Obama Asks U.N. to Okay Libyan Strike, Not Congress

"The President does not have the power to unilaterally authorize a military attack in a situation that does not involve an actual or imminent threat to the nation."

— Sen. Barack Obama (2007)

WASHINGTON — The President asked the U.N. for permission to go in against Libya but did not ask for the permission of Congress, and that's a violation of the War Powers Act, two senators say. Sens. Rand Paul and IRANIAN PRESIDENT Mahmoud Ahmadinejad waves sign saying "Down with Israel" during celebration of 32nd anniversary of Islamic Revolution last month.

Radical Regime Fuels Revolution, Close to Having Nuclear Missiles

WASHINGTON — Iranian President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad continues to target the State of Israel for destruction, at the same time that he works to build Iran's nuclear capability and tests his ability to fire medium-range missiles. Iran is the largest sponsor of state terrorism in the world and is subject to a United Nations arms embargo because of Ahmadinejad's pursuit of a nuclear enrichment program and his refusal to allow international inspections.

Some analysts say Ahmadinejad seeks the ability to develop an electromagnetic pulse (EMP) device that could disable Israel or the United States. An EMP device is a nuclear bomb which is exploded above ground level and destroys all electrical power lines, circuits, computers, and many motors for tens, hundreds,

WASHINGTON — The Rasmussen Poll of likely voters for April 6 showed President Obama with an approval rating of only 47 percent. A total of 52 percent disapproved of his job performance, and only one percent had no opinion.

The question is, with numbers like that, how long will the President be able to avoid a challenge in the Democratic primaries?

HOUSE SPEAKER JOHN BOEHNER describes House Republican plans to cut federal spending and avoid a shutdown of the federal government.

GOP Wants Cuts Prior to Increasing U.S. National Debt

WASHINGTON — With a government shutdown looming, conservative House Republicans continued to push for spending cuts.

House Budget Chairman Paul Ryan offered his Pathway to Prosperity Plan, which would cut $6 trillion in spending. The cuts would mostly be from the Obama administration's planned increases. Ryan's proposal still increases the national debt from $14 to $23 trillion over the next 10 years.
