Beth (Christina Hendricks, "Mad Men"), Annie (Mae Whitman, "Parenthood") and Ruby (Retta, "Parks and Recreation") have taken seemingly mundane jobs as they plot to advance their criminal enterprise in a new episode of "Good Girls," airing Sunday, March 22, on NBC. Meanwhile, Stan (Reno Wilson, "Mike & Molly") works security at a strip club, and Dean (Matthew Lillard, "Scooby Doo," 2002) takes a sales job at a spa.

Roll out

'The Great Food Truck Race' heads to California

Tyler Florence hosts "The Great Food Truck Race"

By Michelle Rose
TV Media

Good news if you're a fan of food trucks: the trend is still going strong. According to IBISWorld industry stats, there are 25,476 food trucks operating in the U.S. and the market is only expected to grow in 2020.

If you want a glimpse of the future, tune in to Food Network this week to meet the next wave of aspiring food truck operators. Another season of "The Great Food Truck Race" rolls out Thursday, March 26, and in marked contrast with last season's "Holiday Hustle" winter theme, this edition will be basking in the California sunshine.

The weekly challenges and exotic California Gold Coast locales are different, but the format remains the same. Each week, the truck teams will race to a new location to face new challenges and cook up new menu items. As always, they'll have to sell as much food as possible to make a profit because the team that earns the least will be eliminated at the end of the episode. And the last two teams will have to pull out all the stops to win the $50,000 prize.

These are your truck teams for this season: Crystal's Comfort Food, known for sweet and spicy wings; health-conscious Eat My Crust; aptly named Lunch Ladies; Indian Tex-Mex purveyor Mystika Masala; Super Sope and its Mexican cuisine; and Bachelor Kitchen and Team Fat Kid, both specializing in Tex-Mex.

In the season premiere, all seven teams start their journey in the city that popularized taco trucks, Los Angeles. But if you're hoping to see messy tacos laden with toppings, you'll be disappointed: celeb chef/host Tyler Florence will challenge the teams to cook and sell luxury versions of traditional fare.

"The Great Food Truck Race" isn't the only mobile food-focused show on TV but it was the first one. Since its debut in 2010, the series and its host have been credited with bringing the street food scene into the mainstream consciousness. The novelty of the concept may have worn off but the popularity endures, and it's a markedly different scene today. Florence summed it up best in an interview with The Daily Meal: "Trying to engage in a conversation about food trucks was impossible in 2010. People were telling me that there was no way they'd eat from a 'roach coach.' Think about how far we've come since then."

On April 6, 1917, a German army retreat on France's Western Front is actually an ambush waiting to happen. With communications disabled and no way to quickly relay the information, lance corporals William Schofield (MacKay) and Thomas Blake (Chapman) are asked to carry the message of the imminent attack to the targeted battalion. The two soldiers begin a race against time, crossing enemy territory, facing risks and scattered Germans, in an attempt to warn the regiment before 1,600 men unwittingly march right into the enemy's hands.

The Song of Names

In a story that spans half a lifetime, Martin (Roth) searches for his adopted Polish brother, Dovidl (Owen), a violin virtuoso who disappeared as a young man before performing solo at a London concert. The two were close as children, leaving a young Martin baffled as to where and why his brother might have vanished without a trace. Decades later, as the conflict that brought them together fades and European attitudes and ethics change, Martin meets a violinist exhibiting a style too similar to Dovidl's to be a coincidence.

Late laughs

A Little Late With Lilly Singh

When I first moved here, I didn't have very many friends. It was just me and my recording equipment. So I did what everyone else in Hollywood does: I hired friends.

The Tonight Show With Jimmy Fallon

Earlier tonight, there was another Democratic debate, and Bernie Sanders looked to cement his front-runner status. You can tell Bernie is feeling good. Before the inconclusive. Inconclusive is not good for a test this important. That's why when people want to find out if they're pregnant, they don't pee on a Magic 8-ball.

Democrats are dealing with their own controversy — specifically, Senate Minority Leader Chuck Schumer. Apparently, the New York Post looked into Schumer's FEC filings and found the shocking news that he has spent $8,600 on Junior's cheesecakes in the past decade. Now, as scandals go, this one's pretty mild, and very creamy.

[Dr. Ronny] Jackson did have one strategy to keep Trump healthy. Apparently, he hid veggies in Trump's mashed potatoes. Because nothing makes a paranoid tyrant feel secure like hiding stuff in his food.

The Late Late Show With James Corden

South Carolina will be going to the polls to vote for the Democratic nominee on Saturday, which means Joe Biden only has about 48 hours left to put his foot in his mouth and offend an entire state.

Tonight was the 10th Democratic presidential debate, and it was hosted right here, on this network, CBS, which explains why Bernie Sanders answered every question with "Bazinga!"

It's been reported that some Republicans in South Carolina are going to vote for Bernie Sanders because they feel he can't win against Trump. When candidate Tom Steyer heard this, he was like, "Hey!

Getting votes as a joke is my thing!"

Jimmy Kimmel Live

The big winner last night at the debate, according to Donald Trump, was Donald Trump.

Mike Pence was in Michigan last night at a "Keep America Great" rally speaking to a group of farmers for whom he compared what's going on with the Democrats right now to a demolition derby. That's just what the country needs right now: a monster truck rolling over top of us!

Bernie has a lot of plans. Expensive plans, but he's smart. He's no dummy. Every time one of the other candidates asked who's gonna pay for these programs, he'd just point to Bloomberg and say, "Him!"

Late Night With Seth Meyers

A group of peacocks in Florida is being relocated after residents complained that the birds were being too aggressive and defecating on roads. Incidentally, the peacocks had the same complaint about Florida residents.

In a new interview, "Shark Tank" investor Barbara Corcoran admitted she lost nearly $400,000 in an email scam. So it's definitely worth bringing your idea for an email scam on "Shark Tank."

While in India today, President Trump and first lady Melania Trump visited Mahatma Gandhi's former home. Said Trump, "Cool, where's he live now?"

Vice-President Mike Pence has been put in charge of stopping the spread of the coronavirus in the United States. In other words, it's been nice knowing you.

Political analysts say that during tonight's debate, the other candidates are going to try and bring down Bernie Sanders. They plan on confusing Bernie by asking him his iTunes password.

In Los Angeles, true story, a man was caught stealing a hearse with a dead body inside. Sometimes, the urge to drive in the carpool lane is just too strong.

A new survey found that 38% of Americans won't buy Corona beer because of the coronavirus. While the other 62% were like, "Relax! That's what the lime is for. It sterilizes the beer."

The Late Show With Stephen Colbert

There might be a lot more people infected [with the coronavirus] than we know about, because on trial runs in some states, the CDC kits produced results that were
