Faced with financial ruin, George Bailey (Jimmy Stewart, "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," 1939) wishes he'd never been born in the holiday classic "It's a Wonderful Life," airing Tuesday, Dec. 24, on NBC. Donna Reed ("From Here to Eternity," 1953) and Lionel Barrymore ("Key Largo," 1948) also star.

'Oh ffffudge!'

'Food Network Challenge' reboot begins with a movie homage

lan Ziering hosts "Food Network Challenge"

TV Media

ame your favorite holiday movie. If you said "A Christmas Story" (1983) and you happen to love cake, you're in for a special treat this week. (If you said 1988's "Die Hard" and you hate cake, well, maybe there will be something for you next year.)

It's been nearly a decade since the last installment aired in 2011, but "Food Network Challenge" returns this week with six new episodes beginning Monday, Dec. 23.

Actor Ian Ziering — he of "Beverly Hills 90210" fame and the "Sharknado" franchise that inspired my Christmas sweater this year — hosts this reboot of the race-against-theclock, pop culture-themed competition.

There have been other skill sets, themes and recipes featured in past competitions, but "Food Network Challenge" has leaned pretty heavily on elite-level cake making. This 2019-20 edition is no exception: It challenges some of the top bakers, cake and sugar artists in the country to create supremely decorated, specially themed cake masterpieces.

Each episode begins with four competitors before the elimination round. The three remaining food artists must then compete for the final prize of $10,000 and the fancy new moniker of "Food Network Challenge" Champion.

As mentioned, the theme for the first episode is "A Christmas Story." And while the news release talks about there being "no shortage of 'Oh ffffudge!' moments," I'm sure I'm not the only one who's hoping to see a pink bunnysuit, a Red Ryder air rifle (that's all Ralphie wanted for Christmas, after all) and a "major award" leg lamp at some point.

Food Network's eponymous competition series has had an incredible track record of launching new TV talent, including Duff Goldman, who competed in 2005 ("Ace of Cakes" launched the following year). And this new batch of competitors will surely eniov a career boost from competing in front of a national audience in the coming weeks, when the episode themes will include "Back to the Future," Pokémon, Monopoly and "The Wizard of Oz.'

But if you can't get enough of "A Christmas Story," even after the Dec. 23 episode of "Food Network Challenge," you might want to plan a visit to A Christmas Story House in Cleveland. It's the actual house used in the movie, complete with leg lamp and a bar of soap in the bathroom (I've been, it's true). Be sure to go in the winter if you want to see snow, though fans will point out much of the white stuff in the "neighborhood bully" scenes wasn't real anyway it was soap flakes and firefighting foam.

Hollywood Q&A

By Adam Thomlison

TV Media

Q: What was the name of that movie from the '90s about a guy, maybe Paul Rudd, who goes back to his home town and develops a cute relationship with his neighbors' daughter (played by the girl from "Black A: The maybe-Paul Rudd you're referring to is actually Timothy Hutton (perhaps the Paul Rudd of the '90s), the girl from "Black Swan" (2010) is named Natalie Portman (for the record), and the movie you're looking for is "Beautiful Girls" (1996).

The storyline you're focusing on is just one you could have chosen. "Beautiful Girls" has an excellent ensemble cast playing the close-knit group of friends who have come together for their 10-year high school reunion. Their various personal struggles — their quarter-life crises, if you will — form the overall plot of the film.

The struggle between Hutton and Portman's characters is her inappropriate crush on him.
She's literally the girl next door.

but she's only 13 to his 28. The odd sort of friendship they settle on is due to the fact that she's a pretty precocious 13 — she describes herself as an "old soul" and spouts bits of clever wisdom that the older man benefits greatly from.

If you wanted to overanalyze this generally light romantic dramedy, you could say that this is an overarching theme in the film: Age and wisdom don't necessarily arrive at the same time.

If Portman's character is wise beyond her years, some of the other adult characters are still living out their teenage problems. For example, the characters played by Matt Dillon and Lauren Holly, two other bigname actors in the cast, are revisiting their high school romance, which is inappropriate now that they're both in relationships with other people.

Other luminaries in the loaded cast include Uma Thurman, Mira Sorvino, Annabeth Gish and Rosie O'Donnell.

Trump had his annual physical. There was an awkward moment when the nurse told Trump, "Mr. President, the open part of the robe should be in the back."

Victoria's Secret has officially canceled their Fashion Show. Or, as one guy put it, "Oh my God, this week CAN get worse!"

Thanksgiving is just a few days away, and I saw that about 50 million people will be traveling for the holiday. Here's how that breaks down: 10 million are visiting family, while 40 million are delivering weed to those 10 million.

The Late Show With Stephen Colbert

This year the two turkeys up for pardon were called Bread and Butter. Butter got the official pardon moment. Only one thing: Bread won the White House Twitter poll by 12 points. I'm surprised Bread won the popular vote — I can't believe it's not Butter!
