For the week of February 4 - 10, 2018

HBO's "Crashing" is currently enjoying its sophomore season, with a new episode airing Sunday, Feb. 4. Writer, creator and star Pete Holmes ("Ugly Americans") has drawn humor from some of his deepest memories and most personal life moments. He plays a fictionalized version of himself in the dark comedy — a character who struggles with the realities of adulthood, such as the disollution of his marriage and the difficulties of carving out a place for himself in the comedy world.

HBO's 'Crashing' explores faith

By Sarah Passingham

TV Media

ike many comedians, Pete Holmes ("Ugly Americans"), writer, creator and star of HBO's "Crashing," has drawn humor from some of his deepest memories and most personal life moments. The concept of the series was formed from Holmes' experiences as he rededicated himself to the pursuit of a standup comedy career. The comedy is currently in its sophomore season, with a new episode airing Sunday, Feb. 4, on HBO.

The show's lead — also named Pete, and played by Holmes himself — struggles with the realities of adulthood, such as the dissolution of his marriage to Jess (Lauren Lapkus, "Orange Is the New Black"), questioning his faith, and reimagining his dreams when confronted with the difficulties of carving out a place for himself in the comedy world.

As the series is semi-autobiographical, many of Holmes' comedy contemporaries appear as themselves in the show, including Artie Lange ("The Artie Lange Show"), T.J. Miller ("Silicon Valley"), Hannibal Buress ("Broad City") and Sarah Silverman ("I Love You, America"). Other comedians, such as Jermaine Fowler ("Superior Donuts") and Aparna Nancherla ("Inside Amy Shumer"), feature as well, albeit in more fictional roles.

This is not the first endeavor for which Holmes has combined his personal and professional lives for compelling content. He has long been the host of the popular podcast "You Made It Weird," in which he welcomes friends, guests and other comedians into conversations that explore complex ideas. Between the podcast, the confessional nature of standup comedy and the series inspired by events from his own life, Holmes has honed his skill of oversharing until it becomes art.

Holmes attended Gordon College, an Evangelical Christian college in Massachusetts, and his faith has been challenged and broadened since those formative years. Following his upbringing in Christianity, Holmes explored Buddhism as an adult, and he brings his knowledge of and experience with faith with him in his everyday life, including in his creative projects. As Holmes told the New York Times, spirituality is "not just a Sunday-only thing for me. It's something I'm constantly reading and thinking about." So, naturally, it's a driving force of the plot of "Crashing." Confronting divorce and a new career pushes Pete to question what his faith means to him, and he is not the only character in the show who contemplates his spirituality.

Jermaine Fowler in "Crashing"

Lange, playing himself in the finale of the first season, engages in a discussion about the place of spirituality in a world where people seek logical meaning for life's events. Artie comes out of the conversation giving himself a sort of baptism as a new believer. For Lange, getting out of New Jersey and finding a home in New York City as a successful standup comedian was its own spiritual experience. Speaking to Exclaim! about leaving his home state, he said he "became more enlightened than my friends by going into show business." The passion that Lange has for comedy is felt by audiences and critics, as his turn playing a fictional version of himself in "Crashing" has gifted him with the most well-received performance of his career.

Holmes shared with Paste magazine that in creating "Crashing" as a dark comedy, he felt that he was "playing catchup with other great artists like Lena Dunham and Ricky Gervais." It is not a surprise then that Judd Apatow, who famously executive produced "Girls" for HBO, would settle into the same role for "Crashing." Holmes shared with The Hollywood Reporter that what inspired him to need Apatow as a mentor was the "serious heart and warmth" he felt the characters of "Girls" had and which he wanted in the characters of his own show.

What seems like a perfect fit now almost wasn't. When Holmes pitched the concept of "Crashing" to Apatow, the latter told Vulture he felt it was "too sad." Holmes, however, was motivated and certain about the show, and after writing a series of episodes, the partnership with Apatow became a match made in heaven, and they got to work. The series leans into the adulthood malaise that Apatow is known for producing not only in his television series, but in his film career as well. In "Funny People" (2009), a comedian deals with a terminal illness with signature Apatow humility as he develops a quick friendship with a green comic. So, while it is a story told many times before, it may be told best with "Crashing," as Holmes and Apatow have practiced and are at their best.

"Crashing" upends some stereotypes that many autobiographical comedies lean on, and the goodness of Pete is what steers the show into plots less traveled. While comedians are often portrayed as bad people making bad decisions, for "Crashing," Holmes created Pete from a different cloth. He is a thoughtful, if at times naive person whose decency is often what causes problems for him, as well as some of the most enjoyable tension. A key factor in what makes "Crashing" work is the opposing natures of the fictional versions of Holmes and Lange. Lange is the gruff veteran comic to Pete's innocent newcomer, and the two explore parallel problems questioning faith and entertainment. Centering the story from Pete's point of view is what makes "Crashing" a fresh take on a comic's origin story.

Catch a new episode of "Crashing," airing Sunday, Feb. 4, on HBO.

The Wall

3 8:00 p.m.

Two new contestants take on the giant wall in this new episode, hoping that the balls will bring them big money. This week, it's pharmacist Brooke and her father Kirk taking a chance and risking some big cash prizes. Comedian Chris Hardwick hosts.

Lucifer

23 8:00 p.m.

Lucifer (Tom Ellis) and Chloe (Lauren German) look into the murder of a diamond thief in this new episode, but their investigation points to one of Ella's (Aimee Garcia) brothers as a possible perpetrator, leading Ella to recruit an unlikely ally.

Chris Hardwick hosts "The Wall"

Supergirl

63 8:00 p.m.

When the DEO captures a Worldkiller known as Purity (Krys Marshall), Supergirl (Melissa Benoist) and Alex (Chyler Leigh) employ different interrogation tactics. Meanwhile, J'onn (David Harewood) and the others try to fix the Legion ship.

Westworld

нво 9:30 p.m.

Anthony Hopkins and Ed Harris lead the cast of this thriller, which is based on the 1973 film of the same name by Michael Crichton. This rebroadcast takes viewers to a futuristic fantasy theme park that features humanoid robots, or "hosts."

Food Network weekend celebrates all things chocolate

Trisha Yearwood hosts "Trisha's Southern Kitchen"

Bv Andrew Warren

alentine's Day is fast approaching, and whether or not you're the romantic type (guilty!), there's something other than love in the air that anyone can look forward to: all the chocolate.

Milk, white, dark — whatever your chocolate preference — Food Network is sure to feature it during its themed Chocolate Weekend Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 10-11. Several daytime series are shining the spotlight on the amazing ingredient, with each host putting his or her own special spin on tasty things to do with this treat's versatility.

Take country music superstar Trisha Yearwood, the host of "Trisha's Southern Kitchen." She's having friends over for a girls' lunch in the Feb. 10 episode and is serving up a meal that could make almost any Valentine's date happy. There's linguine with braised red wine short rib sauce on the menu, served with marinated roasted portobellos. So far no chocolate — but don't let that fool you. There's more than enough of the gooey black stuff with dessert, which includes a classic molten chocolate cake with cassis berries, served with even more chocolate in the form of chocolate cherry martinis.

That same day, Ree Drummond makes chocolate treats for her daughter to share with her friends in "The Pioneer Woman." She whips up chocolate cups topped with sugared orange peels, some doubledipped cookies-and-cream marshmallow treats, and even some chipotle fudge for those who like a little bit of a kick in their chocolatey treats. "The Kitchen" and "Valerie's Home Cooking" get in on the Valentine's Day fun, too, with their own sweet and savory dishes that are sure to crank up the romance of any meal.

Giada de Laurentiis takes her turn hosting Sunday, Feb. 11, when she has a few couples over for a Valentine's Day get-together around an outdoor firepit in "Giada Entertains." Chocolate's on the menu here, too, with gourmet s'mores headlining a meal that she and her quests cook over an open fire.

Romantic or not, who can't get behind a day that celebrates chocolate? Food Network does Valentine's Day proud this upcoming weekend.

A Bad Moms Christmas

Moms and best friends Amy (Kunis), Kiki (Bell) and Carla (Hahn) are all looking forward to the coming Christmas season, until all three of them have their own mothers show up unexpectedly to spend the holidays with them and their families. It doesn't take long for the younger women to start butting heads with their intrusive moms, and during a day out Christmas shopping together, they vow to take back the holiday and do things the way that they want to. The souring relationships between them and their moms, however, threaten to ruin the holiday that they're trying so desperately to save.

Directors: Jon Lucas, Scott Moore. Stars: Mila Kunis, Kristen Bell, Kathryn Hahn, Christine Baranski, Susan Sarandon, Cheryl Hines, Justin Hartley, Jay Hernandez. 2017. 104 min. Comedy.

Suburbicon

In a quiet and peaceful neighborhood in the 1950s, Gardner Lodge's (Damon) life is thrown into disarray after two robbers break into his home and murder his wife. In the aftermath of the violent home invasion, his dead wife's twin sister Margaret (Moore) moves in to help look after his son Nicky (Jupe). As the investigation into the crimes pushes on, both the boy and a charismatic insurance agent (Isaac) looking into the death begin to suspect that both the break-in and the murder may have been planned by Gardner and Margaret all

Director: George Clooney. Stars: Matt Damon, Julianne Moore, Oscar Isaac, Noah Jupe, Glenn Fleshler. 2017. 105 min. Crime.

After President Kennedy (Donovan) is killed by an assassin's bullet, Vice-President Lyndon B. Johnson (Harrelson) is unexpectedly thrust into the job of being the leader of the free world. With both the country and its government dealing with great upheaval in the aftermath of the murder, the new president faces high-stakes political battles on both sides of the aisle as he works to secure his new position and heal a divided and wounded nation. Director: Rob Reiner. Stars: Woody Harrelson, Jennifer Jason Leigh, Bill Pullman, Jeffrey Donovan, Richard Jenkins, Kim Allen. 2016. 98 min. Biography.

NCIS

The murder of a jury member sends Torres (Wilmer Valderrama) and Bishop (Emily Wickersham) to prison to visit a convicted investment advisor (Kevin Pollack) in this new episode. The drama follows agents who investigate cases related to military personnel.

The Middle

6 9 8:00 p.m.

Frankie (Patricia Heaton) and Mike Heck (Neil Flynn) guide their three kids with wit and humor in this comedy. Even though Axl (Charlie McDermott) and Sue (Eden Sher) have left home, they discover they still rely on their parents for support.

Mark Harmon stars in "NCIS"

This Is Us

3 9:00 p.m.

The Pearson family returns to prime time with another episode that weaves back and forth through time. Twins Kate (Chrissy Metz) and Kevin (Justin Hartley) and their adopted brother Randall (Sterling K. Brown) rely on each other when they face challenges.

The Mick

23 9:30 p.m.

After Alba (Carla Jimenez) admits she may have a substance abuse problem, Mickey (Kaitlin Olson) and the gang accompany her to church in this new episode. Meanwhile, Ben (Jack Stanton) questions his belief in God.

Big Brother: Celebrity Edition

4 8:00 p.m.

Celebrities enter a house outfitted with 87 HD cameras and more than 100 microphones in the premiere of this special edition of the hit reality TV program. Each week, the stars will compete in challenges in the hopes of staying in the house.

The Blacklist

3 8:00 p.m.

Red (James Spader) and the task force look into The Invisible Hand after bodies are found abandoned in the woods. The secretive group targets those whose actions it deems morally reprehensible, despite being fully legal.

James Spader in "The Blacklist"

The Librarians

тит 8:00 р.т.

Eve Baird (Rebecca Romijn) and the other Librarians keep the world's mystical relics safe and out of the hands of those who might use them for nefarious purposes in this new episode. John Larroquette stars as the Library's cantankerous caretaker.

Guy's Grocery Games

FOOD 9:00 p.m.

Guy Fieri challenges sweet-and-savory duos to prepare an all-American comfort dinner and dessert using items from a mandatory list in this new episode. In the end, the finalists will have to make a steakhouse meal on a tight budget.

The Four: Battle for Stardom

23 8:00 p.m.

Four talented performers fight to stay in the competition and take home the ultimate prize in this season finale. Award-winning singer Fergie hosts while Sean "Diddy" Combs, DJ Khaled, Meghan Trainor and Charlie Walk serve as expert panelists.

The Big Bang Theory

4 9:00 p.m.

Amy (Mayim Bialik) tries to help Sheldon (Jim Parsons) find his more laid-back side when he stresses out about picking a wedding date in this rebroadcast. Meanwhile, Koothrappali (Kunal Nayyar) and Stuart (Kevin Sussman) compete to win a woman's heart.

Shemar Moore in "S.W.A.T."

Arrow

69 9:00 p.m.

When Cayden James (Michael Emerson) uncovers a secret about the Green Arrow (Stephen Amell), Oliver considers turning to his old teammates for help in this new episode. Meanwhile, William (Jack Moore) demands more of Oliver's time.

S.W.A.T.

4 10:00 p.m.

Hondo (Shemar Moore) gets taken off active duty when a misconduct complaint is filed against him, forcing Deacon (Jay Harrington) to step up and lead the team in this rebroadcast. Meanwhile, Tan (David Lim) asks an informant with whom he has a history for help.

Hollywood Q&A

By Adam Thomlison TV Media

Q: I would like to know more about "A Place to Call Home" — is there a new season in the works? I hope I'm not the only one addicted to this show.

A: You certainly aren't the only viewer hooked on the Australian prime-time soap "A Place to Call Home," which has become an international smash. Unfortunately, no North American network has shown the same enthusiasm. Regardless, though, there will be new episodes coming for quite a while.

As usual, it's the PBS "network" supplying fans of foreign dramas with their fix. But I put network in quotes there for a reason: The various PBS affiliates across the U.S. are given a great deal of freedom with their programming, and as a result, their schedules aren't as consistent as those of the more centrally controlled big four networks (ABC, NBC, CBS and Fox).

Q: I don't recall ever seeing Doug McKeon, who played the grandson Billy in the movie "On Golden Pond," in any other movies. Did he continue a career as an actor?

A: Doug McKeon's doing all right for himself, all things considered — those "things" being the child star curse, basically.

He's doing well enough that he just appeared in a pretty high-profile role in an even higher-profile film: The somewhat lost and resentful little boy in "On Golden Pond" grew up to become the vice-president of the United States of America.

McKeon's most recent role, in 2016, was playing Hubert H. Humphrey in "LBJ," the Rob Reiner-directed biopic of Lyndon B. Johnson, which starred Woody Harrelson in the title role.

It was McKeon's biggest role in quite a while — perhaps since "On Golden Pond" in 1981. Otherwise, they've been a lot of quest spots on TV and in the occasional big-screen film, some a little less prestigious than "On Golden Pond" or "LBJ." Prior to "LBJ," he had a role in 2015's "I Spit on Your Grave: Vengeance Is Mine," the third installment in the modern slasher-film franchise.

The Tonight Show With Jimmy Fallon

I read that British Airways is getting rid of reclining seats on their planes. And if you think that's bad, Southwest just announced that their new seats only recline forward.

I saw that Princess Charlotte went to her first day of nursery school yesterday. It was a little intimidating for the other kids. Like for "show and tell," she brought Scotland.

Steve Bannon is leaving Breitbart — but he said he's proud of what they've accomplished in a short period of time. For example, in just a few months, they managed to fire Steve Bannon.

Arnold Schwarzenegger said he's forming a coalition of moderate Republicans. Either that, or he said he's "putting some lotion on llama butts and pelicans."

Betty White just did an interview where she said the secret to long life is drinking vodka and eating hotdogs. So finally, some GOOD news for Steve Bannon.

The CEO of Domino's Pizza announced that he's stepping down this summer. He'll carefully pack up his office, then get home and find that all of his stuff is stuck to the top of the box.

After being out of business for years, Circuit City announced that they're opening stores again. Yeah, they said they couldn't wait to fax their employees the news.

Over the weekend, Eric Trump celebrated his 34th birthday at a Mexican restaurant, and he and Don Jr. wore sombreros. Which backfired when their dad had them deported.

The Late Show With Stephen Colbert

One of the things that inspires me most about Oprah is that I believe she's reasonable enough to consider the possibility that being a billionaire TV star doesn't necessarily qualify vou to have the launch codes. Then again, if we did go toe to toe with North Korea, I bet she could calm Kim Jong-un down just by helping him lose weight.

Congratulations to the Alabama Crimson Tide, who last night beat the Georgia Bulldogs to win the college football championship. It's the best thing to happen to Alabama since not electing Roy Moore. Good for you! That's two in a row!

Today, President Trump held a bipartisan meeting on immigration reform, focused mainly on reforming our policy of having immigrants. The stakes are high. If the two sides can't find a compromise, the federal government is going to shut down on Jan. 20, or as historians call it: one year too late.

The Late Show With James Corden

This is our first show of the new year after the holidays. We're very happy to be back. We actually would have come back last week but marijuana was just legalized here in California so, you know.

Two major Apple investors wrote an open letter to the company pressuring it to study the addictive effects of iPhones and iPads on children. This seems a little bit late. Addressing this problem now is like your drug dealer telling you, "Hey, man, be careful with that. It's not good for you. I'll see you Monday."

Trump is asking Congress to put up $18 billion for this wall he said Mexico was gonna pay for. Meanwhile, millions of children are about General Motors announced to lose their health insurance because Congress still hasn't funded the CHIP program. I guess the wall is so we don't try to escape to Mexico to find a doctor for our kids.

Trump has reportedly been rolling into the Oval Office at around 11 a.m. and heading out at 4:15 p.m. It's reassuring that the president of the United States has the same hours as a Venice Beach skateboard shop.
