Vivian and Timothy Olyphant in "Justified: City Primeval"

A familiar path: 'Justified' returns to FX with 'City Primeval' sequel

To those who enjoyed the initial drama, a sequel to it is likely to seem quite "Justified."

Timothy Olyphant returns in the further adventures of lawman Raylan Givens as the FX series "Justified: City Primeval" debuts with the first two of its eight episodes Tuesday, July 18. Set 15 years after "Justified" ended, the saga adapts another story by Elmore Leonard ("City Primeval: High Noon in Detroit") and newly factors Givens into it, with the U.S. marshal living in Miami after his time in Kentucky.

A situation that develops in Florida leads him to Detroit and a vicious felon known as the Oklahoma Wildman (played by Boyd Holbrook, previously of "Narcos"), whose lawyer (Aunjanue Ellis) has her own reasons for wanting to help her client elude the scales of justice.

With Olyphant also an executive producer of the show along with author Leonard's estate, "Justified: City Primeval" includes Adelaide Clemens ("Rectify"), Vondie Curtis-Hall ("The Recruit"), Marin Ireland ("Hell or High Water," 2016), double Tony Award winner Norbert Leo Butz ("The Girl From Plainville") and Vivian Olyphant — the star's daughter, who plays Givens' offspring — among additional cast members. They're new to the "Justified" world, as is actress Ellis, who felt she couldn't go wrong with material that originally came from the mind of Leonard.

"I just had a general familiarity with 'Justified,'" she says. "I knew it was an Elmore Leonard adaptation, and I was interested in that because I'm a big reader. Then, when I started working on this, I watched (the original show) and got to see Tim being 'that guy.' It was one of those things where you feel a character was written for somebody, even if the author did not have that person in mind.

"There was a singer named Phyllis Hyman, and Duke Ellington's granddaughter says that she believes he wrote his songs for Phyllis Hyman even before she was born," Ellis explains. "There also are acting roles like that, and I just feel that Tim is the person who was meant to walk in these boots."

Much of the appeal for Ellis in playing attorney Carolyn Wilder in "Justified: City Primeval" came from what she defines as "taking that 'Justified' world and putting it inside Detroit, and seeing those worlds collide. (Givens) certainly is a fish out of water there, and I love how Carolyn is very confrontational with him. She says, 'I know how you've been doing things, but you can't do them here ... not in my town, and not with me.'"

Still, there's room for Carolyn to have her own development arc. "There's the world of justice and the world of law, and sometimes, those don't meet," Ellis reasons. "I think Carolyn is one of those people who feel that justice isn't necessarily found in a courthouse or a legislative building. You have to find it where you can find it, and I think that's what makes her and Raylan kindred spirits. She does things that are necessary, but she still has to find her footing and be true to herself."

movie review

Daniel Craig's James Bond battles "Spectre"

BY JAY BOBBIN

Arguably the best thing about "Spectre" is that Daniel Craig is still James Bond in it.

On the other side of that coin, perhaps the worst thing about the 2015 adventure is that it spends a little too much time looking backward, rather than forward.

Longtime Bond fans may be a little too critical of these movies, but too often, "Spectre" — which Freeform shows Thursday, July 20 — goes by the numbers: a vicious train fight here (see "From Russia With Love"), an Aston-Martin car there (check "Goldfinger"). Still, great pleasure remains in seeing Craig embody Bond for what was the next-to-last time, pursuing the enemy organization that the star's rebooted Agent 007 encounters.

It's run by Christoph Waltz's character, who shares a past with Bond that has made them brothers of sorts. Ultimately, though, the central bad guy turns out to be someone the 007 faithful have known very well for a long time. The spoiler alert on that has long sailed, but we'll hold to it for those who still may not know the secret.

The main women with whom Bond gets involved in "Spectre" have ties to his enemies: Lea Seydoux (who would return in Craig's farewell to the series, "No Time to Die") plays the daughter of his reappearing foe Mr. White (Jesper Christensen) and is the main love interest, and Monica Bellucci — notably a more mature fling for our hero — plays, albeit briefly, a criminal's widow.

And it's a delight that such then-new series regulars as Ralph Fiennes and Ben Whishaw (alias M and Q, respectively) have sufficient screen time. Sadly, however, Naomie Harris gets less to do than in "Skyfall" as the resourceful Money-penny.

Director Sam Mendes also returned from "Skyfall," and he again furnishes solid action sequences starting with a whopper in and above Mexico City. A frantic car chase through the (surprisingly) empty streets of Rome, pitting Bond against a vicious and silent killer (Dave Bautista), is a highlight as well. Kudos, too, to Thomas Newman for another excellent music score that partially draws upon past Bond themes, some of them his own from the preceding film. (The Sam Smith-performed song "Writing's on the Wall" won an Oscar.) In fact, there are quite a few references overall to earlier 007 capers.

“Movie: SAS Red Notice”

Tom Buckingham (Sam Heughan), a special forces operator, is travelling from London to Paris to propose to his girlfriend, Dr. Sophie Hart (Hannah John-Kamen). When their train is deep inside the Channel Tunnel, Grace Lewis (Ruby Rose) and her team of heavily armed war criminals seize the train and hold hundreds of passengers hostage. Unarmed and cut off from his counter terror team, Tom is the only hope that Sophie and the other passengers have to make it out alive. Based on the best-selling novel by former SAS operator Andy McNab.

“Twilight: The Complete Saga”

Based on the books by Stephenie Meyer, this series of five fantasy films follows the epic love story of human Bella Swan (Kristen Stewart) and vampire Edward Cullen (Robert Pattinson). Set in the small town of Forks, Washington, the film series also stars Taylor Lautner, Ashley Greene, Nikki Reed, Kellan Lutz, Anna Kendrick, Peter Facinelli and Billy Burke.

“Movie: Till”

This biographical drama film tells the very real story of Mamie Till-Mobley, following her relentless pursuit of justice in honor of her late son, Emmett Till. In this retelling of her “poignant journey of grief turned to action” (per MGM Studios), Danielle Deadwyler portrays Mamie Till-Mobley as she works to expose the racism that prompted her son’s murder, fighting to bring all those involved to justice. The film also focuses on her son, Emmett (portrayed by Jalyn Hall), taking the time to show what he was like as a youth and allowing viewers a glimpse into the boy’s all-too-short life.

“Almost Paradise: Season 2”

When hypertension forces DEA agent Alex Walker (Christian Kane) into early retirement, he moves to a small tropical island in the Philippines in this Amazon Freevee series. Despite his best efforts to transition from Jason Bourne to Jimmy Buffett, his friends in the local police pull him back into a world of dangerous people and deadly situations. But the problem is - he likes it. Samantha Richelle and Arthur Acuna also star.
