Voters: Keep the lights on City manager says

he's disappointed

By Amy Moss Strong
Bandon Western World

BANDON — Tuesday's election results were clear: Residents don't want an ordinance that would regulate outdoor lighting.

On a 524-419 vote, the measure to add outdoor lighting regulations to Bandon's municipal code was soundly defeated. A total of 943 of Bandon's 1,807 registered voters filled out and sent in ballots — a 52.2 percent turnout.

The ordinance was the only issue on the special election ballot and was put there by referendum. Bandon resident Rob Taylor collected enough signatures to put the issue on the ballot after the City Council passed the ordinance 5-1 last year, with Councilor Chris Powell opposed and councilors Brian Vick, Mike Claassen, Geri Procetto, Nancy Drew

Police warn burglaries on the rise

Theives target cars, homes and church

By Amy Moss Strong
Bandon Western World

BANDON — A tide of recent burglaries have kept the Bandon Police Department busy and as a result Chief Bob Webb reminds residents to lock their doors and cars to help safeguard them from being victimized.

Someone broke into the Bandon Presbyterian Church last week and took a computer and some cash, among other items, Webb said. This is the second time in a month the church has been burglarized, both by forced entry. The last time, the church's chimes were stolen, but were later recovered.

Homeowners in Bandon have reported burglaries in the past couple of weeks as well, including one that was entered while the residents were home in the evening. A couple of the crimes occurred at empty vacation rentals in the Beach Loop area, where the door was kicked in to gain entry.

Webb said there also have been several cases of cars being broken into, but most of the car clouts are from unlocked cars at night while the vehicle was sitting in the owner's driveway.

A Curry County crime team was on scene Tuesday at Anchor Inn R.V. Park where human remains were found by a maintenance crew Monday afternoon. Curry County, Bandon, and Oregon State Police are conducting an investigation and have yet to determine the cause of death.

Found human remains baffle RV park owners

By Alysha Beck and

PORT ORFORD — Police officers investigating human remains uncovered at a Port Orford RV park Monday say they are treating the scene as if it were a homicide as a precaution.

Oregon State Police Sgt. Andy Kenyon said Tuesday afternoon that there is "no indication of foul play" at the scene, but it is standard procedure to treat an investigation of this type as if it were a homicide until that possibility is ruled out.

The cause of death will be determined after a medical examiner from Eugene visits the scene to conduct an autopsy and determine if a criminal investigation needs to take place.

Kenyon said a reconstructionist also would use equipment, including lasers, to help police create a "to-scale diagram of the scene" for future use in the investigation.

Maintenance workers found a human skull underneath a trailer after it was moved at the Anchor Inn RV Park around 1 p.m. Monday. More remains were discovered Tuesday as officers continued to investigate the scene.

The additional remains appeared to be in a sleeping bag.

Port Orford Police Chief Marvin Combs said the discovery set off a crime scene investigation.

Anchor Inn RV Park owner Craig Lundberg, who's owned the park for about a year with his wife Malinda, said that whatever occurred probably happened before they owned the complex.

"This happened long before we got here," Lundberg said Tuesday afternoon. "Whatever happened probably happened in the last five years, but we're just not sure what happened or when."

Everything environment comes to Bandon

BANDON — Information about climate change, marine debris, seabird populations, invasive species, coastal geology and natural history will be on tap at the annual Sharing the Coast conference, coming to Bandon and Charleston March 15-17.

The conference, which is free and open to the public, is an annual collaboration between CoastWatch — the volunteer program of the Oregon Shores Conservation Coalition — and the Northwest Aquatic and Marine Educators. This time around, Sharing the Coast will take place in both Bandon on Friday evening and Saturday and in Charleston on Sunday, with field trips elsewhere.

Charleston resident and retired climate scientist Al

Experts will discuss climate change, tsunami debris, history

Solomon will provide the conference's keynote talk at 7 p.m. Friday, at The Barn, 1200 11th St. S.W., speaking on "Weather Extremes and Climate Change: The Essential Linkage." Solomon received training in developing his talk from Al Gore's Climate Reality group.

The Barn will also be the site of Saturday, events. These will include presentations by marine ecologist Cynthia Trowbridge on natural materials found in the driftline; Al Dohner — a retired doctor who created his talk for Physicians for Social Responsibility — on marine debris and its impact on the oceans; Rob Suryan of the Hatfield Marine Science Center on Oregon's seabird populations and how climate change is affecting them; and Jessica Miller, also of the HMSC, who studies invasive species and will discuss how tsunami debris may be carrying them across the Pacific. Miller will also lead a workshop in the afternoon for those interested in participating in a project to keep watch for invasives.

Saturday afternoon will feature workshops and field trips, and will wind up with a reception beginning at 5 p.m. back at The Barn, featuring both a short talk by Bill Hanshumaker, Oregon Sea Grant chief scientist, and a coast-oriented "trivia" contest.

At 9:30 a.m. Sunday, the conference will move to the Boat House Auditorium at the Oregon Institute of Marine Biology, 63466 Boat Basin Road in Charleston. The program includes oceanographer Alan Shanks, speaking on Oregon's nearshore ocean, geologist Ron Metzger on the dynamic forces that shape our shoreline, and Joy Tally of the South Slough National Estuarine Research Reserve on estuarine ecology.

Field trips Sunday afternoon will focus on the sandy shore and dunes and the geology of the dynamic shoreline.

Caught You Being Good for March

BANDON — Ocean Crest Elementary School honors students who are observed doing something helpful or kind with the monthly "Caught You Being Good" program. During the month, students who are "caught being good" are listed on a slip of paper, which is put into a box at the school office. At the end of the month at the Friday PRIDE assembly, 15 names are chosen from the box and those students are given a golden dollar, a pencil and a certificate. The Bandon Lions Club provides the prizes for the program.

Students "caught" for March include (14 students this month):

Michael Schlitzkus, for remembering about his food allergies and reminding Ocean Crest staff.

Lucas Huhn, for helping put chairs under tables in the library.

Cole Wilson, for helping another student during lunch recess.

Angel He, for following directions in class.

Evan Allende, for helping another student during lunch recess.

Bella Erenfeld, for helping another student during lunch recess.

Rachel Eickhoff, for being a good example and having no reading corrections.

Orrin Garrison-Johns, for having no time outs and only three warnings in October.

Daisy Wallace, for stopping a teacher from falling.

Hunter Angove, for spreading gravel on the new playground.

Justina Colberg, for staying on task when the whole class was being distracted by a kindergartner.

Sierra Hagglund, for helping cut pieces then piecing together and helping sew the tree skirt.

Luke Brown, for helping out in the library.

America Ruiz, for working quietly at her desk during free time.

Ocean Crest Elementary School hosts science, book fairs March 14

BANDON — Ocean Crest Elementary School will hold its fourth annual Science Fair from 6-7 p.m. Thursday, March 14, in the school's gym.

Students were invited to do a project on anything science related that interested them and setting up a display at the Science Fair is strictly voluntary, according to Ocean Crest Principal Liz Olive. The event will be open to the public and students will be on hand to tell about their displays. That same evening, there will be parent-teacher conferences and the Bandon Readers and Volunteer Program's annual Scholastic Book Fair will be held until 7:30 p.m. The book fair also is open Friday from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Hospital board to hold special meet

BANDON — The Southern Coos Health District Board of Directors will hold a special executive session at 4 p.m. on Thursday, March 14, in the conference room at Southern Coos Hospital & Health Center, 900 11th Street S.E. in Bandon.

The meeting will be held to discuss a contract proposal for the open CEO position and the potential candidate for that position.

Following the executive session, a regular board meeting will be held, to discuss and make an offer of employment to the candidate.

and Claudine Hundhausen in favor.

Now the council must repeal the ordinance, according to City Manager Matt Winkel.

Winkel said although the ordinance was approved by the council, it was never enforced because as soon as it passed, an indignant Taylor angrily promised at a council meeting he would get the issue put on the ballot "for the voters to decide."

"I think this shows that the City Council is slightly out of touch with the voting population," Taylor said Tuesday night after the unofficial results were released by the Coos County Elections Department.

"I also believe the reason we won is that people are tired of more regulations," Taylor added.

Winkel said he really had no idea how the election would go. People from both sides were out canvassing prior to the election. Taylor said he handed out between 400 and 500 flyers. Many letters were sent to the editor of both the Bandon Western World and The World on the topic as well.

"When I was out, I spoke with quite a few people and I was basically getting that people were really upset and asking, 'Do we really need more laws?'" Taylor said.

The proposed regulations would have required that all new exterior street lights, yard lights, porch lights and other outdoor lighting be "full cutoff," which means they are designed and shielded to shine downward and not upward.

Winkel said the ordinance wouldn't have been difficult to enforce because it would have been done at the building planning level. When people came to the city seeking approval to build something, they would have been informed of the new regulations and their plan would have had to adhere to those.

Beyond that, the ordinance would mainly have been complaint driven and enforced only when someone reported a violation.

"Obviously the voters have said they don't want the outdoor lighting regulations, so the council will have to repeal the ordinance," Winkel added. "We weren't enforcing it anyway because we knew it was going on to the ballot and we don't have a lot of development going on right now where people are putting in outdoor lights."

But the city will continue to work on making its own fixtures Dark Sky compliant, Winkel said.

"For the last five to six years, all the lighting we've been installing for the city is Dark Sky compliant with full cutoff fixtures," he said. "That's all we buy any more."

The ordinance was aimed at improving and preserving the quality and enjoyment of Bandon's nighttime skies within city limits, reducing the nuisance impact of lights shining from one property into a neighbor's home or property and protecting wildlife habitats on the ocean beaches and rocks, Winkel said.

The regulations would have applied to new light installations only and would not have required removing existing legally installed lights.

Winkel said he was disappointed with the result to the extent that he thought the ordinance was a good one.

"I think this would have resulted in nicer lighting for the community and would have been a better tool to protect people from lights shining into their bedroom windows," he said. "It would have slowly evolved, but there's no 'where do we go from here' at this point. I think the voters have made their wishes clear, so we won't do it."

Lundberg was unwilling to comment on the investigation, saying he didn't feel he had enough information to say anything, but he did confirm that Oregon State Police were "sifting through everything" and that he doesn't believe it was a homicide.

"But I think I'll just wait for the experts on that," he said. "I know they're working on it and everything will come out in the wash."

He and his wife live at the RV park located about a half block off U.S. Highway 101 within the city limits of Port Orford. They have been remodeling and revamping it over the last year to turn it into a 55-and-older park.

"I heard it was pretty wild here before we owned it," Lundberg said. "But I don't think they'll know for a while what happened and I'm sure it was before we got here. But by the same token, we have to deal with it now."

Oregon State Police officers, deputies from the Curry County Sheriff's Office and members of the Port Orford Police Department are assisting in the death investigation following the discovery.

Calls were referred to the Curry County District Attorney's office Tuesday morning, but a spokesman at the DA's office would not comment on the possible case.

Further details will be released at <http://theworldlink.com> as they are made available.

"We don't know if any of these incidents are related," Webb said. "In one of the vacation homes, the back door was kicked in and it appears they went in and looked around but didn't take anything. In a couple of the incidents, residents returned home and saw someone running away. In those cases, a few items were missing."

Webb said the bottom line is that people need to lock their homes and cars, as well as write down all the serial numbers of their computers, televisions, camera equipment, guns and other valuables and take photos of all their jewelry.

That way, the serial numbers can be entered into the local and national data bases and if an item shows up, it may help an investigation and possibly solve the crime.

"It takes time, but it's a good idea and it helps us find where the items came from and get them back to the owner."

Webb said it's also good to form a neighborhood watch and to look out for each other's properties. If something seems out of place, call the police right away, not later.

"A lot of people think it's a bother to call us, but it actually helps us," Webb said. "If they want to remain anonymous, that's fine. We just really want to bring the awareness up that times are getting tough and we have more people committing desperate acts."

The city of Bandon as well as the Port of Bandon have installed cameras that also help police in investigating crimes and serve as a deterrent. The cameras are at various locations around town and people are starting to become aware that the cameras are there, Webb said. Alarms are helpful in some cases, but cameras are more effective, he added, and not expensive to install.

"The bottom line is we've got a burglar running around and whether or not it's the same person doing all this we don't know, but crime is up, so lock your doors and leave your valuables out of sight," Webb said.

Bandon wins baseball opener

By John Gunther
Bandon Western World

Bandon's baseball team started the season on a strong note Tuesday, topping host Reedsport 6-1.

The teams were tied at 1-1 entering the sixth inning when Bandon broke loose for five runs. Derik Cox and Robert Martino had back-to-back singles to lead off the inning and Chance Garrett followed with a two-run double.

Jon Wilhite added a single and the Braves helped the cause with two errors.

Mychal Yarbor had two doubles and Wilhite had a double and single Bandon coach Tyler Pendergast said he came away pleased.

"We pitched three kids (Yarbor, Martino and Quentin Coomer) and they all threw a lot of strikes," he said. "We fielded it all right, not exceptional.

"We didn't hit well the first few innings, which is to be expected the first game. Then we started to swing a little bit."

The Tigers have a relatively small team, dominated by juniors.

"We have a small number of players in the program," Pendergast said. "Most of that is because we have one sophomore and no freshmen.

"The good part of that is all the kids we have in the program have been in the program for a year or more, so there's not much of a learning curve. We can go out and run things and do things in practice that the kids are already familiar with."

There are three seniors Yarbor, the team's No. 1 starter and leadoff hitter, will likely move around to several spots in the field — he played third base part of Tuesday's game.

Garrett, in his second year as the catcher, has improved his fielding and become more of a team leader while also providing some punch in the middle of the lineup, Pendergast said.

Daniel Undell, the other senior, played some last year and has a much bigger role this year.

Yarbor and Martino both pitched well Tuesday, using fewer than 35 pitches for their three innings, Pendergast said.

"They were pretty productive," Pendergast said, adding that pitching will be vital, with all the doubleheaders on the schedule.

"You're going to need to have arms," he said.

Bandon plays its first home games Saturday, a doubleheader with Oakland.

Hutton wins race

Bandon Western World

Bandon seventh-grader Hunter Hutton was champion of the 5-kilometer race at the Run of Two Cities in the Bay Area on Saturday.

Hutton covered the difficult course, which includes three significant climbs, in 20 minutes and 13 seconds.

That was more than six minutes faster than runner-up Carter Brown, who finished in 26:24.

Beth Hutton walked the course in 37:30 and Chuck McLaughlin walked in 52:25.

In the 10-kilometer run, Duane Lindsay of Bandon was third overall in 44:36 while Tom Bedell was seventh in 48:27.

The overall 10-kilometer champions were Coos Bay residents Matt Burch (42:45) and Alysha Beck (49:04).

The South Coast Running Club's next event is the Salmon Creek Run in Powers on April 6.

The event starts at 10 a.m. and includes 5K and 10K races. The entry fee is $5 for adults and $3 for students.

Five members of the Coquille Martial Arts school in Bandon participated in a recent taekwondo tournament with the school's other two sites — in Coquille and Coos Bay — and visiting athletes from Henderson's Shorin Ryu.

Luke Valleli, an 8-year-old, placed second in both weapons and flag sparring for the 8-9 age group and third in point sparring in the 8-9 color belt division.

Jacob Valleli, age 12, was second in sparring and advanced forms and first in advanced weapons in the 11-12 age group.

Max Underdown, age 15, finished first in sparring, second in weapons and third in forms for teen-adult black belts.

Joselynn Verrastro, age 17, was second in forms, weapons and sparring for teen-adult women.

The tournament was designed to be a learning experience, said Karen Saxton, who teaches at Coquille Martial Arts.

"It was a way to practice tournament etiquette, get rid of the fears of competing and to see what practice was needed before the upcoming spring season," she said.

That was particularly valuable for newcomers to competition.

"Everyone who competed was a winner in some way, either from an actual win or from facing their fear of competition," Saxton said.

Softball team tops Reedsport

Bandon Western World

Bandon's softball team overcame an early deficit to beat Reedsport 8-2 in the season opener for the two teams.

The Tigers gave up two runs in the first inning, but then Amy Schoonmaker settled down. The senior gave up seven hits and struck out two.

Cheyenne Young had a single, double and triple and drove in two runs and Annmarie Pickett was a last-minute replacement at first base and had three hits and four RBIs.

"She played a great game in an unfamiliar position," coach Rick Hinojosa said.

Taylor Formby had a double and triple and drove in a run.

Freshman Raelyn

Freitag played solid defense at shortstop and drove in two runs.

Bandon trailed until the fifth inning, when the Tigers got runs by Jessica McGeehon, Young, Freitag and Pickett. An inning later, McGeehon, Young and Freitag scored again an inning later and Formby added an insurance run in the seventh.

Hinojosa said he's pleased with the team's first game, and even more with the weather, which has allowed the team to practice outside more than in last year's pre-season.

"I'm very happy we got to play and we won," he said.

The Tigers get their first home action Saturday when Oakland visits for a doubleheader.

Trout plants leading to good catches on local lakes

Local lakes: Trout fishing out at Bradley Lake here in Bandon has been good, and it's nice to see the new boat launch and pier getting so much use. Anglers fishing off the pier recently reported catching trout up to 15 inches using a bobber and a night crawler. One angler told me that fishing off the new dock gets good when the sun is off the water in the late afternoon. They were casting a bobber and worm next to the weed line and caught nine trout in about 15 minutes. Boaters have been using the same method in other parts of the lake and having good success.

One angler fishing the outlet of Floras Lake told us he caught his limit of trout casting spinners. He caught both native cutthroat and rainbow trout just below the bridge.

Other anglers fishing Empire Lake in Coos Bay reported good rainbow trout fishing. One angler reported catching a 17-, 19- and 24-inch rainbow casting a Kastmaster lure.

Local rivers: Last week's rain helped anglers catch some fresh steelhead on the Chetco River. Scott from the Chetco Outdoor Store told us that the river flow has been good and some fresh fish are distributed throughout the river.

Anglers plunking on the Lower Rogue have seen an increase in steelhead action over the weekend. The better fishing has been by boaters side drifting or pulling plugs. Our angler reported catching and releasing a spring Chinook salmon on the Lower Rogue last weekend.

Some nice steelhead were taken on the Elk River last week as the river rose after the mid-week rain. Anglers drifting the Sixes River last weekend reported catching a few fresh winter steelhead as well.

Fishing for steelhead was decent on the south fork of the Coquille River last weekend.

Anglers fishing from driftboats were having the best success, but bank fisherman near Powers have still been picking up some nice fish.

Anglers fishing the east and west fork of the Millicoma Rivers are starting to see a lot of spawned-out fish. A few fresh fish were reported caught on the South Coos River near Dellwood, but most of these fish have been wild.

Beaches and jetties: Anglers are reporting pretty good catches of pink fin surf perch on the Horsefall and Lighthouse Beach in Coos Bay.

Rockfish and ling cod fishing was excellent last weekend from the North Jetty in Coos Bay. Several anglers reported catching their limits of nice lingcod. Anglers are casting large swim-baits or bobber fishing herring in and around the jetty rocks.

Schools of herring have moved into Yaquina Bay to spawn. There may be spawning aggregations in other Oregon bays and
