NEWSPAPERS IN EDUCATION

The newspaper is a valuable tool for reinforcing and understanding the important subjects taught in today's schools, from reading and language arts to social studies, math and science. From current events that help kids see the world to local issues that really hit home, the newspaper serves to engage, inspire and teach kids both in and out of the classroom.

Every Flavor Is Packed WITH POISON

Various toxic chemical substances and ultrafine particles have been identified in e-cigarettes and their byproducts, according to the National Institutes of Health. While the chemicals found in e-cigarettes vary, here's a taste: acetone, also found in nail polish remover; acrolein, also found in weed killer; diethylene glycol, also found in antifreeze; benzene, also found in car exhaust; and metal particles such as nickel, lead, tin and aluminum.
