose your favorite beach spot

We're not called the North Shore for nothing. People from all over come here to swim, sunbathe, kayak or just take in the ocean view.

So, which is your favorite beach? Here's a sampling of some popular places for fun in the sun to help you decide:

Crane Beach

One of the most popular beaches on the North Shore, Crane Beach is a hot destination spot in the summer. On top of miles of shoreline, there are also more than 5 miles of trails, bathhouses, outside showers, picnic tables, and a store and information kiosk, not to mention the beautiful Crane Estate on the grounds, owned by The Trustees of Reservations. Watch out for greenheads — nasty biting flies — which usually descend for a couple of weeks in July. There's loads of parking, but come prepared to pay. Crane Beach is at the end of Argilla Road, off Route 133 in Ipswich.

Dane Street Beach

Located on Lothrop Street, off Route 127, in Beverly, Dane Street Beach includes a grassy area perfect for a game of catch or a picnic lunch. Park benches offer a place to relax and enjoy the view. There's also a kids' play area and a bathhouse available during the summer months. Get there early, though — there's a small off-street lot and limited on-street parking.

Devereux Beach

Located on Ocean Avenue

in Marblehead, Devereux Beach offers more than 5 acres of coastline. Restrooms and a concession stand are available, as are benches and picnic tables for admiring the view over lunch or a snack. Residents can purchase a parking sticker; there is a fee for nonresidents to park.

Independence Park

Just south of Dane Street Beach, on Lothrop Street in Beverly, Independence Park is a beautiful place to take in the view of the harbor. The park is downhill from the road and also includes a beach and benches. There is no lifeguard on duty, however, and, like Dane Street Beach, limited on-street parking.

King's Beach

Located on Humphrey Street in Swampscott, King's Beach is a quiet spot for swimming that doesn't normally get too crowded in the summer. Many beachgoers enjoy the walkway above the shoreline and the beautiful view across the ocean it provides. There's also benches along the way for a quick rest or a longer stop. No boating is allowed at King's Beach, and there's no lifeguard on duty.

Lynch Park

Probably the most popular park in the city during the summer, Lynch Park, at 55 Ober St. in Beverly, is much more than a beach. There's a concession stand, bathhouse, play area and boat launch — bring your own or rent one of the available ocean kayaks on site. A beautiful rose garden nearby frequently hosts weddings and other special events. There's lots of parking — free for residents with a sticker (available at the gate during the summer), but there's a fee for nonresidents.

Sandy Beach

Off River Street in Danvers, on the Danvers

River directly across from John George Park, Sandy Beach boasts a play area, restrooms and an outside shower. Come ready to play on the beach's sand volleyball court. Parking is free.

Salem Willows Park

Two sandy beaches off Fort Avenue in Salem include restrooms, play areas and concession stands. If that's not enough to draw you in, there's also Salem Willows nearby with food vendors, games and an arcade. Parking is free, both on- and off-street.

Winter Island

A marine recreational park, Winter Island is also home to the historic Fort Pickering lighthouse. The public beach offers lovely views of Salem Harbor. There's also a boat launch, playground and facilities for picnicking and camping. This beach is located on Winter Island Road, off Fort Avenue in Salem.

Nicholas Jalbert digs for crabs at Lynch Park in Beverly.

Ryan Anderson of Beverly tees off at Ferncroft Country Club in Middleton.

David Hark of Marblehead putts on the 18th green at The Meadow at Peabody golf course.

BEST Museums BETS

Which museum tells North Shore's story best?

There's lots of history here on the North Shore, from the Salem Witch Trials to the area's role in the Revolutionary War and much more. And don't forget the region's literary and artistic legacies. Here are a few of the museums the area has to offer:

Beverly Historical Society and Museum, Beverly

Founded in 1891, the Beverly Historical Society makes its home in the 1781 John Cabot House, a Georgian-style house and the first brick mansion built in the city. The society boasts a collection of close to a million documents and items, some of which is exhibited in the Cabot House. The house is also open for guided tours. In addition to the Cabot House, the society also cares for the 17th-century Balch House and Hale Farm, both of which are open for tours at certain times of the year.

Danvers Historical Society, Danvers

Founded in 1889, the Danvers Historical Society owns three historic sites and a museum building: the 1754 Page House, former home of educator Ann Lemist Page; the beautiful Glen Magna Farms Estate; the Putnam House, on the National Register of Historic Places; and Tapley Memorial Hall, which houses the society's collections. The society also cares for the Endicott Burial Ground.

House of the Seven Gables, Salem

The House of the Seven Gables was built in 1668 by John Turner, a sea captain and merchant in Salem. Three generations of the Turner family lived there until it was sold in 1782 to Capt. Samuel Ingersoll. When he died at sea, the property passed on to his daughter, Susanna, a cousin of Nathaniel Hawthorne. The author's visits to the home are thought to have inspired his 1851 novel, "The House of the Seven Gables." The site was purchased by philanthropist Caroline Emmerton in 1908 and preserved. Over the years, five more historical structures have been added to the property, including Hawthorne's birthplace, making it a campus of regional history and its own national historic district on the National Register of Historic Places.

Ipswich Museum, Ipswich

In 1890, the Rev. Thomas Franklin Waters met with a group of friends interested in collecting and preserving documents and items related to Ipswich. Thus, the Ipswich Historical Society was born. The society has been known as the Ipswich Museum since 2010 and cares for two historical homes: the 1677 Whipple House and the 1800 Heard House (which houses the museum). Among the numerous items in the museum's collection are works by 19th-century Ipswich painters including those of Arthur Wesley Dow, one of the original society's founders. Also on display at the Heard House are artifacts from the Ipswich Female Seminary and China Trade treasures the Heard family had collected.

Marblehead Museum, Marblehead

The Marblehead Historical Society was created in 1898 to preserve artifacts related to the town and its residents. In 2003, with a collection worthy of exhibition, the society changed its name and continued its emerging focus on preservation and education. In 2013, the name was simplified to Marblehead Museum. Among the museum's treasures is the 1768 Jeremiah Lee Mansion, a Colonial Georgian home built for Lee, a wealthy merchant and ship owner. Other items in the museum's extensive collection include the folk art collection of J.O.J. Frost and numerous documents, many of which can be found online at the museum and historical society's website. The organization also oversees the GAR and Civil War Museum on the second floor of the Old Town House.

New England Pirate Museum, Salem

Through tours and artifacts, the New England Pirate Museum brings to life the tales of true sea-robbers who roamed the North Shore, known back then as the Gold Coast, in the 17th century. Many pirates spent their summers in New

International Festival in Peabody

Where: Peabody Square

When: September

Highlights: Enjoy food, music and art representing the city's diverse neighborhoods at this local favorite. In fact, the event is so popular, some of the best ethnic foods sell out early in the day. In addition to the farm animals on display in the fair's various barns, there's lots of food, crafts, special events and musical performances to choose from. The Royal Canadian Mounted Police will return this year. And the Mrs. Essex County Pageant rounds it all out.

Highlight: A Grand Parade kicks off the event.

England. The museum also features a recreated dock-side village, a pirate ship for guests to board and explore, and an 80-foot bat cave complete with hidden treasure.

Peabody Essex Museum, Salem

When the East India Marine Society was founded in 1799, its charter provided for the creation of a “cabinet of natural and artificial curiosities.” Society members, Salem sea captains, brought back treasures from Asia, Africa, Oceania and India, among others. Their collections started what has since become Peabody Essex Museum, a renowned museum of art, culture and history with a collection of more than 1.8 million items. One of the most unique artifacts is Yin Yu Tang, the only complete Qing Dynasty house outside China.

Peabody Historical Society and Museum, Peabody

The Peabody Historical Society and Museum was founded in 1896 and cares for eight historic properties. Its collection documents more than 300 years of the area’s history and includes china, textiles, furniture, and fine and decorative arts. Many items in the museum’s collection go on display during rolling exhibits at The Cassidy Art Museum, housed in the circa 1860 Osborne-Salata House, and the General Gideon Foster House next door, a National Historic Landmark named after the Revolutionary War hero who lived there. The museum also oversees the Peabody Leatherworkers Museum, which honors the city’s industrial history through exhibits of machinery, tools, photographs and other artifacts.

the original salt-box home the Nurse family lived in from 1678 to 1798 and honors Rebecca Nurse, who was among the victims of the Salem Witch Trials. The grounds comprise about 25 acres of the property’s original 300 and include the family cemetery, where many believe Rebecca Nurse was secretly buried after her execution. The homestead is open for tours April through October and features special exhibits.

Salem Witch Museum, Salem

Open year-round, the Salem Witch Museum uses life-size stage sets, figures, lighting and narration to recreate 1692 Salem for visitors. Guides explain the changing interpretations of witches, stereotypes, the present-day practice of witchcraft and the witch-hunting phenomenon.

Wenham Museum, Wenham

In 1922, Elizabeth Richards Horton donated her international doll collection to the newly formed Wenham Village Improvement Society. The year before, the society had purchased Horton’s former home, the Clafin-Richards House, to preserve it and use it for gallery space. Horton’s donation marked the beginning of what has come to be known as the Wenham Museum, which has a mission of protecting and preserving artifacts of childhood, domestic life and the North Shore’s history and culture. The museum is known for its fun and educational exhibits, especially its annual model train exhibit.

Witch Dungeon Museum, Salem

A visit to the Witch Dungeon Museum includes witnessing the re-enactment of the trial of Sarah Good, adapted from historical manuscripts that date back to 1692. A guided tour of the dungeon, including a recreated village and Gallows Hill, follows the re-enactment.

Witch History Museum, Salem
