That Greece will eventually be forced to fight and on the side of the entente allies, is the opinion of John Sideras of Watertown, a naturalized American, who returned this morning from a voyage to Greece and a trip into Turkey undertaken to rescue his mother and sisters from the Turks whose captives they now are. Mr. Sideras was able to get within 150 miles of his relatives, but could not get them out of Turkey because of the extreme danger to Turk shipping from allied submarines. The control of the sea, he said, is beyond all doubt in the hands of England. On his way back to the United States he sighted scores of English and French warships, some of them as close as within ten miles of New York. Suffering and starvation are existing in all European countries, he declared. The return trip occupied 31 days. Mr. Sideras was glad to get back to the States, whose policy of neutrality he considers absolutely right.
