'Homeland' gears up for its final mission

By Francis Babin TV Media

udiences and critics alike often complain about the state of the film industry and its heavy reliance on remakes, but no one seems to bat an eye at the same situation happening in the world of television. Perhaps it is because there is just so much original content on the small screen and streaming services (more than 500 original series in 2019 alone) that they just get lost in the shuffle. Nevertheless, some of the most popular and well-received hits of the last couple of decades have been remakes of foreign series.

Furthermore, many of these imports, such as HBO's "Euphoria" and "In Treatment," as well as the award-winning spy drama "Homeland," have come from Israel. Why does the small desert nation produce so many programs that attract western audiences? Nobody really knows, but while we stew on that question, you can catch the globe-trotting action of the eighth and final season of Showtime's "Homeland" when it returns after a two-year hiatus on Sunday, Feb. 9.

Based on the Israeli series "Prisoners of War," "Homeland" took the world by storm when it premiered in 2011. The Showtime drama was immediately an immense success with its gripping and compelling storyline of Nicholas Brody (Damian Lewis, "Billions"), a U.S. Marine sergeant who was missing in action but returns to his home after years in captivity. His sudden return sets off alarm bells for Central Intelligence Agency operations officer Carrie Mathison (Claire Danes, "A Kid Like Jake," 2018), who tries to convince her mentor, Saul Berenson (Mandy Patinkin, "Life Itself," 2018), and colleagues of an impending attack. To complicate matters, Carrie has bipolar disorder, making her an unreliable narrator.

Carrie, Saul and the show itself have come a long way since that first season. After wrapping up the Brody arc, the series switched gears to tackle a multitude of real-world topics like botched drone strikes, jihadi attacks on Europe, the election of a female president and other hot-button issues. According to Showtime, the final season continues exploring current political situations and heads back to the Middle East.

As Season 8 opens, Carrie is still recovering after months of brutal confinement in a Russian gulag, while Saul is now the national security advisor to newly elected President Warner (Beau Bridges, "Messiah"). Looking to end the "forever war" in Afghanistan, the new, ambitious president sends Saul to the Middle East in order to negotiate with the Taliban.

Needing help in the hostile territory, Saul, against everybody's advice, reaches out to Carrie for help one last time. She has extensive experience in the region and still has numerous contacts and allies, including Tasneem Qureshi (Nimrat Kaur, "Wayward Pines"), a member of Pakistan's Inter-Services Intelligence. Though, with a fragmented memory and her loyalty in question, it is uncertain how much assistance she will be able to provide.

While promoting the final season at the Television Critics Association media tour panel, executive producer and showrunner Alex Gansa ("24") said the series is going back to its roots as opposed to mirroring the political situation in Washington, D.C., like the last two seasons. He added that the final season looks to echo the first one and wrap up many loose ends from the fourth season, rewarding longtime fans who never got answers to their burning questions. It will focus on the relationship between Carrie and her longtime, on-again, offagain friend, foil and boss, Saul. The relationship between mentor and protege has always been the heart of series, and in the final episodes it will finally come to a head. The subject matter that "Homeland" has dealt with for nearly a decade can never be wrapped up neatly, but the storyline between master and pupil can be properly resolved.

At the same TCA event, Gansa explained that the long delay between seasons was due to the of awards and praise, but also fact that they want to go out proudly and on a high note. Beyond that, filming in multiple countries is no easy feat and takes a bit of time. In addition to the logistical challenges, crafting a graceful ending for "Homeland" has proven to be quite difficult.

While "Homeland" is still very popular and garners great ratings for Showtime, many television viewers have forgotten just how much of an impact the series had when it premiered. Much like "Game of Thrones" or AMC's "Breaking Bad," talk of the Claire Danes drama was inescapable and completely dominated the culture. Like the aforementioned. its success led to not only a slew dozens of poorly made copycats popping up in quick session, only to be quickly rejected by the general public in what many entertainment pundits have dubbed the "the Homeland ef-

Even though "Homeland" has not made many appearances on the countless recent "best of the decade" lists, the landmark series is undeniably one of the more important ones of the 2010s, with its rich storytelling and captivating take on our current geopolitical situation. On Sunday, Feb. 9, witness the end of an era as one of the most influential and relevant shows of the 2010s returns after a twoyear absence for its eighth and final season on Showtime.

Cooking with heart

Food Network will get you ready for Valentine's Day

Valerie Bertinelli hosts "Valerie's Home Cooking"

By Michelle Rose

TV Media

ood is an expression of love any time of the year, but it takes on a whole new meaning on Valentine's Day. If you're looking to put Heart Month. This is a good opa little romance on the table this Friday, champagne, strawberries and oysters are some of the foods that famously help set the right mood. But whether you're planning a dinner for two or a gathering for family and friends, there are less-exotic ingredients and recipes that will just as easily convey your feelings for the special person(s) in your life.

In fact, Food Network has devoted an entire weekend cooking block to Valentine's Day foods, beginning Saturday, Feb. 8, and continuing the next day. Dubbed "Chocolate Weekend," viewers can expect a mix of new and repeat episodes that could provide some last-minute inspiration (no iudament here) for a romantic meal or a chocolate treat for your sweetheart — like the chewy chocolate-covered nougats featured in "Girl Meets Farm."

But February is also American portunity to serve up a few heart-healthy options that are every bit as romantic as high-fat and high-sugar treats, with the added bonus of showing you care about your loved one's health.

And for that, you'll want to tune in to the Feb. 9 episode of "Valerie's Home Cooking."

In the new episode, titled "A Heart-y Valentine's Day," Valerie Bertinelli stealthily cooks up a heart-healthy meal for friends and family. Ingredients include red wine and 70% dark chocolate. And you can expect to see a few familiar faces gathering around the table, including her fellow "Kids Baking Championship" judge Duff Goldman and his wife, Johnna.

A proponent of healthy living since her dramatic weight loss in 2009, Bertinelli has previously helped lead the American Heart Association's annual Heart Walk. Heart disease is the leading cause of death for both men and women in America. But for Bertinelli there's a personal connection to issues of cardiac health: her mother underwent emergency heart valve replacement surgery in 2008.

Just last month, the former "One Day at Time" and "Hot in Cleveland" star appeared on NBC's "Today" to announce a new weight-loss journey. Bertinelli explained: "I just feel really positive about 2020. I feel like it's a new dawn. I want to lose a few pounds. I want to feel better about my life."

And based on the Feb. 9 episode of "Valerie's Home Cooking," cooking with a healthy heart in mind — even on Valentine's Dav – is going to be a big part of Bertinelli's journey to greater well-being.

The Saint Valentine's Day Massacre HIST 8:00 a.m.

In February of 1929 Al Capone took on Bugs Moran in a battle for Chicago's underworld in the culmination of a decade long gang war. Film and recreation offer an inside look at organized crime's greatest mass murder in this bloody Valentine's Day special.

The Shape of Water

FX 1:30 p.m.

In this 2018 Best Picture winning love story set in the 1960s, a mute woman (Sally Hawkins) and a humanoid amphibian man (Doug Jones) bond as she works as a cleaner in the secret government lab where he is being held captive and studied.

Richard Jenkins and Sally Hawkins in a scene from "The Shape of Water"

Be My Valentine, Charlie Brown 5 9 8:00 p.m.

The Peanuts gang is back with another holiday special, and Charlie Brown finds himself waiting again for a Valentine's Day card that he fears will never come. Meanwhile, Linus buys a box of chocolates for his teacher, with whom he's fallen in love.

Pride and Prejudice and Zombies SYFY 10:00 p.m.

Jane Austen's classic love story unfolds only slightly differently when hordes of the undead are involved. Mr. Darcy (Sam Riley) is a top-notch zombie slayer but he must overcome pride to work with lower-class weapons expert Elizabeth Bennet (Lily James).

Hollywood Q&A

By Adam Thomlison

TV Media

Q: Is it true that Lisa Kudrow was supposed to be in "Frasier"?

A: Not only that, she actually was a part of the cast, at least for a few days.

Lisa Kudrow, now known probably forever as lovably dim Phoebe on "Friends," actually had the gig — she'd beaten out the competition and was officially part of the cast of what was expected to be a surefire hit (and, of course, it was). She'd been cast as Roz, Frasier Crane's (Kelsey Grammer, "Cheers") forceful radio producer.

The problem was that she couldn't quite nail the "forceful" thing, according to the show's creator

"What Jimmy [that's pilot director and TV legend James Burrows to most of us] noticed was that Kelsey was pulling back in scenes with her because if he went all out like he usually did, he completely overpowered her," creator and writer Peter Casey said. "This was a big problem. We didn't want the star of the show to have to compensate like that in every scene with one of the regulars, so with great regret we called Lisa and told her we were going to have to recast the part."

They gave it to Peri Gilpin, whom Kudrow had beaten out in auditions. Gilpin played the role much more to their liking, and fans and critics agreed — Gilpin would be nominated for stacks of awards for her performance in the role, which became more central to the plot as the series progressed.

Kudrow opened up about the experience in a commencement speech at her alma mater, Vassar College, and said she was gutted after losing the role. She was still a struggling young actress at the time, and she'd been certain "Frasier" would be her "shot."

She kept grinding, though, going to auditions and taking work where it came, until she landed a role on another new sitcom being directed by Burrows, "Friends."

And so, she said, being fired turned out to be a blessing.
