CGHS Softball team's season ends in first-round play at State

JEREMY C. RUARK Cottage Grove Sentinel

The Cottage Grove High School Softball Team and its coaches had high hopes as they entered the first round of the 2025 OSAA / OnPoint Community Credit Union 4A Softball State Championship.

The Lady Lions faced La Grande at La Grande High School.

"These girls gave it their all against a tough No. 2 seed, La Grande," the team's Facebook post reads.

In the end it was La Grande 11, Cottage Grove 1.

"We are so proud of the season we've had, the milestones we've reached and the foundation that was set. 2025- a season of making history," the post states.

In a Facebook post before the firstround play at State, CGHS announced the significance of the game.

"Cottage Grove High School softball is heading to the OSAA 4A state tournament bracket for the first time in program history," the post stated.

BACKGROUND

In the final league season games, the Lady Lions scored impressively, taking the first game against Klamath Union 13-3, and the second game 11-1. The Lions dominated Rogue River 7-0 and 20-0, then went on to beat Phoenix 6-2 securing the State playoff first round play.

In a published interview with The Sentinel in early March, CGHS Head Softball Coach Sarah Keefauver said the team was heading into the 2025 season with "full vengeance."

"I expect all of our varsity returners to come back with full vengeance after a tough season last year. We definitely have some scores to settle, and we are eager to work hard and take care of business in league," she said.

In describing the team goals, Kefauver give the following prediction.

"First, we will be fundamentally sound and consistent. Second, we will work on setting each other up for success, this is a huge focus of mine as a coach," Kefauver said. "We are also going to focus on preparing for games with intention, each team in our league has different dynamics and strategies and we plan to adjust accordingly. We are going to shake things up a lot this season, and I have full confidence we will find success in doing so."

Kefauver said the priority has been a "team-first mentality."

"While it may sound cliché, the ability to work effectively within a team is an invaluable life skill. We will also champion women in sports, empowering each girl to understand the importance of hard work, resilience, and never accepting 'no' as an answer," she said. "Above all, we will emphasize the power of women supporting women-celebrating and uplifting each other's successes. Our focus will be on respect, accountability, and taking ownership of our actions. I hope the girls walk away with an understanding of all of the above and knowing that I will always be in their corner to support them along the way."

ELECTION 2025

Two school board races too close to call

CINDY WEELDREYER Cottage Grove Sentinel

The results of the May 20 Special Election for two seats on the South Lane School District Board remained too close to call, as of press time

May 29.

On May 28, a Lane County elections spokesperson said the elections staff was working with "cured" ballots. Letters have been sent to voters who forgot to sign their ballot, or their signature didn't match the signature on file. Once those cured ballots are received, the results will be updated accordingly. Two updates on the results are scheduled for May 29 and June 11 prior to being certified on June 16. According to Oregon law, if no candidate receives .02-percent of the vote an automatic recount is done.

SOUTH LANE SCHOOL BOARD RACES

Public engagement with the school board has increased significantly in the past three years, resulting in a spirited campaign with two candidates filing for each of the four open seats on the board.

Position 5: As of May 28, this race is a dead heat with one vote separating Colleen Valley and Tony Lefler. Valley, a local business owner, seeks a second four-year term on the board. Lefler, the service manager at a local car dealership, is making his first bid for public office.

Position 7: This is also a close race. Appointed to fill a vacancy last year, Jeff Gowing, a former mayor and retired millwright, seeks to keep the position for the remaining two years of the term. Challenger Bill Parsons, a local business owner and retired firefighter, in his first bid for public office, is challenging Gowing's incumbency. Only 10 votes separate the two candidates as of May 28.

Follow developments online at cgsentinel.com, and in the Wednesday print editions of The Sentinel.

Two school board races were decided in the May 20 election:

Position 2

Taylor Wilhour, the current board chair, did not seek reelection. Diane Hicks, a retired Bohemia Elementary teacher, and Rayla Campbell, a relative newcomer to local politics, squared off for the local seat. Hicks emerged victorious with 59-percent of the vote.

Position 4

Local realtor Sherry Duerst Higgins, a veteran of the board with more than three decades of service, was unseated by local businessman Chris Holloman with 242 votes more than Duerst-Higgins.

VOTER TURNOUT LOW

According to the Secretary of State's office, the statewide average of voters casting a ballot was just over 23-percent and Lane County's turnout was nearly 21-percent.

County Elections data summary as of May 22:

- Active Registered Voters:
- 279,566 • Ballots Counted: 58,313
- Voter Turnout Percentage: Approximately 20.86%

Compared to state and national elections, Oregon's annual spring district elections traditionally have a much lower turnout. The results below are unofficial results until Lane County releases its certified results on June 16.

You can find more detailed information and updates on the Lane County website: www. lanecountyor.gov.

PRELIMINARY RESULTS IN OTHER LOCAL RACES Lane Community College

Zone 1: Jerry Rust won with 64.81-percent of the vote.

Zone 3: Julie Weismann was reelected with 56.68-percent Zone 4: Austin Fölnagy was reelected with 65.44-percent Position 7 (at-large): Jesse Maldonado ran unopposed and won with 97.96-percent

South Lane Fire & Rescue

Three of the five seats were up for election. With no challengers, Debby Stumph, Ron Hood and Tom Munroe were re-elected to their positions.

Row River Fire District

This newly created district provides fire protection to the Row River Valley. Three candidates applied for two open seats: Kirk Reinecke, Ian Lounsbury and Alan Neal Ades. Among the 208 ballots received, Reinecke and Ades earned the most votes to be seated on the board.

All the newly elected officials assume their duties on July 1.

Caution issued for potential harmful algae blooms

JEREMY C. RUARK Cottage Grove Sentinel

The Oregon Health Authority (OHA).has issued a health advisory concerning harmful algae blooms.

With summer, the water quality monitoring season begins, and the (OHA) is encouraging people heading to the lakes, rivers and reservoirs in Lane County and across the state to watch for potentially toxic cyanobacteria harmful algae blooms.

Cyanobacteria are beneficial bacteria found in most fresh water worldwide. The bacteria can multiply into blooms in any water body under the right conditions—warm weather, sunlight, water temperature, nutrients and water chemistry, the OHA states in its advisory.

"Some species of cyanobacteria live in the water or float on the top of the water surface," the advisory states. "Other cyanobacteria mats anchor themselves to the bottom of a water body, live in the sediment, or grow on rocks or aquatic plants, and can release toxins into clear water."

Some blooms can produce cyanotoxins that make people and animals sick. They can make the water look green or other colors and form scumlike masses or mats in water or on shore where they can be wet or dry, according to the OHA.

"As the warmer weather draws us to Oregon's lakes and river, peopleespecially small children-and pets should avoid areas where there are signs of a cyanobacteria bloom, the water is foamy, scummy, thick like paint, pea-green or blue-green, or if thick green or brownish-red mats are visible, or bright green clumps are suspended in the water or along the shore," OHA's Environmental Public Health Section Recreational Water Specialist Linda Novitski said.

Although cyanotoxins are not known to be absorbed through the skin, people with sensitive skin can develop a red, raised rash when wading, playing or swimming in or around a bloom.

Children and pets are particularly sensitive to illness because of their size and activity levels. Similarly, livestock and wildlife can become ill and die after drinking from water bodies, troughs or other sources of drinking water affected by blooms and potential toxins, the advisory reads. Dogs can get extremely ill, even die, within minutes to hours of exposure to cyanotoxins by drinking the water. Two recent dog deaths have been connected to a type of harmful algae that's new to the Columbia River, Clark County Public Health officials warn, KOIN News has reported.

Slow down, make a plan, local safety coalition urges

JEREMY C. RUARK Cottage Grove Sentinel

Spring is in full swing, summer is on the horizon, and more and more people are flooding Oregon's roadways.

The Safe Lane Transportation Coalition of Lane County is encouraging drivers to allow plenty of time and check their speed to ensure everyone's safety.

The coalition's "Make a Plan" public awareness campaign emphasizes the importance of planning your trip, whether it's your daily commute or a longer road trip, by estimating how long it will take you to get there and by considering possible delays, so that you can enjoy the drive, according to a release from the coalition.

"Whether it's raining or a sunny day, it's important to allow yourself plenty of time," Safe Lane Transportation Coalition Coordinator Drew Pfefferle said. "We like to say, 'take it slow and let the journey flow."

Driving at high speeds reduces the time a driver has to react, increasing the likelihood of a crash or making it more difficult to avoid obstacles or slow down in time. Driving at or below the speed limit, on the other hand, can significantly reduce the likelihood of a fatal or life-altering crash, especially in adverse conditions, such as inclement weather, road construction or poorly lit areas, according to Pfefferie.

"Speeding may seem like a small risk, but it can have life-changing consequences," Pfefferie said. "Nearly onethird of all traffic deaths on Oregon roadways involve speeding."

The most recent five-year rolling data (2018-2022) shows that, on average, six speed-related fatalities occurred in the Lane County metropolitan area, while an additional eight occurred in rural Lane County. "That's 14 lives that could have been spared by simply driving at a safe speed," he says.

"Speeding and aggressive driving don't just endanger the driver — they put everyone on the road at risk, including other drivers and passengers, people walking or biking, and even family pets. It's always safer to slow down than to risk a preventable tragedy," Pfefferle says.

SAFE DRIVING TIPS

Allow yourself extra time. Start by adding a few extra minutes to your usual travel time, then adjust for longer trips or uncertain conditions. The extra time can reduce stress and help you drive more safely.

Set it but don't forget it. Use cruise control on longer trips when you're well-rested to maintain a steady speed that matches the posted limit and road conditions. Cruise control can help reduce the temptation to speed, but remember to adjust it as needed based on traffic and conditions

Be a proactive passenger. If you're in a car with someone driving too fast, gently encourage them to slow down. You might say something like, "I feel safer when we take it slower." Approach the conversation with care and respect.

Enjoy the drive. Remember, driving isn't a race. If you feel the urge to speed, take a deep breath, relax and refocus. Listen to your favorite music, podcast or just enjoy a calm, reflective drive.

Town Hall to outline city budget

CINDY WEELDREYER Cottage Grove Sentinel

Last fall, city council candidates campaigned on the need for more transparency and greater citizen involvement in city affairs.

At its March 8 goal setting retreat, councilors committed to hosting town hall meetings this year. Keeping that promise, the proposed 2025-26 city budget will be the topic of a town hall meeting scheduled from 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesday, June 4, at Cottage Grove City Hall, 400 E Main Street.

The format will be informal in how the room is arranged and allow citizens more than the standard three minutes to make their comments

Cottage Grove City Manager Mike Sauerwein told The Sentinel in a published report May 21, "next year's budget is really tight." Unlike previous years, this challenge required three budget committee meetings conducted last month.

In the proposed $46,973,783 budget, police and library services consume nearly all of property taxes collected each year in the general fund.

At its May 22 meeting, as the Cottage Grove City Budget Committee contemplated balancing competing needs for limited general fund programs, supporters of the community swimming pool showed up in force to advocate for these programs. The council chamber neared its capacity with advocates inside supporting continued financial support for community uses of the school district-owned pool.

The committee voted to continue city's annual $75,000 payment to South Lane School District and also approved a 14-percent rate increase in the water/ wastewater/storm drain fees and then continued discussion of other parts of the proposed spending plan.

CHANGES TO PROPOSED BUDGET

The budget committee made changes to the city manager's proposed budget, according to Cottage Grove City Council President Greg Ervin, which include:

- Added $30,000 in anticipated revenue from armory rentals
- Added $5,000 back into budget which South Lane Wheels no longer needs
- Transferred $50,000 for a planned bicycle path from the street fund to general fund to keep more money in the street fund
- Required interest earned on the special trust fund be distributed equally to the different projects in that fund.

The city's current budget policy requires expenditures, including the cash carryover, that do not exceed revenue.

Committee members approved an advisory vote asking the council to direct the city manager to reduce the gap in the general fund between revenue and expenditures to zero within three years, with at least a one-third reduction beginning with the 2025-26 budget.

"We're on a path that within two years we will blow through our cash carryover, which we rely on to pay the bills until new taxes are collected next fall." Ervin said, "The cash carryover amount functions as a savings account to meet operating expenses until taxes are distributed in the fall."

The lengthy May 22 ended at 10:15 p.m. with a 9-4 vote to approve the document. Councilor Randall Lammerman and Budget Committee members Amber Bahler, Charlene Sayles and Johanna Zee were opposed. NEXT STEPS

Following citizen feedback at the June 4 town hall meeting, councilors can make additional changes before the document goes to a public hearing at the June 9 or June 23 city council meeting. To comply with state law, the council must adopt the document no later than its June 23 council meeting.

School board receives approved budget

CINDY WEELDREYER Cottage Grove Sentinel

A spending plan for the South Lane School District has been approved by the district's budget committee. At the May 27 meeting of the South Lane School District's budget committee, Finance Director Celia Gowing walked members through the proposed budget of $69,550,920.

No significant reductions were made in the 2025-26 budget in the current level of personnel and programs. The document was unanimously recommended to the South Lane School Board for adoption, which was expected to occur during the board's June 2 meeting.

Interim Superintendent Brian McCasline told the committee, "The budget is a concept and is only good the day you wrote it and the next day something is going to be different."

It was noted that diligent and prudent management of the current budget, and how district leaders wisely managed the COVID-related state and federal grants, placed the district in a much better position than some others in Oregon and there are no planned layoffs or program reductions for next year.

Board Chair Taylor Wilhour told The Sentinel the budget process went well, and the district faired much better than other school districts in Oregon.

"Sound fiscal management, especially regarding COVID funds, has helped us avoid the deep cuts that other school districts are facing," Wilhour said. "This budget is based on an $11.4B allocation to the State School Fund, which is expected to happen."

He added, "We were also hoping there would be legislation to address the rising cost of some programs throughout the state and that looks unlikely to pass. In addition, the status of all federal funding is uncertain. The approved budget will probably need to be adjusted to account for these factors once they become finalized, probably early in the next school year."

Who cares about notices?

You have the right to know what's happening in your community.

Public notices - information local governments are obligated to provide citizens - are required to be published in local newspapers to provide a public record that's accessible to everyone.

Public notices keep you informed about your government.

But, Oregon legislators are trying to keep public notices from appearing in local newspapers. This severely impacts government transparency and, in turn, limits the public's right to hold them accountable for their actions.

Let your state legislators know that you value being able to access notices in your newspaper and that they are worth the investment.

Protect public notices in newspapers and protect your right to know.

Summer EBT for school-aged children underway

JEREMY C. RUARKCottage Grove Sentinel

Oregon Summer Electronic Benefits Transfer (Summer EBT) is a food benefits program that helps shrink the hunger gap when children are on summer break and don't have easy access to healthy meals at school. Summer EBT provides $120 per eligible child to buy food, according to a release from the Oregon Department of Education (ODE).

"When school doors close for the summer, the need for regular, healthy meals doesn't disappear," ODE Director Dr. Charlene Williams said. In 2024, the summer EBT program bridged a critical gap for thousands of Oregon families, helping to replace those essential 10 meals per child, per week, that they receive when school is in session, Williams added.

"We are proud to continue this partnership with ODHS to not only feed children, but to nurture their potential during crucial developmental months," Williams said. "Our continued commitment ensures that summer can be a season of growth and opportunity for all children, regardless of their economic circumstances."

In 2024, about 362,000 children participated and received $43 million in Summer EBT food benefits their families spent in their local grocery stores, farmers markets, and other places.

"Summer EBT is one more way we can prevent kids from going hungry when school is out. Summer EBT is an evidence-based program proven to reduce child hunger and support healthier diets," Oregon Department of Human Services (DHS) Director. Fariborz Pakseresht said. "Child hunger can have lasting impacts on health and academic achievement. Getting every eligible child connected to Summer EBT will help Oregon's children thrive yearround and as they grow up."

This is the second year of Oregon's Summer EBT program. On May 22, 2025, about 336,000 children received the benefit on an Oregon EBT card. Families should check their EBT card balance at www.ebtedge.com to confirm receipt.

Families who didn't automatically get Summer EBT on May 22, 2025 should check program requirements before applying. Families can check requirements at sebt.oregon.

Behavioral Council launched to address Oregon's workforce crisis

JEREMY C. RUARK Cottage Grove Sentinel

Gov. Tina Kotek has announced the establishment of the Behavioral Health Talent Council to formulate new strategies to address Oregon's behavioral health workforce crisis.

The Council will develop a recommended workforce action plan by January 31, 2026, to expand on the recommendations of the recent Behavioral Health Talent Assessment commissioned by the Higher Education Coordinating Commission (HECC), according to a release from Kotek's office.

A summary of the Behavioral Health Talent Assessment recommendations report states:

"As this is a workforce issue defined by a matrix of challenges, the path to fostering a reinvigorated and sustainable talent pipeline will need to be multifaceted, flexible and responsive, and clear in its directives yet nuanced in its implementation; it will require a long-term commitment to change."

The report also details factors in Oregon's behavioral health staffing crisis.

- Deficiencies in the educational system (e.g., lack of career exposure, lack of BH programs in rural areas, low graduation rates in Oregon bachelor's programs among BH-related majors),
- Burnout resulting from high caseloads and the trauma and emotional exhaustion associated with working under difficult conditions (e.g., high-acuity patients, demand consistently exceeding capacity),
- Low pay and limited advancement opportunities,
- Other systemic issues such as high administrative burdens, lack of resources, complicated career pathways, unmanageable expectations, and bureaucratic inefficiencies.

"Every Oregonian deserves access to quality, affordable healthcare, including mental health and addiction services," Kotek said. "The lack of mental health and addiction professionals in Oregon threatens that vision, particularly for our most vulnerable communities. This council will go deeper into the issue and develop solutions that will strengthen our behavioral health system and improve access to care across the state."

The 22-member Council, chaired by First Lady Aimee Kotek Wilson, brings together experts from diverse backgrounds including direct service providers, healthcare administrators, licensing authorities, educational institutions, and professionals with lived experience navigating pathways to behavioral health careers.

Tree vice-chairs with join Chair Wilson to advance the work of the Council:

- Julie Ibrahim, Chief Executive Officer, New Narrative
- Eli Kinsley, Director of Operations, Bridgeway Community Services
- Robin Sansing, Behavioral Health Initiative Director, Southern Oregon University

"I'm committed to helping Oregonians in every corner of our state access the healthcare they need when they need it," Wilson said. "As a social worker who has worked in the field, I've seen firsthand how workforce shortages affect both providers and patients. Through this council, I'm honored to bring experts together to prioritize practical, actionable solutions that address recruitment challenges, reduce turnover, and build pathways for a more diverse and prepared workforce."

The Council will specifically focus on four overarching goals:

- Addressing the worker shortage identified in the talent assessment report.
- Preventing the loss of workers at high risk of turnover.
- Increasing the cultural competency and diversity of the workforce.
- Improving recruitment and retention for providers serving Oregon Health Plan members.

The Behavioral Health Talent Assessment identified key factors driving the current crisis, including shortages of qualified workers particularly in rural areas, recruitment and retention challenges for organizations serving Oregon Health Plan members, and high turnover rates influenced by inadequate compensation, safety concerns, high caseloads, and insufficient support systems.

The Council will develop recommended action plans based on the assessment and develop detailed strategies, milestones, timelines, and potential legislative and investment proposals necessary for implementation for consideration by the Governor. Council meetings begin May 28, with regular updates to be provided throughout their work.

Ending hunger is more than just providing food

It's about communities and a better economic future

ANDREA WILLIAMS Oregon Capital Chronicle

n recent conversations ⊥ with Oregonians across the state, we heard from a mom — like me, a mother of two young kids — who always packs extra food for her child to take to school, just in case a classmate doesn't have enough to eat.

That's who we are as Oregonians. We look out for each other. But no family should have to rely on the kindness of another parent to keep their child happy and well-fed.

Too many Oregon families are feeling the squeeze. Grocery prices are high — the price of eggs has skyrocketed — housing costs keep rising and too many parents are forced to make impossible choices — like whether to pay rent or put food on the table.

And some of us — our friends, neighbors and loved ones - face even more barriers. Immigrant families, who contribute tens of billions to Oregon's economy, are excluded from food assistance programs like SNAP (formerly known as food stamps) which are meant to support the well-being of families and communities.

These are our coworkers, classmates and community members, and when any of us struggle, we all feel the impact. As one mom, I can't pack enough food to feed all the children in Oregon. But as one Oregon, we can. That's exactly what Food for All Oregonians (SB 611) aims to accomplish.

The proposed bill would help improve access to food assistance for thousands of young kids who are excluded from programs like SNAP just because of their immigration status. If passed, Food for All Oregonians could ensure that all young kids, including immigrants and refugees, can access the food they need to thrive.

Why does Food for All Oregonians matter? Walking into a food pantry is a different experience than stepping into a grocery store or farmers market. Food pantries are essential community resources, offering critical support during times of challenge.

But everyone deserves to be able to choose foods that nourish their families and feel like home, just like anyone else shopping at a grocery store or farmers market.

SNAP also helps support more people than food assistance sites can manage.

This bill would support our kids with greater access to the foods that nourish and warm them, and enable parents to shop with the same freedom as their neighbors.

Anyone who's ever felt the squeeze of the rising cost of living knows that strains on one part of our day-to-day budget, like being able to afford food, impacts everything else.

But imagine an Oregon where parents don't have to choose between paying for child care or groceries. Where local businesses flourish because more families can afford to shop at their stores. Where every local community has what it needs to prosper.

Food access impacts all of us, and by improving access to food assistance, we're not just addressing food insecurity - we're strengthening Oregon's economy and ensuring a brighter future for all

This isn't just a pipe dream: I've seen Oregonians come together when I helped advocate for driver's licenses for all, ensuring that every Oregonian — including immigrants and refugees could access the identification needed to participate in our communities and economy fully.

Victories show what's possible when we come together to promote dignity and economic stability for all. Food for All Oregonians is not just a food security policy - it's an economic security policy.

It ensures that Oregon's kids can lead healthy lives and contribute to thriving communities.

As a mom, I know how important it is for every child to be able to focus on learning, not hunger. For every parent to be able to provide food that feels like home, without worrying about whether they'll have enough to last the week.

The way we solve hunger isn't just by providing food — it's by ensuring people have the resources and autonomy to make choices for themselves. It's about dignity, home, belonging and the opportunity to build a better future.

Our nation is in a time of great uncertainty. Actions from the federal administration are supporting billionaires but creating chaos, job losses, higher prices and economic instability for everyday people. Now is the time for our state to protect Oregonians.

State Parks Day returns June 7

STAFF REPORT

Cottage Grove Sentinel
Every year Oregon State
Parks begins the busier season with a small thank you to its visitors — free camping and day-use parking on State Parks Day.

State Parks Day has been a tradition since 1998 to thank Oregonians for their long-standing support of the state park system. It falls on the first Saturday of June, which is June 7 this year, according to a release from the Oregon Parks and Recreation Department (OPRD)

"We are honored to steward and share these places with Oregonians and all our visitors," Oregon Parks and Recreation Department
Director Lisa Sumption said. "We appreciate their commitment to preserving and maintaining Oregon's special places. We would not have the park system that we have today without their support."

OPRD will waive day-use parking fees at the 25 parks that charge them and camping fees for all tent, RV and horse campsites on June 7. State Parks Day also includes free events at many state parks.

"Park staff have worked hard over the last few months getting parks ready for the busier season and State Parks Day," the release states. "The list of projects includes everything from clearing storm damage, with as many as 180 downed trees near Nehalem, to moving mountains of muck or sand to re-open camp loops. Now parks are ready to welcome visitors for State Parks Day and the busier season."

For a list of events, visit stateparks.oregon. gov. For camping availability, check oregonstateparks.reserveamerica. com or visit first-comefirst served sites: https://stateparks.oregon.gov/index.cfm?do=reserve.first-come.

The OHA issues pre-emptive public warnings following reports of dog illnesses resulting from cyanotoxin exposure. Exposures occur when dogs lick their fur or eat the toxins from floating mats or dried crust along the shore

If, after swimming in a lake or stream, a dog exhibits symptoms such as diarrhea, vomiting, breathing problems, difficulty walking or standing, or loss of appetite, owners should get their pet to a veterinarian as soon as possible.

Open recreational areas where blooms are identified can still be enjoyed for activities such as camping, hiking, biking, picnicking and bird watching.

By being aware of signs of a bloom and taking appropriate precautions to reduce or eliminate exposure, visitors can enjoy water activities such as canoeing, boating and fishing, as long as boat speeds do not create excessive water spray, and fish are cleaned appropriately, the advisory states.

monitored for blooms and toxins, so the OHA said it's important for people to become familiar with the signs of a bloom by visiting OHA's CyanoHAB website at http://www.healthoregon.org/hab.

Those who are unsure should follow OHA's guidance of "When in doubt, stay out."

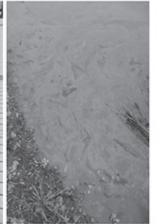

For health information or to report an illness, contact OHA at 971-673-0440, or visit CyanoHAB website.

South Lane Freedom Keepers placed these large American flags along the Saginaw overpass along I-5 during Memorial Day to honor U.S. military members, veterans, and those lost in conflict.

Honoring armed forces, veterans, those lost in conflict

CINDY WEELDREYER JEREMY C. RUARK Cottage Grove Sentinel

Local folks gathered along the Saginaw overpass during Memorial Day, May 26, displaying large American flags from the structure over Interstate 5 just north of Cottage Grove.

Organizers, South Lane Freedom Keepers, said the event was to show their support for the United States Armed Forces, veterans, and to remember those military men and women lost in conflicts.

A similar ceremony was conducted at the Cottage Grove Armory and at Cottage Grove's Veterans Park.

Members of the American Legion and the Veterans of Foreign Wars posts organized the two-location ceremony.

Inside the Armory's drill hall, attendees placed their hands over their hearts, as others formally saluted, the passing American flag carried in by local Scouts to the mournfully solemn tune played by Eugene Bagpiper David Parkhurst. Cyra Conforth gave a moving rendition of the national anthem. American Legion Chaplain Bryan Ducker offered an opening and closing prayer.

Keynote Speaker Captain Patrick Taylor, a former Marine helicopter pilot, encouraged those gathered to teach today's youth how significant the United States Constitution was to those who died to protect it for the benefit of future generations of Americans.

"Today, we give thanks to those who didn't come back and to those who served and passed along the way. Memorial Day is their celebration," Taylor said. "We come from a tradition of warriors and servants. Teach the youth what it costs to have a country. We are all Americans – even the ones who don't understand that. Today's youth need to realize our country can be lost if we don't remember our heroes. They need to be encouraged to not squander (their heritage) because it is a gift."

As VFW Member Patti Hunt read the names of 57 local veterans who died since last year's ceremony, Stephanie Rogers, a member of the VFW Auxiliary and American Legion, took red and white roses from one vase and put them in another as American Legion Commander Mike Flint rang a bell. Among the 57 names were the names of 13 Grovers who were killed in action in the Vietnam War. A small table nearby was symbolically set to remember and honor prisoners of war (POWs) and those still missing in action (MIAs).

Following a 21-gun salute outside, Larry Bottemiller, a local trumpeter, played Taps as the Scouts retrieved the American and State of Oregon flags and concluded the first part of the commemorative events.

Participants regrouped at Veterans Park, on the corner of Main and River Road, to drop a red, white and blue ceremonial wreath into the Coast Fork of the Willamette River from the Main Street bridge.

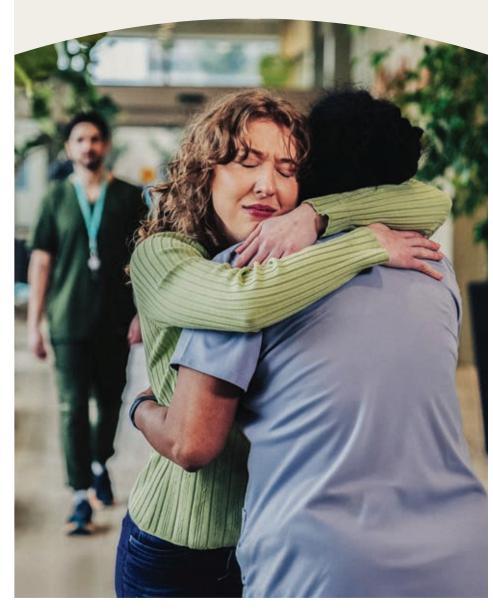

Army Specialist SP-5
Linda Ducker had the honor of dropping the wreath into the water as participants watched it slowly float away.
An honor guard of veterans provided a 21-gun salute that was followed by Parkhurst playing Amazing Grace and Bottemiller playing Taps as the finale to the day's events.

Hope. Healing. Peace.

Devoted to your care.
