Get schooled: creative lunchbox ideas

It's time for sandwiches to move aside, because this school year bento-box style lunches reign king on campus.

Bento boxes provide not only the space for healthy and nutritious food choices, but also creativity. Isn't it time for lunch to be more fun?

Nutrition blogger and mom of two, Sally Kuzemchak, uses Lil Snappers kid-sized fruit when she creates bento box lunches because they are easy for little students to hold, serving size proportionate and each 3-pound pouch provides enough fruit for lunches and snacks for an entire week.

On top of that, the fruit can be sliced up for dipping in almond butter or yogurt sprinkled with cinnamon or cut up into a fruit salad, perfect for the three or four compartments in a bento box.

Studies indicate healthy eating can influence the cognitive ability and intelligence levels of students, and balanced mid-day meals of fruits, proteins, carbohydrates and healthy fats are best.

For a well-rounded lunch, parents can fill bento boxes with fresh pasta alongside sliced carrots and grapes, taco fixings with a Lil Snappers apple or a fun and creative meal-on-a-stick to keep school-aged children satisfied throughout the day.

Preparing healthy, filling lunches shouldn't be difficult, and with bento-box style meals your kids will never be bored. With a little preparation and recipe inspiration, crafting back to school lunches will be a breeze. For additional recipes and information, visit LilSnappers.com and look for them at your local grocery store.

Apple-tuna treasure chest

Servings: 2

2 Stemilt Lil Snappers Kid Size Apples

1 can (6-ounces) white albacore tuna, packed in water, drained

2 tablespoons mayonnaise

½ teaspoon honey mustard

½ carrot, finely diced

salt and pepper, to taste

Slice off top one-third of each apple; set aside. Using small teaspoon or grapefruit spoon, core-out center of each apple base (working outward from centermost part of fruit), leaving ¼-inch outer edge; set aside.

In small bowl, mix tuna, mayonnaise, mustard and carrot.

Season to taste.

Spoon ¼ cup of tuna salad into each apple, top with top one-third of apples, tilted slightly to resemble a chest being opened.

Use playful, pirate-themed cupcake holders and flagged toothpicks to make for fun presentation and easy clean-up.

Apple, turkey, cheese kabobs

Servings: 2

1 Stemilt Lil Snappers Kid Size Apple, cored not sliced

1 block (3 ounces) low-fat cheese

1 slice oven-roasted turkey, cut ¼ - ½ -inch thick

2 bamboo skewers

Core apple and slice in half vertically.

Place two halves on cutting board, flesh side down, and slice each into 3-4 slices, from stem end to bottom to resemble half-moon. Set aside.

Cut 2-3 ½-inch slices from block of cheese and, depending on dimensions of cheese block, cut each slice again to create square or triangle shape, as preferred.

Cut cubes of turkey from slice, or, using 1½-2-inch round cutter cut rounds of turkey from slice. Then, cut each round in half.

Thread pieces onto skewers, alternating between apple slices, cheese and turkey.

Review: 'We Are Your Friends' an entertaining musical romp

BY SANDY COHEN
ASSOCIATED PRESS

Part electronic dance music tutorial and part love letter to Los Angeles' San Fernando Valley, "We Are Your Friends" is a surprisingly accessible and sweet story of a group of friends standing on the cusp of adulthood with big ambition and little direction.

Regardless of your taste for pulsing electronic music or actor Zac Efron, both are undeniably appealing in this feature debut from director and co-writer Max Joseph.

Though the plot may be predictable, Mr. Joseph energizes his coming-of-age musical romance with creative animation, explosive dance scenes and a vibrant soundtrack that's like an entree to the EDM genre. And Mr. Efron brings such heart to the main character; he's easy to root for.

For Cole (Mr. Efron) and his buddies, the glittery promise of Hollywood is so close, they can practically see it from their hometown 10 miles away in the Valley's suburban sprawl. Cole is an aspiring DJ, and his three childhood friends are his associates and entourage.

There's his best friend and would-be manager, Mason (Jonny Weston), drug dealer and acting hopeful Ollie (Shiloh Fernandez), and the requisite quiet, sensitive guy, Squirrel (Alex Shaffer). All of them dream of escaping the Valley and finding success "over the hill."

When Cole isn't out jogging or partying with his pals, he's in front of his computer, mixing sounds and beats into what he hopes will become the signature song that launches his career.

"If you're a DJ," he says in voiceover, "all you need is a laptop, some talent and one track."

Cole's luck starts to change when he meets older, established

DJ James Reed (Wes Bentley), who immediately and inexplicably takes Cole under his wing and becomes his mentor.

Cole covets Reed's life, from his worldwide fame and hill-top home to his gorgeous girlfriend/assistant, Sophie (Emily Ratajowski). Reed, though, doesn't seem so thrilled. Bentley is perfectly disaffected as the seen-it-all club veteran who parties away his days and nights, a personified cautionary tale.

Meanwhile, Cole and his friends look for more reliable income by taking day jobs at a mortgage company run by a man with obvious wealth but dubious ethics. Here they get a glimpse into the unrewarding alternative to achieving their dreams. Thus, the career challenges for today's 20-somethings look much like those of anyone coming of age in middle-class America since the 1960s.

Sophie, like Cole and his crew, is frustrated by emerging adulthood and searching for success. Reed encourages a friendship between Sophie and his protégé, suggesting they can go out and "talk about your millennial angst."

When Cole and Sophie become more than friends - as you knew they would - the young DJ's future with Reed and access to big-time gigs comes into question.

"We Are Your Friends" is less a story of millennial angst than a formulaic coming-of-age romance set against the colorful backdrop of rave parties and electronic music. It's also amusingly educational with its inventive animation explaining how DJs inspire audiences to dance by illustrating how the human circulatory system responds to various beats-per-minute. EDM devotees might find this trite, but it's a friendly invitation for the unfamiliar.

Director Joseph (best known as a host and producer of the MTV series "Catfish") captures the vital energy and druggie haze of EDM parties, providing a peek into a world not often seen on the big screen.

He shoots the wide suburban streets of the sun-baked Valley in such a way that the images almost look like they're from another time. And the camera loves his two impossibly good-looking leads.

Mr. Efron brings warm accessibility to Cole. Ms. Ratajowski is so beautiful, she'd devour her scenes even if she said nothing at all (which she almost does). If only young-adult angst really looked and sounded this good.

"We Are Your Friends," a Warner Bros. Pictures release, is rated R by the Motion Picture Association of America for "language throughout, drug use, sexual content and some nudity." Running time: 96 minutes. Two and a half stars out of four.

'Mums for Missions' flower fundraiser set

The Outreach Committee from Ann Street United Methodist Church is selling chrysanthemums for its fall fundraiser, "Mums for Missions."

All proceeds will go toward the ministries of Loaves and Fishes in Beaufort including Backpack Blessings. All mums must be ordered and paid before noon Monday, Sept. 21. Order forms are available.

The chrysanthemums come in three-gallon containers and will cost $15 a piece.

The flower colors are yellow, white and burgundy.

The flowers will be available for pickup Friday, Sept. 25, in the Ann Street United Methodist Church Educational Building parking lot.

The mums are from the grower who furnishes chrysanthemums for the State Fair in Raleigh.

Christmas Box Project kicks off

On Sept.1, Operation North State (ONS) began accepting the names of 1,500 North Carolina deployed troops to receive NCCARES Christmas Boxes.

This year's gift box will feature 36 North Carolina products and messages. Last year's gift boxes included premier North Carolina goodies and special messages from Gov. Pat McCrory, Sen. Kay Hagan, Sen. Richard Burr, "The King" Richard Petty and thousands of messages from children and seniors from around the state.

According to a press release, Operation North State is one of the fastest growing military support services organizations in the state. Its NCCARES Christmas Box Project is the no. 1 North Carolina-themed Christmas gift box project in the state.

There are numerous ways that the public can provide assistance for the Christmas Box Project. They can:

- Help spread the word about the NCCARES Christmas Box Project.
- Host fundraisers. ONS is in need of cash donations to assist with shipping expenses and a few items in the box.
- Collect North Carolina goodies to go in the NCCARES Christmas Boxes. Popular items are 3oz bottles of Texas Pete, bags of Hampton Farm Peanuts, Lance Cracker peanut snack products and Old Fashion Red Bird Peppermint Puffs.

American Music Festival announces 2015-16 concert lineup

The dates for the American Music Festival's upcoming concert series, Music Among Friends, has been announced.

From September to March, music lovers will be able to hear live classical music played on string instruments.

For 26 seasons, the American Music Festival has brought a five-concert music subscription series to Carteret County – on a low budget – with support from subscribers, donors and patrons.

The American Music Festival has also given thousands of public school children the opportunity to hear nationally and internationally acclaimed artists and ensembles and be involved with classical music through masterclasses, concerts, arts-integrated learning opportunities and more.

The concerts in the series start at 8 p.m. Saturdays at the History Museum of Carteret County in Morehead City.

The first concert in the series will take place on Sept. 26. The Israeli Ariel Quartet opens the season with Schubert's lyrical Quartettsatz and a transcendental quartet from Beethoven's late period – the "A minor Quartet, Op. 132."

The quartet was formed 16 years ago when its members were young students, and they have been performing together ever since.

Recently awarded the prestigious Cleveland Quartet Award, the Quartet serves as the faculty quartet-in-residence at the University of Cincinnati's College Conservatory of Music, where they direct the chamber music program and perform their own annual series of concerts – a remarkable achievement for an ensemble so young.

The next concert in the series is on Dec. 12.

This will be a special holiday concert held at the Carteret County Public Library in Beaufort.

This concert features music from recording artist Beverly Biggs and friends on harpsichord, violin and Baroque flute, performing Bach, Telemann, Vivaldi and French noels for Baroque trio.

Ms. Biggs appears regularly with the N.C. Baroque Orchestra as a member of the continuo team and occasionally as a soloist. She collaborates with early music colleagues, offering duo and small ensemble concerts around the region.

She is also a member of Continuo to Go, which provides an experienced continuo team for choral and instrumental groups.

The next concert follows on Jan. 23, with music by the Calidore String Quartet.

In this concert, the award-winning Calidore joins Barbara McKenzie for the passionate "Brahms Piano Quintet," the first quartet from Beethoven,

"Op. 18 No. 1" and a precocious Mendelssohn "Quartet in A minor, Op. 13."

The Calidore String Quartet has established an international reputation for its informed, polished and passionate performances.

Within two years of its formation in 2010 at the Colburn Conservatory of Music, the Calidore String Quartet won grand prizes in virtually all the major U.S. chamber music competitions, including the Fischhoff, Coleman, Chesapeake, and Yellow Springs competitions and captured top prizes at the 2012 ARD Munich International String Quartet Competition, and Hamburg International Chamber Music Competition.

On Feb. 27, the concert will feature Magnolia Baroque music.

The all-Bach concert features Cantata No. 51 for baroque trumpet and soprano, B minor Orchestra Suite No. 2 and a Trio Sonata and one of the Brandenburg concertos.

The final concert will be offered on March 9, with music by the Enso Quartet.

Grammy-nominated Enso String Quartet performs Beethoven's great "C Major, Op. 59, No. 3" from his middle period, a Ginastera Quartet No. 2 to celebrate the Latin composer's 100th anniversary and the Italian Serenade by Hugo Wolf.

The concerts in the American Music Festival are made possible from member subscriptions and donations.

Season subscriptions are $110. Single tickets at the door are $30.

Those who donate money will be given a contribution level. The contribution levels are donor, patron, underwriter, benefactor and angel.

To become a donor, $50-99 must be donated. To become a patron, $100-199 must be donated. To become an underwriter, $200-499 must be donated. To become a benefactor, $500-999 must be donated. To become an angel, more than $1,000 must be donated.

All contributions will be listed in the program for each concert.

For more information about the American Music Festival, call 252-728-6152 or visit www.americanmusicfestival.org.

- Encourage North Carolinians of all ages to write Christmas messages to North Carolina's deployed troops. ONS can provide suggestions as to messages to include and furnish a template if needed.
- Sponsor a Toiletry Drive;

all items collected will be used in the NCCARE Gift Boxes as well as be distributed to veterans living in North Carolina's veteran's homes (there are four facilities around the state – a total of 400 beds). Contact ONS for the Toiletry Drive logo and suggested items to collect.

Volunteers are needed to address custom forms and labels as well as write simple thank you notes. The postage and thank you notes will be provided by ONS.

Third Newport Heritage Days celebration set

this week

9/10/15 - 9/16/15

BY MIKE SHUTAK
NEWS-TIMES

Volunteers and organizers are getting excited as they count down the days to this year's Heritage Days celebration, as well as next year's Sesquicentennial Celebration.

This will be the third year Newport has held its celebration of its history. The event is scheduled for Friday and Saturday, Sept. 18-19, with most of the celebration's activities staged at Newport Town Park next to the town hall and Newport Library on Howard Boulevard. The Heritage Days Committee, the Newport Historical Museum and the Newport Historical Association handle most of the organizing for the event. John Davis, chairman for the Heritage Days Committee, said the overall objective of Newport's Heritage Days is to acquaint Newport's residents and those of the surrounding areas with the town's history.

"Newport is at a turning point," Mr. Davis said. "Its population has grown 30 percent in five years. There's a concern Newport is losing its identity and forgetting the reason people came here."

Mary Sherwood, treasurer for the committee, said the attractions and activities are "looking pretty great" and the organizers

Classic tractors, like these on display at the 2014 Newport Heritage Days celebration, will be on display again at the third celebration, being held this year Friday and Saturday, Sept. 18-19. (Dale Wooten photo) are expecting a bigger crowd this year than previously.

"It (this year's Heritage Days) is very agricultural-oriented," she said. "We're working on a corn shucking contest. The animals at our celebration will be more farm-oriented. We've got a great antique tractor show."

Crafting the town's identity is a big part of the Heritage Days celebration, according to Mr. Davis.

"We call Newport 'The Town with Old-Fashioned Courtesy,'" he said. "But a lot of people didn't grow up here. It's all about identifying the spirit of Newport."

Ms. Sherwood said the celebration is an "amazing day of old-fashioned fun."

"It'll be a great day to get away from technology and get out in the community," she said.

Last year's Heritage Days brought out about 2,500 visitors. Mr. Davis said he and the other organizers expect about the same number this year.

"We're still trying to figure out how to make it (the event) attractive, with the right mix of activities," he said.

This year's Heritage Days will feature artisan demonstrations, crafters, tours, live music and a parade. There will also be Civil War re-enactors, games, a petting zoo and antique cars and tractors.

Mr. Davis said the Heritage Days Committee is having meetings every week to discuss the celebration.

"We meet every Tuesday and will until the festival," he said. "We're down to the organizing, getting the details of the entertainment straightened out."

The celebration will begin at 5 p.m. at the park on Friday, Sept. 18. It will begin with live musical performances from Morris Willis, Pickin' and Grinnin' and the Outer Banks Phil Harmonic until 9 p.m.

The celebration continues at 10 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 19, with the Heritage Days parade down Chatham Street. While Mr. Davis said they're waiting to hear from some of the previous year's participants, confirmed for this year's parade are the 2nd Marine Air Wing Band, the West Carteret Marching Band, the Future Farmers of America, Scout troops, fire trucks, antique cars and tractors and the 5th N.C. Troops Civil War re-enactors.

After the parade, the 5th N.C. Troops will hold musket demonstrations and formation marching at the park. Mr. Davis said the troop came to last year's Heritage Days event, but the town ordinance, which has been amended since last year, didn't allow them to hold their musket demonstrations in the park.

In addition to the re-enactors, several other demonstrations will be held during the event. These include quilting, caning, wine making, basket making, wood carving, sausage making, cow milking (with a mechanical cow) and tobacco harvesting.

The live music will continue throughout the Sept. 19 event. Musical guests that day will be Paulene Smith, Bobby Lowery, Tell-u-Ride, Morris Willis, Mary Willis and the Reece's Chapel Choir. Fat Fellas BBQ & Grille is catering the celebration, and both Food Lion and Wal-Mart are donating food, as well.

Tours of both the town's historical sites and two industrial facilities are also planned. Bus tours of the town will be held from 11 a.m. – 5 p.m. Dianne Johnson, director of the Newport Historical Museum, said the museum will be open during the Heritage Days weekend.

In addition to the historical tours, Veneer Tech and Frank Door will hold tours of their Garden club meetings return after summer hiatus

The Pine Knoll Shores Garden Club meetings will pick up after a summer hiatus.

The first fall meeting of the garden club is scheduled for 9:30 a.m. today at Pine Knoll Shores Town Hall.

Janie Price will tell members and guests about a gardeners' hands scrub and will instruct all at the meeting how to assemble ingredients like essential oils and even sugar to make the hand scrub.

Though the club is on hiatus during the summer months, work on the town's gardens continue all summer long.

One town garden that draws attention is the garden at the intersection of Oakleaf Drive and Salter Path Road.

The garden contains bright vermilion portulaca, vivid pink begonias and colorful liriopie peeking out from the evergreen shrubs.

Continuing on down Salter Path Road, one comes to the island garden at Mimosa Boulevard.

This garden has hot pink portulaca and bright yellow lantana added to the existing shrubs.

Across Salter Path Road near the beach access, the two town gardens showcase bright orange marigolds, white and yellow day lilies, gracious dahlias, large maroon canna lilies and spiky muhly grass plants.

At the intersection of Pine Knoll Boulevard, more vivid colorful flowers like pansies and impatiens are spotted hiding among the shrubs and crape myrtle.

A block farther down Pine Knoll Boulevard, the garden at Roosevelt Boulevard features stands of billowing yellow coreopsis.

The entire stretch of Pine Knoll Boulevard is flanked on both sides with pink and lavender crape myrtle.

In front of town hall, the Hereth Garden has a vivid, stand of black-eyed Susans and delicate pink begonias.

Future garden club meetings take place at 9:30 a.m. the second Wednesday of the month at Pine Knoll Shores Town Hall.

industrial facilities from 11 a.m. - 4 p.m.

At least eight local businesses and organizations are sponsoring this year's Heritage Days: Frank Door Co., Newport Motor Co. Inc., Fat Fellas, Ladies' Touch of Newport, Creative Wood, Willis Farm, St. James United Methodist Church and Veneer Tech. Mr. Davis said the Heritage Days Committee also has the full support of the town council.

"We've had the support of the town staff at the park," he said, "and for the parade and other associated activities. We also want to express our appreciation to the Newport Museum and the Historical Association."

The Heritage Days celebration has grown since it was first held in 2012. And next year will be a particularly special celebration, because it will be Newport's 150th anniversary.

Mr. Davis said this year's celebration is being considered the kickoff of the town's 150th anniversary. The Heritage Days Committee is also working on additional events to celebrate.

"There will be a Sesquicentennial Dinner in January," he said. Ms. Johnson said Bob Garner, a local restaurant critic, will be guest speaker for the evening.

"The rest of 2016, we're going to be attaching ourselves to other events, having promotional stuff all through out the year," Ms. Johnson said. One such example is the Newport Pig Cooking Contest, held each year in March.

Mr. Davis said there will be a Sesquicentennial booth in the pig cooking next year. The celebration will conclude with the 2016 Heritage Days in September.

We plan to have a bigger entertainment program (that year)," Mr. Davis said. Ms. Sherwood said they're considering bringing in a country music artist for the 2016 Heritage Days, though funding will be a big factor.

"We've been talking with a promoter," she said.

In addition to the 10-member Heritage Days Committee, Mr. Davis said the celebration organizers have about 25 additional volunteers, including members of the Newport Recreational Advisory Commission. However, there's always room for more helpers, both for this year's celebration and the 150th.

"We'd love to have anyone interested in assisting us," Mr. Davis said. Ms. Sherwood said they've seen many individual volunteers sign up, but she'd like to see more civic organizations helping out.

Anyone interested in volunteering may contact Mr. Davis at 252-223-5509.

'Paths of Glory' to show at NC History Center

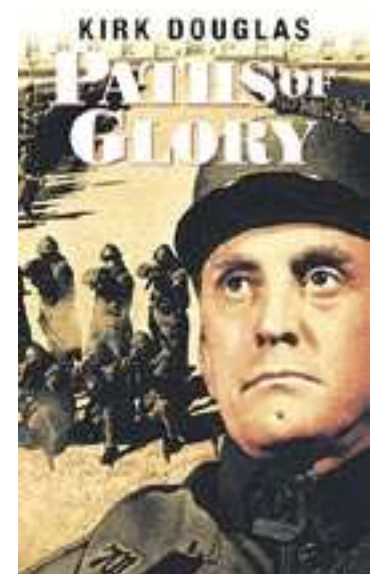

Tryon Palace will host a screening of director Stanley Kubrick's World War I masterpiece "Paths of Glory" as a finale to Tryon Palace's World War I exhibit "North Carolina in the Great War" at 8 p.m. Saturday, Sept. 12.

Released in 1957, "Paths of Glory" stars Kirk Douglas as a French colonel during World War I who must defend three soldiers accused of cowardice. The tale also explores how the battle tactics used on the European battlefields of World War I collided with the advanced weaponry.

Workshop to teach valuable writing skills

Aspiring writers have a chance to hone their skills during an upcoming writing workshop.

Starting Wednesday, Sept. 16, Dr. Susan Schmidt of Beaufort will lead a Writing From Experience: fiction memoir poetry workshop for seven weeks from 4-6 p.m.

The workshop will cost $150 for first-timers and $25 for return participants. To register and find a workshop location, email susu@susanschmidt.net or call 252-269-0032.

Dr. Schmidt also recruits one or two seasoned writers with workshop experience and a book in progress to join an ongoing critique group that meets alternate Thursdays. The best path to the critique group is to take the workshop first.

To jump-start ideas and induce creativity, the Beaufort Writing Workshop gives writing assignments and dozens of playful exercises in short fiction, nonfiction and poetry in a fun and supportive community atmosphere.

This workshop is for writers just beginning or for seasoned writers working on a manuscript or with a project in mind. Assignments hone skills in storytelling: description, setting, character, dialogue, plot, tone and word choice.

On weekly projects, Dr. Schmidt will mark copyediting advice on grammar usage, style and logic. She shares basic tenets of clear writing and complex strategies of structuring a book.

Writers will learn to shape, focus and fine-tune narrative tone and trajectory. To target the publishing market and find an agent, writers may prepare a query and prospectus.

As developmental editor for Beaufort Writing Group, Dr. Schmidt advises authors how to revise books for publication.

Many of her private editing clients have published books and won awards. Dr. Schmidt has also had several works published.

Johns Hopkins University Press published her nonfiction boating adventure Landfall Along the Chesapeake, in the Wake of Captain John Smith. Her new publishing company, Kakapo Press, published her novel Song of Moving Water and poetry Salt Runs in My Blood.

Her Public Radio East interviews can be found at <http://publicradioeast.org/post/song-moving-water-susan-schmidt>.

As well as having many of her works published, Dr. Schmidt has won several awards and participated in fellowships and workshops.

She won the 2012 Guy Owen Poetry Prize. Her poem appears in Literary Trails of Eastern North Carolina (UNC Press, 2013).

Her poems recently appeared in Kakalak, Tar River Review and ISLE Interdisciplinary Studies in Literature and Environment. Her essays appeared in Shenandoah and a Milkweed Nature Anthology.

She had a poetry-writing fellowship in France from Virginia Center from Creative Arts. She also participated in the Palm Beach Poetry Workshop and a Raleigh Review Poetry Workshop. She had writing grants from Bread Loaf, Vermont Studio Center, N.C. Arts Council, National Endowment for Humanities and American Association of University Women.

Dr. Schmidt taught creative and technical writing in college and high school for 30 years. She is now researching and writing a nonfiction/popular-science book on the Gulf Stream, her sailing adventures as a delivery captain and recent walking treks in Celtic countries.

Last show in concert series set for Sept. 11

The summer concert series at St. Francis by the Sea Episcopal Church in Salter Path comes to a close Friday, Sept. 11, with one last art reception and concert from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m.

The art gallery opens at 5:30 p.m. and will showcase the work of Wilmington artist Sherryl Janosko.

Ms. Janosko works with many types of art, but she is well-known for her waterworks painting. This art gallery will feature her painting and jewelry.

The concert begins at 6:30 p.m. with a performance by Katherine Anderson.

Ms. Anderson is a Boston Conservatory-trained coloratura soprano.

She will perform solo works by Purcell, Handel, Strauss, Debussy, Puccini, Verdi, Britten, Rorem, Walton, Hoiby and Copland.

The summer concert series is free and open to the public, though donations are appreciated.

St. Francis by the Sea Episcopal Church is at 920 Salter Path Road in Salter Path.

For more information about the concert, call 252-240-2388.

League honors Woman of the Year

BY MEGAN SOULT
NEWS-TIMES

Lela Faye Rich was awarded “Woman of the Year” at a League of Women Voters luncheon in August for Women’s Equality Day.

Ms. Rich, of Morehead City, is known for her work with “Get Covered Carteret,” a volunteer organization that has resulted in more than 4,000 individuals in Carteret County obtaining affordable health insurance.

Ms. Rich was nominated along with Andra Pond, Elaine Crittenton and the late Jeannette Dukes Davenport for the Woman of the Year award.

For the first time, the League of Women Voters opened voting to the public, and it was widely accepted. There were 700 votes received from both an online poll and ballots found in the Carteret County News-Times.

The luncheon at the Channel Marker restaurant in Atlantic Beach was held to celebrate the 95th anniversary of women’s right to vote with the 19th Amendment.

The luncheon opened with a short speech from Carol Geer, the president of the League of Women Voters.

Dr. Fran Emory, vice president of instruction and student support at Carteret Community College, delivered the keynote speech. She spoke of her voting experiences and expressed the importance of voting.

“I have voted in every election since I was eligible to vote in 1971 – not always on the winning side, but I voted,” Dr. Emory said. “It has been comforting to me to know that regardless of the outcome, I had a voice, and there would always be another day and another chance to vote.”

After Dr. Emory closed her speech, Ms. Rich was called to the podium and received her award.

She recognized her fellow nominees and credited the women in her family for her success.

“That I am here today is my indebtedness to a long line of strong women in my family, including my mother, whose constant advice or criticism to me or my sister was, ‘Don’t just stand there. Do something.’” Ms. Rich said.

She took that advice to heart when she created “Get Covered Carteret.”

According to Ms. Rich, the number of people “Get Covered Carteret” has helped is a significant number, but more can be done.

“We could double that number if our Legislature would extend Medicaid,” Ms. Rich

Driver safety course geared toward seniors

An AARP Smart Driver Course for motorists 50 and older is 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Friday, Sept. 18, at the Leon Mann Jr. Enrichment Center on Galantis Drive in Morehead City.

The cost of the course is $15 for AARP members or $20 for nonmembers. Contact instructor Don Helsabeck at 252-247-2930 to register.

The AARP driver safety program is the nation’s first and largest driver-refresher course specifically designed for motorists 50 and older. The course, which is open to AARP members and nonmembers alike, helps drivers refine existing skills and develop safe, defensive-driving techniques.

The course will show how to compensate for changes in vision, hearing and reaction time; how to handle problem situations like left turns, right-of-way, freeway traffic, trucks and blind spots; what to do if confronted by an aggressive driver; when to use a cell phone; how medication may affect driving; how to properly use anti-lock brakes, air bags and safety belts; and how to assess one’s own and other’s abilities via a personal driving capability index.

A workbook will be used for the four-hour course as well as audio and visual aids to discuss each topic, including: the evolving automobile and when people are no longer safe

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Taste of Core Sound remembers Capt. Purcell

The Core Sound Waterfowl Museum and Heritage Center on Harkers Island will honor the memory of the late Capt. Purcell Jones at the Taste of Core Sound Night.

The evening begins at 6 p.m. Friday, Sept. 11, with a wine and cheese event, silent auction and time to visit. The dinner follows at 7 p.m.

Though it is a celebration, it is also a time for remembrance.

Mr. Jones was the director of Camp Morehead By the Sea, founder of Ducks Unlimited in Carteret County and a waterfowler extraordinaire.

He became one of the Core Sound Waterfowl Museum's strongest voices for the establishment of the museum in 1992.

"Purcell and Granddaddy both loved decoys and that made them good friends and strong supporters of the museum," said Kathryn Smith Chadwick, granddaughter of Billy Smith, the founding chairman of the museum board. "This museum would not exist without Purcell and his friends. He has brought many people to the museum through raffle ticket

STEM program provides educational summer

The Boys & Girls Club that just two weeks ago was filled with the laughter of members as early as 7:30 in the morning is now filled with club members studying and getting back into the groove of school.

To help them retain school skills, this summer was filled with educational activities like the summer STEM program.

STEM education or Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics education, is making a surge in today's classroom.

Thanks to a STEM grant from Duke Energy Progress, each Boys & Girls Club in the area was provided with materials to help make the program as hands-on for the members as possible.

During the STEM sessions this summer, club members covered topics that ranged from plate tectonics to learning how to properly use a microscope.

With each lesson, the children were given a brief lecture on a subject then divided into three stations where they would take 15 to 20 minutes to complete an activity that complemented the topic.

These activities ranged from vocabulary word searches to crossword puzzles, and there was always a station that had a hands-on experiment pertaining to the lesson.

"I loved the STEM activities we did," said Joshua

Johnson, a rising third-grader from the Sunshine Lady Club in Morehead City.

"My favorite activity was the microscopes and getting to see what a goldfish scale looks like super close up," he added.

Just because the summer is over doesn't mean the STEM program will be.

There will be mini lessons taught each Friday at the Sunshine Lady Club in Morehead City to help make sure club members are staying ahead of their class this school year.

For more information about the Boys & Girls Clubs of Coastal Carolina, visit www.bgccc.net.

Coastal Voices: Linking Generations oral histories online

Saltwater Connections announces that Coastal Voices: Linking Generations, an oral history collection, is now available for free online viewing.

The collection includes audio recordings and transcripts of 30 oral history interviews conducted with Hatteras Island and Ocracoke residents between 1978 and 2003 for the Southern Oral History Project and the National Park Service Cape Hatteras National Seashore Ethnohistory Project.

The collection can be accessed through the Collections tab in the menu bar on the Coastal Voices website, www.carolinacoastalvoices.com.

The Outer Banks Community Foundation provided funds to digitize the recordings. Audio clips from the interviews have been featured on the Coastal Voices website, Radio Hatteras and the Outer Banks Heritage Trails website and will be used in Port Light, a project tracing connections between Outer Banks communities and mainland ports when boats were the primary mode of transportation.

The Outer Banks History Center and the Cape Hatteras National Seashore loaned tapes of the interviews to facilitate digitization.

The collection is housed in the Core Sound Waterfowl Museum and Heritage Center's online oral history archive that also includes Cape Lookout: The Connie Mason Collection funded by Cape Lookout National Seashore and Raising the Story: Menhaden Fishing funded by the North Carolina Humanities Council.

Coastal Voices is an oral history project about the marine heritage of the Outer Banks and Down East region of North Carolina.

As coastal North Carolina undergoes rapid change, residents want to ensure that their community's legacy of resiliency and strength is documented for future generations.

For more information, contact Karen Amspacher, Saltwater Connections coordinator and Core Sound Waterfowl Museum and Heritage Center director, at kwampacher@ec.rr.com or 252-723-0982.

sales, auctions and events. We miss him a great deal."

The end of summer fundraiser features a traditional seafood menu. This time, in honor of Mr. Jones, wild game has been added to the long list of fresh seafood and home cooked vegetables.

Food featured at the event will include:

- Wine and cheese
- Crab dip
- Poppy seed salad
- Stewed shrimp
- Scallop fritters.
- Stewed duck breast.
- Marinated cucumbers and tomatoes.
- Fresh tuna salad.

- Minced mullet.
- Shrimp salad.
- Seafood casserole.
- Baked flounder.
- Chicken and pastry.
- Squash casserole.
- Baked sweet potatoes.
- Light rolls.
- Fig cake.

The night's event includes a silent auction, with many of the items coming from Mr. Jones' unending contributions to the museum, and a special display of Camp Morehead and Mr. Jones' accomplishments.

The speakers for the evening are two of Mr. Jones' friends, Don Manley, formerly of Ducks Unlimited's southeast region, and District Court Judge Tom Lambeth, former Camp Morehead camper.

The establishment of the "Purcell Circle of '93," a tribute to Mr. Jones' life, will be announced at the event. This project is led by friends of Mr. Jones' and the effort will provide a permanent testament of his influence across North Carolina.

The event is expected to have a large turnout as people come to pay their respects to Mr. Jones' memory.

"Friday night will be a mix of laughter and tears I'm sure," said Karen Amspacher, executive director for the museum. "We all loved him more than he realized, not just for all he gave to everyone around him, but for the caring, giving man he was.

He was a gentle man that left a strong legacy of community leadership that we are going to celebrate together. We know this will be a great night for an even greater man."

Tickets are $100 per couple for museum members, and $125 per couple for non-members. Non-members tickets will include a year's membership to the museum.

Reservations are required. To reserve a ticket, call 252-728-1500, ext. 21.

The Core Sound Waterfowl Museum and Heritage Center is at 1785 Island Road on Harkers Island. For more information about Taste of Core Sound or any other museum events, call 252-728-1500.

Morehead City photographer earns platinum distinction

Carolyn Temple, of Coastal Image Photography in Morehead City, was recently named a Platinum Medalist during Professional Photographers of America's 2015 International Photographic Competition.

The competition was held Aug. 3-6 at the Sheraton Imperial Hotel and Convention Center in Atlanta, Ga.

Ms. Temple's work will be on display at the Georgia World Congress Center in Atlanta from Sunday-Tuesday, Jan. 10-12, 2016.

The international photographic competition was held in conjunction with Imaging USA, an annual convention and expo for professional photographers and several photographic associations.

A panel of 43 jurors from across the U.S. selected the top photographs from nearly 5,200 total submitted entries.

Judged against a standard of excellence, just over 2,100 images were selected for the General Merit Collection and 1,085 were selected for the Loan Collection, which is considered the best of the best.

The Loan Collection images will be published in the Loan Collection book published by Marathon Press.

An entrant was only allowed to enter four photographs for the judging process. The level of the award was determined by how many of those four images received the highest possible honor: acceptance into the PPA Loan Collection, which is displayed at photographic exhibitions, conventions and other photography events.

By becoming a Platinum Medalist, three of her four merited images will be entered the PPA Loan Collection. She was one of only 69 Platinum Photographers of the Year for the United States and 12 other countries with entries in the competition.

This is the second year that Ms. Temple entered the competition, and she pleased with the results.

"I was tickled to death," she said in a phone interview.

As well as attending the international competition, Ms. Temple entered her work at a North Carolina competition.

The Professional Photographers of N.C. convention, titled the Carolina Photo Expo, was held on Aug. 14-18, in the Raleigh/Durham area.

Ms. Temple entered 12 images into the competition and received 11 merits for her work.

Images could receive scores up to 100 points, depending on how they met the 12 elements of a Merit Image.

A merit was given to any print that received a score of 80 points or higher.

Ms. Temple also received five awards in the individual classifications: second place in the Science/Fine Art category, third place and an honorable mention in the Commercial category and a third place and honorable mention in the Commercial/Photojournalism category.

She was also awarded the Hallie Siddell Scholarship, which will allow her to attend the East Coast School, which is a weeklong workshop with some of the top photographers in the nation.

She also received her Fellowship in Photography Degree from the Professional Photographers of North Carolina awards ceremony.

Ms. Temple was a teacher and coach at West Carteret High School before retiring from education in 2002.

While there, she taught health and physical education and coached volleyball, track, gymnastics and sponsored the photography club for 12 years.

According to Ms. Temple, she knew that she wanted to work with photography after her retirement.

She worked with film until 2006, when she learned how to work with digital photography.

She is happy with the change.

"I wouldn't go back to film," she said. "I can do things on the computer, and I have complete control of my artwork."

Ms. Temple plans to enter more photography competitions next year.
