Waking the dead: Benoit Blanc returns in third 'Knives Out Mystery'

'A Complete Unknown' traces Bob Dylan's roots

Bob Dylan has long been one of the most enigmatic figures in modern music, and "A Complete Unknown" does justice to his talent and his mystery.

FXM presents the 2024 drama on Monday, Dec. 15, and it reaffirms the effectiveness of director and co-screenwriter James Mangold — who also traced the personal and professional ties of Johnny Cash and June Carter Cash in "Walk the Line" (2005) — in structuring such a biography very creatively while it also hits the essential factual notes about its subject.

Elle Fanning and Timothée Chalamet in "A Complete Unknown"

"A Complete Unknown" also serves as a testament to the acting skills of Timothee Chalamet, who won several honors (including a Screen Actors Guild Award) and earned an Oscar nomination for successfully mirroring Dylan physically and behaviorally. He also performed many of the singer-songwriter's tunes from the early 1960s himself, also playing the instruments as the story recalls how Dylan started his career, struggling to stay true to his artistic vision while dealing with industry professionals who had their own ideas about positioning him for the public.

As anyone even slightly familiar with his music knows, Dylan was hugely concerned with social issues, factoring them into his work at a time when the charts were dominated by more generally appealing songs and albums. "Blowin'

The avid filmgoer or attentive pop culture aficionado has likely noticed a trending return toward gothic sensibilities over the past year or so. Sure, Robert Eggers' "Nosferatu" (2024) and Guillermo Del Toro's "Frankenstein" (2025) are firmly planted in the horror genre, but that doesn't mean the gothic vibes need to stay sequestered with the monstrous forever. Rian Johnson ("Poker Face"), for one, had other plans, and now the newly repopularized aesthetic has expanded into the realm of whodunnit comedy.

"Wake Up Dead Man: A Knives Out Mystery" is in select theaters now and makes its worldwide streaming premiere Friday, Dec. 12, on Netflix.

The third film in Johnson's Knives Out franchise, featuring suave Southern detective Benoit Blanc (Daniel Craig, "Casino Royale," 2006), "Wake Up Dead Man" initially premiered at the Toronto International Film Festival this past September. Then described as "a seemingly impossible locked-room scenario involving a corpse" that remains "as strong, inventive and entertaining as ever," Johnson trades in the sun-soaked luxury of the Grecian mansion in "Glass Onion" (2022) for the grim-yet-beautiful artistry of a Gothic-era church in soggy Upstate New York, a setting befitting of the themes at the film's core.

"Themes of guilt, mystery, morality and fallible humanity all feel right at home in a church, with a man of God in the center of the mix," Johnson explains in an interview for Netflix's Tudum. "I have strong feelings about faith: both my own personal experience and how it intersects with our country's cultural and civic life, and the ways that intersection touches all of us differently. So it felt like rich ground for a good story."

And that story, per the trailer, goes a little something like this: "A man gives a sermon. He then, in plain sight of everyone, walks into a sealed concrete box, and 30 seconds later, that man is lying dead. A classic impossible crime."

At the heart of the crime is, of course, the victim: Mons. Jefferson Wicks, played by "Weapons" (2025) and "Avengers: Endgame" (2019) star Josh Brolin. Upon the discovery of the priest's body, the film series' dapper Det. Blanc (this time with a luscious mane of hair) is called in to solve the unlikely crime. As always, Blanc is tasked with questioning a small group of would-be witnesses, any one of whom could be the killer.

Mila Kunis ("Black Swan," 2010) also stars as small-town New York police chief Geraldine Scott.

"We've been very lucky with each of these movies to have gathered some of my favorite actors on the planet, and that's absolutely the case here," Johnson reported to Tudum.

"They're also all lovely folks who get along," the writer-director noted, adding, "When you're making an ensemble movie like this, I think that's key."

BY JAY BOBBIN

in the Wind," "Like a Rolling Stone" and "The Times They Are A-Changin'" were among the classics that Dylan contributed to popular culture while they also crystallized thoughts and emotions he was experiencing then.

Relationships that Dylan had also were key to his creative efforts. Elle Fanning plays a longtime girlfriend who penetrated his secretive manner and convinced him to be loyal to his artistry, and Monica Barbaro ("Top Gun: Maverick," 2022) — also an Oscar nominee for this film, doing her own singing as well — portrays fellow music icon Joan Baez, a strong supporter of Dylan as he tries to square his fame with his intentions.

Cash also factors in here, as portrayed by Boyd Holbrook. Other real-life music figures portrayed include Woody Guthrie (by Scoot McNairy), Al Kooper (by Charlie Tahan), and Peter, Paul and Mary's Peter Yarrow and Paul Stookey (Nick Pupo, Stephen Carter Carlsen).

“Goodbye June” (Netflix — Dec. 24, Movie Premiere)

Taking place just before Christmas, Kate Winslet’s directorial debut follows a family as an unexpected turn in their mother’s (Helen Mirren) health thrusts four adult siblings and their exasperating father (Timothy Spall) into chaos as they navigate messy family dynamics in the face of potential loss. But their quick-witted mother, June, orchestrates her decline on her own terms — with biting humor, blunt honesty and a lot of love. Winslet, Andrea Riseborough, Johnny Flynn and Toni Collette also star.
