

Most methane emissions from dairy production originate at the farm

- Manure management.
- Feed/ration management.
- Farms have control over much of this (including how much feed is produced) but can't eliminate it all.
- Policies impact (i.e. lagoons for water quality).
- If farms can reduce methane emissions they create value in carbon markets.

G. Thoma et al. / International Dairy Journal 31 (2013) S3–S14

