Mojave Gunnery Range "C" Formerly Used Defense Site Restoration Advisory Board

The Mojave Gunnery Range "C" Formerly Used Defense Site (FUDS) is located near California City, California. Today, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers (USACE) continues to investigate and monitor the site under the Defense Environmental Restoration Program for hazards, such as military munitions, that may remain from previous military activities.

The Department of Defense encourages community involvement in the remediation process. A Restoration Advisory Board (RAB) is one method USACE may use to facilitate public participation at FUDS. RABs provide a collaborative forum for landowners, community members, government agencies, and other interested parties to discuss and identify the most efficient and productive means to remediate the area. Board members are asked to meet regularly to review and comment on technical documents and plans relating to the ongoing investigation and monitoring and remediation activities. They will also be expected to serve as liaisons with the community. More information about RABs is available at <https://denix.osd.mil/rab/home/unassigned/rab-rule-handbook/>.

USACE Sacramento District, is evaluating the community's interest in establishing a RAB for the Mojave Gunnery Range "C" FUDS. Community members may provide comments about interest in establishing a RAB no later than no later than June 20th, 2025. Comments, inquiries, or questions should be submitted to FUDS_SPK@usace.army.mil.
