Providing upscale men's casual wear since opening in July, Cogswell Trading Company takes pride in the quality of the garments it sells, said owner Drake Carroll, who identified a some gift ideas items sure to please the men on your holiday shopping list, including the AFTCO outdoors wear pictured here.

"Sherpa pullovers are also a top item this year," he said. "It's a super-soft high-pile pullover with pockets. It is super, super soft and comes in different colors and as a vest."

Rowdy Gentlemen t-shirts have been popular with Cogswell Trading Company customers. "We have a variety of them. The Reagan-Bush '84 and Back-to-Back World War Champion tees are extremely popular. They're a 60 percent cotton-40 percent polyester blend, and they're full of attitude. You're sure to stand out wearing one of these."

The store is also home to Signature Laser Engraving, operated by Bryton Nixon, Carroll's business partner. "We do the engraving on site, so we can customize your gifts," Nixon said. "Whether it's decorative welcome signs for your home or anything else you'd like to have a slogan or saying on, we can put it on there for you."

What's Christmas without Carhartt? Not a very merry one! A&M

Clothing has pants and jeans ($29.95-$42.95), shirts ($39.95-$42.95), hoodies and sweatshirts ($26.95-$32.95), jackets, coats, insulated and Bibb overalls that even have Santa's belly shaking like a bowl full of jelly. Santa's elves have also stocked A&M Clothing's shelves with Carhartt hats and toboggans ($9.95-$24.95), socks and accessories galore.

Keeping his sleigh fine-tuned the whole year through, Santa knows that safety is important to you. A&M Clothing makes that easy by offering top-of-the-line footwear for working.

Brands such as Red Wing Boots, Wolverine, Georgia, Justin, Carolina, John Deere and Double H Boots come in safety and regular toe. Also ready for you to put under the tree are children's boots and western boots.

Such stocking stuffers as belts and wallets will also put that holiday sparkle in your loved ones' eyes. Don't forget to cover your head with cowboy hats awesome enough to make Santa give a tip of the cap to Mrs. Claus.

For those always on the hunt for a great deal on outdoors wear, all camouflage clothing is 50 percent off. All items in the store will be 10 percent off on Black Friday.

In business since 2000, Oak Grove Feed & Tack provides the Sylacauga area with garden and farming supplies, livestock and pet care products, and Oak Grove Corral, its companion boutique offers Western and casual wear for men, women and children.

Owner India Cabannis suggests saddles and blankets as good Christmas gift ideas for equine enthusiasts this season. A variety of exquisitely crafted saddles and colorful blankets are available. "We can dress a horse from head to toe," Cabannis said.

An apparel line founded on the ideals of innovation and dedication and the latest in manufacturing technologies, Ariat offers a complete line of garments and accessories that are available at the Oak Grove Corral, she added.

Ariat shirts, jeans, boots and hats in a variety of styles and colors are sure to be popular gift ideas this holiday season for equestrian athletes and those who simply enjoy the Western style, Cabannis said.

Oak Grove Corral offers more than 20 other styles of boots and work boots by Durango, Justin, Rocky, Montana West, Georgia and Double H, with new boot lines coming out after Christmas. The boutique also offers other styles of casual footwear and such accessories as jewelry, wallets and bags.

Shoppers who commit to getting their holiday shopping done early can save money and time.

Be an early bird shopper this holiday season

Come the end of the often hectic holiday shopping season, many people resolve to begin shopping earlier in the following year. While such resolutions can be hard to keep, shoppers would be wise to consider the myriad ways they can benefit by starting their holiday shopping earlier than they're typically accustomed to doing.

DEALS

The more time shoppers give themselves to find gifts for their loved ones, the more time they have to comparison shop and find the best deals. Retailers often offer steep discounts during the holiday season, but such deals may pale in comparison to those that can be had throughout the rest of the year. Holiday shoppers who begin shopping early can always skip buying in late summer or autumn if they think better deals can be had once the holiday season begins.

SHIPPING

By shopping early, shoppers can choose the least expensive shipping option offered by online retailers, potentially saving substantial amounts of money as a result. In addition, shoppers who start early won't have to worry about items failing to arrive on time, a common source of stress for last-minute holiday shoppers.

CREDIT SCORE

Another advantage to shopping early for holiday gifts is it allows consumers to protect their credit scores by spreading their spending out over several months instead of doing so in the handful of weeks between Thanksgiving and Christmas. In a survey examining debt associated with the holiday season, MagnifyMoney found that the average holiday debt in 2016 was slightly more than $1,000. Credit card debt can negatively affect consumers' credit scores, especially if balances are not paid in full when bills are due. Shoppers can avoid such situations entirely by shopping early using only disposable income to make purchases instead of credit cards. Such financial flexibility may not be possible for shoppers who wait until the holiday season has begun to start shopping.

TIME

Shoppers can save more than money by starting their holiday shopping in advance of the holiday season. In spite of the popularity of online shopping, many people still visit traditional brick and mortar retailers to do their present buying. Such stores can be overwhelmed with shoppers between Thanksgiving and Christmas, leading to long lines and lengthy searches for parking. Shoppers are far less likely to encounter big crowds and crowded parking lots if they get their shopping done before the dawn of the holiday season, saving themselves substantial amounts of time as a result.

Shoppers who commit to getting their holiday shopping done early can save money and time and protect their financial reputations as well.

'Tis the season to ship smart

The holiday season can be hectic, and thanks to that sometimes frenetic pace, it can be easy to put things on the back burner. While it's OK to put off some things until the holiday season has come and gone, shipping gifts to loved ones does not fall into that category. Shipping can be expensive, especially for last-minute shoppers who want to ensure their gifts arrive in time for the holidays. But the following are a handful of ways to ship smart and save both time and money.

Ship directly to the recipient. Last-minute shoppers who are buying online can save money by shipping gifts directly to the recipient. While shipping directly to the recipient may seem less personal than sending a gift you wrapped yourself, many online retailers allow shoppers to send gift-wrapped items directly to another person. Just be sure to have the recipient's correct address when choosing this option.

Ship early. Waiting to ship all gifts at the same time may be more convenient, but it can prove more costly as well. If you typically finish your holiday shopping just a few days before Christmas, then waiting to ship everything will cost more money than shipping gifts as you buy them. The longer you wait to ship gifts, the more you can expect to pay if you expect those gifts to arrive on time. Shipping gifts as you buy them, especially if you get much of your shopping done early, can save you short-term or overnight shipping fees, which can be significant.

Comparison shop. Much like you can save money by comparison shopping for holiday gifts, you can save by comparing shipping costs as well. Pack-and-ship companies compete for consumers' business during the height of the holiday shipping season, so compare the costs between the various pack-and-ship companies, including the postal service, to see which offers the best deal.

Insure the items you ship. The holiday season is the busiest time of year for the pack-and-ship industry. While the industry is often remarkably effective at delivering gifts intact and on time, items are sometimes lost or damaged. By insuring your packages, you're ensuring you won't be out of luck should your package be lost, damaged or stolen before it reaches its destination.

The hottest toys this Christmas

Christmas may be celebrated toward the end of the year, but at the annual New York Toy Fair, the season for thinking about toys begins in February. This popular convention unveils the industry's hottest trends and toys, attracting more than 1,000 exhibitors.

The Toy Fair, and recommendations by toy and game industry experts around the world, like Dr. Toy and The Toy Insider, help cement which toys are likely to end up on kids' holiday wish lists. For those shoppers who fell behind the curve and missed out on last year's breakout Hatchimal hit, the following figure to be the most coveted items for this year of giving.

Lego Boost: Lego continues to reinvent itself, offering add-ons to its popular building brick model. Lego Boost takes advantage of the STEM trend by enabling children to build and code any of the five models of building sets. These include a cat, robot, guitar, rover, and building machine. Or, they can use the pieces to create their own designs. The models work with an app and can be coded to make different motions and sounds.

Melissa & Doug Scientist Role Play Costume Set: Melissa & Doug is widely recognized for its high-quality wooden games sets and puzzles, but the company also delves into imaginative play costumes. This scientist role-play costume includes a beaker, a test tube, a lab coat, experiment cards, and other ingredients necessary to fuel interest in the sciences. It can be a welcome addition to any dress-up collection.

Nerf N-Strike Elite: Nerf brand has been popular for decades, and the company continues to churn out popular items for boys and girls. The N-Strike Elite series has a number of incarnations to tempt sharpshooters. Nerf's new AccuStrike line is designed to improve accuracy with specially crafted darts that sail straighter than the original darts.

COLLEGGtibles: Building upon the Hatchimal craze of last Christmas and early this year, Spin Master offers an addition to the very popular collectible toy niche. COLLEGGtibles are much smaller than Hatchimals, but are equally fun. Smaller eggs hatch to reveal various colorful critters inside. Kids are apt to want to collect them all.

Pie Face Sky High: Hasbro keeps reinventing the Pie Face game, their runaway hit from 2016, which was awarded Game of the Year by the Toy Industry Association. In the Sky High version, one player hits a lever with a mallet, hoping to deliver their opponent a face full of pie cream.

These are just a handful of the industry favorites that could be the hot picks among children for holiday gifting this year. Also, keep an eye out for FisherPrice Movi, anything Star Wars, FurReal friends, Shopkins, and much more

Great Christmas gifts for seniors

Every holiday shopper ends up with at least one loved one on their shopping list who they can't seem to find anything for. Some people seem to have it all, while others may be less than forthcoming with regard to items they may need or want.

Many seniors tend to fall into the latter category. Shopping for holiday gifts for seniors can be difficult if shoppers don't know what seniors want. But the following are a handful of gift ideas that might make this holiday season that much more special for seniors.

BOOKS

A 2015 survey from the Pew Research Center found that 69 percent of adults age 65 and over acknowledged reading at least one book in the previous 12 months. That makes books a good bet for shoppers who don't know what to get their 65-and-over loved ones this holiday season. But shoppers might want to opt for more traditional print books rather than e-books, as the survey found that only 15 percent of readers age 65 and over had read an e-book in the previous 12 months.

GYM MEMBERSHIP

According to the Office of Disease Prevention and Health Promotion, more than 80 percent of adults do not meet the guidelines for aerobic and muscle-strengthening activities. That can be especially troubling for seniors, who are at greater risk for osteoporosis, a medical condition in which age-related tissue loss contributes to brittle, fragile bones. Physical activity, including muscle-strengthening activities like weight training, can help combat osteoporosis. Family members stuck on what to get aging loved ones may want to consider gifting a membership to a local gym. Many gyms offer heavily discounted memberships to seniors, and such gyms may even offer senior fitness classes at no additional cost.

TRAVEL GIFTS

Many retirees love to travel, but not every senior has the means to take off for parts unknown. A 2013 survey from the Transamerica Center for Retirement Studies found that 25 percent of retirees admitted they wished they would have saved more for retirement travel. Holiday shoppers can light up seniors' smiles by gifting travel gifts this holiday season. One idea is to transfer airline miles to an elderly loved one so he or she can get a free or discounted flight. If that's not a possibility, some new luggage or a Global Hotel Card™ sponsored by Orbitz, a gift card that can be redeemed at 70,000 hotels across the globe, is sure to please.

FAMILY TIME

Shoppers who are especially stuck on what to get seniors for Christmas can just resolve to spend more time with their elderly loved ones. Many seniors genuinely have everything they need, and such men and women may only want to spend more time with their children and grandchildren. Make a New Year's resolution to spend more time with the special seniors in your life if the perfect gift is eluding you.

Hot beverages and the holiday season go hand-in-hand, and Gaither's Florist has the perfect gifts for coffee lovers with a variety color changing mugs featuring inspirational or encouraging messages. The complete picture changes as you add hot coffee or tea.

Learn about product recalls for safe holiday giving

Shopping for the perfect gift and then hiding it under the tree adds to the excitement of the holiday season. Knowing the recipient will display a big smile when tearing away the wrapping paper makes gift givers feel good.

Each year, certain gifts emerge as trendy crowd favorites. However, no matter how favored a gift may be, it pays to investigate its reputation for safety and to find out if any product recalls have been instituted.

The hoverboard craze of the 2015 holiday season provided a recent example of the need to investigate an item's reputation for safety. Thousands upon thousands of these devices flew off of the shelves. Children across the country took their hoverboards for test runs early Christmas morning. Yet many hoverboards soon ignited while charging or in operation. Some even ignited while sitting idle. As of July 2016, the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission indicated at least 60 reports of hoverboard fires totaling more than $2 million in property damage.

Similar problems arose with certain Samsung Galaxy Note 7 phones in late 2016. The phone was recalled officially in the United States through Samsung, and the company launched exchange programs in other countries. Even replacement models continued to have problems, as some caught on fire in early October. Samsung ultimately told Note 7 owners to stop using the phones and return them before permanently discontinuing the product. Shortly thereafter, the U.S. CPSC officially issued a second recall.

Those are just two instances of how products that might have made great holiday gifts posed safety issues. Consumers should learn how they can protect themselves and others from injury, even when giving holiday gifts. Searching for product recalls is one way to safeguard loved ones this holiday season. Reading product reviews from previous customers is another effective safety measure.

A recall is an action taken by a manufacturer or the government. Some recalls will ban the sale of an item, while others require the consumer to return the item for repair or replacement. The U.S. government recommends visiting these websites to find the latest safety recalls and information on items that may turn up on holiday wish lists.

Recalls.com posts government-initiated recalls from federal agencies.

Safecar.gov offers safety information on vehicles and car equipment, such as children's safety seats.

SaferProducts.gov enables consumers to report incidents and safety concerns with regard to consumer products.

Cpsc.gov/Recalls/ includes recalls published by the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission.

HealthyCanadians.gc.ca/recall-alert-rappel-avis/index-eng.php publishes recent recalls and alerts for Canada.

The holidays should be a safe and happy time. To ensure the season stays safe and happy, consumers should familiarize themselves with any product recalls or published safety hazards prior to shopping for gifts.

Greener ways to shop Black Friday

Thousands of shoppers eagerly await the arrival of Black Friday to grab big-ticket items and holiday season must-haves at bargain-basement prices. Shoppers who are braving the chilly temperatures of the early morning hours may have sales on their minds, but they can ensure Black Friday shopping suits their environmental ideals as well.

TEAM UP

Come Black Friday, shoppers can travel to stores together to reduce the amount of vehicles on the road. Carpooling or ridesharing to stores can prevent excessive vehicle emissions. Carpooling also has the added benefit of allowing drivers to utilize carpool lanes on major highways. This keeps cars moving at steady speeds, improving fuel efficiency and reducing the likelihood that fuel will be wasted while sitting in stop-and-go traffic.

BRING REUSABLE TOTE BAGS

Black Friday shoppers shouldn't forget to pack tote bags among their shopping supplies. Reusable bags help cut down on the waste produced from plastic or paper shopping bags. Tote bags tend to be durable as well, which may make it easier for shoppers to carry around all of the items they purchase on Black Friday.

LOOK FOR MINIMAL PACKAGING

When making purchases, choose items that feature the least amount of packaging. Items with minimal packaging will result in a lot less waste making its way into landfills.

BRING ALONG A COFFEE THERMOS

Waking up early in the morning can leave even the most seasoned early-risers feeling a bit bleary-eyed. Many such shoppers rely on a jolt of fresh-brewed caffeine to get moving. Shoppers can skip disposable coffee cups that fill up landfills and bring along their own reusable insulated mugs or thermoses. Some coffee vendors may even provide refills at discounted costs.

OPT FOR EMAILED RECEIPTS

Many retailers now give shoppers the option to have their receipts emailed to them. At checkout, consumers can click the button for an e-receipt, saving ink and paper. This option also may make it easier to organize and catalog receipts at home for budgeting or facilitating returns after Christmas has passed.

Black Friday is a day to score great deals, and shoppers do not need to compromise their eco-friendly values in their pursuit of the perfect presents.

A purveyor of fine gift items for 67 years, Griffin's Jewelers is member of the invitation-only American Gem Society and Preferred Jewelers International. Also a member of the Continental Buying Group, the local retailer enjoys a 600-store buying power through its membership, according to its vice president of marketing and sales.

"Everything you can imagine that's out there in jewelry, we have it," said Michael Abernathy. "And if we don't have it, we can get it for you. That applies to all three of our locations – Talladega, Sylacauga and Pell City."

Popular gift items this season include pearl sets and stackable rings. "The stackable rings are very popular. They come in a variety of shapes, patterns and sizes, so you can customize them to your own taste. They come in white gold, yellow gold and rose gold, so you can 'stack' them by wearing two or three together."

Two-stone rings remain favorite gift ideas, Abernathy said. "So are the earrings and pendants. They all come with two diamonds, making it a gift for the special person who's your best friend and true love."

Griffin's has a wide inventory of Mova globes, which he describes as "good gifts for guys. They're solar powered and operate off the earth's gravity. They spin all on their own, and when you turn the lights off, they stop. They're really cool and a good gift for anybody, but guys in particular seem to like them."

In business for more than 43 years, Yamaha of Sylacauga offers plenty of exciting holiday gift ideas with its new expanded name, Anderson's Preowned Powersports.

"Our objective is to help you find that special motorcycle, side-by-side, ATV or watercraft while saving you money," said owner Jon Anderson. "We still offer brand parts and accessories across the board, and we have an inventory of major brands — Harley Davidson, Honda and Suzuki. Many of the units still look new."

The dealership also focuses on such new brands as Trailmaster, a full line of GoKarts that have a complete roll cages and shutoff switches for safety. Also available are smaller ATVs up to the midsize in the Coolster brand.

"Our goal is to bring you quality products at a very reasonable prices," Anderson said. "So if it's something for Christmas or any other time of the year, come see us."

If you have Alabama or Auburn football fans on your holiday shopping list, help them celebrate the success of their favorite team this season with a commemorative jacket from Michael's Mens Wear.

Suitable for working outdoors or wearing while out and about, the jackets are machine washable, and they're warm, according to store owner Michael Gee. "These are jackets. They're not windbreakers."

Produced by MTC, the Alabama jackets are the line's top selling jacket every year, Gee said. The front, back and sleeves highlight the Crimson Tide's 16 national championships. "And the Auburn jacket looks nice too."

Also available at Michael's are topcoats, high-fashion and traditional suits in a variety of styles and colors, shirts, pants, jeans and shoes, as well as the most important item of the suit-buying experience, according to Gee.

"That's the tie. The right color tie is the most important thing to consider when you're buying a suit. Very important."

Serving the Talladega area since 1999, the full-service shop offers a number of practical holiday gift options, according to owner Anthony Pate.

“Gift certificates are popular every year,” he said. “We can make them out in any amount you want.” The certificates may be used for body or detail work on cars, trucks, boats and recreational vehicles.

Pate’s offers several varieties and sizes of lift kits, bed covers and tool boxes for vehicles, the high-quality WeatherTech cargo, bed and floor liners and K2 coolers. Popular with tailgaters, boaters and fishing enthusiasts, the coolers are available in 20-, 30- and 50-quart sizes and can be customized with college or high school team mascots and logos.
