DA: Wounded man brandished 'pellet rifle'

BANDON – Investigators say the weapon brandished by a Bandon man on Christmas Day, drawing fire from police, was a pellet rifle. Investigators are still processing the scene, but the Coos County district attorney has released the names of the four officers involved in Tuesday's shooting south of

Bandon officers Josh Garrett and Tony Byrd and sheriff's deputies

Ernie Mitchell and Casey Wilson are on paid administrative leave from their agencies, while investigators look into the shooting that wounded Charles Wayne Crum.

called for medical assistance at 87207 Marple Lane, Bandon. After learning that Crum had been violent with police officers in the past, a dispatcher sent a Bandon officer before dispatching medical responders, said District Attorney Paul Frasier.

When the officer arrived, Crum ran from his trailer into some nearby brush, Frasier said.

"The officer, rather than force the issue, backed away from the property and trailer and waited for backup to arrive," Fraiser said.

While hiding in the brush, Crum reportedly called 911 again, saying he needed medical assistance, not

When the three other officers arrived, they went back to the property to find Crum. The man did not respond when they called his name, Frasier said.

They were about to leave when Crum appeared at the door of his fifth-wheel trailer with "what appeared to be a rifle," Frasier said.

The four officers opened fire, and two shots hit his arm. Crum was taken to Bay Area Hospital, and the Coos County Major Crime Team went to the scene.

Crum appeared in court Wednesday morning on two previous charges. He's charged with failing to appear for a sentencing after having pleaded guilty to resisting arrest.

Coos County Circuit Court Judge Martin Stone set Crum's bail at $10,000.

Frasier said he does not anticipate releasing any more information until the investigation is com-

CHARLESTON – The opening price for Oregon Dungeness crab is finally set.

Fishermen and processors agreed Wednesday night to open at $2.30 per pound for the first 24 hours of the season, which is scheduled to begin Monday.

The agreement comes after a month of delays.

"It seems like it is always a last-minute deal with these crab, whether we go through formal negotiations or we strike," said Rex Leach, the president of the Coos Umpqua Crabbing Association. "There's no reason to go settle a price when our crab aren't ready."

The Dungeness crab season in Oregon usually begins Dec. 1, but the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife delayed the season by nearly a month this year because crab were not sufficiently full of meat.

"They're going to be fuller now,"

Leach said. "That is why we delayed."

This is the second year in a row fishermen will open the season at $2.30 off the boat - the highest opening price ever agreed on in Ore-

Last season, fishermen agreed to lock that record-breaking price for the first 22 days of fishing instead of allowing the market to dictate cost. Had the market driven prices down,

Ex-president in intensive care

Bush has been hospitalized since Nov. 23, when he was admitted for a lingering cough related to bronchitis after having been in and out of the hospital for complications related to the illness.

A fever that kept Bush in the hospital over Christmas had gotten worse and doctors had put him on a liquids-only diet Wednesday following "a series of setbacks?

"It's an elevated fever, so it's actually gone up in the last day or two," McGrath told The Associated Press. "It's a stubborn fever that won't go away."

But he said the cough that initially brought Bush to the hospital had improved.

Bush was visited on Christmas by his wife, Barbara, his son, Neil, and Neil's wife, Maria, and a grandson, McGrath said. Bush's daughter, Dorothy, was expected to arrive Wednesday in Houston from Bethesda, Md. The 41st president has also been visited twice by his sons, George W. Bush, the 43rd president, and Jeb Bush, the former governor of Florida.

$12.5 billion? You call that success?

The announcement that the federal government would sell 200 million shares of General Motors back to GM for $5.5 billion and then dispose of its remaining 300 million shares by early 2014 makes a vast taxpayer loss close to a certainty. The hit could be $12.5 billion.

Was this worth it? If you believe the 1-million-jobswere-saved claim, you may say yes. But that claim is based on the very dubious idea that GM would have disappeared without federal intervention. The decision by first President George W. Bush in 2008 and then President Barack Obama in 2009 to have the federal government invest in the automaker allowed GM to avoid the sort of normal bankruptcy process that would have helped it leverage a lower wage structure from the United Auto Workers, one that would have put GM on a par with most of its competitors.

Keep this in mind when you hear simplistic talk about the "success" of the auto bailout.

Fat-cats failed

Radical filmmaker Michael Moore says the wealthy 1 percent elite may rule America's economy, "but they have only 1 percent of the vote." Thus they can't win elections through their numbers. So they must do it with their money virtually all donated to Republican candidates.

However, the 2012 national confrontation showed that billionaire cash isn't enough to carry an election. Billions spent to sell the GOP ticket produced mostly losses.

For example, Karl Rove induced the rich to give $400 million to his two "Crossroads" committees backing Republicans - to no avail.

Part of this astronomical spending sprang from the controversial "Citizens United" Supreme Court case of 2010, in which conservative justices ruled that corporations are "persons" with unlimited "free speech," meaning the right to buy political ads.

We can't guess how future balloting will turn out. But, for now, it's gratifying to see that fat-cat money wasn't able to purchase the 2012 election.

Ridiculous tax

As Washington and the nation focus on the "fiscal cliff," a critical protection for underwater homeowners also is about to go over the edge.

The Mortgage Debt Relief Act of 2007 is scheduled to expire at the end of the year.

The legislation allows borrowers to avoid paying income taxes on the amount of principal that is being forgiven as part of a loan modification or a short sale.

If the law expires, homeowners will have to pay taxes on the debt reduction. This is ridiculous.

Consider: an individual buys a home for $150,000. The economy tanks, he loses his job and faces foreclosure. He manages a short sale of the home for $80,000. Unless the law is extended, he would be taxed on the $70,000 debt that is being forgiven, as if the value that doesn't exist were personal income.

Measures in Congress would extend the tax break and spare Americans paying taxes on "assets" that don't Congress should heed common sense.

Break the ice

Changing environmental and political conditions in the Arctic reinforce the need for the U.S. Coast Guard to have the equipment and vessels appropriate to the hazardous conditions.

Sen. Maria Cantwell, D-Wash., and Rep. Rick Larsen, D-Wash., joined forces to secure passage of a Coast Guard authorization bill that maintains the nation's capacity to deploy icebreakers to represent U.S. interests.

Melting polar ice caps are creating a new commercial and political dynamic, with the prospects of greater Arctic access as a trade route.

Cantwell cites a Coast Guard study that concluded six heavy-duty icebreakers and four medium icebreakers are needed. The country is nowhere close. A new vessel can push $1 billion and take a decade to build.

Icebreakers represent a practical investment in the nation's security and commercial interests.

Reject NRA idea

Is this the America we want to live in?

"The only way – the only way - to stop a monster from killing our kids is to be personally involved and invested in a plan of absolute protection," National Rifle Association executive Vice President Wayne LaPierre said in the NRA's first comments since the Connecticut school shooting.

In a blistering and paranoid rant, LaPierre offered up just one concrete solution to the national epidemic of gun violence that claimed 20 first-graders and seven adults in Newtown, Conn., on Dec. 14:

Armed police officers in every American school.

Is that really the best we can do?

CIA to be accountable for torture?

At long last, the Senate Intelligence Committee approved Dec. 13, after three and a half years of research, its "Study of the Central Intelligence Agency's Detention and Interrogation." But We The People can't read it yet. It's still classified.

Over 6,000 pages long, purportedly with details of how each CIA "detainee" was interrogated and the information they provided, it now goes to the White House and the executive branch for review and comment. This may well take months, and only then will the Intelligence report by the chair of the committee, Sen. Dianne Feinstein, D-Calif., on the day it was issued, shrouded in secrecy aside from her comments. "I strongly believe that the creation of long-term, clandestine 'black sites' (CIA secret prisons around the world after 9/11) and the use of so-called 'enhanced interrogation techniques' (the plain word, senator, is torture) were terrible mistakes. The majority of the Committee agrees."

Feinstein's statement does not mention that the Bush-Cheney torture policy served for years as a prime recruiting tool for terrorists against evil America as it was continually exposed by U.S. human rights organizations and reporters documenting its use by the CIA as well as other American agencies.

In the current courts of several of our allies, moreover, investigations are still under way charging CIA agents with involving these nations' intelligence agencies with crimes of torture as they cooperated with American "renditions," during which terrorism suspects were sent by the CIA to those nations to be tortured.

President Obama insists that he ended U.S. torture and renditions soon after taking office, but - gee whiz - he has continued renditions that remain classified. We don't know who gets sent where and for what purpose.

One Republican senator intensely interested in the Intelligence Committee Report is John McCain, R-Ariz., who has expert individual knowledge of torture, having been continually tortured while a prisoner in North Vietnam during that war.

On Dec. 13, in a letter to fellow members of the committee, McCain emphasized why the Senate report must be made public:

"At a moment when our country is once again debating the efficacy and morality of so-called 'enhanced interrogation practices,' this report has the potential to set the record straight once and for all. What I have learned confirms for me ... that the cruel, inhuman and degrading treatment of prisoners is not only wrong in principle and a stain on our country's conscience, but also an ineffective and unreliable means of gathering evidence."

He continues: "Our enemies may act without conscience, but we do not. It is indispensable to our success in this war that those we ask to fight it know that in the discharge of their dangerous responsibilities to our country, they are never expected to forget that they are Americans ... we need not risk our country's honor to prevail in that through the violence and chaos and heartache of war, through deprivation and cruelty and loss, we are always Americans and stronger and better than those who would destroy us."

Nat Hentoff is an authority on the First Amendment and the Bill of Rights. He is a senior fellow at the Cato Institute.

Focus on games, mental health

I don't understand why you printed a article on gun laws with lies in it. There is enough going on to try and stop honest people from being able to buy and own AR-style guns. The tragic shooting of 20 innocent children was NOT done by a AR-style gun. Adam Lanza used handguns inside the school. I believe that violent video games that he spent all day and night playing had more of a role in this tragedy than AR guns. Or any other kind of guns that were used. I believe violent video games and disturbed mentally ill kids and adults are the things we should be focused on. Parents need to pay more attention to their kids instead of plugging them into video games. And guns in the house should be kept locked up and unavailable to anyone but the owner of the weapons.

Women Against Assault Weapons

This is my first letter to the editor. I was born and raised in Coos County.

I am very saddened by the recent brutal killing of innocent children in the state of Connecticut.

I was born in the 1950s and experienced the assassination of President Kennedy. I was 10 years old and didn't comprehend the reasoning, but understood that someone bad shot our president. Assassination they called it; it was a new word to me. Then Dr. King and Bobby Kennedy were blown away. Oh, excuse me assassinated. Traveling through time in America, what fun!

We have evolved into a nation punch drunk with violence. We rarely hear of the good things people do until a tragedy occurs. The outpouring of love that follows is just as overwhelming as the tragedy. Our little children are innocent - just as innocent as that 10-year-old girl so long ago. The world is watching our nation destroy itself. The assassination of children by the use of assault weapons cannot be tolerated. The greatest country in the world has become complacent, so afraid to be politically incorrect (both parties). Remember MADD, Mothers Against Drunk Driving? Through their organization they were able to lobby the government to enforce stricter laws against drunk driving. There is an organization of women called WAAR, Women Against Assault Weapons. This doesn't have anything to do with the Second Amendment.

If anyone feels like I do, then go to their website and sign a petition of support. I am empowered, because now I have done something instead of wringing my hands feeling crestfallen over the assassination of innocence.

Sympathy is wearing thin for needy, friend

DEAR ABBY: How can I set healthy boundaries with my best friend without feeling guilty? I have always been supportive and available because I sympathized with her difficult family dynamics during childhood and adulthood. She often talks to me about her problems with family and ever-changing relationships with men, but rarely allows me or others to share their points of view or personal concerns. Saying "no" to her is challenging under any circumstance, and she demands that all focus be on her in social situations.

I love and accept my friend as she is, and I try to give her all the grace I have. I now realize that setting healthy boundaries

way I can sustain our friendship. I

DEAR ABBY

JEANNE PHILLIPS

ERN CALIFORNIA DEAR TESTED: That's a good question, and one that I can't definitively answer for you. It's possible that like many women, you were raised to believe that if you assert yourself you won't be considered "nice." That's a mistake because as long as you allow this friend to take advantage of you — and that is what she's doing - the more your resentment will build until the relationship becomes one of diminishing returns. So tell this self-centered person as nicely as possible that you are not a therapist, and because her problems persist, she should talk to one.

DEAR ABBY: I was shocked the other day when a friend of mine said that many women remain in terrible marriages because of finances. She said those types of marriages are accepted worldwide, so why not in America? She also said she thinks that shame is attached if a woman admits the only reason she is staying with her husband is a monetary one.

The women she was talking about are baby boomers and older. After thinking about it, I remember my mother and mother-in-law saying that money was why they remained in their marriages. Is this as prevalent as my friend stated? I find it sad that this could be true. It reminds me of the Tina S.W. Turner song — what's love got to do with it? Could you comment, please? - IN IT FOR LOVE

DEAR IN IT: If you're asking if I have statistics on the number of women who stay married only for economic reasons, the answer is no. Most of the people who write to me are unhappy, which ed by her family. would skew the numbers in a negative direction.

I hope you realize that the Mary met Richard C. women you have described – an older demographic – were probably not economically independent when they married. It was common in their generation to go straight from their parents' houses to their husbands'. For many years I — and my mother before me - have urged women to make sure they are self-supporting before they marry, "just in case" they may have to be afterward.

Staying in a marriage without love is like serving a life sentence with an incompatible cellmate. Your mother and mother-in-law have cled. my sympathy, and so do their husbands.

He arrived as a replacement in Belgium near the town of St. Vith in early December 1944, one week before the outbreak of the conflict now known as the Battle of the Bulge. Although many of his compatriots were either killed, wounded, or taken prisoner, Ken made it through that fierce sixweek period battle-scarred but unscathed. After the war in Europe was over, Ken returned to Oregon for a brief period, before going to Bradley University in Peoria, Ill., to learn the horology trade.

Ken was working at Jackson Jewelers in Salem in 1949 when he met his future wife, Ellen Bettie Boies, also of Salem. They were married on July 29, 1950, in Salem. Ken also played saxophone in a small band and Bettie was their lead female singer while they lived in Salem. They began their family in Salem with sons Randy and Lance. The couple moved to North Bend in 1953 and started Corrigan Jewelers. In 1959, they expanded their operation with business partners, Owen and Esther Winters, and a new store name of Corrigan-Winters Jewelers, with the original store in North Bend and another in Coos Bay. Investigation of 'Meet the Press' ammunition magazine incident

District of Columbia police say they are investigating an incident in which NBC News reporter David Gregory displayed what he described as a high-capacity ammunition magazine on "Meet the Press."

Police spokesman Tisha Gant said Wednesday the department is investigating whether Gregory may have violated D.C. firearms laws that ban the possession of high-capacity magazines. She declined to comment further.

While interviewing National Rifle Association CEO Wayne LaPierre on Sunday's program, Gregory held an object, apparently as a prop to make a point, and said it was a magazine that could hold 30 rounds.

Lt. Gov. Brian Schatz, to succeed Inouve

HONOLULU (AP) -Hawaii's lieutenant governor spent time in the morning telling fellow Democrats why he should become the state's next U.S. senator. Hours later, he was hitching a ride to Washington with President Obama to be sworn in as the late Sen. Daniel Inouye's successor.

Gov. Neil Abercrombie appointed Lt. Gov. Brian Schatz to the post Wednesday, going against the dying wishes of Inouye, who wanted U.S. Rep. Colleen Hanabusa to take his place.

Schatz, 40, said his top priorities would be addressing global climate change, preserving federal funds used in Hawaii for things like defense spending and transportation, and getting federal recognition for Native Hawaiians in forming their own government, similar to many Indian tribes across the United States.

Mandela was admitted Dec. 8 to a hospital in the South African capital of Pretoria. The ex-president was treated for a lung infection and also had a procedure to remove gallstones.

India gang-rape victim in Singapore hospital

NEW DELHI (AP) — Indian Prime Minister Manmohan Singh pledged today to take action to protect the nation's women while the young victim of a gang rape on a New Delhi bus was flown to Singapore for treatment of severe internal injuries.

The Dec. 16 rape and brutal beating of the 23-year-old student triggered widespread protests in New Delhi and other parts of India demanding a government crackdown on the daily harassment Indian women face, ranging from groping to severe violence.

Rape victims rarely press charges because of social stigma and fear they will be accused of inviting the attack. Many women say they structure their lives around protecting themselves and their daughters from attack.

EPA administrator announces resignation

WASHINGTON (AP) -The Obama administration's chief environmental watchdog, EPA Administrator Lisa Jackson, is stepping down after a nearly four-year tenure marked by high-profile brawls over global warming pollution, the Keystone XL oil pipeline, new controls on coal-fired plants and several other hot-button issues that affect the nation's economy and people's

Jackson, the agency's first black administrator, conbetween administration pledges to solve controversial environmental problems and steady resistance from Republicans and industrial groups who complained that the agency's rules destroyed jobs and made it harder for American companies to compete internationally.

The GOP chairman of the House Energy and Commerce Committee, Rep. Fred Upton, said last year that Jackson would need her own parking spot at the Capitol because he planned to bring her in so frequently for questioning. Republican presidential nominee Mitt Romnev called for her firing, a stance that had little downstantly found herself caught side during the GOP pri-

Jackson, 50, a chemical engineer by training, did not point to any particular reason for her departure. Historically, Cabinet members looking to move on will leave at the beginning of a president's second term.

"I will leave the EPA confident the ship is sailing in the right direction, and ready in my own life for new challenges, time with my family and new opportunities to make a difference," she said in a statement.

Jackson gave no exact date for her departure, but will leave after Obama's State of the Union address in late

In a separate statement, Obama said Jackson has been "an important part of my team." He thanked her for serving and praised her "unwavering commitment" to the public's health.

"Under her leadership, the EPA has taken sensible and important steps to protect the air we breathe and the water we drink, including implementing the first national standard for harmful mercury pollution, taking important action to combat climate change under the Clean Air Act and playing a key role in establishing historic fuel economy standards that will save the average American family thousands of dollars at the pump, while also slashing carbon pollu-

Environmental groups had high expectations for the Obama administration after eight years of President

George W. Bush, a Texas oilman who rebuffed the agency's scientists and refused to take action on climate change. Jackson came into office promising a more active EPA. But she soon learned that changes would not occur as quickly as she had hoped. Jackson watched as a Democratic-led effort to reduce global warming emissions passed the House in 2009 but was abandoned by the Senate as economic concerns became the priority. The concept behind the bill, referred to as cap-andtrade, would have set up a system in which power companies bought and sold pollution rights.

it would have been a good deal,

Leach said.

But that was not the case. By the time the price lock expired, fishermen guessed the market value for crab had exceeded $3.50 per pound -alot of lost revenue.

Oregon crab must be a certain size to be caught and kept, and most of the crab that are large enough to sell are caught in the first few weeks of the season. So most of the crab were caught and sold while the price was locked.

"This year we have no time lock," Leach said. "We're going to let the market drive prices up and down. I'm confident they'll go up. It depends on how much production is out there in the ocean."

Commercial fishermen can begin setting their crab pots Friday morning at 8 a.m. They can begin collecting the pots at 12:01 a.m. Monday.

"I hope everyone is safe," Leach said, "and I hope our crab traps are full of crab."

Fees undermine fliers' ability to compare fares

WASHINGTON (AP) -For many passengers, air travel is only about finding the cheapest fare.

But as airlines offer a proliferating list of add-on services, from early boarding to premium seating and baggage fees, the ability to comparison-shop for the lowest total fare is eroding.

Global distribution systems that supply flight and fare data to travel agents and online ticketing services like Orbitz and Expedia, accounting for half of all U.S. airline tickets, complain that airlines won't provide fee information in a way that lets them make it handy for consumers trying to find the best deal.

"What other industry can you think of where a person buying a product doesn't know how much it's going to cost even after he's done at the checkout counter?" said Simon Gros, chairman of the Travel Technology Association, which represents the global distribution services and online travel industries.

The harder airlines make it for consumers to compare, "the greater opportunity you have to get to higher prices," said Kevin Mitchell, chairman of the Business Travel Coalition, whose members include corporate travel man-

Now the Obama administration is wading into the issue. The Department of Transportation is considering whether to require airlines to provide fee information to everyone with whom they have agreements to sell their tickets. A decision originally scheduled for next month has been postponed to May, as regulators struggle with a deluge of information from airlines opposed to regulating fee information, and from the travel industry and consumer groups that support such a requirement.

Meanwhile, Spirit Airlines, Allegiant Air and Southwest Airlines — with backing from industry trade associations are asking the Supreme Court to reverse an appeals court ruling forcing them to include taxes in their advertised fares. The appeals court upheld a Transportation Department rule that went in effect nearly a year ago that ended airlines' leeway to advertise a base airfare and show the taxes separately, often in smaller print. Airlines say the regulations violate their free-speech rights.

At the heart of the debate is a desire by airlines to move to a new marketing model in which customers don't buy tickets based on price alone. Instead, following the wellworn path of other consumer companies, airlines want to mine personal data about customers in order to sell them tailored services. You like to sit on the aisle and to ski, so how would you like to fly to Aspen with an aisle seat and a movie, no extra baggage charge for your skis, and have a hotel room and a pair of lift tickets waiting for you, all for one price? "Technology is changing rapidly. We are going to be part of the change," said Sharon Pinkerton, vice president of Airlines for America, which represents most U.S. carriers. "We want to be able to offer our customers a product that's useful to them, that's customized to meet their needs, and we don't think (the Transportation Department) needs to step

If airlines have their way, passengers looking for ticket prices may have to reveal a lot more information about themselves, such as their age, marital status, gender, nationality, travel history and whether they're flying for business or leisure. The International Air Transport Association, whose 240 member airlines cover 84 percent of global airline traffic, adopted standards at a meeting earlier this month in Geneva for such information gathering by airlines as well as by travel agents and ticketing services that would relay the data to airlines and receive customized fares in return.

$1B deal major step in Toyota legal trouble

By GREG RISLING The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES – With a proposed payout of more than $1 billion, one major chapter of a nearly four-year legal saga that left Toyota Motor Corp. fighting hundreds of lawsuits and struggling with a tarnished image has ended, though another remains.

The settlement - unprecedented in its size according to a plaintiff's attorney — brings an end to claims from owners who said the value of their vehicles plunged after recalls over sudden and unintended acceleration.

Lawsuits claiming that the defects caused injury or death remain, with the first trial beginning in February unless another major deal comes first.

Steve Berman, a lawyer representing Toyota owners, said the settlement is the largest in U.S. history involving automobile defects.

"We kept fighting and fighting and we secured what we think was a good settlement given the risks of this litigation," Berman told The Associated Press.

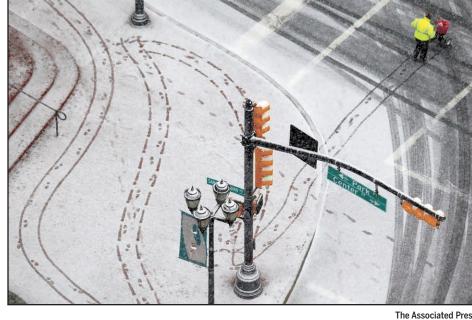

The courtroom claims began with a highway tragedy. A California Highway Patrol officer and three of his family members were killed in suburban San Diego in 2009 after their car, a Toyota-built Lexus, reached speeds of more than 120 mph, hit an SUV, launched off an embankment, rolled several times and burst into flames.

that a wrong-size floor mat trapped the accelerator and caused the crash.

That discovery, and the accident's grisliness, spurred a series of recalls involving more than 14 million vehicles and a flood of lawsuits soon followed, with numerous complaints of accelerations in several models, and brake defects with the Prius hybrid.

Storm whips into NE

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) -A powerful winter storm brought snow to inland parts of the Northeast and driving rain and wind to areas along the coast today, a day after it swept through the nation's middle, dumping a record snowfall in Arkansas and ruining holiday travel plans for thousands.

The storm, which was blamed for nine deaths, pushed through the Upper Ohio Valley and made its way into the Northeast Wednesday night. By this morning, there was anywhere from a few inches of snow to a foot in some locations.

National Weather Service spokesman David Roth said the Northeast's heaviest snowfall would be in northern Pennsylvania, upstate New York and inland sections of several New England states before the storm ended Friday morning and headed to Canada.

The East Coast's largest cities - New York, Philadelphia and Boston - were seeing mostly high winds and rain this morning. Other areas were getting a messy mix of rain and snow or just rain enough to slow down commuters and those still heading home from visits with family.

Thousands of travelers were trying to make it home today after the fierce storm stranded them at airports or relatives' homes around the region. Some inbound flights were delayed in Philadelphia and New York's LaGuardia.

No deal in sight near 'fiscal cliff' deadline

WASHINGTON (AP) -Progress toward avoiding the "fiscal cliff" seemed stalled today, as the Senate's top Democrat accused Republican House Speaker John Boehner of acting in dictatorial ways that prevent a solution to looming tax hikes and spending cuts.

Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid said the nation appears headed over the cliff because of a lack of progress in negotiations as the Dec. 31 deadline nears. He blamed House Republicans, who last week opposed Boehner's efforts to pass a narrowly craft ed bill that would raise tax rates only on the very wealthiest Americans, prompting Boehner to cancel a vote on the bill.

Reid said the GOP-controlled House easily could have passed a White Houseapproved plan with a majority of Democratic votes and a few dozen Republican votes. But House leaders generally avoid such tactics, because they might alienate the Republican caucus and jeopardize the speaker's job.

Also today, the White House said Obama, before leaving Hawaii, called Boehner, Reid, Senate Minority Leader Mitch McConnell and House Minority Leader Nancy Pelosi. The White House statement said the president got an update on the "fiscal negotiations," but offered no detail on who, exactly, was negotiating and whether those talks were getting anywhere.

At stake are current tax rates that expire on Dec. 31 and revert to higher rates in place during the administration of President Bill Clinton. All in all, that means $536 billion in tax increases that would touch nearly all Americans. Moreover, the military and other federal departments would have to cut $110 billion in spending.

Portland center J.J. Hickson smiles as he points to the Sacramento bench during the second half Wednesday. Hickson scored 17 points and pulled in 14 rebounds, his ninth straight double-double, as Portland won 109-91.

Blazers reverse result against Kings

PORTLAND (AP) - The Portland Trail Blazers wanted to put Sunday's loss to Sacramento behind them as quickly as possible.

LaMarcus Aldridge had 28 points and 12 rebounds, and the Blazers beat the Kings 109-91 on Wednesday night to earn their revenge.

"The way we played (three) days ago wasn't us," said Nicolas Batum, who had 18 points for Portland. "We wanted to get back on track against this team. It was so good to beat them in a big way."

J.J. Hickson added 17 points and 14 rebounds for the Blazers, who built a doubledigit lead in the second quarter and then ran away from the Kings, leading by as many as 26 points. Rookie point guard Damian Lillard had 17 points, 11 assists and eight rebounds.

John Salmons led the Kings with 19 points. Reserve Isaiah Thomas had 12 points and Jason Thompson added 11. The Kings are 1-12 on the road this season — the only win coming Dec. 8 against the Blazers.

Portland has won nine of its last 10 games at home. The Blazers tied up the season series with the Kings after losing to them 108-96 on Sunday in Sacramento, which snapped the Blazers' five-game winning streak. Sacramento shot 56 percent from the field in that game, but after a good start Wednesday, went cold and shot just 40 percent for the game.

"We knew we got away from it in Sacramento," Lillard said. "We focused more on defense. The last game, we just lost it. They took us to the rim and got what they wanted on offense. We just had to make a point to play better defense."

Sacramento took a pounding in the post without leading scorer and rebounder DeMarcus Cousins, who did not make the trip despite being reinstated from an indefinite suspension.

Cousins had been suspended after an argument with coach Keith Smart during halftime of a game Friday. Cousins missed Sunday's game, but practiced Monday after the suspension was lifted. Still, Smart chose to keep him home Wednesday. Without him, the Kings were outrebounded 53-35.

"Obviously, everyone played well at home and we didn't have that tonight," Smart said. "They rebounded the ball well and got out on the fast break."

The Blazers took a 62-44 lead into halftime after an electrifying first half in which they shot 57 percent. The game was tied at 37 in the second quarter but Sacramento's turnovers and defensive breakdowns allowed Portland to go on a 25-7 run into halftime, punctuated by rimshaking dunks by Hickson, Lillard and rookie center Meyers Leonard.

"They just got going and it's hard to stop a team that gets it going at home," Thomas said. "Especially when they have shooters and guys that can go to the hole and dunk."

Portland was playing without G Wesley Matthews, who has missed two straight with a hip injury.

Hickson has nine straight double-doubles, the most for a Blazer since Kermit Washington

Marshfield seniors Hannah Olson and Lauren McGowne both were named to the second team after helping the Pirates to a thirdplace finish in the state tournament. Tani Stevens of state champion West Albany was player of the year, while Martine Wodke of state runner-up and Midwestern League champion Churchill was coach of the year.

Myrtle Point's Caitlyn Robison, the Sunset Conference most valuable player, was named to the first team.

Monica Vaughn and Taylor Lewis, who helped Reedsport place third in the state tournament, both were named to the second team, while Gabby White was named to the third team.

State champion Culver took top honors with player of the year Shealene Little and coach of the year Randi Viggiano.

Class 4A volleyball

Siuslaw setter Lona Dengler, who led the Vikings to the Far West League title, was named to the first team.

Class 4A boys soccer

North Bend's Hobson, the Far West League's most valuable player, was named to the first team after leading the Bulldogs to the league title.

Class 4A girls soccer

Emma Powley, one of a number of talented freshmen for North Bend in its run to the league title and the state quarterfinals, was named to the girls first team, while junior Mikena Shay was an honorable mention pick.

for me means time to purchase another running calendar.

I've kept one for several years. In addition to tracking my progress on the roads and trails and comparing my times with past years, the particular calendar I choose also helps me keep tabs on my weight.

Each week, I chart my weight, and also where and how much I've run, and what workouts were good or bad. When I'm injured, I note that as well.

This year, I was particularly interested in my longer workouts as I prepared for John's Marathon, my September venture through the Coquille Valley that enabled me to cross one of the big items off my running bucket list.

That goes down as my brightest highlight of 2012, just as logging 1,000 miles was my biggest feat in 2011.

But personal accomplishment is only a part of my reason for the social side of the sport.

This time last year, I properly credited Jeff and Michelle Philley for helping me find a renewed focus in running. They started a Saturday morning run group in Coquille that I've only missed a few times in the past two years. If it weren't for them, I never would have come close to 1,000 miles last year.

Red Sox pick up closer Hanrahan from Pirates

BOSTON - The Red Sox acquired All-Star closer Joel

Hanrahan from Pittsburgh Pirates in a sixplayer deal.

Boston also received infielder Brock Holt and gave up right-handers Mark Melancon and Stolmy Pimentel, infielder Ivan DeJesus Jr. and first baseman-outfielder Jerry Sands.

Over the past two seasons, the right-handed Hanrahan had 76 saves, fourth most in the National League, and a 2.24 ERA. Last season, he was 5-2 with a 2.72 ERA and 36 saves.

Catcher Pierzynski reaches deal with Texas

ARLINGTON, Texas -The Texas Rangers have completed a one-year contract with free agent catcher A.J. Pierzynski.

Terms of the deal announced Wednesday weren't released.

Pierzynski, who turns 36 on Sunday, hit .278 with a career-high 27 home runs in 135 games for the Chicago White Sox last season.

WKU's bowl gamble favors Chippewas before moving on to an uncertain future, Lance Guidry had to make a crucial decision with the game on the line.

Fourth down, 51 seconds remaining. Kick a field goal and

"That was all the players. We were going to kick the field goal. but they told me that they were here to win the game," Guidry said. "I asked everyone and they wanted to go for it so we took the chance."

The Hilltoppers went for it and the move backfired when Kawaun Jakes threw incomplete on fourthand-2 from the 19-yard line, giving Central Michigan a 24-21 win Wednesday night in the Little Caesars Pizza Bowl. Even so, there was little regret afterward.

"I'm going to get back to my family, because I haven't seen them in a while," Guidry said. "Then I'm off to the coaches' convention to try to find a job."

Guidry was Western Kentucky's defensive coordinator, but he was put in charge on an interim basis for this bowl after coach Willie Taggart left to take over the program at South Florida. Next season, Bobby Petrino will coach the Hilltoppers.

"I don't know what I would play for overtime, or go for the have done," Central Michigan coach Dan Enos said. "But I will never second-guess a coach for trying to win."

Radcliff went 19 of 29 for 253 yards and three touchdowns, but Central Michigan needed to rally

Down 21-17, Zurlon Tipton appeared to have put the Chippewas ahead in the fourth quarter, but his fourth-down run was ruled short of the goal line after a review.

"When we didn't get the stop them right there," linebacker Shamari Benton said. "We knew that we just needed to give the offense one more shot."

Central Michigan forced the Hilltoppers to punt from their own flea-flicker on their first play from end zone, and Avery Cunningham partially blocked it. Although the ball bounced around for a bit, the Chippewas finally secured it and took over with great field position inside the 30.

One of those guys is Roy Mollier, who has been active in the club for years and annually puts on a fun run that is a tribute to Scotty Brown, another popular club member who died several years ago.

The other runner back in action is Patrick Myers, who created the Sunset Bay Trail Run with Lawrence Cheal a few years ago.

Throw in longtime running club director Pete Dawson and veterans Frank Searfus, Jay Farr, Tim Wall, Jim Clarke and Tom Bedell, and there's a handful of guys in the older divisions that have inspired me and make me hope that I can still run in future

I might need to still be active at 60 or 70 like them just to make the podium in my age group at various club runs. It's tough now with several faster guys, including a couple of my other running friends - Brent Hutton and Anthony Collins — joining me in the 40- to 50-year-old division.

Hutton missed the recent Mac's Run because he took his son, Hunter, to New Mexico for the Junior Olympics national cross country finals. No problem, his regular spot in front of the rest of the pack was filled by Chuck Engle, the "Marathon Junkie," who also is in our age group and blazed to an easy victory (nine minutes before I crossed the line).

As for me, I didn't get to 1,000 miles this year. But I did finish the year healthy, and I will mark the new vear the same way I do all the others. with a run up Moon Creek with Chuck and Jeff and Michelle and any of our other friends who want to join

As I complete the running log for 2012, here's to a happy and healthy

Buffalo guard Andy Levitre rests while the defense is on the field during a September game against Cleveland. The former Oregon State standout has started every game of his four-year career with the Bills.

Former Beaver has uncertain future

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) - Through rain, snow, heat and losing seasons, whether he's played guard, center or tackle, Andy Levitre has never missed a game - let alone a start - during his four years with the Buffalo Bills

He will make it 64 straight on Sunday, when the Bills close their season against the New York Jets.

What the former Oregon State University standout isn't sure of is whether it will be his final one with Buffalo with his contract set to expire.

"Yeah, I don't know," Levitre said Wednesday. "I don't know if it's going to be here. I don't know if it's going to be somewhere else. But right now, I'm focused on trying to beat the Jets and we'll kind of see where it goes from there."

The game is meaningless for the Bills (5-10) and Jets (6-9), who are out of playoff contention.

Just don't downplay its importance to Levitre, who's trying to avoid thinking about what it will be like leaving the field once time runs out.

"Every time that gets brought up, I kind of just try to push it away," Levitre said. "Maybe that's something I'll think about on Monday, like, 'Wow, maybe that was my last time."

Levitre would prefer to continue playing in Buffalo. The trouble is, he's unsure where the Bills stand regarding

Coach Chan Gailey refers to Levitre

"He's been solid," Gailey said. "He's been one of the pleasant things on offense as far as consistency goes."

Levitre is the team's first offensive Ruben Brown enjoyed a 71-game streak from 1999 through 2003.

As for members of Levitre's 2009 draft class, only three other players have started all 63 games: Rams linebacker James Laurinaitis, Browns center Alex Mack and Ravens tackle Michael Oher.

Bills center Eric Wood was a firstround pick in 2009 and, by comparison, has made 46 starts while twice finishing seasons on injured reserve.

having established himself as one of the season lobbying Levitre to re-sign

"Obviously, I want him to come back Though a majority of his starts have here. We have a great chemistry on the line," said Wood, who shares the same agent as Levitre. "But you know, Andy's done everything he could to maximize his earning power at this point. And after this year, he's going to have to do what's best for him."

Wood and Levitre have helped bring stability to the Bills line. It's a unit that allowed 23 sacks last year — the thirdfewest in Buffalo in a 16-game season. This year, Buffalo's allowed just 30 sacks and has the NFL's sixth-best running attack.

Levitre is proud with what he's lineman to start at least 63 games since helped accomplish with the Bills. And for someone who grew up in Northern California and played at Oregon State, he's come to enjoy living in Buffalo.

The cold winters certainly don't bother him. Levitre joked there are days he'll go out in the snow wearing shorts and sandals.

"I really do want to stay. I think it's great here," Levitre said. "I love the city. The people here are awesome. Great football town. There's nothing more Wood, who has one year left on you can ask for except for winning. Levitre's value has certainly risen in his contract, has spent much of the That's the only thing I can ask for. But we've got to earn that."

Manning, Peterson return to Pro Bowl

■ First-time picks include Seattle center Max Unger

NEW YORK (AP) -Peyton Manning and Adrian Peterson want to cap their sensational comebacks with Super Bowl appearances. For now, they can be proud of Pro Bowl spots.

So can Redskins quarterback Robert Griffin III, one of rookies chosen Wednesday for the Jan. 27 NFL all-star game. Another first timer is Seattle center Max Unger, who has ties to the South Coast – he's married to former Marshfield track standout Leah Worthen.

Manning missed all of the 2011 season with neck and back problems that required several operations. He then signed with Denver as a free agent and has led the Broncos on a 10-game winning streak to take the AFC West.

Four other Broncos made the AFC roster: DE Elvis Dumervil, linebacker Von Miller, CB Champ Bailey and tackle Ryan Clady. Bailey's 12th appearance is a record for defensive backs.

"My goal has always been to go out and help the team win and play at a high level," Manning added. "Anything that comes along with that, like being honored as a Pro Bowl selection, is very humbling."

Minnesota's Peterson tore up his left knee on Christmas Eve last year, underwent major surgery, then was back for the season opener. He's gone from uncertain to unstoppable, running away with the rushing title with a career-high 1,898 yards and lifting the Vikings toward an NFC wild card.

"Coming into the season after going through the rehab that I wanted to lead my team Colquitt of Kansas City. to a championship and make sure that I contribute and do my part," Peterson said. "I've been doing it."

Griffin is one of three rookie QBs who had superb debut seasons, along with Andrew Luck of Indianapolis and Russell Wilson of Seattle. Luck and Wilson weren't voted to the Pro Bowl by players, coaches and fans, although their teams are in the playoffs; Griffin can get to the postseason if Washington beats Dallas on

San Francisco had the most players selected, nine, including six from its second-ranked defense. Houston was next with eight, six on offense. Kansas City, despite its 2-

Minnesota kicker Blair Walsh, was chosen. Walsh has nine field goals of at least 50 yards, an NFL mark. The AFC kicker is at the other end of the spectrum: Cleveland's Phil Dawson earned his first selection in his 14th NFL season.

"I deliberately tried not to "I know there's great know," Dawson said. "We wanted to watch the show with my kids. I had a really good idea what was going on, but it was a pretty priceless moment when we saw the name flash up on the screen. My kids went nuts 'cause my wife went nuts. That makes these 15 years of waiting worth it."

Another record setter will be heading to Honolulu: Detroit WR Calvin Johnson.

Johnson broke Jerry Rice's single-season yards receiving record and has 1,892 yards with a game left.

Falcons tight end Tony Gonzalez set the record for Pro Bowls at his position by being chosen for the 13th

The league's top two sackmasters, DEs Aldon Smith of San Francisco and J.J. Watt of Houston, were first-time selections. Watt has 20 1-2 sacks, one ahead of Smith; the NFL record is 22

Dolphins must choose whether to keep Bush needs upgrades to become playoff-worthy, the Miami Dolphins this winter could be eager to reach a deal with a 1,000-yard rusher who can also catch passes and score from anywhere on the field.

Reggie Bush too expensive to keep.

On Sunday, Bush might play his final game for the Dolphins (7-8) when they close their season at New England. His two-year contract for nearly $10 million expires after the season, and New York Jets (plus 3) at the team hasn't offered him a new deal.

"I would definitely love to back," Bush said Cleveland (OFF) at Wednesday. "There's definitely some unfinished business Baltimore (plus 3) at ing Steelers in contention. here, some things we want to Cincinnati: These teams Not strange with Browns ... accomplish, some things I would love to accomplish."

Bush needs 40 yards rushrow since joining the Dolphins. He has been their Oakland (OFF) at San primary playmaker, but he has yet to lead them to the playoffs or even a winning season. Because he's 27 at a position where youth is pre- two seasons.

DAVIE, Fla. (AP) - With an ferred, and because the underwhelming offense that recent market demand for free-agent running backs has been modest, Bush faces a likely pay cut wherever he plays next year.

And it's unclear how eager the Dolphins will be to join the bidding. They'll have Or perhaps they'll deem more than $40 million in cap space, but they also have rookie running back Lamar Miller poised to assume a bigger role in 2013. And they have pressing needs at receiver, tight end, cornerback and defensive end.

A seven-vear veteran. Bush has never made the Pro Bowl. But he has averaged 4.7 yards per carry with Miami, and he showed Sunday he wouldn't be easy to replace, scoring three touchdowns two on receptions - in a win over Buffalo.

"He's always a factor in the game," Bills coach Chan Gailey said. "He makes things happen."

There were doubts about Bush's durability when he joined the Dolphins after five years with New Orleans. But he has missed only one game with Miami while exceeding 250 touches each of the past not expecting his wife to bid three notrump with a void. However, what should happen in four hearts after West leads the spade ace?

A guick glance at the North-South hands suggests that seven diamonds might make. But then you notice the 4-1 breaks in each minor, which, as we saw yesterday, make 12 tricks the limit.

Another cursory look, seeing the K-Q-10-tripleton of trumps, suggests that four hearts will make, perhaps with an overtrick. But not if the defenders keep plugging away at spades. South runs out of trumps and can win only nine tricks

At this table, though, East unwisely signaled with his nine under West's ace. South ruffed, cashed the heart ace, and played another heart (discarding minors from the board). West won and led a spade, dummy's eight forcing out the queen. South ruffed and played two rounds of clubs. East ruffed but had no winning continuation. When he tried a low spade, declarer discarded a diamond and won with dummy's jack, played a diamond to his hand, and led a trump, claiming when they split.

That was very nicely

Everyone has a right to know what the government is doing...

...except 75% of seniors.

newspaper whose readers are affected by the notice. Federal, state, and local government agencies erroneously believe they can save money by posting public notices on their web sites instead of in the local

But who would have access to those online notices? 62% of U.S. seniors (65 and older) have no internet access, and a third of those who DO have access are still limited to dialup.*

Besides, you'd have to know in advance where, when, and how to look, and what to look for, in order to be informed about government actions that could affect you directly.

Less than 10% of the U.S. population currently visits a government web site daily, but 80% of all Oregon adults read a newspaper at least once during an average week, and 54% read public notices printed there.
