Oregon Coast Music Festival presents Left Coast Jazz at Sprague Theater

BANDON -- The 38th annual Oregon Coast Music Festival continues with 12 concerts in 12 days in various locations around the Coos Bay/North Bend area, including three orchestral performances by the Oregon Coast Music Festival Orchestra under the direction of Maestro James Paul.

The 11th concert of the festival, Left Coast Jazz, is sponsored by Cardas Audio and will be held at 7 p.m. Friday, July 29, at the Sprague Community Theater, 1202 11th St. SW in Bandon. A musicians' reception and no-host bar by Billy Smoothboar's will be held in the lobby following the concert. Admission is by donation and benefits the musicians of the Oregon Coast Music Festival.

Left Coast Jazz is led by Langlois resident Will "Zeke" Hubel, lead singer and keyboards, a recent transplant from New York City via San Francisco. He is joined by Bandon musicians Roy Eikamp on drums and Sarah Mautner on violin. Coos Bay's Jardin Kazaar on percussion and Gregg Young on bass complete the ensemble. Special guests Allen Giardinelli on guitar and Candace Kreitlow on harp will join LCJ for several tunes.

Hubel has been pleasantly surprised to meet and play with so many great musicians in this relatively rural area. The size and members of his combo, Left Coast Jazz, change from time to time but the current roster of four other musicians is "particularly fine," said Hubel.

More information about this concert, as well as the full Oregon Coast Music Festival schedule, can be found at www.oregoncoastmusic.com. Left Coast Jazz website is www.leftcoastjazz.com.

Water quality report sent to residents

BANDON -- Last week, the City of Bandon sent out the 2015 Water Quality Report at the beginning of the 2016 budget year as is required by the Safe Drinking Water Act. Bandon uses surface water from two sources, Ferry Creek and Geiger Creek, and our water treatment plant treated approximately 227 million gallons of water last year.

Water treatment is a four-step process. In the first step, alum is added to the untreated water to make particles like dirt and sediment stick together. These particles clump together into larger particles called floc in the second step and then enter the settling tank where they settle to the bottom. In the third step, the clarified water flows through the sand and charcoal filters which remove lignin and coloration as well as dissolved organic components. In the final step, the chlorine generator adds chlorine to kill any germs and to keep the water safe as it travels through the distribution system to your tap.

This report gives us the results of the water quality tests which are conducted on schedules mandated by the Water Quality Act. In this year's report, the lead and copper testing results are actually from the test which was run in 2015. These tests are run every three years unless the action level is reached — when they are run more often. The printer used last year's format when filling in the current results and neglected to change the testing date from 2012 to 2015 on that format. As you can see from the report, the level of lead in our water is extremely low. The city only has a few old lines remaining down in Old Town which could possibly add lead to the water and these are being replaced whenever there is the opportunity to get at them during street construction. We also are very careful to keep our water at a neutral pH so that lead cannot be dissolved into the water.

There will be a utility commissioner at Brewed Awakenings from 10 to 11 a.m. every Saturday to answer questions about the utilities and their operations. Please feel free to drop by with your questions, or just to listen.

Mosaics by various artists at library in July

BANDON – In July, the Bandon Library Art Gallery presents the second annual Mosaic Show: "More than a Stepping Stone." Celebrating mosaic art in all forms, from abstract and conceptual wall art to micro-mosaic jewelry and crafts pieces, "More than a Stepping Stone" is a good place to explore this exciting medium. The show features work by artists from southern Washington to Port Orford, and includes a display of raw materials, definitions of terms, and information about resources. Most of the pieces are for sale, and many of the artists do commission work.

The show is available for viewing at the library Tuesdays through Saturdays through July 31.
