Your Weekly Guide to TV Entertainment

For the week of December 24 - 30, 2017

A Christmas tradition continues with a special holiday episode of "Call the Midwife," airing Monday, Dec. 25, on PBS. Participating in the convention of many British dramas, the series has created a standalone Christmas special each year since its conception. This year's special sees the midwives of Nonnatus House brave the "Big Freeze" of the winter of 1962 to dutifully care for the mothers and babies of Poplar in East London.

Baking is made easy in 'Baked in Vermont'

Gesine Bullock-Prado hosts "Baked in Vermont"

s there anything quite like the smell of freshly baked goods coming out of the oven? That warm, mouthwatering scent that fills countless homes at this time of year is definitely one of my favorites, and while the smells that are no doubt filling Gesine Bullock-Prado's kitchen don't make their way through the TV screen (where's my Smell-O-Vision television?), by the look of her baked goods, they probably smell absolutely amazing.

The acclaimed pastry chef. baking instructor and cookbook author has been sharing some of her top baking tips all month in "Baked in Vermont," on Food Network. She believes that anyone can bake with just a bit of knowledge and some confidence — not to mention lots of flour and butter — and she's invited audiences into her Vermont home, where she shares tips and tricks to help make baking accessible to even the clumsiest of cooks.

In this week's episode, airing Saturday, Dec. 30, Prado invites some friends over to make tasty apple cider together in her barn. Always the perfect host, she bakes up an amazing apple-inspired brunch to share with her guests — and invites us along, too. First on the menu are poached eggs on English muffins with hollandaise: all made from scratch, of course.

On the sweeter side of things are a batch of apple cider doughnuts, served alongside a latticed apple slab pie. Of course, any good spread of tasty treats also needs an equally good thirst quencher, and Prado's sparking apple cider cocktail certainly fits the bill.

Baking may have a reputation for being mostly sweets, but all month Pardo's been sharing tips on how to make perfect savory pastries. She's made fluffy cheese puffs, succulent steak hand pies and an incredible hearty pork pie. Of course, that doesn't mean that the sweet side of things has been neglected. Quite the contrary. With gingerbread cookies, a decadent interior cake and even homemade caramels all having found a home in her kitchen, this is a baker who gives both the savory and sweet sides of baking their due.

Gesine Bullock-Prado makes baking seem so easy, and with her sage advice it usually is. The latest episode of "Baked in Vermont" airs Saturday, Dec. 30, on Food Network.

Hollywood Q&A

By Adam Thomlison TV Media

Q: Is Mike Franks still alive and how old is he?

A: I'm a little unsure how to answer this. I'm assuming you mean the "NCIS" character Mike Franks (the only other Mike Frankses I could find are a former pro tennis player and track and field star). However, do you want to know about the age and aliveness of the character, or the actor? I'll do both, to be safe.

Muse Watson, the actor who played grizzled veteran agent Mike Franks in CBS's long-running action hit "NCIS," is 69 years old, alive and well — well enough, in fact, to be playing pranks on former co-stars.

This year marks the 20th anniversary of the horror flick "I Know What You Did Last Summer," in which Watson played the killer. As a joke, he sent a text message to co-star Ryan Phillippe, in character as the hook-handed killer. "I think he wrote something creepy like 'Hello, old friend,'" Phillippe told the Huffington Post. "I found it really weird and creepy."

Q:The bailiff from "Judge Judy" said during an interview that he was recording an album. Did he ever do that? Do you know what it's called and when it came out?

A: Yes and no. Yes, he did release an album of some kind, but I know nothing about it.

Countless albums are released every year in North America, some independently, some for labels so small they might as well be independent, and it can be tough to find a single one in the crowd. And "tough" becomes impossible if the artist himself doesn't promote it.

Petri Hawkins-Byrd took a funny path to fame, finding it as a mostly silent presence on the biggest daytime show on American TV. Given that he actually has a rather lovely voice, you'd think he'd want people to hear it.

And yet, on his own website (petrihawkinsbyrd.com, if you're curious) the only evidence that he wrote and recorded an album is that he lists singer/songwriter as one of his "hobbies." His PR agency calls him a "published and recorded songwriter" (in the third paragraph of his biography).

My favorite thing about Harlem is you can buy absolutely anything from the street vendors. Anything! That's why, after the show tonight, you're all invited back to my hotel to watch a bootleg copy of "Bride of Chucky."

I left New York eight years ago. Since then, there have been so many changes to this city. I was walking around today and I noticed that the Starbucks near my old apartment has been replaced by a totally different Starbucks.

I love being uptown, but there's a lot of gentrification in Harlem. In fact, it's gotten so bad, the Harlem Globetrotters are now a bunch of white guys who play hockey.

The Tonight Show With Jimmy Fallon

The company that owns Match.com is in talks to buy Bumble for over $1 billion. But at their first meeting, Bumble had a friend call midway through in case things were going bad and they wanted to leave.

I just read that one of the least-returned holiday gifts for women is anti-aging skin cream. So if you're thinking of buying the woman you love anti-aging skin cream still don't.

Last night, a painting by Leonardo da Vinci sold for a record $450 million. The winning bidder said they can't wait to get home and put the painting in a frame they bought at Michaels.

I read that Kiss singer Gene Simmons was just banned from Fox News for sexual harassment. How bad did it have to be to get banned from Fox News? That's like being banned from White Castle for being too high.

Scientists say that the trees this fall weren't very colorful because dry weather in August and September meant that the leaves fell earlier. They suggest that anybody who still wants to see something dry and orange just visit the White House.

Two more women have come forward accusing Roy Moore of making unwanted advances at the mall. Which explains that new slogan: "Amazon: So You Don't Run Into Roy Moore at the Mall."

A man in California got stuck inside his apartment after a UPS driver wedged a package under his doorknob. Luckily, he was set free when a FedEx driver threw a package at the door and knocked it loose.

The Late Show With James Corden

Two photographs that went missing from the Museum of a Modern Art in New York were mailed back to the museum just a few days later by the alleged thief. Which is, you know, great for the museum. Got to be a bit of a blow to the ego of the artist. "Your photographs were so popular they were stolen! No, wait, they sent them back."

President Trump's trip to Asia. They said Trump displayed his "true colors as an old lunatic, mean trickster and human reject." Now you listen here, North Korea we may not like him either, but that is the president of the United States you're accurately describing.

York Times, promote Fox and Friends, promote Sean Hannity, criticize three UCLA basketball players and send his condolences after another multi-victim shooting — to the wrong city. In the wrong state. And that's it I think — it's like he never left.

Late Night With Seth Meyers

Maryland police are searching for a woman caught on surveillance video climbing into a McDonald's drive-thru window and helping herself to a soft drink before leaving with a box of stolen items. Police describe the suspect as "the McDonald's customer who can still fit through the drive-thru window."
