Each day without state funding means approximately 247 additional DV victims and their children do not receive the lifesaving supports they need. By mid-September, that means more than 18,000 victims will not get the help they need and deserve. In the last 10 years, more than 1,500 people in Pennsylvania died from domestic violence, including children, law enforcement, and innocent bystanders - how many more people must die before Pennsylvania passes a state budget? How much longer must people stay trapped in unsafe homes and relationships?
