Energy Assistance Available to New Hampshire Residents

CONCORD — As the heating season begins, New Hampshire residents struggling with rising energy costs may qualify for assistance through several programs administered locally by the Community Action Partnership of Hillsborough and Rockingham Counties.

Programs include Fuel Assistance, the Electric Assistance Program, free weatherization services and Senior Energy Assistance Services (SEAS) for residents ages 60 and older whose incomes exceed standard Fuel Assistance limits.

Residents are encouraged to apply early to ensure assistance is available before the coldest months of winter.

How to Apply for Fuel Assistance

First-time applicants should contact their nearest Community Action Partnership office to schedule an appointment. Residents who received Fuel Assistance the previous year should receive an application by mail with instructions. Anyone who does not receive an application packet should contact a local office.

Resource centers are open from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Eligible improvements may include adding insulation, reducing drafts and addressing unsafe heating appliances. Services are provided at no cost to eligible participants.

Renters must obtain permission from their landlords before work can be completed.

Electric Bill Assistance

Income-eligible New Hampshire homeowners and renters may qualify for the Electric Assistance Program, which provides discounts of 5% to 86% on monthly electric bills.

Seniors who need assistance are encouraged to contact their local Community Action Partnership office to learn more about eligibility and application requirements.

Residents seeking help with the application process can also contact the office of the official distributing this information at 603-498-0546.

Unitil Offers Tips to Cut Energy Costs as Temperatures Drop

HAMPTON — As colder weather arrives, Unitil is encouraging customers to take simple steps to reduce energy use and lower heating bills this fall and winter.

Recommendations include removing window air conditioners, sealing drafts around windows and doors, checking heating system filters and using sunlight to warm rooms during the day.

Smart thermostats can also help customers manage heating costs by automatically adjusting temperatures when they are asleep or away from home. According to ENERGY STAR, smart thermostats can save up to 8% on energy bills.

Unitil customers Beth Dupell of Stratham and Dan Mills, co-owner of Steppin' Out Dance Academy in Kingston, have adopted energy-saving measures. Dupell installed a smart thermostat and replaced household bulbs with LED lighting. Mills said the dance studio reduced energy use by at least 25% after installing smart thermostats. The business also upgraded its furnace and lighting, receiving an incentive of about $6,000 for LED lighting and controls through NHSaves, a statewide energy-efficiency initiative.

Unitil recommends the following steps to help reduce energy costs:

• Seal air leaks around windows and doors, and improve insulation where needed.

• Remove window air conditioners before winter.

• Check furnace and heat pump filters monthly and schedule annual boiler maintenance.

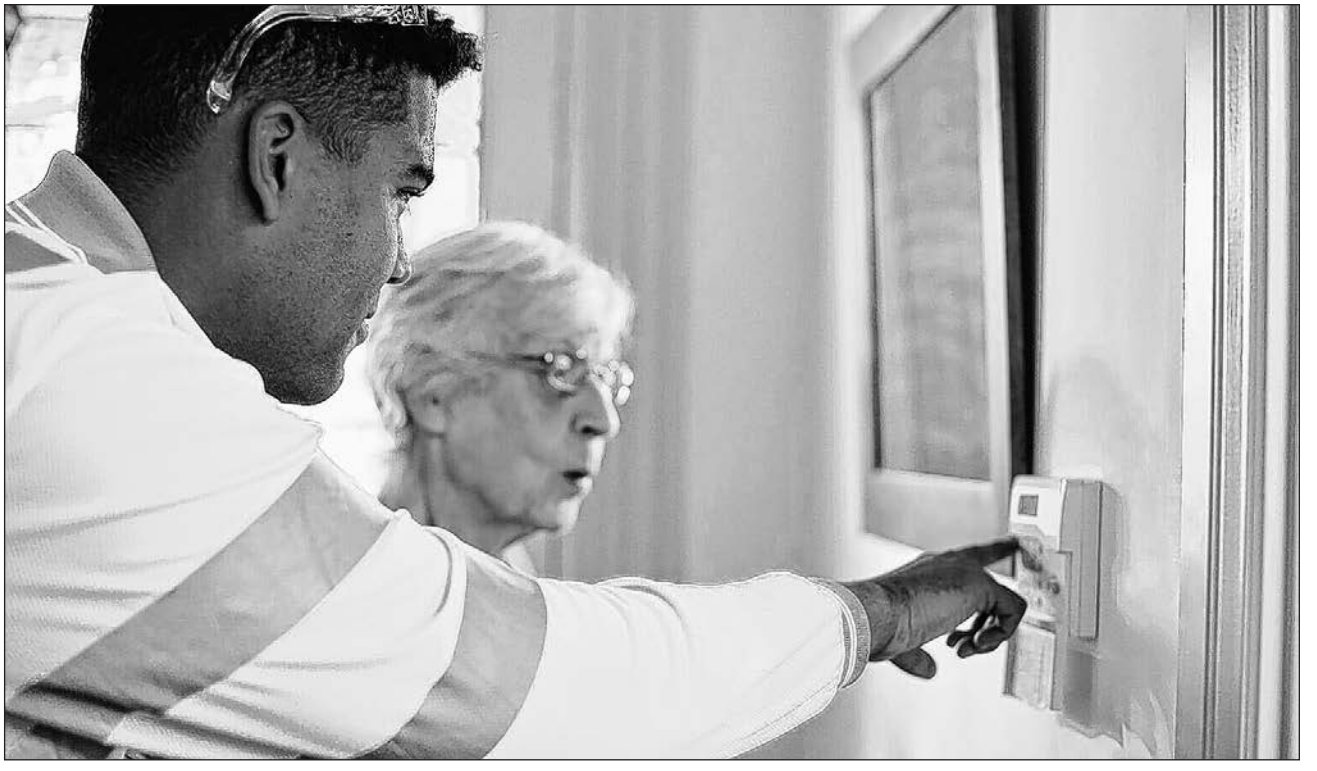

• Open south-facing curtains during the day to take advantage of sunlight, then close them at night.

• Replace incandescent bulbs with ENERGY STAR-certified LED bulbs, which use up to 90% less energy.

• Set thermostats to 68 degrees or lower while home and awake, and reduce the temperature when sleeping or away for extended periods.

• Consider a programmable or smart thermostat to manage heating automatically.

BEHIND THE BADGE

Kingston Police Chief

» Joel Johnson

What does 24/7 police coverage really mean?

The Kingston Police Department provides police coverage 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, 365 days a year. Emergencies don't take nights, weekends or holidays off, and neither do we.

Our department currently has nine sworn officers. Our Police Chief, Administrative Lieutenant, and Detective have responsibilities that do not allow them to regularly patrol. While they can respond to emergencies when needed, their primary duties involve administration, supervision, investigations and other essential department responsibilities.

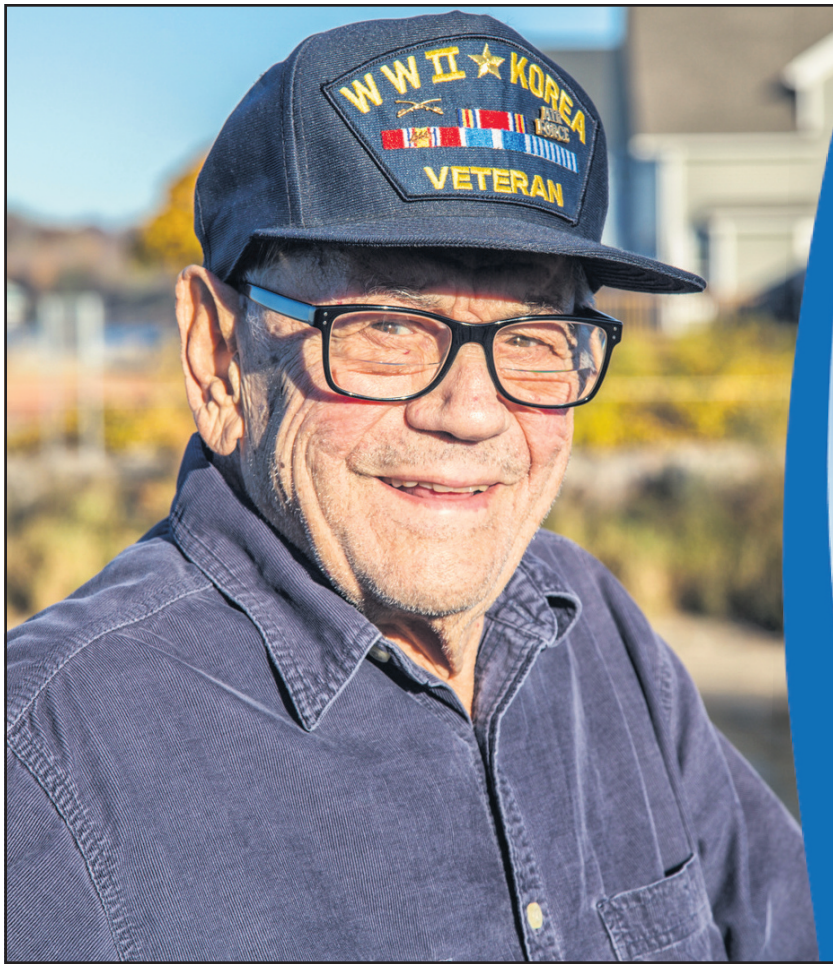

That leaves six patrol officers responsible for covering our community around the clock.

Ideally, we would have two patrol officers on duty at all times. To make that happen, we need 336 officer-hours of coverage each week. With our current staffing, we have only 240 regularly scheduled officer-hours available. That's a shortage of 96 officer-hours every week, before accounting for vacations, sick time, medical or family leave, work-related injuries, mandatory training and court appearances.

As a result, there are shifts when only one officer is on duty. This creates challenges for officer safety and can impact our ability to respond to multiple emergencies at the same time.

Having 24/7 police coverage doesn't always mean we have the staffing needed to have two officers available around the clock. We are sharing this information because we believe our residents deserve to understand the challenges we face in keeping Kingston safe.

Thank you for taking the time to learn more about the department that serves you.

Kingston Community Comes Together to Support Homeless Veterans

KINGSTON — Local residents, veterans' advocates and community supporters gathered Sept. 23 for a cookout at a Kingston home that provides housing for six veterans who previously had nowhere to go. The home, purchased and renovated through Housing Support of New Hampshire Inc., was dedicated last year as part of an effort to provide veterans with safe, comfortable housing.

Among those attending were State Rep. Mark Pearson, R-Kingston; Tom Baird and Ruth Robertson of Operation Delta Dawg; and Emmi, a service dog in training who helps provide companionship to veterans. Pearson, who also attended last year's dedication, learned that one of the home's six rooms remained vacant and said he would work with contacts around the state to help identify another veteran in need of housing.

Neighbors also attended the cookout and praised the veterans and the positive relationship they have developed with the surrounding community.

Free Women's Self-Defense Seminar

NEWTON — A free self-defense seminar for women and girls ages 13 and older will return to Newton Town Hall this fall, offering instruction in personal safety, recognizing dangerous situations and responding to potential assaults.

Taught by Newton resident Jim Ryan, who has more than 30 years of experience in martial arts, kickboxing and self-defense instruction, the course is designed to help participants recognize threats, react to an assault and develop a plan to escape safely.

The seminar will be held from 6:30 to 8 p.m. Oct. 29, Nov. 6, Nov. 12 and Nov. 19 in the upstairs area of Newton Town Hall.

The course covers anti-abduction, anti-assault and anti-robbery defense techniques. Participants will learn how to deliver strikes to various self-defense targets and use strategic countermeasures to overcome differences in strength or size.

Organizers emphasize the importance of having a plan for emergencies and other dangerous situations.

There is no fee to attend, but enrollment is limited to the first 20 participants. Women and girls ages 13 and older are eligible to register. The course may be offered to men and boys at a later date.

Participants should wear loose-fitting clothing and sneakers or other lightweight athletic footwear. Light gardening gloves or padded fingerless mixed martial arts gloves may be worn but are not required. Participants should also bring water to stay hydrated. 'Plows4seniors' Needs Your Help

ATKINSON — At 13 years old, Samuel "Sam" Weller is already making a difference in his community through an organization he founded to help local seniors weather the challenges of winter.

Two years ago, Weller started Plows4Seniors, a New Hampshire nonprofit organization recognized as a 501©(3). Its mission is straightforward: raise funds to pay local plow operators to clear the driveways and walkways of seniors who are unable to safely remove snow themselves.

Plows4Seniors serves seniors in southern New Hampshire who are on fixed incomes or have physical disabilities. The organization works with town Elder Services departments and other community organizations to identify seniors who need assistance.

Donations to Plows4Seniors can be mailed to: Plows4Seniors, 25 Maple Ave., Atkinson, 03811.

Those interested in learning more about the organization, requesting assistance or supporting its mission can visit www.plows4seniors.org.

It is with broken hearts and profound sadness that we share that our Executive Chef, dear friend, and beloved member of the Jamison's family, Billy Brandolini. Passed away of a sudden heart attack October 8th in his home.

There are no words that could ever truly express what Billy meant to us. Billy was the heart of Jamison's, he was a friend, a brother in every way that mattered, and an irreplaceable part of our lives. While we may not have been family by blood, Billy was family to us in every sense of the word.

Billy was the heart of our kitchen, but his place in our lives extended far beyond the walls of Jamison's. He was part of our everyday lives and so many memories we will forever hold close.

Jamison's simply would not be what it is today without him. During this incredibly difficult time, we ask that you please keep Billy's family and loved ones in your thoughts and prayers as they navigate this unimaginable loss. May they be surrounded by love, strength, and support in the days ahead.

The family kindly asks that donations be considered to a GoFundMe established to support Billy's beloved wife, Jillian, and their three young children, Winter, Maverick, and Vatrano, as they navigate this heartbreaking loss. Any contribution, no matter the size, is deeply appreciated and will help provide support and stability for his family during this difficult timeand in the years ahead.

VICKI J. BROWN PHOTOS

Hope for Ash Trees

Vicki J. Brown,
East Kingston Conservation Commission

EAST KINGSTON —The White Ash tree in East Kingston's Union Cemetery on South Road shows no sign of Emerald Ash Borer (EAB), an insect which has sadly killed so many ash trees in our community.

The tree either has natural resistance to the EAB — often called "lingering ash" — or it has benefitted from preventative trunk injection treatments started five years ago.

As overseer of town's Emerald Ash Borer Fund, established in 2019 by town warrant,, the East Kingston Conservation Commission proactively treats the town's beautiful ash tree to prevent Emerald Ash Borer infestation and potential mortality. These preventative trunk injection treatments were done in 2021, 2023 and 2026.

Fortunately, the tree remains healthy, with no sign of the invasive pest; i.e., no crown die-back or bark "blonding" from woodpeckers feeding on the EAB larvae.

The next treatment will be in three years, in the spring of 2029.

Powwow Pond Milfoil Update

Vicki J. Brown, East Kingston Conservation Commission

EAST KINGSTON —Solitude Lake Management performed a survey of Powwow Pond following its treatment for invasive milfoil in spring of this year. Annual treatments include manual Diver-Assisted Suction Harvesting and when necessary, herbicides, with approval by and under the direction of NH Department of Environmental Services and coordinated by the Powwow Pond Council with full support from both the Kingston and East Kingston Conservation Commissions.

"By and large, the milfoil is under control," the report notes, although traces of variable milfoil remain: "a couple of stalks here and a small patch there, all out towards the center of the pond."

A wide number of native species — including water lilies and water shield, large leaf pondweed, ribbon leaf pondweed, tapegrass and broad leaf arrowhead – are present.

Unfortunately, a large population of brittle naiad (Najas minor), another invasive aquatic plant, was documented in the pond.

Learn more about Powwow Pond at www.powwowpond.org.

Hampstead Librarian Wins State Award for Adult Programming

HAMPSTEAD — Julie Watt, communications and adult programming librarian at the Hampstead Public Library, has received the 2026 READS Award of Excellence from the Reference and Adult Services Section of the New Hampshire Library Association.

The award recognizes an individual who has made outstanding contributions to improving library services for adults.

"Julie is very invested in making sure we are serving all of Hampstead and endeavors to find events and activities that will reach beyond the patrons who frequently visit our library," said Kate Thomas, director of the Hampstead Public Library.

Watt has introduced a variety of popular programs, including Bagels & Bingo, Medicare information and assistance, Book Bags and the Craft Bar. She has also organized events for the USA's 250th anniversary, challenging patrons to read books featured in PBS' Great American Read.

To celebrate readers' favorite books, Watt invited community members to share their all-time favorites and compiled their selections into The Great Hampstead Read list.

Another highlight of Watt's work at the library is her role as a co-author of Images of America: Hampstead, a book documenting the town's history.

Library officials invite community members to congratulate Watt on her achievement when they see her at the library.

Wreaths Across America in East Kingston

EAST KINGSTON — Millions of volunteers and supporters are expected to gather Saturday, Dec. 19, at more than 5,500 locations in all 50 states and at sea and abroad for Wreaths Across America, an annual effort to remember fallen veterans, honor those who serve and teach future generations about their sacrifices.

East Kingston's local ceremony will take place at noon outside the East Kingston Library, 47 Maplevale Road.

Leading the ceremony again this year will be Mark A. Pearson, who represents Hampstead, Kingston and East Kingston in the New Hampshire House of Representatives. Pearson also serves as a major in the Civil Air Patrol, the U.S. Air Force auxiliary.

Karen Worcester, executive director of Wreaths Across America, emphasized the personal stories behind military service and sacrifice.

"We often speak of 'our service members' as though they are one unified group," Worcester said. "Yet within that group are countless individuals, each with a name, a family, and a story that helped shape the freedoms we cherish today."

Worcester noted that honoring service members collectively can sometimes overshadow the individual sacrifices made by military families, young recruits and veterans who return home carrying difficult memories.

Residents in other communities throughout the Carriage Towne News distribution area are encouraged to contact their local veterans organizations to find information about ceremonies taking place in their towns.

Hampstead's Junior Olympics Continues Four-Decade Tradition of Fun and Community

HAMPSTEAD, N.H. - Meetinghouse Park was filled with energy, laughter, and community spirit this past weekend as local children gathered for the Hampstead Civic Club's annual Junior Olympics, a beloved tradition that has brought families together for more than 40 years.

Children in grades 1 through 6 competed in a variety of Olympic-style events, including sprints, hurdles, long jump, relay races, and other athletic challenges. While friendly competition was on display throughout the day, the event was equally focused on sportsmanship, teamwork, and having fun.

Participants gave their all on the field, danced with friends, and even cooled off with water balloon activities as families cheered from the sidelines. Blessed with beautiful weather once again, the event was a celebration of the strong community connections that make Hampstead special.

The Hampstead Civic Club extended its gratitude to the many families who participated, as well as the coaches, volunteers, and community members who helped organize the day. Volunteers staffed the events, prepared food, handled setup and cleanup, and ensured a safe and enjoyable experience for all.

Special recognition was also given to event organizers Andrew Conti, Andy Kiburis, Doug Meyer and their fellow committee members, whose dedication and countless hours of planning helped make the Junior Olympics another memorable success.

As another year of competition and fun came to a close, one thing remained clear: the Junior Olympics continues to be one of Hampstead's most cherished community traditions. Organizers are already looking forward to welcoming families back next year for another day of friendship, fun, and community pride.

Hampstead Civic Club is always looking for new members. To learn more about us, you can find us on Facebook or our website, https://hampsteadcivicclub.org

How Did You Celebrate Constitution Day on September 17th?

For many, September 17th may have passed like any other day, but at Seacoast Classical Academy, September 17th was an opportunity to celebrate the founding principles of our nation.

The morning began with a reminder of the significance of the day: the commemoration of the signing of the United States Constitution in 1787. Our scholars gathered for a special celebration designed to help them understand why the principles outlined in the Constitution matter. and what those principles ask of each generation.

Those gathered reflected on three simple words with extraordinary meaning: "We the People." These words established a government that derives its powers from the people themselves. A free government depends upon citizens who understand and practice the principles upon which it was founded.

Learning from the Founders

The celebration opened with our local Fire Department raising the American flag as scholars stood for the national anthem and Pledge of Allegiance. Two scholars then led the school in reciting the Scholar's Code of Conduct, connecting our responsibilities as American citizens with our responsibilities as members of our school community.

One of the morning's most memorable moments came when our second-grade scholars, after little more than two weeks of school, stood before the entire Academy and recited the Preamble to the United States Constitution from memory:

"We the People of the United States, in Order to form a more perfect Union, establish Justice, insure domestic Tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general Welfare, and secure the Blessings of Liberty to ourselves and our Posterity…"

The Founders understood that liberty carries both blessings and responsibilities. Through celebrations like Constitution Day, our scholars are learning that they are part of that story and have a role in understanding, practicing, and carrying forward the principles of self-government.

That spirit continued as our first graders recited It Can Be Done, a poem about accomplishing what once seemed impossible. The morning concluded with our fourth graders reciting Theodore Roosevelt's famous "Man in the Arena" passage, reminding us to value those who are willing to strive, persevere, and pursue something worthy rather than simply remain critics on the sidelines.

Education for a Free People

At Seacoast Classical Academy, we believe education is about more than acquiring information. A classical education seeks to cultivate young people who can think carefully, speak truthfully, act courageously, and pursue what is good.

Our scholars are learning the history of their country. They are memorizing some of America's greatest words. They are practicing public speaking. They are encountering primary sources and classic literature. They are learning to listen, to think, to persevere, and to articulate what they believe. Most importantly, they are being reminded that freedom carries responsibility.

The Founders entrusted the blessings of liberty to "ourselves and our posterity." Our hope is that the young scholars sitting in our classrooms today will become the kind of citizens worthy of that trust.

And that is classical education in action.

Exeter Brewing Co. Sweeps Powder Keg Beer and Chili Awards

EXETER — Exeter Brewing Company claimed both People's Choice Awards at the 14th annual Powder Keg Beer & Chili Festival, held Oct. 3 at Swasey Parkway.

The Exeter Area Chamber of Commerce and Exeter Parks and Recreation Department announced the winners following the annual festival, which draws thousands of beer and chili enthusiasts from across New England.

Exeter Brewing Company took first place in both the Best Brewery and Best Chili categories. Fat Hen Brewery placed second in both competitions, while North Country Hard Cider finished third in Best Brewery and Thirsty Moose Taphouse took third in Best Chili.

"The Powder Keg Beer & Chili Festival is a celebration of community and a chance for festival-goers to sample some incredible beverages and chili," said Greg Bisson, director of Exeter Parks and Recreation. "The creativity and quality our participants bring to the festival each year are a big part of what makes this event so much fun."

Jennifer Wheeler, president of the Exeter Area Chamber of Commerce, thanked the breweries, chili competitors, sponsors, volunteers and attendees who helped make the event a success.

"Congratulations to Exeter Brewing Company on an impressive sweep of both People's Choice Awards!" Wheeler said.

The festival is presented jointly by the Exeter Area Chamber of Commerce and the Exeter Parks and Recreation Department.

Tickets for the 2027 festival will go on sale in December. The event is scheduled for Oct. 2, 2027, at Swasey Parkway.

Chamber Chatter: Connect, Shop and Celebrate Local this November

SALEM — November is a time to show up, connect and support the businesses and organizations that make Southern New Hampshire a vibrant place to live and work. This month, the Southern New Hampshire Chamber of Commerce is encouraging business owners, professionals, nonprofits and residents to get involved, make connections and discover what is happening in their community.

A quick conversation over coffee can lead to a new partnership. A visit to a local business can introduce shoppers to a new favorite. A Chamber event can turn a familiar face into a valuable business connection.

As the holiday season approaches, the Southern NH Chamber is encouraging the community to connect local, shop local and celebrate local through a lineup of November events designed to bring people together.

November Events

Several Chamber events are open to the public, while others are reserved for Chamber members.

Pickleball 603 will be held Friday, Nov. 13, from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. at 45 Danville Road in East Hampstead. The event will provide participants with an opportunity to learn about pickleball. Registration is required.

The Small Biz Marketplace Expo, one of the month's featured community events, will take place Wednesday, Nov. 18, from 3 to 7 p.m. at the Plaistow YMCA, 175 Plaistow Road in Plaistow. Admission is free, and the event is open to the public.

For Chamber members, Business Before Hours: Salem High School Internship Program will be held Wednesday, Nov. 4, from 8 to 9 a.m. at Salem High School, 44 Geremonty Drive in Salem.

Business After Hours at Day's Jewelers will take place Thursday, Nov. 12, from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. at 8 South Village Drive in Salem. Registration is required for both members-only events.

Small Biz Marketplace Expo Highlights Local Businesses

The Southern New Hampshire Chamber of Commerce is inviting the community to its Small Biz Marketplace Expo on Wednesday, Nov. 18, from 3 to 7 p.m. at the Plaistow YMCA.

The free event will bring local businesses, entrepreneurs and shoppers together under one roof. The Expo is designed to showcase small businesses throughout the region while giving entrepreneurs an opportunity to connect with potential customers and build relationships within the community.

With the holidays approaching, the event provides an opportunity to shop small and give local. Attendees can meet the business owners behind local products and services, discover unique gifts and find items they may not see at larger retailers.

The Expo also offers residents an opportunity to learn more about the businesses that contribute to the Southern New Hampshire community. Whether attendees are looking for holiday gifts, exploring local services or simply want to support small businesses, there will be something for everyone.

The Chamber encourages attendees to bring their shopping lists, invite friends and make an afternoon of supporting local businesses.

Admission is free, and everyone is welcome.

Chamber Membership Helps Businesses Grow

The Southern New Hampshire Chamber of Commerce is more than a networking organization. It serves as a resource for business growth and a catalyst for stronger connections throughout the region.

Chamber membership provides access to business leaders, educational programs, advocacy, marketing opportunities and community connections. Members also have access to opportunities including business spotlights, email promotions, sponsorships, newsletter features, referrals and increased visibility throughout Southern New Hampshire.

Whether launching a startup, growing an established business or seeking stronger connections within the community, businesses can use Chamber membership to build relationships and access resources that support long-term growth.

Stay Connected

Residents and businesses can stay up to date on member spotlights, event announcements, business news and community celebrations by following the Southern New Hampshire Chamber of Commerce on Facebook, Instagram and LinkedIn.

Historic Union Church to Host Thanksgiving Service in Danville

DANVILLE — Members of the Union Church invite friends, families and community members to attend a special Thanksgiving service at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 25.

The interdenominational service is open to the public, and all are welcome.

Refreshments will be served at the Old White Schoolhouse, adjacent to the church, following the service.

The Union Church was dedicated in the fall of 1850, following four years of planning that began in 1846. A group of local men recognized the need for a place of worship in the area then known as North Danville. A building committee was formed, land was purchased, shares were sold and families purchased pews.

For more than 150 years, families from communities throughout the Town of Danville have gathered at the historic church at the beginning of the Thanksgiving season.

Visitors can sit in the original pews, many of which still bear the names of the families who first purchased them, listen to the music of the historic pipe organ and experience the atmosphere of a small village church.

The interior remains much as it was designed in 1850, with renovations made in 1892. The pipe organ, gifted to the church in 1940, adds to the building's musical tradition. Although its exact age has not been confirmed, the organ remains an important part of the church's history.

The Union Church is located on Beach Plain Road, just off Main Street in the north end of Danville.

Organizers invite the community to gather in the historic church, reflect on the Thanksgiving season and make the evening a memorable family tradition.

Austin17House to Host Holiday Craft and Vendor Fair

BRENTWOOD — Austin17House will host its annual Holiday Craft and Vendor Fair from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 14, at the youth center on Route 125 in Brentwood.

The event will feature food, locally made products and gifts, along with an opportunity for community members to tour the facility. Vendor registration remains open.

Austin17House also recently renovated its Chill Room, reorganizing puzzles and games, adding shelving and making better use of the available space to create a more comfortable environment for youth.

The center offers programs throughout the week, including arts, sports, fitness, theater, STEM activities, games and its Training Academy. Club 17 meets Thursdays from 3 to 6 p.m., followed by Game Night from 6 to 9 p.m.

Austin17House is seeking volunteers to help youth develop life skills and positive habits. Volunteers with skills in music, sewing, tutoring, weightlifting and cooking are especially needed. Those interested can visit the organization's website to complete a volunteer application.

The center recently received volunteer assistance from members of Alpha Tau Omega at the University of New Hampshire. Volunteers helped with carpet cleaning, window washing and wallpaper removal, helping improve the facility for youth and families.

Austin17House will be closed Nov. 27 for Thanksgiving travel.

For more information about programs, volunteering or the Holiday Craft and Vendor Fair, visit www.austin17house.org.

On Christmas Eve, Thursday, Dec. 24, a candlelight service will begin at 7 p.m., featuring music and a message from the Rev. Paige Besse-Rankin, interim pastor.

The church will celebrate Epiphany with a joint worship service with Hampstead Congregational Church at 10 a.m. Sunday, Jan. 3, followed by a potluck gathering.

Known as the "Light on the Hill," Atkinson Congregational Church is an Open and Affirming congregation established in 1772. Regular Sunday services begin at 10:30 a.m., unless otherwise noted. Services also are available through the church's website, YouTube and Atkinson Community Television.

Tip of the Month: Let One Sense Bring You Back to Calm

Cheryl Fields, MSN, RN

Caregiving can change the rhythm of your whole day. Suddenly, your mind is full of medications, appointments, meals, phone calls, paperwork, and the quiet worry that something important may be missed. Even when caregiving is rooted in deep love, the constant responsibility can leave the caregiver living in task mode from morning until night.

This month's tip is simple: use one of your senses to create a small pause. Not a vacation. Not a spa day. Not one more obligation on your list. Just a brief moment of relief that is already available in the life you are living right now.

When I teach this I like to say start with what you see. Step outside for a moment and notice the sky, the leaves moving in the breeze, or one flower in the yard. Describe it to yourself, in that moment breath in and allow that beauty to linger. Say it to yourself... The sky is a deep blue today. That flower is has such an interesting inner petal, or unique mix of colors. This tiny shift in attention gives your brain a short break from the endless loop of caregiving concerns.

Next, think about what you hear. Listen to the birds, rain against the window, or a favorite song in the car. Instead of using every drive to rehearse what still needs to be done, let the music reach you for a minute. Take a breath. Let your body notice the beat, the drums, the melody etc. Imaging the sound waves actually giving you a little massage as they pass.

Do the same with smell, taste, or touch. Smell your coffee before it gets cold. Notice the sweetness of a strawberry or the richness of a small piece of chocolate. Although I do have a hard time eating chocolate slow! Take a moment to be aware of the warmth of the dish water or the softness of a pet or the aroma of the hand lotion you usually rub in while rushing to the next thing. These moments may be small, but they are not meaningless.

Caregivers sometimes feel guilty for enjoying anything when someone they love is struggling. But joy is not a betrayal. It does not mean you care less. A small moment of calm can help you stay steadier, kinder to yourself, and more emotionally available for the person who needs you.

So try this today: choose one sense, take one slow breath, and stay with something pleasant or grounding for just a few seconds. As you exhale be aware if the mini moment of relaxation. Practice these mini moments throughout your day. Make it a habit, challenge yourself to literally STOP and SMELL THE ROSES on your morning walk. Then send me an email and tell me what you have been experiencing by finding calm through your senses. You might win a free copy of my book Prepared! A Healthcare Guide for Aging Adults.

Home prices rise 6.5 percent in September as inventory still tight

CONCORD — New Hampshire's housing market moved into the fall season with home prices continuing to climb, sales holding steady, and more properties coming onto the market, according to September data from the New Hampshire Association of Realtors (NHAR).

The median sales price for a single-family home reached $569,900 in September, a 6.5 percent increase from September 2025, leading to an NHAR Affordability Index of 51, the lowest in more than 20 years. It means the state's median household income is just 51 percent of what is necessary to qualify for the median-priced home under today's mortgage rates, which have increased to over 7 percent.

Despite the higher prices, the number of transactions remained essentially unchanged from a year ago. There were 1,310 closed sales in September, compared with 1,314 in September 2025, a decline of less than one-half of one percent.

September typically marks the beginning of the fall housing market, during which sales activity begins to slow from the summer months. This year, however, the year-over-year sales numbers suggest that buyer demand remains resilient despite higher home prices and rising mortgage rates.

"We are seeing some encouraging signs for buyers, particularly with more homes coming onto the market, but New Hampshire still has a significant shortage of housing," said Josh Greenwald, 2026 NHAR President and broker/owner at Greenwald Realty in Keene. "The issue isn't difficult to identify: Home prices continue to rise because demand continues to outpace the supply of homes available for sale."

The number of single-family homes on the market in September was 19 percent higher than a year ago, while new listings increased 6.4 percent from September 2025.

Homes are also taking slightly longer to sell. The median number of days on market increased to 13 days, compared with 11 days in September 2025. Even with that increase, homes continue to sell quickly by historical standards.

New Hampshire had just 2.9 months of housing inventory in September, a figure that has remained unchanged for the past three months. A healthy, more balanced housing market would generally have at least five months of available inventory. It has been a full 10 years since the last time New Hampshire saw five months' supply.

"The number of homes sold in September was virtually unchanged from a year ago, yet the median price increased 6.5 percent," said Greenwald. "Taking a longer view, over the past 12 months, home prices are up 4.2 percent and continue to rise faster than inflation.

"That tells us the fundamental challenge in New Hampshire hasn't changed, and we simply don't have enough housing to meet demand and start to bend the cost curve."
