NBC's Intercultural Sitcom Draws upon Real Life

Dan Rice
FYI Television, Inc.

Back in 2006, when "Parks and Recreation" star Amy Poehler was at the height of her earlier success on "Saturday Night Live," her younger brother – lawyer Greg Poehler – was making a big change in his life. He followed his then-girlfriend back to her native Stockholm, Sweden, which he fell in love with as well. Before long the expatriate was happily married and finding the humor in his ongoing culture clash with the stoic Swedes.

Drawing upon his innate talents as an actor, comedian and writer, Poehler decided to share his outsider's perspective with his new countrymen on the Swedish sitcom "Welcome to Sweden," which now airs on NBC, Thursday at 8:01 p.m.

Being a stranger in a strange land presents a whole set of challenges, but writing about it proved to be less of a task for Poehler. "Well, you know, my character was based on myself, so it wasn't as challenging," he points out. "I tried to make it as non-challenging as possible since it was my first time acting. So, I tried to make my character as close to me as possible just to make that transition easier."

Poehler plays Bruce Evans on the series, in this case an accountant to celebrities who gives it all up to follow his girlfriend Emma (Swedish star Josephine Bornebusch) to Stockholm so that she can take a prestigious banking job – and prove to her parents (Sweden's Lena Olin and Claes Månsson) that she has truly found her soul mate. But that means Bruce must win over her family, with whom they have moved in, and that's no easy feat.

Viveka (Olin) is a therapist who dearly loves her family but has difficulties showing it, especially to Emma, and she dislikes Bruce from the start. Emma's father, retired sea captain Birger, is tall, kind and silent – a typical Swede whose poor English adds to the communication barriers. And then there's Emma's younger brother Gustav (Christopher Wagelin), a 28-year-old slacker who can do no wrong in his mother's eyes, and Emma's Uncle Bengt (Per Svensson), an America-adoring rockabilly type who tries to live his life as if it were a Hollywood movie.

As for Bruce's family, his father, Wayne (Patrick Duffy), is a conservative Midwesterner, while his adoring mother, Nancy (Ileana Douglas), wants only the best for her son, but she is totally clueless as to why he left his happy and successful life in New York.

Bornebusch co-wrote the series with Poehler, who reveals that simultaneously writing the show for two distinct cultures was no simple matter. "Yeah, that was also a challenge, I think, for us, to try to find the universality in comedy and jokes and scenes and shows that would work in both places," Poehler explains. "But for me, I mean, this is my first time doing anything, so I can't really compare it to anything else, like when someone says 'Was it hard?' I was like, 'I don't know, it's my only time doing any of this stuff.' So, it was as hard as I thought it was going to be."

"It's been hard to write for both the U.S. market and the Swedish market I think because the people we think are icons in the U.S., you're like, 'What happened with him?'

You know, he was long gone now," Bornebusch adds. "And then you have so many new stars that you joke around that we don't even know them."

"Our process was if there was any joke that didn't work for either me, as I was representing kind of all of America in that room, or if it didn't work for any of the other Swedish writers, then we just cut it," Poehler elaborates. "There is maybe one or two that kind of fell through the crack that people felt strongly about that we kept. But otherwise all of the jokes were something that we kind of all agreed on and found funny. And then, of course, the danger in doing that is you've kind of left maybe a watered-down comedy. But hopefully, the opposite is true that we kind of found something that kind of works in both places. But, of course, all humor is local to some extent. You can't reference pop culture, I guess, as much as you would like."

Aside from the nature of Swedish comedy, Poehler notes that there are basic differences between their television standards and ours. "Yeah, I mean, there's no censorship here, whatsoever," he states. "So, the Swedish version was a little bit raunchier, I would say.

Not so much; there's not so much difference between the two versions. But you know, just language-wise and some nudity had to be cut out. And they subtitle the English parts into Swedish, but basically all of their TV is subtitled, so it's no big deal for them."

"Welcome to Sweden" promises appearances by other Swedish stars, such as Malin Åkerman, as well as some Americans with Swedish connections: Will Ferrell, who is married to a Swede and has a summer cottage in her country; and Gene Simmons, who shot his scene as one of Bruce's former clients while in Sweden for the last tour of KISS. Of course, Amy Poehler, an executive producer for the series, will appear as herself along with her "Parks and Rec" co-star Aubrey Plaza, who had a Swedish boyfriend in high school.

"Amy and I have a very similar sense of humor," says her proud brother, who is obviously quite pleased to be working together on a show with her. "We've kind of always been joking around. I mean, we had a lot of comedic moments in the backseat of my parents' car growing up, and it's really great to finally get paid for such moments."

Greg Poehler stars on "Welcome to Sweden," an NBC comedy based on his real-life move to his wife's homeland, airing Thursday at 8:01 p.m.

After all these years in Sweden, Poehler isn't quite as accustomed to his new country as he is out of step in both lands. "I'm in between now," he concludes. "I'm a man, like, between two countries. I have no home anymore. My pants are too tight when I'm in the U.S. and they're too baggy when I'm in Sweden. I speak with an accent whenever I go. People make fun of how I speak wherever I go. And yeah, it's a tough life. I'm somewhere in the middle of the ocean in terms of where my homeland is now."

FRIDAY Crossbones

NBC, 9:01 p.m.

William Jagger (Julian Sands) searches for an insane asylum patient who may have a way to take down Blackbeard (John Malkovich). Meanwhile, Tom Lowe (Richard Coyle) decides that the only way to save the people of Santa Compana from the mad wrath of Jagger is to kidnap Blackbeard and turn him in to the English authorities.

Sands

SATURDAY Expecting Amish

Lifetime, 7 p.m.

When four Amish teenagers of rural Pennsylvania are allowed to go to Los Angeles to experience the Rumspringa rite of passage, they all enjoy their new freedom but Hannah (AJ Michalka), who is reluctant to leave her family and her intended, Samuel (Jean-Luc Bilodeau); that is, until she meets Josh (Jesse McCartney). When Hannah begins having feelings for Josh, her friends become concerned, and when the time comes for the four to return to their Amish lives and be baptized by their elder (Ron Ely), difficult decisions must be made. Things get even more complicated for Hannah when she discovers a shocking secret that would certainly cause her to be shunned forever.

SUNDAY Falling Skies

TNT, 9:01 p.m.

Espheni Youth Camp, Tom (Noah Wyle) encounters two mysterious strangers in the woods, who attack his family before embarking with him on a violent journey. Meanwhile, Hal (Drew Roy) faces almost insurmountable odds as he tries to lead the remaining Volm and 2nd Mass to a place of perceived safety. Lexi (Scarlett Byrne) and Anne (Moon Bloodgood) have a difference of opinions that results in dangerous consequences.

MONDAY Seed

CW, 8:00 p.m.

The new CW series tells the story of Harry (Adam Korson), a single, underachieving bachelor and bartender who is also a sperm donor. Harry reluctantly begins a relationship with three unique and separate recipient families – a laidback lesbian couple with a 9-year-old son, a neurotically hopeful single mom-to-be, and an uptight, upper-class family with a rebellious teenage daughter – with whom he'll come to share more than just his DNA. Co-starring Matt Baram, Amanda Brugel, Vanessa Matsui, Stephanie Mills, Carrie-Lynn Neales and Abby Ross, the half-hour comedy comes from the creative team of Joseph Raso and award-winning writer/producer Mark Farrell.

TUESDAY WNBA Basketball

ESPN2, 7 p.m.

Erlana Larkins and the Indiana Fever face the Chicago Sky. Larkins, a 6-foot-1-inch center, was 6 of 8 from the field and scored 13 points as the Fever won their last visit to Chicago, 83-75, when Indiana had five players scoring in double figures. The Fever hit 28 of 35 free throws in the victory, while the Sky went just 7 of 16 at the foul line. Chicago won the first meeting of the season, 74-71, as Elena Delle Donne poured in 23 points for the Sky. Indiana defeated Chicago in the Eastern Conference semifinals last season, sweeping the Sky in a best-of-three series, 2-0, and the Fever won three of the four regular-season meetings last year.

Thomas Gibson

WEDNESDAY Criminal Minds

CBS, 9 p.m.

The team speculates that Hotch (Thomas Gibson) is in the running to be the new BAU unit chief. Meanwhile, the hunt for a ritualistic killer targeting women takes the BAU to Arizona to search for an increasingly devolving Un-Sub. Emmy-winning actress Camryn Manheim guest-stars as Carla Hines, while Fred Koehler appears as her son, Wallace Hines.

THURSDAY Satisfaction

USA, 9 p.m.

Investment banker Neil Truman (Matt Passmore, "The Glades") and his wife Grace (Stephanie Szostak, "The Devil Wears Prada") are sifting through their stagnant relationship when Neil discovers that Grace is seeing a male escort and accidentally gains possession of the escort's phone, which provides him with a unique perspective on what motivates women, while she contemplates whether her needs are being met and whether her marriage is worth saving on "Satisfaction," a new USA series airing Thursday at 10 p.m. A provocative drama that explores modern marriage at its midpoint, the program answers the question "What do you do when having it all is not enough?" by delving into their shocking and unconventional choices. Michelle DeShon ("Hollywood Heights"), Katherine LaNasa ("The Campaign") and Blair Redford ("Switched at Birth") also star.

This Texas Family Loves to Have Fun

Candace Havens
FYI Television, Inc.

Rochelle Carnes and her husband, Trenton Carnes, are like many American families. They're trying to teach their four boys (Jake, Luke, Tate and Dade) right from wrong and what it means to be a good person in Johnson City, Texas. The family struck oil a few years ago and went from counting pennies to not having to worry about money at all. But Carnes is determined her children will grow up the right way on "Lone Star Lady," airing Sunday at 9 p.m. on A&E.

Like most moms, Rochelle still spends the majority of her time hauling her kids around to various extracurricular activities, but she's determined to keep them from being "fathers or felons" before they leave the nest. She's strict and at the same time loving.

"It may be cliché, but it's true what they say about Texas - everything is bigger, including the personalities, and that rang especially true with Rochelle," says executive producer Laurie Sharpe. "She is unapologetic, outspoken and approaches everyday life, i.e. parenting, relationships, newfound wealth, with a sharp sense of humor that jumps off the screen. Rochelle was made for TV and she was a total natural. Her four boys were a littler harder to keep focused, but that's filming with kids."

There's another side to filming with kids, one the producers take into careful consideration. "Of course, we never want to air anything that will horribly embarrass them in 10 years," says Sharpe, "but these boys had tons of fun egging each other on during filming. They were growing up just as they would be if we weren't filming, so manscaping, teen texting and girlfriends were the real things going on in their lives at the time.

"The real hard part in filming with a big family is deciding what to use in a 30-minute episode," continues Sharpe. "We came out with so much great material and family banter that it was difficult to cut out scenes we love to make the episode fit. The network is always on the lookout for unique but relatable families, and Rochelle came in on a sizzle tape and really stood out to us. We loved the dynamic we saw between Rochelle and her mother, Mary Ann, and wanted to dive further in and get to know the rest of her family."

The producers were also careful to portray Carnes and her family in a positive light. Unlike some reality shows that make fun of people who are maybe a little left of mainstream, Sharpe and the producers celebrate that fact. "With Rochelle, it was never about making fun of her," Sharpe explains. "We immediately wanted to be a part of her family and hang out with her. We find ourselves laughing right alongside her as she juggles completely relatable issues.

"We see her face these challenges of raising four boys, ages 8 to 17," Sharpe says. "It'll cover sexting, Jake's car privileges, trying to keep everyone humble despite their newfound money, and my personal favorite, Rochelle tries to throw her parents an anniversary party."

Trenton is right by Rochelle's side. He's supportive, and when it comes to their kids, he definitely steps up to the plate. "He has the patience of Job," laughs Rochelle. "I don't know how he does it, but he stays so calm during all the chaos. He's definitely my rock. I couldn't do any of this without him."

Rochelle and the gang do enjoy a few luxuries such as nice cars and designer chickens, but for the most part they live pretty simply. While they talk about moving, they live in a ranch house next to land her family has owned for over a century. Her mother and father are just as hilarious as she is, but there's also a lot of love that shows through as they interact with one another.

"There's a bond with family," Rochelle says. "We're grateful for one another. That doesn't mean we don't drive each other crazy. We definitely do that. But there's a lot of heart here and I hope people see that."

TRIVIA CHAIN

Television's Alien Worlds

1. On this sitcom that debuted in 1978, half of the titular couple has been sent to study Earth from his home planet of Ork.
2. This 1980s sitcom features a human family who takes in a furry, cat-eating alien life form from the planet Melmac after he crash-lands into their garage.
3. This cult-classic series follows a space exploration crew that interacts with many planets – some having such mythological names as Romulus and Vulcan.
4. This sci-fi hero appeared in movie serials of the 1930s before landing on TV in a few series over the years – all involving his adventures on the planet Mongo.

5. Kobol was the home world of the Twelve Colonies that were virtually exterminated by the Cylons on this 2003 miniseries and the 2004 series that followed.

6. Cybertron is the home planet of two factions of mechanical life forms, which brought their war to Earth for this franchise of feature films born of a line of Hasbro toys and an animated TV series.

7. Every TV show about Superman includes the Clark Kent cover identity of the powerful alien, who was given this name at birth on his home planet of Krypton.

Laugh Along w/ LateNight

Jimmy Kimmel

I'm trying to figure out what to make for the Fourth of July. Hamburgers and hot dogs get a lot of attention, but the Fourth is really the blueberry's day to shine. When you need a blue food to round out your red, white and blue items, there's nowhere else to turn but the blueberry.

Every year, the blueberry has it right where it wants us. I say, good for the blueberry. It deserves it.

Craig Ferguson

A big movie opened. "Transformers: Age of Extinction." You know, the Transformers – they transform. They are robots in disguise. I don't know if it will do well. After all these World Cup games, Americans can't handle any more excitement.

A new show premieres Saturday night on The Learning Channel. If you know anything about me, you know I'm always watching The Learning Channel. I want to learn something!

and called a buddy. This gives you an idea how bad crime is in New York City. People don't even notice now when they've been stabbed.

The guy goes back into the McDonald's with the knife sticking out of his back and he says, "Is there a McDoctor in the house?"
