The magnificent new Lutheran hospital in the northwestern part of the city is rapidly nearing completion. Located on a prominent eminence on Fourth street N.E. commanding a fine view of both the business and residential districts of the city, and overlooking a vast stretch of country extending from Lake Pelican to the southwest around to the south, thence on to the east and north, it stands in the center of a great circle whose rim is the junction of the earth and the sky in the hazy distance. One might look a lifetime without finding a more suitable site for such an institution. Its cosmopolitan character may be judged from the character of the personnel of its medical staff, the chief of whom is Dr. H.M. Finnerud. Then there is Dr. L.G. Hill, specialist in diseases of the eye, ear, nose and throat; Dr. W.G. Magee, surgeon; Dr. C.S. O’Toole, internal medicine; Dr. E.O. Gierer, surgery, and others not yet selected.
