■ Andrew Davenport acquitted after spending 11 months in jail

BY GEORGE ARTSITAS
The World

COQUILLE — In the final day of the Andrew Davenport murder trial, both the prosecution and defense agreed on the fact Randall Harless was killed on Aug. 25, 2012, that it happened in his home near Empire Lakes and that it most likely was at the hands of someone else.

After four days of trial and four hours of deliberation, the 12-person jury decided the assailant wasn't Davenport, acquitting the defendant Friday by a vote of 11-1 and releasing him after he spent 11 months in jail.

The downfall of the prosecution was the two most powerful words in the legal system: reasonable doubt. Defense attorney Donald Scales offered up plenty of doubt for the jury to chew on: there was no eyewitness of the attack that could positively identify Davenport, the defendant's DNA and fingerprints weren't found on any murder weapon, the defendant's confession he made to Davenport's daughter was reneged during her testimony, there was no direct motive for Davenport to commit the crime, and the reason other viable suspects that COQUILLE — A search warrant served Thursday morning resulted in the seizure of drugs and firearms from property where the partially eaten body of a 70-year-old man was discovered in a hog pen in October.

Capt. Cal Mitts, director of the South Coast Interagency Narcotics Team, said detectives arrived at the residence of Thomas Garner and Charity Kinsey at 91648 Highway 42S at approximately 11:15 a.m.

Young plovers returned to the wild

BANDON — 20 years after the western snowy plover was listed as a threatened species under the Endangered Species Act, state and federal wildlife officials say the species is doing great, but predation and habitat management are still at a critical stage.

Standing on a stretch of New River south of Bandon Friday morning, Dan Elbert, a biologist with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service said the government had established a goal of 250 breeding adults for the region.

"We reached that last year for the first time," Elbert said.

The western snowy plover was first listed under the ESA in 1993. Since then, state and federal officials have developed a carefully developed system of beach access restrictions to reduce conflict with humans during the tiny shorebirds' nesting season.

Elbert, who's based at the agency's Newport field office, was on the South Coast to supervise the release of three orphaned snowy plover chicks that had been discovered on the beach last year.

The chicks had since been raised at the

These are not your parents' fundraisers

BY TIM NOVOTNY

COOS BAY - Pancake spatulas and spaghetti ladles used to be the tools of the big-time fundraisers. More and more, however, they are being replaced by motorcycle helmets and, most recently, tattoo artists' needles. Today's fundraisers are getting edgier and, those involved say, more fun.

Two of the more popular fundraising events these days belong to bikers. Charity runs and poker runs seem to be gaining traction on the South Coast.

Alan Pettit is a man who has a good pulse of the local riding community. He says the popularity is nationwide. "If you look at the Bible for riders, Thunder Press, these types of activities are going on in every city, in every community and quite frankly there is a need."

Pettit, the owner of Highway 101 Harley-Davidson in Coos Bay, believes the Harley community itself is one reason for the increase.

"Historically, we have a lot of vets who are always supporting each other, and public service people," he said. "We have a lot of Harley riders in this community — period — and historically, they've been very generous, whether it's muscular dystrophy, or St. Jude's, or Bree's Foundation, or veterans."

The latest entry into the world of motorcycle fundraisers is the Jeff Common Fallen Brother Memorial Motorcycle Run. Steve Schneiderman, the organizer, says that when deciding on a new fundraiser they were looking for a way to bring people together.

Coquille city, school offer swimming lessons

A new program is being implemented this fall for all second- and third-grade students in Coquille. The Coquille Swimming and Safety Program is a joint effort by the Coquille School District and the city of Coquille. The program will be offered during the second and third week of school.

"Living close to the river makes this a most important class," said Linda Short, the key fundraiser and organizer who spearheaded the program. "I am very proud and excited about the new program."

Funds totalling $2,900 were raised to cover the wages for a certified life-guard who will provide the appropriate basic instruction. Enough funding will also provide towels and a few extra swim suits for children who may not own one.

COQUILLE — David Wonnacott could've had an embarrassed, angry, perturbed, confused or timid look on his face during his preliminary hearing at Coos County courthouse Friday.

Since he was covering his face the entire morning with a white sheet of paper for media, the only piece of information he offered the court was the fact he pleaded not guilty.

Accused

Wonnacott, who is represented by public defender Carole Hamilton, is being charged with attempted murder, second-degree assault, menacing, unlawful use of a weapon, felon in use of a weapon and probation violation.

Wonnacott, 42, was denied release on his own recognizance and his next court date in on Aug. 30. He is being held on $250,000 bail.

Orange Zone

Coos and Curry County motorists can expect traffic delays at these road construction projects this week, according to the Oregon Department of Transportation and the Coos County Road Department:

COOS COUNTY

■ U.S. Highway 101, milepost 233.4 to 234.5, McCullough Bridge rehab: Watch for intermittent weeknight lane closures across the bridge. Watch for flaggers. The speed limit on the bridge is reduced to 35 mph. Drive with caution. The sidewalk on the east (northbound) sidewalk will be closed until September.

■ U.S. Highway 101, milepost 234-238, North Bend to Coos Bay paving, sidewalks and traffic signals: This project will replace four traffic signals in North Bend, upgrade sidewalks throughout the project area, improve drainage and pave four miles of U.S. Highway 101 between McCullough Bridge in North Bend and Fir Street in Coos Bay. Watch for intermittent daytime lane and shoulder closures along U.S. Highway 101 throughout the project area. Pedestrians should watch for sidewalk closures. Watch for nighttime (7 p.m. to 7 a.m.) lane closures along U.S. Highway 101 and side streets between Stanton Avenue and Florida Avenue in North Bend due to drainage work.

■ Oregon Highway 42, milepost 23-38, Powers Junction to Remote chip seal: Watch for daytime lane closures on Oregon Highway 42 between Powers Junction and the community of Remote due to chip seal work. Flaggers and pilot cars will provide traffic control. Expect brief delays. Watch for loose rock in the roadway.

CURRY COUNTY

■ U.S. Highway 101, milepost 339-340, Pistol River Bridge rehabilitation: U.S. Highway 101 is limited to a single lane of traffic at Pistol River. A temporary signal will provide traffic control. Expect brief delays. Watch for flaggers and message boards.

Dixon completes Air Force training

Congratulations to Air Force Airman Rex Dixon of Coquille who has graduated from basic military training at Joint Base San Antonio-Lackland in San Antonio, Texas.

The airman completed an intensive eight-week program that included training in military discipline and studies, Air Force core values, physical fitness and basic warfare principles and skills. Airmen who complete basic training earn four credits toward an associate in applied science degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

Dixon has earned distinction as an honor graduate. He is the son of Angela and Albert Dixon of Coquille.

The airman is a 2011 graduate of Coquille High School.

Groundbreaking today at Coos Bay Maritime Center

Construction of the new Coos Historical and Maritime center will begin at 10 a.m. Saturday at 1210 Front St., Coos Bay. The community is invited to the site for an official groundbreaking event. Free doughnuts, juice, information, photo exhibit and a few speeches will be part of the event — along with a few surprises for the crowd.

"This is really a thank you and recognition of this tremendous unified support" says CCHS President Joe Slack. "Local residents created this organization back in 1891, and the community has supported its independent operation ever since."

Street closure today in Coos Bay

The city of Coos Bay will be closing the southbound lane of North Front Street to Fir Avenue.

Northbound traffic on North Front Street will be allowed to travel north to U.S. Highway 101 from 7 a.m. to noon Saturday. If you wish to access North Front Street past Fir Avenue, you will need to head south on Broadway to Alder Avenue, turn left and then safely cross Bayshore Drive at the stop sign. This is North Front Street. The one-lane road closure is due to a groundbreaking ceremony of the Maritime Museum.

Mussel harvesting closed on South Coast

SALEM (AP) — Oregon officials have closed recreational mussel harvesting on the south Oregon coast because of elevated levels of a marine toxin.

The state Agriculture and Fish and Wildlife departments said Friday that the closure extends from Cape Arago in Coos County to the

SOUTH COAST REPORTS

California border.

The culprit is an elevated level of paralytic shellfish poisoning toxin.

The agencies say crab are not affected by this level of toxin and are safe to eat.

Shellfish contaminated with the toxin can cause minor to severe illness or even death, with symptoms usually starting with a tingling of the mouth and tongue.

Shellfish toxins are produced by algae and usually originate in the ocean. The Agriculture Department will continue to test toxin levels weekly.

Lakeside hydrants, valves flushed

Flushing of hydrants and water mains will be performed Aug. 6-15. You may notice discoloration of your water. If discoloration continues past the listed dates, please contact the Lakeside Water District office at 541-759-3602.

School supply drive this week

Staples, Boys and Girls Clubs of America and teen actor Jake T. Austin are kicking off a national school supply drive across the country. The sixth annual Staples for Students national school supply drive will supply local students with the tools they need to be successful in school.

Teens can drop off supplies Aug. 11-18 at Staples, 1995 Newmark Ave., North Bend. Staples will put all the supplies in the hands of Boys and Girls Club of Southwestern Oregon students. Staples customers can also donate $1 or more through Sept. 28.

Chandler watch continues

■ City issued permits, but no action seen on site

BY TIM NOVOTNY
The World

COOS BAY — The city of Coos Bay has issued new work permits for the historic Chandler Building in downtown. They have ordered some rooms to be vacated. Yet, the building's northwest corner is still dangerously dipping into the ground.

The only thing being bolstered at this time seems to be a certain sense of frustration.

City Manager Rodger Craddock said this week that they have even noticed someone appears to still be living in an area that is supposed to have been vacated.

"Unfortunately, the permits have already been given to him, but not everybody is out of that top floor yet," Craddock said, referring to ongoing efforts with building owner Jim Tarantino.

City officials said he has had the permit for almost two weeks now, which is contributing to some frayed nerves.

"We're a little concerned because no work has started and obviously there is that window, or that date, that is out there," Craddock said, in reference to a Sept. 4 deadline. "If the work is not completed by then he'll have to evacuate the rest of the building, other than the restaurant. So any of the apartments above would have to be evacuated."

In the meantime, Craddock said the city will work on addressing the issue of the person in the unsafe portion of the building, while also making preparations to start vacating anyone else after Sept. 4.

"But we're all in hopes that is not going to occur," he added. "We're kind of hoping that Mr. Tarantino follows through with what he's told us he's going to do."

Calls to Jim Tarantino for comment have, as of press time, not been returned.

By Lou Sennick, The World

The city of Coos Bay has given Chandler Building owner James Tarantino the permits he needs to start the repairs over a week ago. As of Friday at noon, nothing has been done to raise the sagging building and may be facing a deadline from the city to begin repairs.

Cheers & Jeers

Good showing, young men

Cheer for efforts of the South Coast All-Stars in their third-place finish at the Pacific Northwest Babe Ruth regional tournament in Centralia, Wash., last weekend. Placing third is nothing to dismiss, and a strong defense kept them in the competition until the end. Nice work, guys.

Happy Birthday!

The Umpqua Discovery Center in Reedsport celebrates 20 years of operation this month. The center's displays and exhibits depicting the natural history of the Oregon coast have been educating thousands of visitors since it opened in 1993. Be sure to join the official celebration this Saturday.

Can you say irrelevant?

Cheers to the Coos Bay City Council for choosing not to deal with a resolution opposing the National Defense Authorization Act earlier this week. Well-intentioned as they are, the concerns of some folks over possible civil liberties breaches as a result of the federal law are overblown. "I don't think this is our job to do this," Crystal Shoji said. "We were elected to take care of the city of Coos Bay." Yes, ma'am.

Good Vampire curds

Face Rock Creamery in Bandon won first place in the annual American Cheese Society's competition for its Vampire Slayer curds under the "fresh, unripened cheeses with flavor added" category, in Madison, Wis., last week. The name of the category is a mouthful itself, but those curds really are tasty.

A cross to bear

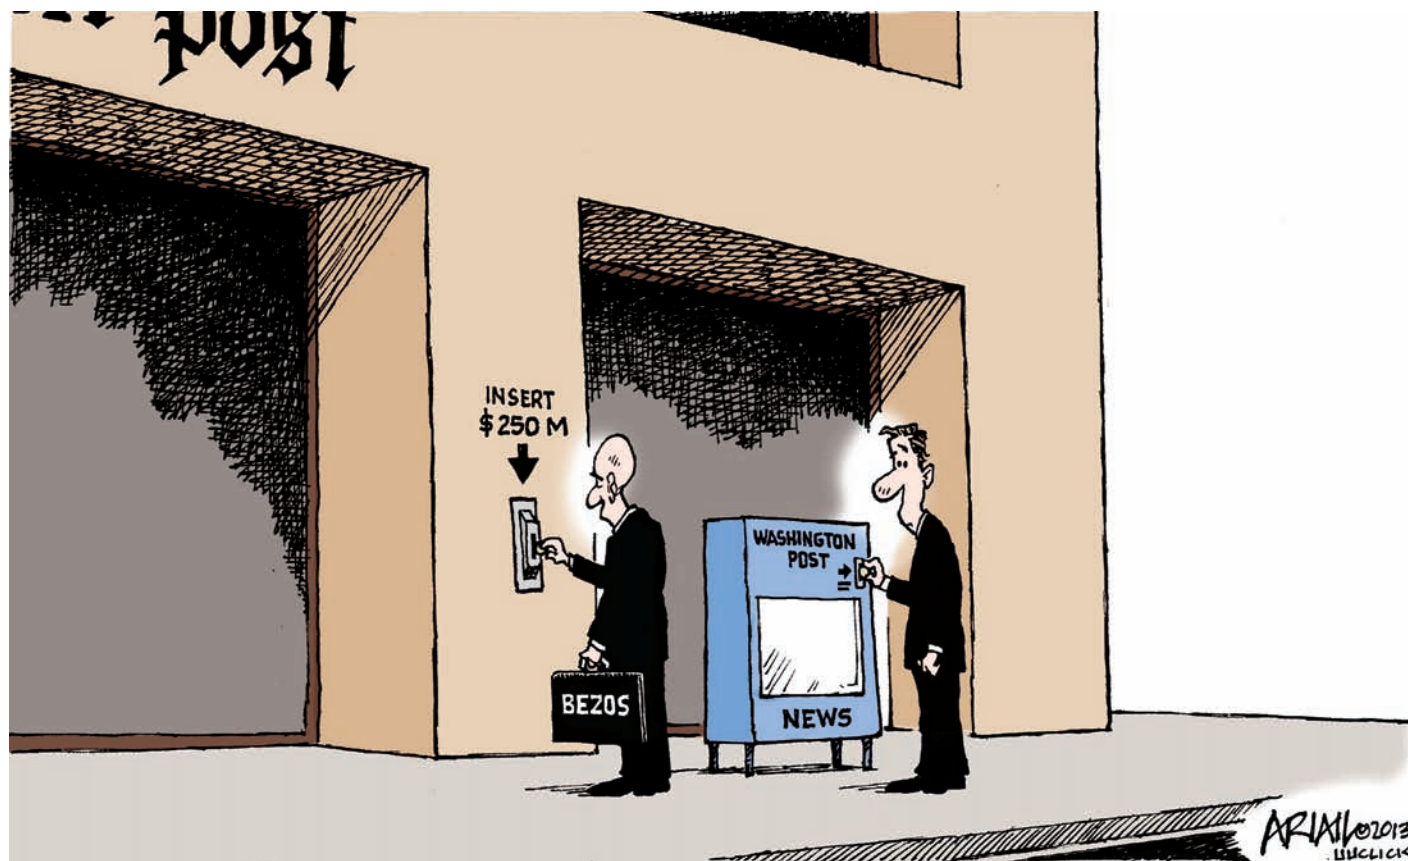

We applaud Coos Bay Mayor Crystal Shoji's request this week to schedule another public meeting on the fate of the contested Vietnam War Memorial cross in Mingus Park. Questions of constitutionality have so far kept discussion of the memorial behind executive session doors. But this week the mayor said she'd grown weary of not being able to answer questions in public. "I don't like secrecy," she said. Good for her; neither do we.

Food Share concerns a thing of the past

This is a letter I never thought I would be writing. As everyone probably knows, ORCCA is now under new management. Mike Lehman, the new executive director of ORCCA, met with the pantries in Curry County in July. He promised all kinds of good things like communication, better service, etc. We were all very skeptical given past experiences with ORCCA hierarchy.

Now for the good part. Laura and Becky, who are in charge of the internal workings of South Coast Food Share, have completely solved our billing issues. They sat down with us and we worked out a plan to put all those distressing billing issues to rest for good. Any issues with deliveries, food availability or anything else are promptly taken care of by Laura. She handles our questions and concerns with the utmost courtesy and efficiency. These people really do care about getting food to hungry people.

We at Brookings Harbor Community Helpers Food Bank were partially responsible for bringing to light issues that cast shadows on ORCCA's reputation. We feel it is our responsibility to let the public know that we were heard and changes are being made. Many thanks to Laura and Becky. Mike gets a gold star for putting them in charge.

Council dedicated to economic development

Amidst controversial subjects and the criticism that followed, the city council of Coos Bay has exhibited a dedication to helping the economic development of downtown, and encouraging investment in our community. In a time where regulations, permits, fees and licenses can be seen as hindering the entrepreneurial spirit, the city council showed that those who choose to work with the system, can be worked with.

Recently, a proposal to construct a rain garden and courtyard on the south side of the Ford Building and future home to my new business, the 7 Devils Brewing Co., was presented to the city. The proposed design was on city property, which poses complications for private investment. After several meetings to explore the possible options for development were held, the city staff presented the options to the city council. At that point the council had the power to facilitate development in downtown, and encourage investment in our community, or to simply say "no" and take the easy route of non-action.

The council voted unanimously in favor of development, which I believe exemplifies a dedication to the economic investment and the diversification of industry within our city. The proposed development that was approved also results in an improvement to the public storm water system with its capacity to hold and treat all storm waters from the site for up to a 25-year storm event.

While the process that is necessary to start a business or create a new industry may be frustrating at times, patience and respect for the people and the process can lead to a working relationship. I would like to state that the city staff and city council has been very professional and dedicated to the fairness of all concerned. With that in mind, I wish to invite other entrepreneurs who have a dream to invest in downtown.

Never thought I'd see us turn on one another

Sharon Leslie's public forum letter of Aug. 6 states that she refuses to let any political party tell her how to think. Bravo for her independent thinking.

Leslie's letter referred to a Sharon Rodrigues. I don't know Leslie at all, but I think she was referring to me because of my many public forum letters in the past. Since she didn't get her facts straight regarding my name, I wonder what other facts in her letter might be wrong. I'd like to know where she got her information about President Obama's supposed destruction of America's international image. Maybe she's recently back from a world tour. From what I've read, America's reputation was under fire long before President Obama's election. It seems that a certain segment of our population is opposed to Obama no matter what he does. Case-in-point, the current Congress, which is dominated by those against every move our president makes. The members behave as if, instead of al-Qaida, it is Obama who wants to destroy us. Their open disloyalty to our president serves only to strengthen al-Qaida's resolve against us.

I agree with Leslie regarding the ongoing threat of al-Qaida. Her angry tirade seems directed toward Americans who disagree with her. Until we Americans learn how to get along with one another how can we expect our government to carry out the wishes of the majority, instead of those wishes of an angry minority who throw temper tantrums when their candidate loses?

I never thought I'd see the day when Americans turned on one another the way they have in the past few years. In my opinion, hate radio has helped fuel this. I am old enough to remember how all Americans stood together against our common enemies during World War II. No American then would have verbally attacked other Americans the way the hate-mongers do today, thus encouraging terrorists who are more than happy to see us fighting amongst ourselves.

It is important to respect opposing views but when the message is delivered with such venom it's hard to take the messenger seriously, especially if she doesn't even bother to get a person's name right. Possibly Sharon Leslie thinks that all Latino names sound alike. At least she got my first name right.

Politics need reforms

Douglas Newton gives good reasons that members of Congress get re-elected despite low ratings of Congress as a whole, but missed the two most important.

Most people assume only a Democrat or Republican can win an election and vote accordingly, fulfilling their own prediction. Typically, choices the major parties give are backed by deep-pocketed special interests. In those races, the only candidates people are willing to vote for are those willing to be corrupted by special interests. That proves that getting and keeping their jobs is their first priority. These politicians defend party policies determined by big donors and disagree only on how willing they are to undermine the interests of those who vote for them. No surprise there.

The first step in fixing Congress is voting only for candidates from any party who are willing to support a constitutional amendment to reform campaign finance and abolish corporate personhood.

Illa B. Nickerson

April 6, 1924 – Aug. 5, 2013

A memorial service to celebrate the life of Illa Nickerson, 89, of Coos Bay, will be held at 11 a.m. Sunday, Aug. 11, at Coos Bay Chapel, 685 Anderson Ave., with her grandson, pastor Dustin Nickerson presiding. Private cremation rites were held at Ocean View Memory Gardens Crematorium in Coos Bay.

Illa was born, the 11th of 13 children, April 6, 1924, in Middlemont, Mont., to John Olson and Cora (Stevens) Olson. She passed away peacefully at her home in Coos Bay, with her family at her side, Aug. 5, 2013.

Illa married James Nickerson Sept. 12, 1940, in Vancouver, Wash. Together they had five children between 1941 and 1951. In 1950, they moved to Coos Bay, where she and her husband raised their five children, and many more along the way. Their doors were always open and was home to many in need along the way.

Illa was a quiet "home body" and enjoyed staying at home working puzzles and sewing. She will be greatly missed by all of her family and friends.

Illa is survived by her daughter, Dody Pagh of Texas; daughter, Donna Edris of Alaska; daughter, Darla Shephard of Oregon; son, James Nickerson Jr. of Oregon; son, Don Nickerson of Oregon; grandchildren, James Nickerson III, Rodney Matthews Jr., Dustin Nickerson, Darlene Woods, Tammy Donaldson, Cindy Hill, Debbie Duncan, Melanie Nickerson and Jessica Sewell; and many great and great-great-grandchildren.

Illa was preceded in death by her parents, John and Cora Olson; her husband, James Nickerson Sr.; and grandchildren, Gary Pagh, Kathy Lambert and Diane Weston.

The family would like to extend a special thank you to Greg and Corrine Burnum for all of their help and support.

Arrangements are under the care of Coos Bay Chapel, 541-267-3131.

Friends and family are encouraged to sign the online guestbook at www.coosbayareafunerals.com and www.theworldlink.com.

Neva Lorine Gohde

Jan. 30, 1919 - July 31, 2013

Neva Lorine Gohde, 94, of Eagle Point died peacefully July 31, 2013, in Medford. She was born Jan. 30, 1919, in San Francisco, Calif., to parents John Earl and Alma Lorine Crawford. Most of her childhood days were spent in San Diego, where she graduated from Woodrow Wilson Junior High and Herbert Hoover High School. She was an accomplished cellist and played in the San Diego Junior Philharmonic Orchestra during her high school years.

Neva Gohde

In 1936, Neva's family moved to Fort Vancouver, Wash., and in 1937, they moved to Corvallis. Neva stayed in Vancouver and graduated from a Vancouver business school. While attending a dance at Oregon State University, she met a member of the performing band, Ralph Gohde. They were married in Vancouver on Sept. 1, 1939, and farmed in the Corvallis area until 1955, where their three children, Ann, Michael and Gail were born.

In 1955, the family moved to North Bend, where Ralph and Neva lived until 2003. Neva was employed at Georgia-Pacific in Coos Bay from 1956 to 1981 as an assistant purchasing agent. They enjoyed gardening, fishing and camping and were actively involved in jazz and dance bands. After Ralph retired, he returned to playing in jazz groups and Neva enjoyed traveling to jam sessions with him.

Neva is survived by her brother, John Earl and wife, Arline Crawford of Fredericksburg, Va.; daughter, Ann and husband, David Fauss of Roseburg; son, Michael and wife, Pat Gohde of Eagle Point; daughter, Gail Cirac of Vancouver, Wash.; nine grandchildren; and seven great-grandchildren.

Neva was preceded in death by her husband in 2003. She lived with Michael and Pat in Eagle Point the past nine years.

The ashes of Neva and Ralph will be interred at the Eagle Point National Cemetery.

Carol L. Dose

Dec. 12, 1927 - July 31, 2013

Carol Leu Dose, of Salem, passed away July 31, 2013, from age related causes. Carol was born Dec. 12, 1927, in Alexis, Ill., to Dr. Joseph and Wilma Krichel. Carol lived her childhood in Keokuk, Iowa. She was the third of four siblings: Virginia Jenkins, Barbara Warnock, and Dr. Joe Krichel, all of whom preceded her in death.

Carol married the love of her life, Joseph C. Dose, in 1950. They began their life together in Ames, Iowa, where son, Jeff, (Jacquie) was born. Shortly after, in 1952 they moved to Coos Bay, where Steve (Vija) and Barbara Lerwick (Chuck) were born.

Carol was a teacher of Spanish and English and Joe started his distinguished career with the Bureau of Land Management. Another son, David (Jill) of Eugene was born in Eugene where the family enjoyed life from 1964 to 1975. After some time in Virginia, they settled and eventually retired in Salem, Ore. Joe preceded Carol in death in 2006.

She is survived by eight grandchildren, Kent, Nick, Erika, Jake, Erik, Barbara Jayne, Erin and Carrie; and three great-grandchildren, Neesa, Ryann, and Reese.

She was preceded in death by grandson, Joey.

Carol belonged to many organizations and clubs, including PEO, Rotary Wives, Clipper Club, and church deacon. She enjoyed life and her friends very much. Her interests included volunteering, traveling, golf, bridge, concerts, RV outings and most importantly being with her family. Since 2007 she had resided at Capitol Manor in Salem where she valued her friendships and activities there.

There will be a memorial service at 2 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 17, at Salem First Presbyterian Church, 770 Chemeketa St. NE, in Salem. Refreshments to follow. In lieu of flowers, remembrances can be made to Salem First Presbyterian Church in her name.

Parasite found in Baker City water

BAKER CITY (AP) — Baker City officials have shut off another source of city water as a result of a positive test for cryptosporidium, the parasite that sickened many residents.

The discovery this week of cryptosporidium in water from a mountain stream named Elk Creek adds to the mystery over the contamination, The Baker City Herald reported.

The parasite causes severe diarrhea. State and local officials say 300 to 400 people were ill. City officials say they're increasingly concerned about adequate supplies and have asked water users to be sparing.

"Why I Believe in Oregon Pacific Bank."

"Hello, I'm Tricia Benetti. When asked to serve on Oregon Pacific Bank's Board of Directors over eight years ago, I gladly took the opportunity, and I've never been sorry.

The reason is, as a smaller community bank, Oregon Pacific Bank is more friendly and personal. If you're like me, you know how important it is that a bank not only offers great service, but that the employees genuinely take an interest in you, your family and your business.

I also appreciate that Oregon Pacific Bank supports our local community both financially, and with active, involved and caring employees.

It is very satisfying and inspiring to know that Oregon Pacific Bank is making a positive impact within our communities."

Obama rejects boycott of Olympics in Russia

WASHINGTON (AP) – President Barack Obama rejected the idea of the United States boycotting the Winter Olympics in Sochi next year despite several significant disputes with Russia.

Answering questions Friday at a White House news conference, Obama said the United States was reassessing its relationship with Moscow but that U.S. athletes should not be penalized by the nations' differences.

"I do not think it's appropriate to boycott the Olympics," Obama told reporters. "We've got a bunch of Americans out there who are training hard, who are doing everything they can to succeed."

Russia's support for Syrian President Bashar Assad in the ongoing civil war and Moscow's decision to grant temporary asylum to National Security Agency leaker Edward Snowden have roiled the already uneasy relationship.

Obama also said he was deeply offended by Russia's new law cracking down on gay rights activism that sports officials have said would be enforced during the Games in February. He suggested that the policy could work against Russia in its quest for Olympic gold.

"One of the things I'm really looking forward to is maybe some gay and lesbian athletes bringing home the gold or silver or bronze, which would, I think, go a long way in rejecting the kind of attitudes that we're seeing there," the president said.

"And if Russia doesn't have gay or lesbian athletes, then, it'll probably make their team weaker."

The U.S. Olympic committee welcomed Obama's comments saying a boycott would be wrong.

US to reopen 18 diplomatic missions

BY MATTHEW LEE
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON – Eighteen of the 19 U.S. embassies and consulates that were closed in the Middle East and Africa because of a terrorist threat will reopen on Sunday, the State Department says.

The U.S. Embassy in Sanaa, Yemen, will remain closed. The U.S. Consulate in Lahore, Pakistan, which was closed Thursday because of what officials say was a separate credible threat, also was not scheduled to reopen.

In the statement Friday, State Department spokeswoman Jen Psaki did not cite a reason for the decision to reopen the 18 missions. She cited "ongoing concerns about a threat stream indicating the potential for terrorist attacks emanating from al-Qaida in the Arabian Peninsula," or AQAP, for keeping the embassy in Sanaa closed.

"We will continue to evaluate the threats to Sanaa and Lahore and make subsequent decisions about the reopening of those facilities based on that information," Psaki said.

The 19 outposts were closed to the public beginning last Sunday. Most American employees at the U.S. Embassy in Yemen were ordered to leave the country on Tuesday because of threat information.

An intercepted message between al-Qaida officials about plans for a major terror attack triggered the 19 closures.

The closings covered embassies and other posts stretching 4,800 miles from Tripoli, Libya, to Port Louis, Mauritius, and were not limited to Muslim or Muslim-majority nations.

Car in California missing teen case found in Idaho

CASCADE, Idaho (AP) – A car belonging to a man suspected of killing a California woman and her young son and then fleeing with the 16-year-old daughter was found in the Idaho wilderness on Friday after a horseback rider reported seeing the man and girl hiking in the area two days earlier, authorities said.

The discovery came as authorities in California positively identified the charred body of the girl's younger brother five days after its discovery.

The rider said he saw two people who matched the description of the pair near Morehead Lake, in an extremely rugged backcountry area 70 miles northeast of Boise sometime around noon Wednesday, Ada County Sheriff's Department spokeswoman Andrea Dearden said.

The rider didn't report his encounter with the pair until later, after seeing news reports and realizing they were being sought.

Idaho authorities started searching Thursday and the car was found Friday morning and identified through serial numbers as belonging to James Lee DiMaggio, 40.

There have been no other reported sightings of the pair since Wednesday, but the discovery launched a massive search in the southwest corner of The Frank Church-River of No Return Wilderness.

More than 100 people were searching on foot and on horseback or were on their way to join the search of an area that Ada County sheriff's spokesman Patrick Orr described Friday evening as covering 320 square miles.

The rider also told police it did not appear that the girl, believed to be 16-year-old Hannah Anderson, was being held against her will. Both people seemed healthy and were equipped with gear necessary to hike and camp in Idaho's remote wilderness.

"There was nothing that was so alarming at the time that he felt threatened or alarmed," Dearden said of the unidentified rider. "But after seeing the Amber Alerts, there was something that made him think, in hindsight, that it all seemed a little odd."

Also late Friday, San Diego County sheriff's officials announced that, as expected, they had positively identified a charred body discovered at DiMaggio's home near the Mexican border as the girl's 8-year-old brother, Ethan Anderson.

The sheriff's crime lab identified the body found Sunday through DNA extracted from bone marrow, the department said in a brief statement.

The children's mother, Christina Anderson, 44, was also found dead at the burning house on Sunday night, and authorities around the west have been looking for DiMaggio and Hannah Anderson ever since.

Man working on truck runs over self

SALEM (AP) – A man repairing a semi-truck at Salem was fatally injured Thursday night when he ran over himself.

Police found 59-year-old Gary Coleman dead at Coleman's Transport. The Statesman Journal reports he attempted to start the engine while reaching into the cab. The truck was in gear and began rolling forward. Coleman fell and was run over.

Portland enforcing no-camping law

PORTLAND (AP) – Portland Mayor Charlie Hales says the city will continue to enforce the law against overnight camping on public property.

He told reporters Thursday at City Hall that the campaign to clear downtown sidewalks and parks will continue. There were five arrests Wednesday.

Hales says the anti-camping crackdown is about lawlessness, not homelessness. He says he wants to maintain a level of civility on the streets. The mayor also said he wants to do more to support shelters.

An estimated 1,700 people are sleeping on the streets of Portland.

Man injured when crane topples

EUGENE (AP) – Police in Eugene say a boom lift-type crane toppled Friday evening, sending one man to a hospital.

KVAL-TV reports that officials say the unidentified man was unresponsive when medics loaded him into an ambulance. A crew had been using the lift to work on communication lines.

Police say the man was wearing a harness when the lift tipped over.

A MINUTE MESSAGE
From NORM RUSSELL
Don't Give Up
Studies show that there is a connection between the economy and suicide in America. When the economy is good, the rate of suicides plunges. In contrast, if we are going through very difficult times, then the rate escalates.
Why is this happening? There may be several factors that contribute to this issue besides the economy, but we are so tied to our finances that we often view our future by how well we are doing in this area. Thus, when we are struggling to make ends meet, hopelessness sets in and we find ourselves at a loss as to cope with our circumstances.
Finding a strategy to deal with this is nearly impossible because no two situations are the same. However, there is one thing everyone needs to do and this is, do not give up. Nothing is ever accomplished by quitting. I am thankful for that generation who went through the great depression. They lost everything but continued to press on. They were people of faith who did not blame God, but rather turned to Him. I encourage you to do the same.
Come worship with us Sunday.

CYAC

Coos Youth Auction Program

The Coos Youth Auction Committee is an organization that manages the Coos Youth Auction Program and promotes the sale of animals for 4-H and FFA members in Coos County. The CYAC provides members grades 5-12 with an opportunity to learn the skills of raising animals for breeding and meat purposes. The Coos Youth Auction is held on Saturday at the Coos County Fair. A small portion of the sales money covers operating expenses of the CYAC and the remainder is distributed to the members participating in the sale.

Coos Youth Auction Program College Scholarships

Several businesses from throughout Coos County sponsor the Coos Youth Auction Committee. Sponsors are recognized with signs that hang around the auction ring during the sale providing competitive college scholarships for senior members. Additional college scholarship funds are raised annually through the sale of fair-themed cakes at the beginning of the Coos Youth Auction.

POKER RUN Community fills the gaps

"We were thinking of doing something that Jeff enjoyed and motorcycle riding was one of them," he said. But, he added, the motorcycle riding is not the important thing. "It's the camaraderie with these types of events."

To prove that point, their "motorcycle" run is open to virtually any kind of vehicle: classic cars to beat-up sedans.

In some events, such as the Bykes for Tykes Toy Run, the riding itself is the culmination of months of fundraising activity.

"Walt and Sandy Evans, over at Coos Cycle Supply, have done a tremendous job with the Toy Run each December," Pettit said, as he hit on another reason for the rise in motorcycle related fundraisers. There is simply a greater need.

To help fill that need, Walt Evans says, there are people who grew up in difficult circumstances that are now able to help families facing similar hardships. "Some people are doing better and want to help families, and especially the kids. It's tough, what they are going through, and it's not their fault."

"There's a lot of places where the ball gets dropped and the community really has to pick up and carry the weight," Pettit adds. "Harley people have always been very quick to open their pockets and support the community in that way, and I think people look to that community as a means of supporting a number of things."

You don't have to look far for evidence of that. Evans said their recent Coos River Run, supporting the Toy

Sept. 7 Poker Run

Sponsors have been lining up for the Jeff Common Memorial Motorcycle Run, but organizers would like to see pre-registration for the riders pick up in advance of the Sept. 7 event.

"We know that people will show up, but we are encouraging people to sign up in advance so we know how many meals to order, how many lunches, dinners, how many shirts to order that type of thing," Steve Schneiderman said last week. Although, he notes, you will still be able to register at 8 a.m. at the Mill Casino on the day of the event.

You can find out more on the web page jeffcommonfoundation.org. There is also a downloadable registration form on the website, and another is available on the Jeff Common Foundation Facebook page.

The "poker run" will begin with a shotgun start at 9:30 a.m.

Run, raised over $12,000.

Schneiderman is hoping for similar support for the Jeff Common Memorial Run. "We're raising money to educate firefighters, with the emphasis on safety. This is an opportunity for you to help firefighters get better trained, be safer, and have fun doing it."

Pettit won't be surprised if, once again, the bikers rally.

"We've got a number of guys in the fire department that ride, both past and present, a lot of Coast Guard guys. We appreciate what our police are doing, what our fire departments are doing, the Coast Guard's doing, veterans, these are people who stick their necks on the line for us and so we try to go the extra mile for those folks whenever possible."

It seems to go without saying, that for the motorcycle riders and other supporters of these types of events, that extra mile can be a beautiful and worthwhile ride.

PLOVERS Crows, ravens are big problem

Oregon Coast Aquarium.

Erin Paxton, the aquarium's public affairs coordinator, said that the agency.

"We work very closely with Fish and Wildlife Services because we are one of the few facilities permitted to work with threatened bird species," Paxton said.

Elbert said limiting predation is a challenge for wildlife managers.

"By far our biggest problems are from the corvids," he said, referring to the avian family that includes crows and ravens. Coyotes and rodents are also common threats.

Pointing to a high wall of sand at the edge of the beach, Elbert said invasive European beach grass build-up of dunes that are too steep for plover chicks to navigate.

"Every year, we aim to remove beach grass from nesting areas," Elbert said. "But it's an expensive and intensive effort."

Keeping track of just how many of the birds are out there is too expensive a task for just the agency's staff biologists. To keep track of the birds, they rely on a network of monitors who scour the beaches keeping tabs on plover numbers.

Kathy Castelein, a Bandon-based researcher with Portland State University's Biodiversity Information

By Alysha Beck, The World

Dan Elbert, with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, and Kathy Castelein, faculty research assistant at Portland State University, discuss where to release three rehabilitated snowy plover chicks near New River in the Bandon State Natural Area on Friday. The plovers were rehabilitated at the Oregon Coast Aquarium after being rescued from the New River area in July.

Center, has worked with the monitoring program for almost 17 years.

Castelein said that the stretch of dry sand south of China Creek along New River is currently home to between 40 and 45 birds.

"It's a fairly large wintering area," Castelein said.

Despite their uptick in numbers, the tiny shorebirds are still in a precarious position. Paxton said that even though aquarium staff were only releasing a few birds at the South Coast beach, that number is far from insignificant.

"Just these three little guys — that's over 1 percent

Habitat access closures

To protect the species during snowy plover nesting, which takes place in open dry sand, federal agencies have negotiated restricted beach access periods with Oregon State Parks.

From March 15 through Sept. 15, beachgoers are allowed only on the wet sand portions of beaches marked as snowy plover nesting areas.

The Bureau of Land Management's Coos Bay District lists the following areas as having dry sand closures:

- Bandon Beach State Natural Area.
 - New River.
 - North Spit of Coos Bay.
 - Oregon Dunes day-use area.
 - Siltcoos Estuary.
 - Sutton Beach.
 - Tenmile Estuary.
 - Tahkenitch Estuary.
- Dogs are required to be on leash on beaches marked as plover nesting areas.

were eliminated by the investigators were incessantly questioned by Scales.

The Medford-based Scales offered a short statement after the verdict was handed down.

"I'm just very happy, just appreciate the jury for doing their duty," Scales said after the verdict. "It's never easy for both sides. My heart goes out to the Harless family."

District Attorney Paul Frasier did a solid job connecting the circumstantial evidence he had during his closing arguments. He argued that Davenport jumped into Empire Lakes to throw off the dogs searching for him around the crime scene, that he threw his clothes away afterward because he was in the lake and that he had selective memory when interrogated by police about what he had done that night.

This is Frasier's first murder acquittal since he was elected District Attorney back in 2008. While he's not particularly pleased with the outcome, he respects the process and the jury's verdict.

"Obviously I'm disappointed but that's why we have the jury system," Frasier said. "Is our system perfect? No. But it's the best thing in the world, and while I don't necessarily agree and am disappointed with the verdict, at the same time, I respect the verdict."

He said the warrant was related to methamphetamine and stolen property.

"As a result of the search warrant, we seized drug paraphernalia, methamphetamine and over one pound of marijuana," Mitts said.

Authorities also seized multiple firearms and ammunition from the residence.

Eagles lose in Kelly's debut

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PHILADELPHIA — Give Michael Vick a slight edge over Nick Foles in the Philadelphia Eagles' quarterback competition.

While Tom Brady led the New England Patriots to a pair of 80-yard TD drives in his only two series in a 31-22 win over Philadelphia on Friday, Vick did his best to secure a starting job.

"I'm just trying to bring my 'A' game," Vick said after throwing a 47-yard touchdown pass to DeSean Jackson. "I'm trying to make a statement every day, and treating every snap like it's my last."

The new-look Eagles kicked off the Chip Kelly era the same way they ended Andy Reid's long tenure — with another loss. Kelly's biggest decision will be picking a starting quarterback.

Vick and Foles each led the Eagles to a touchdown in two series apiece, and Kelly wouldn't let on if he's leaning toward one guy.

"I thought they both did a good job," he said, adding that he might not pick a starter until after the fourth preseason game.

"Both got us in the end zone. I was pleased. They played pretty well. Both rose to the occasion. I was excited with the way they played."

Vick's TD drive came against New England's starters and he looked sharp, completing 4 of 5 passes for 94 yards. Foles lost a fumble on his second play and then went 5 of 6 for 43 yards. Kelly already said Foles will start next Thursday night against Carolina.

"Always a good feeling when adversity happens in a game and we come back from it," Foles said.

Meanwhile, the Patriots have no QB controversies. Tim Tebow made his New England debut after backup Ryan Mallett left with a head injury late in the second quarter. Tebow was 4 of 12 for 55 yards and ran for 31 on four carries.

Jason Dufner lines up a putt on the eighth hole during the second round of the PGA Championship at Oak Hill Country Club on Friday.

Dufner surges into lead at PGA

■ Golfer ties record for majors with 63 to take two-shot advantage

PITTSFORD, N.Y. (AP) — Jason Dufner lost his chance to make history in the PGA Championship.

And then he lost his shirt. He still walked away from Oak Hill late Friday evening with a round he won't forget — a 63 — and a place in the record book with some of golf's greatest players.

The moment was big enough that Dufner even agreed to show a little emotion.

Prompted in a television interview, Dufner flashed a smile. But only for a second.

"To join history, to shoot 63 in a major, pretty unbelievable," he said. "And to be leading the tournament, even better. So hopefully, it will propel me to a great weekend."

There was nothing dull about his golf. If anything, it was historic.

Dufner holed out from the fairway for eagle, rolled in a putt across the green for par and kept making birdies until he stood 12 feet away from a shot at the lowest score in the 153 years of championship golf. One last birdie attempt didn't even get to the hole, and Dufner had to settle for a 7-under 63.

"You couldn't have a better putt for a 62," he said. "And I left it short in the jar."

He also left behind his shirt, his cap and the glove he was wearing, which he signed with the date, the course and the score. The PGA of America shipped the items to its museum in Florida to put on permanent display.

It was the third time in the last seven years at the PGA Championship that a player had a putt at becoming the first player to shoot 62 in a major. Tiger Woods circled the hole at Southern Hills in 2007. Steve Stricker narrowly missed at Atlanta Athletic Club two years ago. Dufner didn't feel disappointed for long.

On a rain-softened Oak Hill, where pelt-sized divots were flying and birdies were falling, Dufner surged to a two-shot lead over Masters champion Adam Scott, Jim Furyk and Matt Kuchar. At 9-under 131, Dufner tied the 36-hole record at the PGA Championship he now shares with six other players. Dufner was alone at the top, and in the company of some big names in history.

His 63 broke the course record at Oak Hill held by Ben Hogan, Curtis Strange and Webb Simpson, who shot 64 about five hours earlier. Dufner became the 24th player to shoot 63 in a major — Greg Norman and Vijay Singh, both in the Hall of Fame, did it twice.

And through it all, he barely cracked a smile.

"He's very calm," said Stricker, who played alongside Dufner. "I'm sure he was churning on the inside. He just told me while we were signing our cards, he was like, 'This is a lot for a Friday!'"

The possibilities were endless on a day that began with three hours of a steady rain until the sun broke through and took all the bite out of Oak Hill.

Simpson also had a chance at 63 until he made a bogey on the 16th hole of his round. U.S. Open champion Justin Rose shot 29 on the front nine to get back into contention. When the second round finally ended, 27 players remained under par — this on a course that is stubborn when it comes to par. In five previous majors at Oak Hill, only nine players have finished the tournament in red numbers. Jack Nicklaus did it twice.

The cut was at 143, the lowest at the PGA Championship since 2001 at Atlanta Athletic Club.

Local runner Chuck "Marathon Junkie" Engle was the top finisher last weekend in the 40th annual Circle the Bay road run.

Engle finished the 30-kilometer course in 1 hour, 55 minutes and 51 seconds. The event drew 57 individuals and 33 relay teams. Several individuals also ran the first leg for relay teams, leaving about 150 participants overall.

Sera Mathewes of Gold Hill was the women's champion for the third straight year, finishing in 2:11:51.

Kennon wins two tourneys

COOS BAY — Bandon youth Scotty Kennon blitzed the course at Bandon Crossings with a 1-under 35 to win his peewee division during the Bandon Crossings Junior on Wednesday.

He wasn't able to duplicate his score at the Watson Ranch Junior on Thursday, but the end result was the same, a victory in the 10-11 age group.

The tournament was the second of three consecutive Oregon Golf Association junior tournaments on the South Coast. The third was at Forest Hills Country Club on Friday.

Kennon shot a 42 at Watson Ranch to edge Jacob Tarkany of Bend by one stroke. Bryce Thomason of Roseburg was another shot back.

"I'm happy I won, but there's always room for improvement," said Kennon. "I struggled on some holes, but mostly I was consistent."

As for the better round at Bandon Crossings, Kennon said, "My ball striking was spot-on."

Kennon was the only South Coast winner among the seven divisions Thursday.

The best score of the day was posted by Tim Slama of Salem, who shot a 73 to run away with the juniors division by six shots.

Slama's feat came one day after his sister, Ellie, had the best score at Bandon Crossings, also with a 73.

Swimmers shine at 5K distance

Five Bay Area swimmers earned spots on the Oregon Masters all-time top-12 lists for 5,000 meters in the recent postal 5K at Eugene.

Denise Stuntzner, the first All-American swimmer at North Bend High School, finished the event in 1 hour, 18 minutes and 58.34 seconds, which put her fourth all-time for Oregon women in the 50-54 age group. Jen Feola finished in 1:20:08.17, which is eighth on Oregon's 40-44 rankings.

Both Stuntzner and Feola were racing in the postal event for the first time.

Jayna Tomac, meanwhile, lowered her best time in the event by more than a minute, finishing in 1:11:20.13, second all-time in the 40-44 age group. In 2012, she finished second nationally with a slower time.

Karen Matson finished in 1:15:05.42, placing third on Oregon's all-time top 12 for the 50-54 age group. Her time would have placed fourth nationally last year.

In the men's 70-74 age group, Ralph Mohr broke 90 minutes for the first time, finishing in 1:29:30.26. It was a six-minute improvement from 2012 and ranks third in the 70-74 age group.

Two weeks earlier, Matson and Tomac swam a 10K in the same pool, finishing in 2:44:03.

The 10K is swimming's longest event in the Olympics and is a grueling 200 lengths in a 50-meter pool. Matson ranks second and Tomac fourth for Oregon in their respective age groups.

Mohr swam the 10K at Amazon in May, finishing in 3:07:43, which ranks first for Oregon in the 70-74 division.

The local swimmers traveled to Amazon Pool in Eugene for the event, since the postal 5K and 10K swims must be completed in an Olympic-length 50-meter pool. Their times will be sent to the national office, where they will be compiled and compared to swimmers across the nation for placing in the event. Results will be announced in October.

Elk Lake swims

Mohr and Reedsport resident John Crawford competed in the open water in the Cascade Lakes Swim Series at Elk Lake near Bend last weekend.

Crawford was experiencing choppy water from the wind, bright sun, no lane markers and turning at buoys for the first time.

He placed third for his age group in the 500-meter freestyle on an up-and-back course, finishing in 10 minutes, 16.19 seconds.

The following day, Crawford competed in the 1,000 freestyle on a semi-circular course, placing third in the age group in 23:21.

Mohr, meanwhile, competed in all five events over three days.

He placed first in the 70-74 men's division in the 3,000 freestyle in 54:07, his best time ever for the event in a lake and good for 41st overall out of 66 total swimmers.

The following day, he placed first in the 1,500 in 26:15 (45th out of 103 swimmers overall), competing elbow-to-elbow with a 37-year-old swimmer for the final 300 meters.

"I knew the guy would outrun me in the shallow water to the finish line on the shore, but it was fun racing so tightly at the end," he said.

Later in the day, Mohr was second in his age group and 48th overall in the 500 in 8:41.34.

The final day, he was 50th out of 61 swimmers in the 5,000 in 1:37:40.

Bay Area masters swimmers who competed in the recent 5K postal event in Eugene include, from left, Denise Stuntzner, Jayna Tomac, Karen Matson and Jen Feola. They all earned spots in the top 12 for their age groups in Oregon's all-time masters rankings.

Bowling camp starts Monday at NB Lanes

THE WORLD

The Boys & Girls Club of Southwestern Oregon's annual bowling camp is Monday through Friday at North Bend Lanes.

The camp runs from 3:30 to 5 p.m. each day and is for boys and girls ages 5 to 15.

It is taught by North Bend Lanes General Manager Mark Mattecheck and his staff and is designed to teach students some of the basic techniques of bowling.

The participation fee is $15 for lessons only or $45 for lessons and a custom drilled bowling ball. Membership in the Boys & Girls Club is required to participate.

Registration and check-in begins at 3 p.m. Monday. Call 541-267-6573 for more information.

Fall Soccer

Students can sign up now for fall soccer at the Boys & Girls Club. All boys and girls in grades 1 to 8 are eligible to participate.

The fee is $70 with a current club membership. Fee reductions are available for a short time only for those who qualify.

Teams may begin practicing in the end of August and the first games will be Sept. 28. All fees must be paid prior to attending the first practice.

Registration forms are available online or in the club office, 3333 Walnut Ave. in Coos Bay.

Pre Run for Kids

The annual Pre Run for Kids is Sunday, Sept. 22.

The 3-mile race starts at 1:30 p.m. in downtown Coos Bay and is part of the Bay Area Fun Festival.

All boys and girls in grades 1 through 8 are eligible to participate. The fee is $15 and shirts will be available on raceday for an additional fee.

Pre-registration is recommended. Registration and check-in the day of the race begins at noon.

Registration forms are available online or at the Boys & Girls Club.

Club membership is not required to participate. Awards are presented to the first three finishers in each age group.

For more information, call 541-267-6573.

Road Runs

Upcoming Road Races on the South Coast:

For more information on upcoming road races and for photos from past events, those interested can log on to the South Coast Running Club's Web page at www.southcoastrunningclub.org.

Sunset Bay Trail Run - Saturday, Aug. 31, starting at 10 a.m. at Sunset Bay State Park near Charleston. Events include a 1-mile beach fun run (starts at 9:45 a.m.), a half marathon, a 15-kilometer run and a 4-mile run/walk. The longer races are hilly and challenging. The entry fee is $5, with T-shirts available for an additional $10 for those who sign up by Aug. 19. All proceeds go to the South Coast Gospel Mission. For more information, contact Patrick Myers at 541-290-7530 or by email at pmyers1224@msn.com.

Scotty Brown Memorial Run - Saturday, Sept. 7, starting at 10 a.m. at the South Coast Interpretive Center off Seven Devils Road south of Charleston. The 5-mile noncompetitive run will follow the groomed estuary trails down to the bay and through tunnels of huckleberries and coastal brush. There is no entry fee for the event. Runners are encouraged to visit throughout the venture. For more information, call Roy Mollier at 541-297-6669.

Prefontaine Memorial Run - Saturday, Sept. 21, starting at 10 a.m. in downtown Coos Bay. The popular 10-kilometer run honors famed Marshfield graduate Steve Prefontaine and is run on a challenging course that was one of Pre's favorite training routes. A separate 5-kilometer run for high schoolers only starts at 9:45 a.m. Both races end on Prefontaine Track at Marshfield High School. The entry fee is $24 for runners who sign up by Sept. 17 and includes a race T-shirt. To register on-line visit www.prefontaine-run.com. For more information, call 541-269-1103.

As for Brady, the two-time NFL and Super Bowl MVP finished 7 of 8 for 65 yards and one TD.

"Just to be out there, for all of us, to go out there and play the game we love, it was a lot of fun," Tebow said. "I think I have room for improvement, that's what these games are for. Next week, let's do a little better."

LeGarrette Blount had a nifty, 51-yard TD run, reversing direction twice on the play. The former 1,000-yard rusher with Tampa Bay had 101 yards rushing on 11 carries in his first game for New England.

Stevan Ridley had 92 yards rushing for the Patriots, including a 62-yard run on the first play from scrimmage. He finished that drive with a 1-yard TD run.

Fans eager to see Kelly's up-tempo offense have to wait until the Eagles play meaningful games next month.

Kelly kept it vanilla for the most part. The Eagles showed some of Kelly's fast-paced style, but they're clearly saving everything else for the regular season.

"We didn't do a third of what we normally would do," Vick said.

Saints 17, Chiefs 13: Preston Parker had a pair of touchdown catches in his bid to fill one open receiver spot, and New Orleans beat Kansas City in coach Sean Payton's first game back from his bounty suspension.

New Chiefs coach Andy Reid saw all he needed of new starting quarterback Alex Smith in the opening drive, which went 80 yards on 14 plays, capped by Jamaal Charles' TD run. Smith was 7 of 8 for 68 yards.

Drew Brees was 7 of 10 for 65 yards in two series, which produced one field goal.

Texans 27, Vikings 13: Rookie DeAndre Hopkins caught a 34-yard touchdown pass in Houston's victory over Minnesota.

The Vikings showcased their rookie wide receiver, too, during a flashy first half by Cordarrelle Patterson.

Hopkins, the 27th overall pick in the draft, had four receptions for 52 yards. Patterson, taken two slots later, caught four passes for 54 yards and returned the opening kickoff 50 yards.

Cardinals 17, Packers 0: Steffan Taylor rushed for 63 yards on 21 carries in his rookie debut, and Arizona picked apart Green Bay on both sides of the ball.

Tyrann Mathieu had a sack in his first game in two years, and also returned two punts for Arizona, which was playing its first game under new coach Bruce Arians.

Aaron Rodgers connected with James Jones on a 50-yard gain in his only series, and Vince Young showed flashes of potential just three days after signing with Green Bay. But those were among the only highlights for the Packers, who were shut out in a full preseason game for the first time since 1987.

Lions 26, Jets 17: Mark Sanchez had an interception returned for a touchdown, and Geno Smith left with an apparent ankle injury in New York's loss to Detroit.

Lions rookie Ziggy Ansah made an immediate impression, intercepting Sanchez's pass and returning it 14 yards for a touchdown. The 6-foot-5 defensive end from Ghana put his hands up just in time to pick off Sanchez's screen pass in the first quarter. He had an easy return to the end zone for the game's first TD.

Dolphins 27, Jaguars 3: Ryan Tannehill connected with Dustin Keller for a 22-yard touchdown, and Miami thumped Jacksonville.

Tannehill played a little longer and a lot smoother in his second preseason game. The Jaguars can only hope Blaine Gabbert will do the same.

Gabbert was hoping to make a strong impression in Jacksonville's opener. But he looked a lot like he did in his first two seasons. He completed 5 of 10 passes for 19 yards, with an interception.

Panthers 24, Bears 17: Chicago forced three first-half turnovers and linebacker Jonathan Bostic returned an interception 51 yards for a touchdown, but Carolina capitalized on turnovers to spoil Marc Trestman's NFL head coaching debut.

Jay Cutler was intercepted on his first play from scrimmage by Josh Norman, setting up a touchdown pass from Cam Newton to Brandon LaFell. Norman later returned an interception for a touchdown.

Raiders 19, Cowboys 17: Sean Lee and rookie J.J. Wilcox forced first-half turnovers for Dallas' revamped defense before Oakland rallied for the victory.

Lee flattened Matt Flynn on a delayed blitz on the opening drive of the game to force a fumble deep in Oakland territory in his first action since a season-ending toe injury last October.

Thursday Games

Ravens 44, Buccaneers 16: Joe Flacco was sharp, Bernard Pierce scored on a 20-yard run and a revamped Baltimore defense forced four turnovers.

Broncos 10, 49ers 6: Super Bowl runner-up San Francisco committed three first-half turnovers, four in all, and missed a field goal in a sloppy loss to Denver.

Seahawks 31, Chargers 10: Tarvaris Jackson threw two touchdown passes and Brady Quinn, also battling to be Russell Wilson's backup, threw for another score to help Seattle rout San Diego in Mike McCoy's debut as Chargers coach.

Bengals 34, Falcons 10: Giovanni Bernard ran for a touchdown, Josh Johnson directed two second-quarter touchdown drives and Cincinnati cruised.

Redskins 22, Titans 21: Kirk Cousins picked up where he left off last season filling in at quarterback for Robert Griffin III, who didn't play, and throwing for a touchdown as Washington edged Tennessee.

Browns 27, Rams 19: Brandon Weeden threw a touchdown pass and Travis Benjamin returned a punt 91 yards for a TD as the Browns won coach Rob Chudzinski's preseason debut.

PGA

Woods, Lefty fall far back

For all the low scores, Woods and Phil Mickelson were left behind.

Woods couldn't get anything going, exchanging birdies with bogeys during a poor putting round that led to an even-par 70. He was at 1-over 141 and 10 shots back going into the weekend. Woods went to the range with his swing coach, trying to find answers. He has only one score in the 60s in 14 rounds at the majors this year.

"Obviously, I'm going to have to put together a really good weekend," Woods said. "This golf course is pretty soft. It's definitely gettable. Got to hit the ball in play and keep the ball near the hole so I can be aggressive with my putts."

Mickelson's swing apparently went missing in the three weeks since he won the British Open. He was all over Oak Hill and still managed a 34 on the back nine until his wild shots caught up with him. Another 71 left him 11 shots out of the lead.

Dufner was in prime position to win the PGA Championship two years ago when he had a four-shot lead with four holes to play, only to be tracked down by Keegan Bradley and then beaten in a playoff. Dufner said that day he would only be disappointed "if I never get another chance."

And here he is, in record book. Dufner's popularity has grown the last two years because of his zombie state.

He was responsible for the craze known as "Dufnering" in April when someone took a photo of him slumped against a classroom wall, eyes in a daze, during a charity event at an elementary school as the teacher taught children how to relax and concentrate.

But there were nerves, no doubt, and Dufner showed them at the very end.

A 6-foot birdie putt on the 16th hole put him at 7 under for the round, and his 15-foot birdie putt on the next hole grazed the cup. He followed with two flawless swings on the tough 18th hole, which had yielded only four birdies at that point. That left him about 12 feet below the hole.

And he left it short by about 18 inches. There even was a nervous moment on the tap-in, when the ball came off the putter weakly and dove in the right corner of the cup.

"It's tough when you're chasing history," Dufner said. "You will be the first one to do something. I don't think I've been the first to do anything in my life. So it was a little nerve-racking for a Friday. It's usually the pressure you might feel toward the end of the tournament."

That part is still to come.

Low scores were available to anyone. Even after Dufner finished his round, K.J. Choi had an 18-foot birdie putt on the 16th hole to reach 7 under. It narrowly missed, and Choi made bogey on the next hole to end that threat.

JUNIORS

"They're both different courses, but they both have some fun holes," Tim Slama said, adding that the family added a side trip to the practice facility at Bandon Dunes Golf Resort after Wednesday's tournament.

As for Watson Ranch, Slama said he was delighted with the conditions.

"The course was in the best shape I've seen it in," he said.

Samuel Pyon of Happy

Valley won the intermediate boys division a day after finishing second in a four-hole playoff at Bandon Crossings. His 76 at Watson Ranch won by seven shots.

Dayne Miller of Creswell won the boys division with an 81 and McKenna Henderson of Eugene won the girls division with an 87.

Angela Lu of Happy Valley won the intermediate girls division with an 82, beating Ellie Slama by two shots.

Talon Larson of Eugene won the younger peewee boys division with a 64 for nine holes.

Atlanta wins again

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ATLANTA — Justin Upton, Chris Johnson and Brian McCann homered, Brandon Beachy pitched eight strong innings, and the Atlanta Braves beat the Miami Marlins 5-0 Friday night for their 14th straight victory.

The Braves are one victory shy of tying their 2000 team for the longest winning streak since the franchise relocated to Atlanta in 1966.

Nationals 9, Phillies 2: Dan Haren won his third straight winning start while Anthony Rendon and Ryan Zimmerman homered to help Washington snap a four-game losing streak by beating Philadelphia.

Reds 7, Padres 2: Joey Votto drove in a pair of runs with a single and a triple, and Bronson Arroyo recovered from his roughest outing of the season to lead Cincinnati over San Diego.

The Reds have won three straight since getting embarrassed by the St. Louis Cardinals at home last weekend, dropping games by scores of 13-3 and 15-2.

Cubs 3, Cardinals 0: Anthony Rizzo had a two-run single, Chris Rusin pitched around seven hits in six innings, and the Chicago Cubs recorded their first shutout in St. Louis in 16 years.

Kevin Gregg recorded his 24th save to complete the Cubs' first shutout in St. Louis since Jeremi Gonzalez tossed one on June 23, 1997.

Rockies 10, Pirates 1: Wilin Rosario doubled and homered to drive in four runs, leading a Rockies offense that batted around in the first and second innings, and Colorado snapped a five-game losing streak.

Francisco Liriano (12-5) bore the brunt of the Rockies' outburst in his first appearance at hitter-friendly Coors Field, allowing a career-high 10 runs on 12 hits in 2 1-3 innings, his shortest outing of the season.

The Associated Press

Atlanta's Justin Upton is congratulated by third base coach Brian Snitker after hitting a solo home run in the first inning Friday.

Diamondbacks 5, Mets 4: Paul Goldschmidt homered to the opposite field with one out in the ninth inning to give the Arizona Diamondbacks a win over the New York Mets.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Yankees 4, Tigers 3, 10 innings: Alex Rodriguez drew loud boos in his return home and the New York Yankees overcame Miguel Cabrera's crushing home run off Mariano Rivera, beating Detroit in 10 innings and snapping the Tigers' 12-game winning streak.

Cabrera temporarily saved the Tigers by hitting a two-out, two-run homer in the ninth off Rivera that made it 3-1.

Brett Gardner grounded an RBI single with the bases loaded and two outs in the 10th to end New York's four-game losing streak.

Royals 9, Red Sox 6: Justin Maxwell homered and singled twice in a six-run sixth and Kansas City rallied to beat Boston. The Royals have won 15 of their past 17 games to move seven games above .500, matching their best record of the season.

Athletics 14, Blue Jays 6: Josh

Reddick broke out of an 0-for-20 slump by homering in three consecutive at-bats, and Jed Lowrie and Yoenis Cespedes also connected in Oakland's victory over Toronto.

Angels 5, Indians 2: Jered Weaver stayed unbeaten in Cleveland and Josh Hamilton hit a three-run homer as Los Angeles ended its four-game losing streak with a victory over Cleveland, which dropped its fifth in a row.

Twins 7, White Sox 5; Twins 3, White Sox 2, 10 innings: Oswaldo Arcia homered leading off the 10th inning and Minnesota beat Chicago to complete the day-night doubleheader sweep.

Brian Duensing (6-1) picked up the win in both games, and the Twins prevailed in the nightcap after rallying to take the opener 7-5 behind a grand slam and solo shot by Justin Morneau.

The big news came before the first game, with the White Sox trading Alex Rios to Texas.

Rangers 9, Astros 5: Leonys Martin hit a two-run double in a four-run eighth inning, and Texas rallied to beat Houston and tie a season high with its fifth straight victory.

76ers nears deal for new coach

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

PHILADELPHIA — The Philadelphia 76ers have reportedly offered Brett Brown their long-vacant coaching job.

Brown, an assistant with the San Antonio Spurs, was in discussions Friday night with Philadelphia regarding terms and finances, according to Yahoo! Sports. The Sixers have been searching for a coach since Doug Collins resigned in April.

Brown helped lead the Spurs to the NBA Finals last season, where they lost to the Miami Heat in seven games. He, along with new general manager Sam Hinkie, would be at the head of a major rebuilding project with the 76ers, who failed to make the postseason last year and finished in last place in the Atlantic Division, a year after advancing to the Eastern Conference semifinals.

Blazers sign Williams

PORTLAND — The Portland Trail Blazers have signed veteran free agent guard Mo Williams.

Williams has played 10 seasons in the NBA with stops in Milwaukee, Cleveland, the Clippers and Utah, averaging 13.8 points, 2.9 rebounds and 5 assists.

Last season with the Jazz, the 6-foot-1 Williams averaged 12.9 points, 2.4

rebounds and 6.2 assists.

Terms of Williams' contract with the Trail Blazers were not released, but it was reported to be a two-year deal worth $5.6 million, with a player option for the second year.

Johnny Logan dies

MILWAUKEE — Johnny Logan, a four-time All-Star shortstop who helped the Milwaukee Braves win the 1957 World Series, has died. He was 86.

In 13 seasons with the Boston and Milwaukee Braves and Pittsburgh Pirates, Logan hit .268 with 93 home runs and 547 RBIs. He finished his playing career in Japan in 1964, and later worked as a scout with the Brewers.

Pujols plans to sue Clark

LOS ANGELES — Albert Pujols says he's taking legal action against Jack Clark after the former St. Louis Cardinals star accused him of taking performance-enhancing drugs.

The injured Los Angeles Angels' slugger released a statement Friday night, saying: "I am currently in the process of taking legal action against Jack Clark and his employers at WGNU 920AM. I am going to send a message that you cannot act in a reckless manner, like they have, and get away with it."

Clark said Pujols' former trainer, Chris Mihlfeld, told him 10 years ago that he "shot him up."

Six of 12 small cars perform well in front crash tests

By TOM KRISHER
The Associated Press

DETROIT — Two redesigned Honda Civic models were the only small cars to get the top rating in stringent front-end crash tests performed by an insurance industry group.

In all, half of the 12 compact and subcompact cars tested by the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety fared poorly, but six performed well. Safety is critical in the fast-growing small-car market, with many buyers downsizing from larger vehicles.

The two-door and four-door Civics earned “good” ratings, while the Dodge Dart, Ford Focus, Hyundai Elantra and the 2014 Scion tC were “acceptable.”

But popular models such as the Chevrolet Cruze and Sonic and the Volkswagen Beetle got “marginal” ratings, while the Nissan Sentra and the Kia Soul and 2014 Kia Forte each were rated “poor.”

The group didn’t test the Toyota Corolla because a new version is coming out in the fall. The Corolla is the No. 2 selling small car in America, behind the Civic.

The cars were rated for

In this Wednesday, Dec. 5, 2012, file photo, Honda Civic and Honda CRVs are parked outside of a Honda car dealership in Des Plaines, Ill. Only the two-door and four-door Honda Civic models earned the top rating of “good” in the front-end crash tests done by the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety, while the Dodge Dart, Ford Focus, Hyundai Elantra and the 2014 Scion tC got “acceptable” ratings.

their performance in the insurance institute’s “small overlap” test of crashes that cover only 25 percent of a vehicle’s front end. These tests, added to the IIHS’s evaluations last year, are forcing automakers to bolster the front-end structure of all cars in order to avoid bad publicity from a poor performance.

The IIHS tests are more stringent than the U.S. government’s full-width front crash test. The institute says that in many vehicles, a crash affecting one-quarter of the front end misses the main structures designed to absorb the impact. Yet such crashes account for nearly a quarter of the frontal collisions that cause serious or fatal injuries to people in the front seats, IIHS says.

The two Civic models and the Dart, Focus, Elantra and Scion tC each earned the IIHS’ coveted “Top Safety Pick Plus” award for performing well in multiple tests, including the small offset crash. So far, 25 vehicles of all sizes have earned the award.

Calif. farmers sue BOR over water releases for salmon

By GOSIA WOZNIACKA
Associated Press

FRESNO, Calif. — Farmers in California’s San Joaquin Valley are suing the federal government over the planned release of water from a Northern California reservoir to prevent a salmon kill in the lower Klamath River.

The suit alleges the release from the Trinity Reservoir would be unlawful and would further decrease the little water available to farmers for irrigation. It was filed Wednesday by the Westlands Water District and the San Luis & Delta-Mendota Water Authority against the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation.

The Trinity River is the main tributary of the Klamath. A large portion of Trinity water usually is sent south into the Sacramento River and is piped to farmers in the San Joaquin Valley through the Central Valley Project.

Farmers in the Westlands Water District, the nation’s largest federal irrigation district, and others on the west side of the San Joaquin Valley say they desperately need the Trinity water to help deal with severe water shortages next year. The farmers have received just 20 percent of their water deliveries this year, leading them to follow thousands of acres of land and rely on groundwater.

And next year, unless a very wet winter restores nearly empty reservoirs, the farmers predict they might get little or no water — and the lack of Trinity River water would further reduce their deliveries.

Bureau of Reclamation spokesman Pete Lucero said the agency could not comment on the pending lawsuit.

But federal authorities said they planned to release the Trinity water to the Klamath River to prevent a repeat of a 2002 fish kill that left tens of thousands of salmon dead before they could spawn — the fish died from gill rotting diseases because there was not enough water for them to swim upstream.

The Bush administration that year restored irrigation to farms in Oregon and California, one year after those farms were denied water during a drought to help threatened salmon and other fish survive in the Klamath basin.

Following that fish kill and prompted by predictions of large salmon runs and drier than normal conditions, the Bureau of Reclamation in 2003, 2004 and 2012 released water from the Trinity for salmon in the lower Klamath.

This year, authorities say the Klamath River is expecting a very large fall run of Chinook salmon, yet the river is extremely low.

The bureau has said it plans to release up to 62,000 acre feet of Trinity water, plus an additional 39,000 acre feet of emergency water if fish show signs of disease, to the Klamath from Aug. 13 until the end of September.

In this Friday, Oct. 21, 2011 file photo, Frankie Thevenot, 3, plays with an iPad in his bedroom at his home in Metairie, La. As of Wednesday, Aug. 7, the Campaign for a Commercial-Free Childhood, a Boston-based group, is urging federal investigators to examine the marketing practices of Fisher-Price’s and Open Solution’s mobile apps. It’s the campaign’s first complaint against the mobile app industry as part of its broader push to hold accountable businesses that market technology to very young children and their parents.

Group: Apps not effective tool for teaching babies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Smartphones don’t make smart babies, an advocacy group declared Wednesday in a complaint to the government about mobile apps that claim to help babies learn.

The Campaign for a Commercial-Free Childhood, whose allegations against “Baby Einstein” videos eventually led to nationwide consumer refunds, is urging federal regulators to examine the marketing practices of Fisher-Price’s “Laugh & Learn” mobile apps and Open Solutions’ games, such as “Baby Hear and Read” and “Baby First Puzzle.”

The Boston-based group says developers are trying to dupe parents into thinking apps are more educational than entertaining. It’s the campaign’s first complaint to the Federal Trade Commission against the mobile app industry as part of its broader push to hold businesses accountable for marketing claims about their technology to very young children and their parents.

“Everything we know about brain research and child development points away from using screens to educate babies,” said Susan Linn, the group’s director. “The research shows that machines and screen media are a really ineffective way of teaching a baby language. What babies need for healthy brain development is active play, hands-on creative play and face-to-face” interaction.

The American Academy of Pediatrics discourages any electronic “screen time” for infants and toddlers under 2, while older children should be limited to one to two hours a day. It cites one study that found infant videos can delay language development, and warns that no studies have documented a benefit of early viewing.

In a statement provided to The Associated Press, Open Solutions said it agrees that electronics are not a substitute for human interaction. But it noted the many positive reviews its apps have received by customers.

Surging mining stocks end a slump on Wall Street

In this July 29, 2013, file photo, Trader John Santiago works on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange. Solid Chinese trade data underpinned most global stock markets Thursday, Aug. 8, 2013 though Japanese shares underperformed for the second day running as the yen rallied again.

NEW YORK (AP) — Miners and other companies dealing in commodities helped pull the stock market out of a three-day slump on Thursday.

News that China’s trade rebounded last month signaled the end of a six-month slowdown for the world’s biggest buyer of raw materials. The report drove prices up for copper and other commodities, and that helped lift Newmont Mining, Freeport-McMoRan and other stocks in the materials industry.

“The one thing that stands out today is the better news out of China,” said

David Joy, the chief market strategist at Ameriprise Financial. “It comes as a pleasant surprise.”

The Standard & Poor’s 500 index edged up 6.57 points, or 0.4 percent, to 1,697.48.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 27.65 points, or 0.2 percent, to 15,498.32. The Nasdaq composite gained 15.12 points, or 0.4 percent, to 3,669.12.

With little other news to drive trading, the stock market had meandered lower this week. The S&P 500 index fell three days straight and remains down 0.7 for the week. It’s still up 19 percent this year.

Brad McMillan, chief investment officer for Commonwealth Financial Network in Waltham, Mass., said a number of concerns have weighed on the market this week. Comments from Federal Reserve officials have convinced many investors that the bank will begin pulling back its support for the economy in the coming months.

In an interview on CNBC after the market closed, Richard Fisher, head of the Fed’s Dallas branch, reaffirmed his view that it’s time to wind down the bank’s stimulus effort.

Several sources provide grants

Q: I want to get a grant to start my business, where should I look?

A: Grants are identified as funds that do not need to be paid back. Generally, grants are not available to start for-profit businesses. There are several profit-making companies that will be happy to sell you information that will supposedly help you find a grant, but most people who make that investment are disappointed that they spent their money, sometimes thousands of dollars, then never receive a grant.

A good source for information about government programs, including grants, is the Catalog of Federal Domestic Assistance www.cfda.gov. This website lists every federal government program in existence and access to the information is free. Another source is www.grants.gov. Each of these sites is designed to help you find the information you need to apply for the programs that are available.

The Bay Area Chamber of Commerce has a New Business Challenge grant program that was started in 2009. This program provides a small startup grant to one business each year based on a rigorous business plan competition. New Business Challenge grant applications are due Sept. 20. To find out more go to the chamber website at www.oregonsbayarea.org or the Small Business Development Center website at www.BizCenter.org under the North Bend center. If you are low income, you might qualify for the DreamSaver’s grant program. Information about eligibility is available at www.umpquarhc.org/dreamsavers.htm.

Grant applications are much like loan applications and will require a comprehensive business plan. Research and documentation that your business idea can be successful are critical to creating a good plan. The plan needs to be specific, identify your sources of information and have well documented financial projections. You will likely spend 50-200 hours preparing a business plan or a grant application. To find assistance in business planning go to the Oregon Small Business Development Center Network website at www.BizCenter.org. There also are classes and workshops in the local area on business planning and grant writing.

Preparation and planning are keys to any business success. That is also true when searching for funding, grants or loans. Grants generally have specific deadlines for applying so it’s important to be prepared before searching for the grant opportunities you plan to pursue.

Arlene M. Soto is the director of the SWOCC Small Business Development Center, www.BizCenter.org. She can be reached at 541-756-6445, asoto@socc.edu, or at 2455 Maple Leaf, North Bend, OR 97459.

A family room for the whole family

BY MELISSA RAYWORTH
 Associated Press

In many homes, the "family room" is decorated with just one purpose: to withstand the impact of juice-spilling, game-playing, cookie-eating, crayon-wielding children.

The result is often a room that's long on durability but short on style.

How can you create a stylish, sophisticated family room where grown-ups will want to spend time, while still keeping the space kid-friendly?

Three design experts — Brian Patrick Flynn of decordemon.com and Flynnside Out Productions; Betsy Burnham of Burnham Design; and Jon Call of Mr. Call Designs — offer some advice:

STRONG FABRICS

"Design technology and textiles are catching up with our family-friendly lifestyle," says Burnham. "There are so many outdoor fabrics, so many amazing vinyls" that are durable and easy to clean, but also look good. Burnham is a fan of Holly Hunt fabrics treated with Nano-TEX, which resists spills and stains without changing the fabric's texture.

Indoor/outdoor rugs are another great option now that they're being made with materials soft to the touch. Flynn, who often uses Sunbrella indoor/outdoor fabrics, suggests upholstering with removable slipcovers for easy cleaning.

When choosing slipcovers, "washed linen is great since it's meant to look worn-in and super casual." He's also a fan of very dark denim: "Navy blue and charcoal are my go-to choices for denim slipcovers since they look more tailored than basic beiges or creams."

Neat sofas

Call recommends skipping sofas that have three or four seat cushions and several more cushions across the back. "If you've got kids playing and jumping on those," he says, you'll constantly be finding the cushions out of place or on the floor.

Instead, he says, pick a sofa with one large seat cushion and no separate cushions along the back — "something tailored and clean looking" that won't need its cushions adjusted constantly.

Multi-use tables

Family rooms are built for entertaining, so think about flexible seating, Burnham says. "Maybe a side table that's also a stool, or a coffee table that's also a bench or an ottoman."

Kids can use an ottoman as a surface for games, while adult party guests can use it as seating.

Opt for tables with rounded corners for safety in rooms where kids often play, Flynn says, and choose tables with "metal or weathered wood tops. Metal tops can withstand heavy wear and tear, while weathered wood is intended to look worn, so as kids take their toll on the pieces, it simply adds to the intended look."

Varied lighting

Rooms that do double-duty need lighting that does too, says Call.

"When you have adults over or if you're watching TV or it's a more intimate moment, you want a lamp by the sofa, at eye-level or below, to create intimate pools of light," he says.

But kids doing homework or art projects need the brighter light that overhead fixtures provide. Make sure your family room has both.

Extra storage

Have a place for everything, Burnham says, so toys and other kid-related items can be put away easily at the end of the day. She recommends a wall of built-in cabinets with doors, so kids' clutter can be easily stashed, at hand but out of sight.

She also suggests creating storage space in the family room for a few fragile or valuable items that aren't kid-friendly.

"You can have a cashmere throw in the cabinet that you pull out for the adults," Burnham says. By storing these things in the room, you're more likely to really use them, yet they're protected from the kids' play.

The Associated Press

This undated publicity photo provided by Brian Patrick Flynn shows a playful family room in a home shared by two young parents and their two active sons. Interior designer Flynn deliberately used youth as a part of the room's decor with original framed photography of 1980s Duplo figures as well as playful accessories and a bold, vibrant palette of navy blue and fire engine red.

Flynn also recommends built-ins, and suggests "adding color and pattern to their back panels."

"I usually use large-scale patterned wallpaper," he says. Consider nautical styles: "They're casual and fun, and they don't take themselves too seriously."

For additional storage, Flynn says, replace coffee tables with "upholstered storage ottomans complete with safety locking mechanisms, which prevent little ones from getting inside of them to hide, and also protecting any little fingers from hinges." He suggests upholstering ottomans with indoor-outdoor fabrics so they'll withstand spills and sticky fingers.

Bold colors

In a high-traffic family room, Call suggests sticking with deeper colors rather than whites or pale shades.

Flynn agrees: "The one color I use more than any other in family-centric spaces is navy blue," he says, because it can appeal to the whole family. He recommends Seaworthy navy from Sherwin-Williams: "It has just the right amount of purple in it to make it bright instead of dark."

"Red is another high-energy hue which works great in family rooms," Flynn says, which works well with most other colors, especially black-brown, navy blue and charcoal.

PLAYFUL DECOR

Don't hide the fact that the room is being shared with kids, Flynn says.

"Embrace it. Work children and playfulness into the design of a family room's aesthetic," he suggests.

On the walls, he likes to use "pop art or original photography of toys, especially vintage toys, or black-and-white candid photography of the family blown up to an enormous scale" to personalize the room.

"Kids and pets are a huge part of our lives. Since we love them more than the sofas and chairs they sit on, why not make them as much as part of a room's decoration as its furnishings?" Flynn says.

Plants that model obedience, sensitivity

BY LEE REICH

Associated Press

There are two plants whose behavior makes me think back to when my daughter was a teenager.

Those years can be turbulent ones for kids and parents alike, and these plants might offer a lesson, a distraction — or at least a smile.

The first — obedience plant — models behavior that gardening parents might wish they saw more of. Obedience plant (Physostegia virginiana) gets its name for how well the flowers obey. Point the flower stalk in the desired direction — for example, all facing outwards in a vase — and they stay put. No muttering or eye-rolling.

Besides being a good listener, obedience plant is pretty. Its flowering wands rise 3 or 4 feet high, each closely studded along the top portion with tubular, lipped blossoms that are lavender pink with darker speckles.

Some varieties have white or deep rose flowers, dwarf stature, or leaves that are speckled white and green. The plant makes a pleasing contrast in form to neighboring phloxes or tall asters in similar color shades.

Obedience plant is a hardy, native perennial eager to spread via running roots. It's not especially hard to discipline in its spread, though. New stems with attached roots readily come free if given a sharp yank when the soil is moist in spring or fall. And if you need more obedience, just poke these severed parts into new ground, where they quickly take hold. They're not finicky about soil but do like sun.

Parents, take note: My plant never obeyed — in fact, it snapped — until I learned not to bend the whole flower stalk at once, but to work with each flower individually.

The other plant is "sensitive plant" (Mimosa pudica), which gets its name from the way its leaflets rapidly collapse along their midribs at the slightest touch. The response travels through the plant in a wave of motion after one leaf is touched.

Sensitive plant is an annual that's easy and quick to grow from seed. The flowers, looking like small, pink bottlebrushes, are attractive. The plant itself, like a sensitive teenager, is awkwardly branching, hairy and prickly, but lovable and fun nonetheless.

What benefit does this "fainting" mechanism offer the sensitive plant? It could be a way to fend off predators: A hungry insect might be frightened away by the plant's rapid collapse, and a hungry mammal turned off at the unappetizing appearance of the apparently bare stems.

Either way, the plant wants to be left alone. Sound familiar, parents.

Leasing solar a cost-saving option for homeowners

BY CAROLE FELDMAN
Associated Press

Ben Kunz wanted to do "the green thing" and save on his electric bill without paying a lot of money up front. So instead of buying a solar system for his house in Cheshire, Conn., he leased one.

"I thought it was a pretty good deal," he said. "I lean a little environmentalist so I'm concerned about global warming."

Increasing numbers of U.S. homeowners are relying on the sun to meet much of their hot water and electricity needs. In fact, residential electricity produced by solar in the first quarter of 2013 was almost 10 times higher than that generated in 2008, according to the Solar Energy Industries Association.

But the potential for more is huge.

Consider this: "The amount of solar energy falling on the United States in one hour of noontime summer sun is about equal to the annual U.S. electricity demand," the Energy Department says in its Sun-Shot Vision Study.

"Saving money and being energy efficient rank really high with consumers today," said Kit Selzer, a senior editor at Better Homes and Gardens.

A Gallup poll in March found that 76 percent of Americans thought the country should put more emphasis on producing domestic energy from solar power.

So what's stopping more folks from going solar?

"We found that a lot of people were afraid to go solar because they were too afraid of what they didn't know," said Ketch Ryan, who had a solar energy system installed in her Chevy Chase, Md., house several years ago.

To help neighbors, Ryan and Kirk Renaud founded a cooperative, Common Cents Solar, "to make sure we didn't have to reinvent the wheel. We can do it together and we can do it more efficiently."

The first thing is to get your roof assessed to see whether it's viable for solar. The roof's condition, material and angle are among the considerations.

One misconception is that you need a south-facing roof.

While south is optimal, solar can be stalled on roofs facing east and west, too.

"Walk outside on a sunny day and look at the roof," advises Rhone Resch, president and CEO of the Solar Energy Industries Association.

Is the roof covered with shade? If not, your house may be a good candidate for solar. Some solar companies use Google maps for a first look before sending out staff for a fuller assessment.

Homeowners also worry that solar may not be viable in northern states. California leads the nation in the capacity of installed residential solar units, with Arizona a distant second. But New Jersey comes in at No. 3 and Massachusetts is eighth, according to the association.

"People are solar-new in Connecticut," Kunz said. "They never see it and they don't know it works."

But Kunz says he's saving money. He now pays about $140 or $150 for electricity each month, down from about $220. And the total includes his $115 lease payment to SolarCity, a California-based solar company that operates in 14 states.

Cost is another factor that holds people back.

Purchasing and installing a solar system can cost thousands of dollars, depending on how much electricity you want to generate.

"You'll need to pay for it up front," Resch said. Some people use home equity loans, or lines of credit or other means of financing.

Incentives like tax credits and rebates can bring down the cost. Homeowners who install solar electric or hot water systems could be eligible for a federal tax credit of 30 percent of the cost. States also have tax incentives. Check the database at <http://www.dsireusa.org/>.

Want to go solar but don't have the money to buy a system? Try leasing one.

Leasing has opened up solar to a whole new group of homeowners, said Jonathan Bass, SolarCity spokesman.

"We think of ourselves as an energy provider," he said. "Installation is free and the customer pays for electricity."

Solar-generated electricity, that is, for a monthly fee. The cost is lower than if purchased through the electric company. But if you lease the system, you won't get to take advantage of rebates and credits.

"We insure the system for the customer," Bass said. "We provide monitoring service. We provide repair service... And we also guarantee the performance of the system."

Jeff Hodgkinson of Mesa, Ariz., said it was that full-service option that prompted him to lease. He paid the full cost of the 20-year lease

The Associated Press

This undated publicity photo released by SolarCity shows Ben Kunz' house with solar panels installed on the roof in Cheshire, Conn. Kunz wanted to do "the green thing" and save on his electric bill without paying a lot of money up front. So instead of purchasing a solar system for his house, he leased one.

at the start and expects to begin realizing the savings in about five years.

Going solar for his electricity and hot water was part of a broader effort, he said. "We had moved into a new home," he said. "One of the things I wanted to do was make the house very energy efficient."

The Energy Department's Office of Energy Efficiency and Renewable Energy has a similar message. Sam Rashkin, chief architect in the agency's Building Technologies Office, said people should consider solar "If it complements an energy-efficient house and can reduce their energy requirements." He said other energy-efficient features include well-insulated walls, high-performance windows, and energy efficient heating and air conditioning systems.

If your options include solar, don't think you can drop the electric company altogether, though. You'll need it as a backup for those cloudy, rainy or snowy days when sun is at a minimum, or when you're using more electricity than your solar system can produce.

But on those days when you're producing more electricity that you can use, many states allow you to put the excess back into the electricity grid for use by others. Called net metering, it will show up as a credit on your bill.

"You're seeing your meter going backward," Ryan said. "That's fun."

Chop the cost of outdoor grilling

Dear Mary: We love to grill outdoors during the summer months, and this summer is no exception. However, the sky-high price of beef has really thrown a wrench into our family food budget. How can we keep a lid on the price of meat and poultry? While we are fond of salads, we're not ready to get rid of the grill. Help!

EVERYDAY CHEAPSKATE

Dear Stan: Believe it or not, professional butcher John Smith, author of "Confessions of a Butcher," recommends that the best cuts of meat for the grill are the cheapest cuts. Sure, they're also the toughest cuts, but that's simple to overcome when you know how to prepare those exceptionally flavorful, yet tough, cuts for the grill.

SELECT BY PRICE. When selecting meats for the grill, zero-in on the cuts of meat that are in season, plentiful and well-priced. And when they're really cheap? Buy extra for the freezer.

MARINADE. Marinade is the secret to making a tough cut of meat as succulent and tender as a prime cut. Just make sure your marinade of choice contains acid like vinegar, lemon or wine. Acid breaks down the meat to make it tender. Enzymatic action from wine, beer, cider and soy sauce also helps.

Here's my favorite marinade for any cut of beef, even kabobs. This is so flavorful and loaded with tenderizing acids, you're going to understand why I call this a miracle in a jar.

BASIC MARINADE FOR CHICKEN OR BEEF

- 1/2 cups vegetable oil
- 1/2 cup soy sauce
- 1/2 cup white wine or balsamic vinegar
- 1/3 cup lemon juice
- 1/4 cup Worcestershire sauce
- 2 tablespoons ground dry mustard
- 2 1/4 teaspoons salt
- 1 tablespoon ground black pepper
- 1 1/2 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley
- 2 tablespoons ground cloves

Combine all ingredients in a jar or other container that has a lid. Shake well until fully mixed. Pour over meat and cover. Allow to marinate overnight or longer, turning often.

GRILLED FLANK STEAK

Trim excess fat from a 1 1/2 pound flank steak, or "London Broil," as it is now called in some parts of the country. Score steak on both sides in 1 1/2 inch squares. Place steak in a large shallow dish or zip-top heavy-duty plastic bag. Pour enough Basic Marinade over the steak to cover it. Seal the container, and allow to marinate in the refrigerator for 8 hours, turning occasionally. Drain steak, reserving marinade. Grill, covered, over medium coals (350 degrees). Six to 8 minutes on each side or to desired degree of doneness, basting twice with marinade. Discard any marinade that remains.

To serve, slice steak across the grain into thin slices. Yield: 6 servings. Note: Steak may be grilled ahead of time and served cold. Yum!

Your Birthday

SUNDAY, AUGUST 11, 2013

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

— Though you are likely to be an "old softy" today, to achieve anything of significance, you might have to be a bit more thick-skinned than usual. Try to find a balance between nice and efficient.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

— It isn't likely that you will appreciate being told what to do and when and how to do it, so it's best to avoid associates who always try to impose their ways on you. Defuse conflicts before they start.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)

— Someone you know socially could turn out to be a pretty tough customer when engaged in business. Limit your expectations about getting any "great deals" from him or her, and don't take anything personally.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)

— If you're negotiating a matter of considerable importance, it might be wise to have a capable someone serve as a buffer. You may not do so well one-on-one.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)

— If some of your assignments and responsibilities are being rearranged, don't volunteer to take on more than you can handle. You'll be much more help if you're realistic.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

— If the root cause of your discomfort has yet to be eradicated, try to avoid a group in which certain members make you feel uneasy. If you don't, your problem will only grow.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)

— Don't rely on Lady Luck to bail you out of choppy waters. Instead of rooting for you, she might help others trip you up even more. It would be better to rely on your own resources.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)

— Forgo any temptations to boast about or exaggerate your accomplishments. Instead of looking good in the eyes of others, you might achieve just the opposite.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

— Financial mistakes could have a larger price than you're prepared to pay, so you may need to be especially careful when it comes to your money. Don't take any risks.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

— Usually, you appreciate the value of compromise and the wisdom of making concessions. Today, however, you might dig in on an issue that deeply moves you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

— Go ahead and extend a helping hand to someone, but don't let a clever manipulator use your gesture against you. Time and thought must be devoted to your interests as well.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

— Your thinking might not be as clear as usual. For some reason, you might take certain trivial things far too seriously, while treating serious matters too indifferently.

MONDAY, AUGUST 12, 2013

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

— You'll have plenty to discuss with someone who shares your concerns and interests. Take care of your domestic responsibilities to avoid complaints. Diplomacy will help you keep the peace.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

— Share important news only with people you trust. Serious plans will turn into an even greater opportunity than you first anticipated. Offer help or services to a cause that you feel passionate about.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)

— Overreaction, overindulgence and overdoing it will lead to emotional upset and anger. Compromise in order to keep the peace. Don't hesitate to call in a favor if it will help you bypass trouble.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)

— Jump into action and take on a challenge with all your heart and might. An intense and creative approach to whatever you do will bring positive results even if you face unexpected opposition.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)

— Good fortune is heading your way. Investments, contracts and settlements will enable you to make the domestic changes that you've been contemplating. Don't let anyone restrict you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

— Do whatever you can to get ahead. Update and upgrade your methods in order to fill a position that will bring you greater rewards. A creative approach to work and money will bring added benefits.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)

— Consider how you can use your talents and contacts to help you solve a problem or pursue a project. A shrewd partnership will help you achieve your goals.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)

— Let your imagination wander and wonder. Explore any opportunities or possibilities that will allow you to expand one of your more hidden assets. It's a good day to find love and meet friends.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

— Listen to what others have to say and consider how to incorporate your own goals while satisfying the needs of your colleagues. A happy environment will bring you greater freedom to operate.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

— Travel and educational pursuits will bolster your achievement. In a competitive involvement, observe what others do and find a way to apply your own unique twist. Physical activity will improve your health and mood.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

— A change will do you good. Talk over any alterations you want to make with the people who would be affected by your plans. You will meet with support and assistance.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

— Socialize with people who can benefit from your hospitality and generous, kind nature. Fix up your surroundings and you'll have a better environment in which to achieve.
