Summer of funny: Comedy acts compete in NBC's 'Bring the Funny'

By Kyla Brewer
TV Media

After months of hard-hitting dramas dominating the airwaves, the sunny days of summer give way to lighthearted prime-time fare, and one network is about to bring a whole lot of laughs to TV viewers with its new comedy competition series.

Performers set out to prove they've got what it takes to make it in the cutthroat world of comedy in the premiere of "Bring the Funny," airing Tuesday, July 9, on NBC. Comedian Amanda Seales ("Insecure") hosts as comedy acts of all sorts take the stage in the hopes of winning the life-altering $250,000 grand prize and the once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to perform at the iconic Just for Laughs comedy festival.

While there have been other comedy competition series featuring standup comics, "Bring the Funny" goes beyond standup to feature a variety of comedy styles. In addition to standup comedy performers, the show shines a spotlight on sketch comedy troupes, musical comedy acts, magicians, puppeteers, vaudeville performers, YouTubers and more.

In a February article by the Hollywood Reporter, NBC executive Meredith Ahr explained why the new competition series includes more than just standup comedy.

"Great comedians know how to make us laugh while serving as a reflection of the times, and we are excited to embrace and support the myriad of ways funny people bring us levity and humor today," Ahr said.

Like many other reality TV competition series, the show features a panel of judges who will weigh in on the acts after they've performed. "Bring the Funny's" judges include "Saturday Night Live's" Kenan Thompson, who holds the record as the legendary sketch comedy show's longest-serving cast member, having joined the cast back in 2003. His extensive experience in sketch comedy makes him an excellent candidate to determine what's funny.

Standup comedian, author and TV personality Jeff Foxworthy ("The Jeff Foxworthy Show") also sits on the judging panel. Famous for his "you might be a redneck if" one-liners, he's well versed in how to get laughs out of an audience. In fact, as a former Just for Laughs performer, he has first-hand insight into what it takes to keep audiences engaged.

The third member of the judging panel is model, author and activist Chrissy Teigen ("Lip Sync Battle"). Described as a "cultural tastemaker" in an official news release about the new show, Teigan has her finger on the pulse of pop culture.

Kenan Thompson is a judge in "Bring the Funny"

Each of the judges brings a unique perspective to the panel, but their job won't be easy. Producers have lined up an eclectic mix of 40 different comedy acts to vie for the coveted prize.

These hopefuls, along with many more, will compete in four rounds of competition in the summer series. The fun kicks off with an Open Mic round, followed by a Comedy Clash and then a Showcase. In the end, American TV viewers will get to vote for their favorite act in the live Finale. The winner will walk away with the $250,000 prize package and a gig at the 2020 Just for Laughs Festival. The festival has featured some of the biggest names in comedy since its inception in 1983, and could lead to even more success for the "Bring the Funny" champ.

NBC is no stranger to comedy competitions. The network was the home of the standup comedy talent search competition "Last Comic Standing," which spanned nine seasons off and on between 2003 and 2015. Over the course of its run, the show featured then up-and-coming comedians such as Amy Schumer ("Inside Amy Schumer"), Tig Notaro ("Tig Notaro: Boyish Girl Interrupted"), Gabriel Iglesias ("Gabriel Iglesias: I'm Not Fat, I'm Fluffy") and Nikki Glaser ("Not Safe with Nikki Glaser"). Interestingly, none of these now prominent comedians won their seasons.

Pet Sematary

Louis (Clarke), a doctor from Boston, moves to a small town in Maine with his wife and two children. Soon after they arrive, strange things begin to happen, and the family is warned multiple times not to venture too far into the woods. When their beloved cat is struck and killed by a truck, Louis buries it behind a small cemetery in the woods, and is shocked when the cat returns alive the next day. But the cat is different, more aggressive, evil. Another tragedy befalls the family, and Louis is faced with a terrible choice that will change everything. This is the second film adaptation of Stephen King's popular horror story.

Directors: Kevin Kölsch, Dennis Widmyer. Stars: Jason Clarke, Amy Seimetz, John Lithgow, Jeté Laurence. 2019. 101 min. Horror.

SLYLOCK FOX and COMICS FOR KIDS

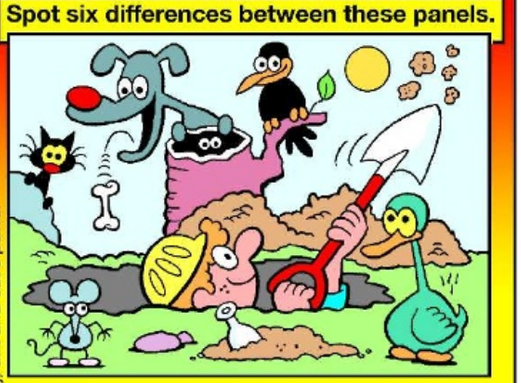

BY BOB WEBER JR.

One of these bad birds snatched a lunch basket from the Bunnys' beach blanket. The thief did not leave any footprints in the sand to analyze for evidence. Which suspect does Slylock Fox think is guilty?

Solution -- Since the crow is the only suspect that can fly, Slylock thinks he swooped from the air, snatched the lunch basket, and flapped away without ever walking on the sand.

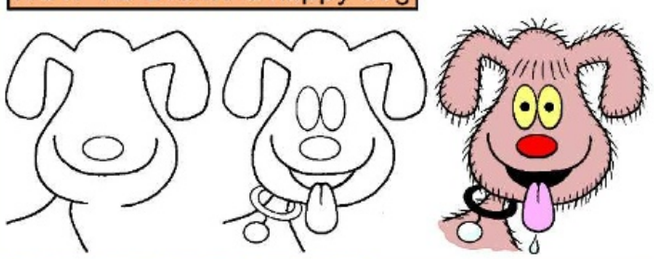

Spot six differences between these panels.

Answer -- Leaf, stone, freckles, duck's wing, dirt and cat's paws.

hollywood Q&A

Q: In "A League of Their Own," one of the players on the yellow team looks very familiar. I think she was No. 3. Is she anyone of note?

A: Téa Leoni is pretty notable, though no one was noting her at the time — her character in the 1992 sports-movie classic "A League of Their Own" didn't even have a name.

Despite that, it wasn't Leoni's first acting role. Her most notable prior turn was a brief run in the short-lived (by soap standards) daytime drama "Santa Barbara," playing a character named Lisa DiNapoli for a few episodes in 1989.

After that there was another unnamed bit role in the 1991 film "The Switch," then "A League of Their Own."

We talk about the small size of that role, but someone must have noticed it, because her star started to rise pretty quickly after that.

It started with playing sizable female roles in a couple of movies that didn't spend a lot of time on their female characters — "Wyatt Earp" (1994) and "Bad Boys" (1995) — a little ironic considering she got them in part thanks to her place in a feminist film classic.

In 1998 she had an even bigger role in the blockbuster sci-fi hit "Deep Impact," and her fame was secured.

The roles continued to get bigger from there, leading to her current gig as the titular secretary of state in CBS's hit drama "Madam Secretary," where she's been for five seasons (the upcoming sixth season will be its last, though).

Q: I vaguely remember an action movie starring the bad guy from the Karate Kid movies, but I can't remember anything else about it. Can you help?

A: "Steele Justice" was released in 1987 and starred Martin Kove as John Steele, an ex-cop and Vietnam vet who is determined to bring down a former general in the South Vietnamese army who is now a rich and powerful drug lord.

If that sounds like just about every other '80s action story to you, you're in good company. When it was released, the great New York Times film critic Janet Maslin accused writer/director Robert Boris of trying "to meld 'Rambo' with 'Miami Vice,' throwing in a touch of the Chippendale's calendar." She further said that the film "isn't designed as a comedy, but it does earn high marks for inadvertent humor."

Kove was in the midst of his success as Kreese, a.k.a. the bad-guy sensei, in the popular Karate Kid films at the time. He exuded tough-guy charisma in those, and studios were crying out for tough guys, so it seemed natural to give him a movie of his own.

Giving him such a "Rambo"-ish movie was a bit surprising, though, considering he played a bad guy in 1985's "Rambo: First Blood Part II" as well.

But he got it. He didn't do much with it, though — "Steele Justice" was a flop at the box office and did not get a sequel.

Q: Is "Lucifer" coming back for another season? I'm really into that show.

A: "Lucifer" has been renewed for a fifth season, but it will be its last.

There's no word on when the fifth season will air, but the fourth only came out in May, so it could be a while.

Back on the bright side, this news means the show will get a satisfying (or at least conclusive) ending. "We're thrilled that 'Lucifer' fans around the world have embraced this series on Netflix, and we can't wait to give them the big finish they've all been waiting for," said the official statement announcing the renewal/cancellation.

The statement is referring to the fact that the show was rescued by Netflix after Fox canceled it at the end of its third season.

Star Tom Ellis, who plays the titular Lucifer, who has decided to vacate the underworld and walk among humans in Los Angeles, was all over Twitter offering reactions to the news. When Netflix tweeted the announcement, it came with a short video of Ellis cheering and then saying, "I'll see you in hell!"
