Dead come walking

Much-anticipated 'Fear the Walking Dead' kicks off on AMC

By Cassie Dresch
TV Media

If you're one of the almost 16 million people who tuned into the season 5 finale of "The Walking Dead" back in March, you're probably itching for a new episode of the wildly successful horror drama (I know I am). While we're still a couple months out from the premiere of season 6 — Oct. 11, for those keeping track! — fans of the AMC thriller are in for a treat. "Fear the Walking Dead," the much-anticipated companion series to "The Walking Dead," premieres its first of six episodes Sunday, Aug. 23, on AMC.

It's difficult not to be excited when talking about this companion series, as it hails from many of the same minds behind the original TV series. "The Walking Dead" franchise creator Robert Kirkman is also helming this version, which starts off as a prequel, along with executive producers Greg Nicotero, David Alpert, Gale Anne Hurd — who all have worked on "The Walking Dead" — and newcomer to the franchise Dave Erickson, who serves as showrunner.

It's important to note that while "Fear the Walking Dead" takes place in the same universe as its counterpart, the two shows will be vastly different. Where "The Walking Dead" sees main character Rick Grimes (Andrew Lincoln, "Love Actually," 2003) awaken from a coma long after the zombie apocalypse has begun, this series showcases the very beginnings of the worldwide catastrophe.

"I think more than anything else, 'Fear the Walking Dead' will get to show people coming to grips with society crumbling around them in a way we mostly skipped over on 'The Walking Dead,'" Kirkman said in an interview with the "New York Times."

One thing that was skipped over in the original series that Erickson calls "jarring" is just how little the zombies look like the classic, half-decayed monstrosities they later become, and it's something that will play into the early parts of the season.

"Your first impulse is to help them, and then short of that, to run," he said in the "NYT" piece. "It isn't to pick up a handy weapon and bludgeon them to death and crush their skull."

Another key difference between both series is where, specifically, they take place. "The Walking Dead" sees Rick and company travel through a great deal of American southeastern wilderness on the road to survival, while "Fear" is set somewhere decidedly more urban — Los Angeles.

"Los Angeles is such an interesting city in and of itself, just because of the vast melting pot of diversity that California has become," said Kirkman in an interview with "Entertainment Weekly." "The urban sprawl — it covers a tremendous amount of land, and it's got an extremely dense population, so there are a lot of things about that that lend itself well to good storytelling in the zombie apocalypse. ... We'll definitely be spending a lot less time in the woods."

Not only will good storytelling be key to making "Fear the Walking Dead" live up to its predecessor, the acting will also have to be top notch, and the cast for the companion series boasts some strong talent.

New Zealand actor Cliff Curtis ("Live Free or Die Hard," 2007) stars as Travis Manawa, a high school English teacher whose son, Chris (Lorenzo James Henrie, "Almost Kings," 2010), resents him for divorcing his mother, Liza (Elizabeth Rodriguez, "Miami Vice," 2006). Curtis has won quite a few awards in his native country, including four New Zealand Film and TV Awards.

Kim Dickens of "Sons of Anarchy," "House of Cards" and "Treme" fame stars as Madison Clark, Travis's fiancée and single mom to Nick (Frank Dillane, "Sense8") and Alicia (Alycia Debnam-Carey, "The 100"). Madison is the guidance counselor at the same school where Travis teaches, and she struggles to connect with her children. Dickens has received accolades for her roles in the TV series "Deadwood" as well as the 2014 psychological thriller "Gone Girl."

Two-time Emmy-nominated actor Rubén Blades ("Crazy from the Heart," 1991, "Safe House," 2012) and Swedish-American actress Mercedes Mason ("666 Park Avenue") round out the cast as father-daughter duo Daniel and Ofelia Salazar. Ofelia is protective of her immigrant parents, and Daniel mostly keeps to himself. With the apocalypse looming, however, they start to undergo identity shifts.

On top of all of the excitement of this new series premiering is the fact that AMC has already shown Kirkman, Erickson and the rest of the "Fear" crew that they're all in for this spinoff. Back in March — before the series even had a name — AMC announced it had picked up "Fear" for two seasons, and last month, it added to the hype by announcing that season 2 will consist of 15 episodes and will air next year.

We're still a ways out from the return of the critically acclaimed horror goliath "The Walking Dead," but fans of the comic book and TV franchises are in for a treat courtesy of AMC. "Fear the Walking Dead," the much-anticipated companion series to the original, is set to introduce the first of six episodes when it premieres Sunday, Aug. 23, on AMC.

Video releases

Bradley Cooper and Rachel McAdams star in "Aloha"

Aloha

Defense contractor Brian Gilest (Cooper) flies to Hawaii to strike a deal for the arms company that he works for with a group of natives. While visiting the beautiful Pacific islands, he reconnects with Tracy (McAdams), the woman he nearly married more than a decade earlier. Attempts to rekindle their old romance run into some speed bumps, though, when the chemistry between Brian and the beautiful Air Force pilot assigned to be his escort (Stone) threatens to ignite more than just a casual attraction. Meanwhile, Brian's eccentric and egotistical boss's (Murray) plans for the beautiful Hawaiian landscape may not be as benevolent as they first appeared. Director: Cameron Crowe. Stars: Bradley Cooper, Emma Stone, Rachel McAdams, Bill Murray, Jim Krasinski, Danny McBride, Alec Baldwin. 2015. 105 min. Romance.

Citizenfour

The story behind whistleblower Edward Snowden is exposed in this Academy Award-winning documentary. In 2013, the former NSA contractor released classified documents and exposed a far-reaching surveillance program, a revelation that is still rocking America and the world today. Accused of being both a traitor and a hero, here that story is finally told. Director: Laura Poitras. Stars: Edward Snowden, Julian Assange, Glenn Greenwald. 2014. 114 min. Documentary.

Hannibal

WHDH 7 10:00 p.m.

Will (Hugh Dancy) hopes to lure the Red Dragon (Richard Armitage) into an ambush, but it's a risky plan in this new episode of "Hannibal," airing Saturday, Aug. 22, on NBC. When the case begins to affect his fragile psyche, Bedelia Du Maurier (Gillian Anderson) suggests there's another killer he should worry about.

Schide schplittingly funny: They like her! They really, really like her! For comedians, there are a lot of ways to know that they've "made it," so to speak. Amy Schumer, who was named by "Time" magazine as one of 2015's 100 most influential people, has certainly been going down the list and checking off those ways.

She has starred in her own Comedy Central sketch comedy series, "Inside Amy Schumer," since 2013. She hosted the 2015 MTV Music Awards this past April. She even has a critically acclaimed film that she both wrote and stars in ("Trainwreck," 2015) in theaters, starring alongside Bill Hader ("Saturday Night Live"). One comedy achievement that Schumer's yet to acquire, though, is her own HBO comedy special.

Well, that time has come. Schumer's own special on the premium TV channel, aptly titled "Amy Schumer: Live From The Apollo," will premiere Saturday, Oct. 17. Directed by fellow actor/comedian Chris Rock ("Madagascar," 2005), the stand-up comedy special was filmed in New York this past May and is already generating excitement on the network.

"Amy is one of the most inspired comics working today, and we hope her first HBO special marks the start of a long and beautiful relationship," HBO executive Michael Lombardo said when the special was announced in May. "This event is even more special because our good friend, the incredibly talented Chris Rock, is directing."

Schumer's comedy style frequently focuses on feminist issues, exposing — through side-splitting laughs — the sexism that she finds endemic in so much of day-to-day life. Lately, though, her popularity has been tempered by accusations of insensitivity to issues of race, and whether those allegations — which she strongly denies — have an effect on either her popularity or her upcoming HBO comedy special remains to be seen.

"Amy Schumer: Live From The Apollo" is set to premiere Saturday, Oct. 17, on HBO.

A wonderful 'Wiz' there was: We're off to see the wizard! At least, TV audiences will be in December.

Amy Schumer's comedy special lands fall premiere on HBO

After having been essentially dead in the water for decades, live television spectacles are back in a big way. NBC was the trailblazer with 2013's production of "The Sound of Music Live!", starring country music superstar Carrie Underwood, and last year's "Peter Pan Live!", starring Christopher Walken ("Catch Me If You Can," 2002), and the groundwork is already being laid for this year's event.

"The Wiz Live!", a retelling of "The Wizard of Oz" story through the context of African-American culture, will have its live premiere Thursday, Dec. 3, on NBC.

NBC has been busy of late, rounding out "The Wiz Live!"'s cast. After a nationwide search to find the perfect person to play Dorothy, the lead role has been cast, as well as both the Wicked Witch of the West and the titular Wizard of the mystical land of Oz.

Newcomer Shanice Williams, who has five years of musical training and has performed in local productions such as "West Side Story," has been named as the main protagonist after the open casting call. Oz's iconic Wizard will be played by the multitasking Queen Latifah ("Chicago," 2002), while the Wicked Witch role has been picked up by singer/actress Mary J. Blige ("The Help," 2011).

Director Chris Rock and Amy Schumer on stage for "Amy Schumer: Live From The Apollo"

Just like the peacock network's previous two live spectacles, "The Wiz Live!" is based on an award-winning Broadway musical. "The Wiz" first opened in 1974, and its 1975 Broadway production was a massive hit, earning seven Tony Awards, including the coveted Best Musical. In 1978, a film adaptation was produced, starring Diana Ross ("Happy Gilmore," 1996) and Michael Jackson ("This Is It," 2009), and was nominated for four Academy Awards.

Casting for "The Wiz" will continue as the Dec. 3 premiere date approaches.

The 'Cost' is right: How much could a photograph possibly be worth? If it's of the famed American outlaw Billy the Kid, the answer is millions.

Kevin Costner ("Dances with Wolves," 1990) has teamed up with National Geographic Channel for a new TV special that's been more than 130 years in the making.

"Billy the Kid: New Evidence" will explore the origins of a tintype photograph purported to be of the notorious outlaw, as Costner consults with experts around the country to determine if the photo is the real deal. The special will premiere Sunday, Oct. 18, on National Geographic Channel.

The photo was discovered in 2010 by a collector, and it appears to be of Billy the Kid relaxing with his gang. With only one other known photograph of the criminal, though, it will take a whole team of experts to find out if it's really the famous villain in the photo.

If the experts do conclude that the photo is of Billy the Kid, whose real name is William H. Bonney, it could be a huge wind-fall for the photo's owner, who reportedly paid only $2 for it. The only other known photo sold for more than $2 million to a collector.

Before that kind of money can be made, though, the experts need to weigh in on the photo's authenticity, and that's where Costner and the National Geographic Society come in. "Billy the Kid: New Evidence" will premiere Sunday, Oct. 18, on National Geographic Channel.

Q&A Hollywood

Q: Can you tell me where they film "The Middle"? The Hecks' house looks like it is on a real street.

A: Series creators Eileen Heisler and DeAnn Heline would be gratified to hear you say that because they put a lot of work into making the show look authentic.

"It's really funny that now [Orson] feels like a real place, like it has traditions," Heisler told RTV6, ABC's Indianapolis, Indiana, affiliate. "It has schools and mascots, but we just made it up."

The show's fictional town of Orson, Indiana, is based on the real Indiana town of Jasper, which is just a few hours away from Heline's hometown of Muncie.

It's all a trick, though: "The Middle" is actually filmed on a studio lot in Los Angeles.

GeekDad.com blogger Matt Blum took a tour of the set and said: "It was really easy to believe that a family actually lived there."

On the tour, he was able to talk to set director Julie Fanton, who said that she does a lot of her shopping for the show at Target and Kohl's, stores that a lot of families are familiar with, in order to boost the authenticity.

Q: Who voices the youngest daughter on "Bob's Burgers"? She sounds familiar.

A: The lispy and occasionally shrill voice you're recognizing is that of rising comedian Kristen Schaal.

If she sounds familiar, it's probably because her voice has become more famous than her face.

Though she's an occasional on-screen guest on "The Daily Show" and stars on the Fox sitcom "The Last Man on Earth," she's actually been doing far more voice work lately.

On top of her regular spot on "Bob's Burgers," Schaal also voices one of the lead characters in Disney's "Gravity Falls" and is a regular guest on the critically acclaimed Netflix series "BoJack Horseman."

On the big screen, she's done voices in the 2013 hits "Cloudy with a Chance of Meatballs 2" and "Despicable Me 2," as well as the equally high-profile "Toy Story

3" and "Shrek Forever After," both released in 2010. (She seems to specialize in livening up franchises at risk of becoming tired.)

Incredibly, when Schaal was first starting out, she thought that her distinctive voice would be a problem. She said in an interview with Vulture.com that her lisp actually got her rejected from an acting class early on, but that it's now become an asset.

"It's definitely landed me some really sweet voice-over work that I've been hoping to do forever. But yeah, I thought it would hold me back for sure."

Q: Can you tell me when "Elementary" will return? I love that show.

A: Fans of CBS's Sherlock-Holmes-in-modern-day-New York series "Elementary" will have to wait a while to see what follows the third season's cliffhanger finale. (I won't spoil it for anyone planning to binge-watch the whole season before the new one starts, but I will say that the events threaten to undo all of the progress in Holmes and Watson's relationship over the past three years.)

The series doesn't return until Nov. 5, which is fairly late into the fall season. CBS says this is part of "a multi-phase rollout" of the new season, but that's just a dressed-up way of saying that most of its shows debut at the end of September like normal fall series, but the Thursday shows have to wait until it's done airing Thursday Night Football.

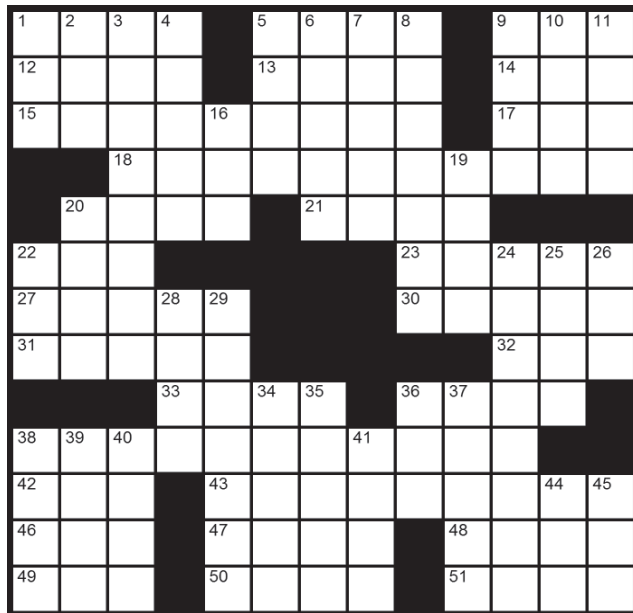

But the network also offered some exciting news for when the show finally returns. Former "Fringe" and "Sleepy Hollow" star John Noble will feature in the new season as Sherlock's mysterious father. He arrives in the season premiere, and he's being called a "series regular," which means he'll be around at least for a while.

"We could not be more delighted to have John Noble taking on such an important role," said "Elementary" creator and executive producer Robert Doherty. "We've enjoyed his work for many years now — especially his tremendous run on 'Fringe' — and cannot wait to see him opposite Jonny and Lucy. It's going to be an exciting season."

The top 15 contenders for the Republican nomination own at least 40 guns among them. If we elect a Republican president, no one is hopping over the White House fence ever again.

The Tonight Show Starring Jimmy Fallon: Jimmy Fallon In a new campaign ad, Jeb Bush referenced "The Godfather" and said his nickname used to be "Veto Corleone" because he vetoed so many bills in Florida. When you're the third person in your family to run for president, maybe you shouldn't bring up a movie trilogy where the third one was clearly the worst.

We have Tom Cruise on the show tonight! Yep, he's here to promote the new "Mission: Impossible" movie, which I believe is all about Donald Trump's PR team.

Jimmy Kimmel Live: Jimmy Kimmel According to multiple new polls, Donald Trump is still leading the field of Republican candidates for president, which, I have to say, is all going to be very funny until the White House is covered in gold paint.

Yesterday, the NFL upheld the four-game suspension they imposed on Tom for his suspected role in Deflategate, which upset Tom Brady. He was expecting it to be reduced, especially since one of his colleagues got a two-game suspension for hitting his wife in an elevator.

The Late Late Show with James Corden: James Corden A California couple went hiking in the Angeles National Forest, got lost and had to be air-lifted out by a rescue team. That in itself is bad enough, but what made it worse is it was the couple's first date.

Two Days, One Night
Sandra (Cotillard) suffers a breakdown at the solar panel factory where she works and takes time off to recuperate. Her co-workers divvy up her responsibilities and find that, by working slightly longer, they can cover Sandra's position. Seeing this, management makes the employees an offer: if they agree to keep working the extra hours to make Sandra's position redundant, they'll receive a bonus. Upon her return to work, Sandra learns that her job is in the hands of her co-workers, and she must work to convince the cash-strapped employees to turn down the money.
Directors: Jean-Pierre Dardenne, Luc Dardenne.
Stars: Marion Cotillard, Fabrizio Rongione, Pili Groyne. 2014. 95 min. Drama.
