New 'bawse' in town

Lilly Singh takes over late night

By Kyla Brewer
TV Media

Late-night talk shows have been a staple of television programming for decades, but a new host is about to shake things up with a fresh take on the tried-and-true format.

YouTube phenomenon Lilly Singh ("Fahrenheit 451," 2018) moves to TV as she hosts "A Little Late With Lilly Singh," premiering Monday, Sept. 16, on NBC. The new show features traditional late-night interviews, of course, but also pre-taped comedy sketches and segments featuring her signature brand of humor.

Singh announced the show on "The Tonight Show With Jimmy Fallon" back in March, and she was eager to share her ideas for the new late-night program.

"I'm so excited because I truly get to create a show from scratch," Singh said. "I get to make it inclusive, I get to create comedy segments and interview people and really create something that I believe in."

She went on to explain that "A Little Late With Lilly Singh" will be a little like her YouTube channel, ILSuperwomanII, which has nearly 15 million subscribers. Featuring a mix of comedy segments, motivational messages and collaborations with some of her famous friends, her YouTube channel has taken the internet by storm, earning her numerous accolades, including Streamy Awards, two Teen Choice Awards and a People's Choice Award. She also has a vlog channel, created in 2011, where she chronicles her daily activities. In 2017, Forbes ranked Singh 10th on the magazine's list of the world's highest-paid YouTubers and named her the top influencer in the entertainment category.

For YouTube fans who may be concerned that she'll nix her beloved channel now that she's got a primo late-night gig, fear not. In a YouTube video announcing "A Little Late," Singh insisted: "I would not abandon my YouTube family."

The internet may have made her a star, but Singh is also an accomplished entertainer, having appeared on television, in movies and music videos. She released a visual music piece on YouTube called "Voices" in 2016 and appeared in the music video for Maroon 5's "Girls Like You." Her movie credits include "Dr. Cabbie" (2014), "Ice Age: Collision Course" (2016) and "Bad Moms" (2016). She guest starred as herself in an episode of Disney Channel's "Bizaardvark."

She became an author in 2017 when she released her book "How to be a Bawse: A Guide to Conquering Life," which became a No. 1 New York Times bestseller.

With all of these accomplishments under her belt, it's safe to say that Singh is a modern-day Renaissance woman. What's even more amazing is that she's done all of this by the time she turned 30, and she'll continue to break new ground in "A Little Late With Lilly Singh." When her new late-night show premieres, she'll be the first woman to host her own late-night TV show on one of America's "Big 4" networks: NBC, ABC, Fox and CBS. She's also the first openly bisexual woman of color to helm such a show in the U.S.

"A Little Late's" format may be different than other late-night shows, but that could be a good thing. While a lot of late-night talk shows focus on current events and politics, Singh's show is expected to be more personal, mining her own experiences for comedy, similar to the YouTube content that made her a star.

Not having to rely on the news of the day will allow the cast and crew to film all 96 episodes of the show's debut season this fall, an ambitious undertaking. Luckily, Singh no longer has to go it alone in making her comedy segments and coming up with content. She'll have a whole roster of talented writers and behind-the-scenes talents working with her.

"I'm thrilled to be collaborating with this all-star team of writers as we work to bring a new, authentic perspective to late night," Singh said in an official NBC news release announcing the premiere.

In addition to Singh, the core group of writers includes Sean O'Connor ("The Late Late Show With James Corden"), Marina Cockerberg ("The Tonight Show Starring Jimmy Fallon"), Sergio Serna ("Alternatino With Arturo Castro"), Jen Burton ("Alternatino With Arturo Castro") and new comedy writers Mona Mira and Jonathan Giles. Industry pundits have already been praising the gender-balanced writing room.

John Irwin, who has experience in live telecasts and comedy with such credits as "Late Night With Conan O'Brien" and "MadTV," has signed on as an executive producer. Co-executive producers include O'Connor, Casey Spira ("NBC's New Year's Eve"), Polly Auritt ("The Shannara Chronicles") and Sarah Weichel ("A Trip to Unicorn Island," 2016). Ryan Polito is set to direct "A Little Late With Lilly Singh."

Singh and her cohorts are expected to attract a fresh, digitally savvy audience to NBC's late night with her loyal fan base, and the network is giving people who may not be familiar with Singh an opportunity to get to know her in "A Little Late With Lilly Singh: The Primetime Special," on Wednesday, Sept. 18, right after the season finale of "America's Got Talent." In the special, Singh conducts interviews, participates in games and sketches and interacts with the audience.

A true dynamo, Singh seems to have the Midas touch and has the potential to turn late-night television on its ear.

Dark Phoenix

In 1992, after a mission to save the space shuttle Endeavor, Jean Grey (Turner) has her psychic abilities amplified from what is believed to be a solar flare. With her mental barriers altered by the accident, she relives trauma from her past, including the realization that she was the cause of the fatal car wreck that killed her parents and left her the sole survivor of her family. While learning to control her pain on the island of Genosha, she encounters Vuk (Chastain), who reveals that the solar flare that altered Jean's abilities was actually a cosmic force that has possessed her. Prof. Charles Xavier (McAvoy) and the other X-Men work together to save Jean from herself, and from those looking to make her powers their own.

Q: Has "Deep State" been canceled? And is Mark Strong no longer involved with the series?

A: It's become something of a trend among prestige dramas to write out their seemingly unkillable main characters (see, for example, "True Detective," "Fargo") and, of course, "Game of Thrones"). Nonetheless, it still came as a surprise to fans when [slight spoiler alert] Mark Strong's character seemed to have been written off at the end of "Deep State" Season 1.

Strong was the star of the show, so many thought that the writers would bring him back in Season 2. But that season came and went without him.

His spot was filled by another critically beloved character actor, Walton Goggins, who played a different character but brought the same gravitas and star power.

The second season finished in the summer, but there's been no word yet on a third. There's every reason to be hopeful, though. The producers still have time to make the decision before they blow any kind of deadline.

Q: I love Michael Caine. Where did he get his start?

A: It depends what you mean by "start," as Michael Caine took the long road to acting success.

His true start was on the stage, as is the case with so many British film greats, but his breakthrough to fame came in the mid-1960s.

It started with 1964's "Zulu," a war film in which he had a supporting role as a coddled, upper-class army officer, playing against what we now know as his type — urban, working-class men who succeed based on skill and brass.

That type was defined in his very next film, "The Ipcress File," his first big starring role. He played counterespionage agent Harry Palmer in the film.

Though that film did launch a series, Caine was quick to branch out to avoid being typecast.

He did it with a bang the next year, 1966, with "Alfie," a romantic comedy in which he stars as a playboy coming to terms with the consequences of his ladies' man life. That film was a critical and popular hit and cemented Caine's position as a leading man with range.

Unfortunately, rival scientists built a six-foot, 11-inch robot that can say, "Not in my house!"

A school in Japan is teaching people how to become professional mascots. When the Elmo in Times Square heard, he was like, "For $15, I'll give you a degree and my costume right now."
