Michael Strahan hosts "The $100,000 Pyramid"

Play on: Game time continues on ABC as two favorites return

Let the games begin ... again.

ABC has gone very heavy on primetime contests in recent summers, many of them updates of shows that were popular in earlier incarnations. Already, such series as "Press Your Luck," "The Chase," "Generation Gap" and "Claim to Fame" have made their returns for these warm-weather months.

That parade of participants and prizes continues as "Celebrity Family Feud" and "The $100,000 Pyramid" begin new rounds on ABC Sunday, July 9. Host Steve Harvey starts his tenth season of pitting teams of stars and their relatives or work colleagues against each other on "Celebrity Family Feud," while Michael Strahan presides over Season 7 of the latest "Pyramid" incarnation, in which personalities and their teammates use words and phrases to guess categories (or vice versa) to get to the winner's circle and a shot or two at big money.

Early Season 10 players on "Celebrity Family Feud" include Gayle King ("CBS Mornings"), Sophia Bush Hughes ("One Tree Hill") and cast members of Showtime's "Yellowjackets." Season 9 saw contests between the casts of "Abbott Elementary" and "Hacks," stars of "Bel-Air" and the revival of "Saved by the Bell," Kristin Chenoweth ("Schmigadoon!") and Kathy Najimy ("Hocus Pocus," 1993), and Kal Penn ("Designated Survivor") and Erika Christensen (before she returned to ABC full-time as a star of the series "Will Trent"). Music's Boyz II Men and the hosts of CBS' daytime show "The Talk" also got chances for "Feud"-ing last season.

"Celebrity Family Feud" was tried earlier, with "Today's" Al Roker guiding it during a brief NBC run in the summer of 2008. ABC actually was the home network of the original "Family Feud" when Richard Dawson hosted it from 1976 to 1985, with several others filling that role since its current syndication run began in 1999. Harvey became the host in 2010, and its rise in ratings not only have kept him there since, it paved the way for another run at the "Celebrity" spinoff.

Though Harvey has done other programs including the talk show "Steve" and ABC's current "Judge Steve Harvey" – plus his sitcom "The Steve Harvey Show," he has enjoyed particular success with "Celebrity Family Feud" and its syndicated weekday parent "Family Feud," of which he became the host in 2010. He expresses gratitude for his television career overall, which took him out of the realm of stand-up comedy and has brought him a wide and steady audience.

"It turned out to be the best thing that happened to me," Harvey reflects. "If I had tried to continue as a stand-up, there's no way I could maintain the TV career because of the political correctness that has killed comedy. Every joke you tell now, it hurts somebody's feelings.

Catch the newest seasons of "Celebrity Family Feud" and "The $100,000 Pyramid" when they begin new rounds Sunday, July 9, on ABC.

'Sabrina' has quiet charms in movie remake

BY JAY BOBBIN

If it's a question of which version of "Sabrina" is the more classic, the 1954 original or the 1995 remake, there's little doubt which one wins.

With that being said, though, director Sydney Pollack's later version of the earlier Billy Wilder work still has its charms ... despite the fact that critics largely dismissed it during its theatrical run. Cinemax presents it Thursday, July 13, and it remains a genuinely grown-up comedy that produces subtle smiles rather than giant belly-laughs. And that's just fine.

Harrison Ford and (in his first major movie role) Greg Kinnear assume Humphrey Bogart and William Holden's 1950s parts as wealthy, dissimilar Long Island, N.Y., brothers surprised to find they have something in common: affection for their chauffeur's daughter, Sabrina (Julia Ormond, inheriting one of Audrey Hepburn's defining characters). It takes the siblings a while to get there, though. The shy Sabrina has a massive crush on Kinnear's oblivious playboy David, while Ford's Linus is a workaholic with little time for anything but the next business deal he can score.

Things change significantly, though, when Sabrina returns from a stay in Paris with a major makeover. Now engaged to a doctor (Lauren Holly) whose industrialist father (Richard Crenna) happens to be one of Linus' professional targets, David develops even colder feet than he had about marriage when he gets a gander at the "new" Sabrina – prompting Linus to step in and try to ensure that both the wedding and his own transaction aren't thwarted. In the process, he develops feelings for Sabrina, surprising many people, including himself.

Ford and Ormond don't exactly catch fire in the rapport department in "Sabrina," which may have much to do with Ford's intentionally reserved performance, but Kinnear and Ormond are more successful together. Coming from a TV-talk-show-hosting career at the time, Kinnear makes a highly impressive film debut, engagingly capturing the boyish ways of an alter ego who should have outgrown them.

The newer "Sabrina" doesn't supersede the first one, but it exists nicely on its own level with its own pleasures. That's acceptable, though that might not be said much, in a culture that often insists on declaring one version of something the better one.

Audrey Hepburn and Humphrey Bogart in "Sabrina"

“All The Queen’s Men - Season 1”

The first season of this BET+ original drama series from Tyler Perry joins the Prime Video lineup. Marilyn “Madam” DeVille (Eva Marcille) is at the top of her game in the Atlanta nightclub industry, and she won’t let anyone stand in her way as she rules a crew of male exotic dancers. But, she soon discovers that more money does mean more problems. Skyh Black, Oshea Russell, Candace Maxwell, Racquel Palmer and Michael Bolwaire also star.

“Happy Days - Seasons 1-3”

Set in 1950s and 1960s Milwaukee, this hit sitcom tells the story of the Cunningham family — father Howard (Tom Bosley), mother Marion (Marion Ross), son Richie (Ron Howard) and daughter Joanie (Erin Moran) — through a look at their everyday lives. Henry Winkler, Anson Williams, Don Most and Al Molinaro also star.

“Movie: Vice”

This biographical comedy drama tells the story of Dick Cheney (Christian Bale), an unassuming bureaucratic Washington insider, who quietly wielded immense power as Vice President to George W. Bush (Sam Rockwell), reshaping the country and the world. Amy Adams, Steve Carell, Alison Pill, Eddie Marsan and Lily Rabe also star.

“The Summer I Turned Pretty - Season 2”

Jenny Han’s young adult romance novel trilogy makes its way back to Prime Video for another summer of romance. Every summer, Belly (new talent Lola Tung) counts down the days until she can return to Cousins Beach for another adventure. But this year, she’s left wondering if summer will ever feel the same again.
